Statesman Year-Book, 1929

PREFACE

MANY notable events have occurred in the World since the last edition of THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK was issued; it will suffice to mention by way of illustration the abrogation of the Constitution in Egypt and Yugoslavia respectively, the establishment of a Central government in China, the transformation of Albania from a Republic to a Monarchy, the restoration of the temporal sovereignty of the Pope, the installation of a new President and a new Cabinet in the United States, and the disappearance of one of the constituent states of the German Republic (Waldeck).

As it is the purpose of the Year-Book to furnish a clear reflection of the condition of the States of the World, all the new happenings have been duly noted in the present (the 66th) issue, and some of them is illustrated by a map—of the new Vatican City. The old facts and figures, as well as the lists of Books of Reference, have as usual been revised and brought up-to-date. Important information which became available too late for inclusion in the body of the Book will be found at the beginning of the volume, where also the section dealing with the League of Nations is printed. It is hoped that the introduction into the Index of large type for leading countries will facilitate the use of that very important part of the Year-Book.

The Editor would not have been able to accomplish his congenial task without the valued co-operation of many friends throughout the world, and to these, one and all, he desires to express his warmest thanks.

XI.—THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Secretary-General.—Sir James Eric Drummond, K.C.M.G., C.B.

The League of Nations is an association of States which have pledged themselves, through signing the Covenant (i.e., the constitution of the League) [For the text of the Covenant, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1921, page xxviii], not to go to war before submitting their disputes with each other or States not members of the League to arbitration or enquiry and a delay of from three to nine months. Furthermore, any State violating this pledge is automatically in a state of outlawry with the other States, which are bound to sever all economic and political relations with the defaulting member. The States Members of the League have pledged themselves to co-operate over a wide range of economic, social, humanitarian and labour questions.

The League of Nations formally came into existence on January 10, 1920, through the coming into force at that date of the Treaty of Versailles. The two official languages of the League are English and French. The seat of the League is Geneva, Switzerland.

The delegation of the Argentine Republic did not attend the second Assembly and withdrew from the first Assembly upon the latter's decision to refer the amendment to Article 1 of the Covenant proposed by the Argentine, for study by a committee that was to report to the second Assembly. The Argentine Government has not given notice of an intention to leave the League, and appears to regard itself as in a state of suspended or passive membership, to continue until some measure regarded as a satisfactory equivalent to the amendment proposed by the Argentine has been adopted by the League.

The following 10 States are not members of the League:—United States, Brazil (see above), the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Turkey, Egypt, Ecuador, Mexico, Afghanistan, Costa Rica, and the Hejaz and other Arab States. Costa Rica became a member of the League on December 16, 1920, but on December 24, 1924, she gave notice of her intention to withdraw, on the ground of the expense involved. The notice became effective on December 24, 1926. She has since announced to the League her intention to bring the question of her return before the Constitutional Congress.

II. THE ORGANS OF THE LEAGUE.

The primary organs of the League are:—

1. The Council.
2. The Assembly.
3. The Secretariat.
4. The International Labour Organisation.
5. The Permanent Court of International Justice (at the Hague).

1. THE COUNCIL.

The Council was originally composed of four permanent Members (the British Empire, France, Italy, and Japan) and four non-permanent Members to be elected every year by a majority of the Assembly. The first non-permanent Members, appointed by the Peace Conference and named in the Covenant before the first Assembly met, were Belgium, Brazil, Greece, and Spain. With the approval of the majority of the Assembly, the Council may appoint new permanent and non-permanent Members. At the Assembly of September 1926, Germany was admitted to the League and given a permanent seat on the Council. At the same time the number of non-permanent seats, already increased to six in 1922, was further increased to nine, the period of office to be three years. In order to institute the new system of rotation, three were elected for one year, three for two years, and three for three years, so that at all subsequent Assemblies three members retire instead of nine at once. In 1928 (Sept.) China, Colombia, and Holland were replaced by Spain, Persia, and Venezuela. Spain was specially accorded the privilege of re-eligibility on the expiration of her three years period of office. Poland was accorded the same privilege on her election for three years in 1926. Belgium and China both failed to get the necessary majority required for re-eligibility. Any Member of the League not represented on the Council shall be invited to send a representative to sit on it at any meetings at which matters especially affecting it are being discussed. A similar invitation may be extended to States not Members of the League.

The Council is at present (March 1929) composed of the following representatives:

PERMANENT MEMBERS.

British Empire—The Right Hon. Sir Austen Chamberlain, K.G., Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

France—M. Aristide Briand, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Germany—Dr. G. Stresemann, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Italy—Senator Vittorio Scialoja, Minister of State.

Japan—M. Adateli, Ambassador in Paris.

NON-PERMANENT MEMBERS.

Canada—The Hon. Senator Dandurand.

Chile—Señor Enrique Villegas, Ambassador in Rome.

Colombia—Señor F. J. Urrutia, Minister in Berne.

Cuba—Señor Agüero y Belhancourt, Minister in Berlin.

Finland—M. H. Procopi, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Persia—M. Ali Khan Foroughi, Ambassador in Turkey.

Poland—M. Zaleski, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Rumania—M. N. Titulesco, Minister in London.

Spain—M. Quinones de Leon, Ambassador in Paris.

Venezuela—M. Zumeta, Minister in Paris.

2. THE ASSEMBLY.

Every State Member of the League is entitled to be represented by a delegation to the Assembly composed of not more than three delegates and three substitute delegates, but it has only one vote. It meets at the seat of the League (Geneva) on the first Monday in September. It may meet at other places than Geneva, but hitherto it has never done so; extraordinary sessions may be called to deal with urgent matters.

The President is elected at the first meeting of the session, and holds office for the duration of the session.

The Assembly divides itself into the following six principal committees, on each of which every State Member of the League has the right to be represented by one delegate:

- I. Juridical.
- II. Technical Organisations.
- III. Disarmament.
- IV. League Finance.
- V. Social Questions.
- VI. Political Questions and admission of new Members.

The decisions of the Assembly must be voted unanimously, except where the Covenant or the Peace Treaties provide otherwise. As a general principle decisions on questions of procedure are voted by majority, or in some cases by a two-thirds majority.

3. THE SECRETARIAT.

The Secretariat is a permanent organ composed of the Secretary-General and a number of officials selected from among citizens of all Member States and from the United States of America. The Secretary-General, appointed by the Peace Conference (see Annex to the Covenant), is the Hon. Sir James Eric Drummond, K.C.M.G., C.B., British Foreign Office Official; hereafter the Secretary-General will be appointed by the Council with the approval of the majority of the Assembly. The other officials are appointed by the Secretary-General with the approval of the Council.

The Under-Secretaries-General are:—

- M. J. Avenol, French Inspector-General of Finance (Assistant Secretary-General);
- Marchese Paulucci di Calboli Barone, Italian Minister Plenipotentiary;
- Herr A. Dufour-Féronce, German Councillor of Embassy;
- M. Yotaro Sugimura, Japanese Minister Plenipotentiary.

4. THE INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANISATION. [See below.]

5. PERMANENT COURT OF INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE.

The Court is composed of 11 judges and 4 deputy judges elected jointly by the Council and the Assembly of the League for a term of 9 years.

The Secondary Organs of the League are:—

(a) The Technical Organisations.

1. Economic and Financial.
2. Health.
3. Transit.

(b) Advisory Commissions.

1. Military, Naval and Air Commission.
2. Commission for Reduction of Armaments.
3. Mandates Commission.
4. Opium Commission.
5. Social Commission.

(c) International Bureaux.

1. Hydrographic Bureau.
2. Relief Bureau.
3. Institute of Commerce.
4. Institute of Intellectual Co-operation. (Paris.)
5. Institute of Private Law. (Rome.)
6. International Educational Cinematographic Institute. (Rome.)

(d) Administrative Organisations

1. Saar Governing Commission.
2. High Commissioner for the Free City of Danzig.

V. MANDATES.

The African and Pacific possessions of Germany and certain territories of the Ottoman Empire were ceded by these countries at the end of the war to the Allied and Associated Powers. The latter had inserted an article (Art. 22) in the Covenant of the League according to which the inhabitants of these territories should be put under the tutelage of "advanced nations who by reason of their resources, their experience, or their geographical position, can best undertake this responsibility." These nations should act as mandatories of the League, and exercise their powers on behalf of the League. They should act on the principle that the well-being and development of the peoples under their tutelage formed a "sacred trust of civilisation," and should render the Council an annual report on the territory committed to their charge.

Article 22 furthermore divides the mandated territories into three classes, according to the degree of civilisation of their inhabitants, economic and geographic circumstances, and so forth. Class A is composed of the communities detached from the Ottoman Empire, declared to have "reached a stage of development where their existence as independent nations can be provisionally recognised subject to the rendering of administrative advice and assistance by a Mandatory until such time as they are able to stand alone."

Class B, consisting of the former German colonies in Central and East Africa, should be administered by the Mandatory under conditions which will "guarantee freedom of conscience or religion, subject only to the maintenance of public order and morals, the prohibition of abuses such as the slave trade, the arms traffic and the liquor traffic, and the prevention of the establishment of fortifications or military or naval bases and of military training of the natives for other than police purposes and the defence of territory, and will also secure equal opportunities for the trade and commerce of other members of the League."

Class C (German South-West Africa and Pacific Islands possessions) is composed of territories which, owing to sparseness of population, small size, remoteness from centres of civilisation, or geographical contiguity to the territory of the Mandatory Power, "can best be administered under the laws of the Mandatory as integral portions of its territory, subject to the safeguards above mentioned in the interests of the indigenous population."

The Supreme Council, as the organ of the Allied and Associated Powers, allocated the mandates for the territories ceded by Germany and Turkey, subject to the approval of the Council of the League. The mandates and mandatory powers, as determined by the Supreme Council, are:—

A Mandates.—Mesopotamia (now the Kingdom of Iraq) and Palestine, attributed to Great Britain. Syria (including Lebanon), attributed to France.

B Mandates.—Togoland and Cameroon, attributed in part to Great Britain and in part to France.

The North-Western portion of former German East Africa, attributed to Belgium.

The remainder of former German East Africa (now Tanganyika Colony), attributed to Great Britain.

C Mandates.—Former German South Pacific possessions (except Nauru and Samoa), attributed to Australia.

Samoa, attributed to New Zealand, and Nauru, attributed to the British Empire and administered by Australia, New Zealand, and Great Britain.
Former German North Pacific possessions (Yap, etc.), attributed to Japan.
Former German South-West Africa, attributed to the Union of South Africa.

VI. INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANISATION.

The number of States Members of the International Labour Organisation is now 56. The Organisation has held eleven Conferences, in 1919 at Washington, in 1920 at Genoa, and subsequently in Geneva. At these Conferences the following Draft Conventions and Recommendations have been adopted:—

First Session (Washington, 1919).

- Draft Convention limiting the hours of work in industrial undertakings to eight in the day and forty-eight in the week.
- Draft Convention concerning unemployment.
- Recommendation concerning unemployment.
- Recommendation concerning reciprocity of treatment of foreign workers.
- Draft Convention concerning the employment of women before and after childbirth.
- Draft Convention concerning employment of women during the night.
- Recommendation concerning the prevention of anthrax.
- Recommendation concerning the protection of women and children against lead poisoning.
- Recommendation concerning the establishment of Government health services.
- Draft Convention fixing the minimum age for admission of children to industrial employment.
- Draft Convention concerning the night work of young persons employed in industry.
- Recommendation concerning the application of the Berne Convention of 1906, on the prohibition of the use of white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches.

Second Session (Genoa, 1920).

- Recommendation concerning the limitation of hours of work in the fishing industry.
- Recommendation concerning the limitation of hours of work in inland navigation.
- Recommendation concerning the establishment of national seamen's codes.
- Draft Convention fixing the minimum age for admission of children to employment at sea.
- Recommendation concerning unemployment insurance for seamen.
- Draft Convention concerning unemployment indemnity in case of loss or foundering of the ship.
- Draft Convention for establishing facilities for finding employment for seamen.

Third Session (Geneva, 1921).

- Recommendation concerning the prevention of unemployment in agriculture.

Living Brother and Sisters of the late King.

- I. Princess Louise, born March 18, 1848; married March 21, 1871, to John, Marquis of Lorne, who became Duke of Argyll, April 24, 1900, and died May 2, 1914.
- II. Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught, born May 1, 1850; married March 18, 1879, to Princess Louise of Prussia, born July 25, 1860, died March 14, 1917. Living offspring:—(1) Arthur, born Jan. 18, 1883, married Alexandra Victoria, Duchess of Fife, October 15, 1918; (2) Patricia, born March 17, 1886, married February 27, 1919, Hon. Alexander R. M. Ramsay, D.S.O., R.N.
- III. Princess Beatrice, born April 14, 1857; married July 28, 1885, to Prince Henry (died January 20, 1896), third son of Prince Alexander of Hesse. Living offspring:—(1) Alexander Albert, born Nov. 28, 1888, married Lady Irene Denison; (2) Victoria Eugénie, born Oct. 24, 1887, married May 31, 1906, to Alfonso XIII., King of Spain.

The King's legal title rests on the statute of 12 and 18 Will. III. c. 3, by which the succession to the Crown of Great Britain and Ireland was settled on the Princess Sophia of Hanover and the 'heirs of her body being Protestants.' By Act of Parliament, 1927, the title of the King is declared to be 'George V., by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the Seas King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India.' By proclamation of July 17, 1917, the Royal family became known as the House and Family of Windsor.

By Letters Patent of November 30, 1917, the titles of Royal Highness and Prince or Princess are (except for existing titles) to be restricted to the Sovereign's children, the children of the Sovereign's sons, and the eldest living son of the eldest son of the Prince of Wales.

Provision is made for the support of the Royal household by the settlement of the Civil List soon after the commencement of each reign. (For historical details, see YEAR-BOOK for 1908, p. 5.) By Act of 10 Ed. VII. and 1 Geo. V. c. 28 (August 3, 1910), the Civil List of the King, after the usual surrender of hereditary revenues, is fixed at 470,000*l.*, of which 110,000*l.* is appropriated to the privy purse of the King and Queen, 125,800*l.* for salaries of the Royal household and retired allowances, 193,000*l.* for household expenses, 20,000*l.* for works, 13,200*l.* for alms and bounty, and 8,000*l.* remains unappropriated. The same Civil List Act of 1910 also provides for an annuity of 70,000*l.* to Queen Mary in the event of her surviving the King. Should the Prince of Wales marry, the Princess of Wales will receive an annuity of 10,000*l.*, and should she survive the Prince of Wales, this annuity will be raised to one of 30,000*l.* Further, there is to be paid to trustees for the benefit of the King's children (other than the Duke of Cornwall) an annual sum of 10,000*l.* in respect of each son (other than the Duke of Cornwall) who attains the age of 21 years, and a further annual sum of 15,000*l.* in respect of each such son who marries, and an annuity of 6,000*l.* in respect of each daughter who attains the age of 21 or marries. The First Commissioner of the Treasury, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the Keeper of the King's Privy Purse are appointed the Royal Trustees under this Act. The King has paid to him the revenues of the Duchy of Lancaster, the payments made therefrom in 1927 being 68,000*l.* for His Majesty's use.

On the Consolidated Fund are charged likewise the following sums allowed to members of the royal family:—25,000*l.* a year to the Duke of Connaught; 6,000*l.* to H.R.H. Helena Augusta Victoria (Princess Christian); 6,000*l.* to Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll; 6,000*l.* to H.R.H. Beatrice Mary Victoria Feodore; and 6,000*l.* to each of the late King's daughters.

The Heir Apparent has an income from the revenues of the Duchy of Cornwall, the payment in 1926 on his account being 66,713*l.*

GREAT BRITAIN AND NORTHERN IRELAND.

Constitution and Government.

I. IMPERIAL AND CENTRAL.

The supreme legislative power of the British Empire is vested in Parliament. Parliament is summoned by the writ of the sovereign issued out of Chancery, by advice of the Privy Council, at least twenty days previous to its assembling.

Since 1914 the sittings of Parliament have been interrupted only by comparatively short intervals. Every session must end with a prorogation, and all Bills which have not been passed during the session then lapse. A dissolution may occur by the will of the sovereign, or, as is most usual, during the recess, by proclamation, or finally by lapse of time, the statutory limit of the duration of any Parliament being five years.

Under the Parliament Act, 1911 (1 and 2 Geo. V, ch. 13), all Money Bills (so certified by the Speaker of the House of Commons), if not passed by the House of Lords without amendment, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified. Public Bills, other than Money Bills or a Bill extending the maximum duration of Parliament, if passed by the House of Commons in three successive sessions, whether of the same Parliament or not, and rejected each time, or not passed, by the House of Lords, may become law without their concurrence on the royal assent being signified, provided that two years have elapsed between the second reading in the first session of the House of Commons and the third reading in the third session. All Bills coming under this Act must reach the House of Lords at least one month before the end of the session. Finally, the Parliament Act limited the maximum duration of Parliament to five years.

The present form of Parliament, as divided into two Houses of Legislature, the Lords and the Commons, dates from the middle of the fourteenth century.

The House of Lords consists of peers who hold their seats—(i) by hereditary right; (ii) by creation of the sovereign; (iii) by virtue of office—Law Lords, and English archbishops (2) and bishops (24); (iv) by election for life—Irish peers (28); (v) by election for duration of Parliament—Scottish peers (16). The full house would consist of about 740 members, but the voting strength is about 720.

The House of Commons consists of members representing County, Borough, and University constituencies. No one under 21 years of age can be a member of Parliament. Clergymen of the Church of England, ministers of the Church of Scotland, and Roman Catholic clergymen are disqualified from sitting as members; Government contractors, and sheriffs, and returning officers for the localities for which they act, are also among those disqualified. No English or Scottish peer can be elected to the House of Commons, but non-representative Irish peers are eligible. Under the Parliament (Qualification of Women) Act, 1918, women are also eligible, and the first woman member took her seat in December, 1919.

In August, 1911, by resolution of the House of Commons, provision was first made for the payment of a salary of 400*l.* per year to members, other than those already in receipt of salaries as officers of the House, as Ministers, or as officers of His Majesty's household. Payment began as from April 1, 1911. This provision does not extend to the House of Lords.

Under the Representation of the People (Equal Franchise) Act, 1928, the qualifications for the franchise are the same for men and women. Electors, for inclusion in the new register, must be of full age (twenty-one years), and have resided, or occupied business premises of an annual value of not less than ten pounds, in the same parliamentary borough or county, or one contiguous thereto, for the qualifying period of three months ending on December 1, 1928, and in Scotland, on December 15, 1928. There is also a University franchise, to be qualified for which a person must be twenty-one years of age, and must have taken a degree, or in the case of a woman, have fulfilled the conditions which would entitle a man to a degree.

The new register will come into force on May 1, 1929, and continue in force until October 15, 1930 (in the case of Northern Ireland, until December 15, 1930).

Every registered elector is entitled to vote at an election, but no person may vote at a general election for more than two constituencies, for one of which there must be a residential qualification. The second vote must rest on a different qualification, and each vote must be recorded in a different constituency.

Disqualified for registration are (among others) peers, infants, aliens, bankrupts, lunatics and idiots. Receipt of poor relief or other alms does not count as a disqualification.

Two registers of electors must be prepared each year, one in the spring, and the other in the autumn, except in Ireland, where only one is required; and the authorised expenses are met by local and State funds in equal parts. University registers may be made up as the governing bodies decide, and a registration fee not exceeding 1*l.* may be charged.

In university constituencies returning two or more members the elections must be according to the principle of proportional representation, each elector having one transferable vote. At a general election all polls must be held on the same day, except in the case of Orkney and Shetland, and of university elections. Provision is made for absent electors to vote, in certain cases by proxy.

Under the same Act the seats in Great Britain were redistributed on the basis of one member of the House of Commons for every 70,000 of the population. By a separate Act, redistribution in Ireland was made on the basis of one for every 43,000 of the population. The total membership of the House of Commons was thereby raised from 670 (as established in 1885, to 707. In 1922 the number was reduced to 615 (including 13 from Northern Ireland), owing to the establishment of separate parliaments in Ireland.

The electorate in 1928 numbered 21,895,347. Under the provisions of the Representation of the People Act, 1928, it is estimated that about 5,000,000 new voters will be added to the register in 1929.

The following is a table of the duration of Parliaments called since the accession of King Edward VII. (for heads of the Administrations see p. 8).

The executive government is vested nominally in the Crown, but practically in a committee of Ministers, called the Cabinet, whose existence is dependent on the support of a majority in the House of Commons.

The head of the Ministry is the Prime Minister, a position first constitutionally recognised, and special precedence accorded to the holder, in 1905. No salary is attached to the office of Prime Minister, as such, and it is usually held in conjunction with some other high office of State, generally that of First Lord of the Treasury. His colleagues in the Ministry are appointed on his recommendation, and he dispenses the greater portion of the patronage of the Crown.

The present Government (appointed November 1924) consists of the following members :

(a) THE CABINET.

1. Prime Minister, First Lord of the Treasury, and Leader of the House of Commons.—Right Hon. Stanley Baldwin, born 1867. President of Board of Trade, 1921–22; Chancellor of Exchequer, 1922–23; Prime Minister, 1923–24. Present appointment, November, 1924.

II. LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

England and Wales.—In each county the Crown is represented by H.M. Lieutenant. There is also a sheriff, who represents the executive of the Crown, an under-sheriff, a clerk of the peace and a clerk of the County Council, coroners, who are appointed and paid by the County Councils, and other officers. The licensing of persons to sell intoxicating liquors, and the administration of the criminal law—except that which deals with some of the graver offences—are in the hands of the magistrates.

For the purposes of local government England and Wales are divided primarily into sixty-two administrative counties, including the county of London, and eighty-three County Boroughs. The counties are administered by the justices and by a popularly-elected Council, called a County Council, who co-opt a prescribed number of aldermen, either from their own body or from outside it. Aldermen are elected for six years, half of them retiring every third year. A councillor is elected for three years. The jurisdiction of the County Councils covers the administration of higher and (outside certain Boroughs and Urban Districts) elementary education; maintenance of main roads and bridges; work in relation to agriculture (diseases of animals, destructive insects and pests, land drainage, fertilisers and feeding stuffs, small holdings and allotments); provision of mental hospitals and other public health work (schemes for treatment of tuberculosis and venereal diseases, for maternity and child welfare, and for the welfare of the blind; accommodation and care of mental defectives; prevention of pollution of rivers; and supervision of milk and other food supplies). The control of the county police is vested in a standing joint committee composed of equal numbers of magistrates and of members of the County Council. The Metropolitan police are, however, under the control of the Home Secretary.

Secondly, the administrative counties, with the exception of the County of London, are subdivided into 'County Districts' which are either 'Urban Districts' or 'Rural Districts.' Generally speaking, an urban district comprises a town or a small area more or less densely populated, and a rural district takes in several country parishes. County District Councils administer the Public Health and Highway Acts, and exercise powers under the Housing Acts. Urban Authorities may also take over the maintenance and repair of main roads from County Councils; provide burial grounds, allotments, baths and washhouses, libraries, open spaces, museums, isolation hospitals, &c.; establish and manage trading services (gas, electricity, water, trams, &c.). Councils of Boroughs which had over 10,000, and of Urban Districts which had over 20,000 people in 1901 are also usually the local authorities for elementary education. Rural District Councils may also make arrangements for an adequate water supply; and exercise any 'urban powers' conferred on them by the Minister of Health.

Under the Local Government Act, 1929, the functions of the Poor Law authorities are transferred to county and county borough councils. These functions include the organisation and management of indoor and outdoor relief, responsibility for collection of fundamental vital statistics and responsibility for the provision, maintenance and management of all public institutions for the cure of diseases. Provision is also made under the Act to secure for every county, district council the services of a medical officer of health. Industrial and freight-transport hereditaments are derated to the extent of three-fourths and agricultural lands are completely derated.

The main central authority in London is the County Council, created by the Local Government Act of 1888. It has considerable powers in regard to public health, housing, bridges and ferries, asylums, street improvements, parks, main drainage, fire brigade, sanitary control, education, and numerous other matters. It is also the tramway authority for the county. The City Corporation has powers respecting sanitation, police, bridges, justice, &c., in the City of London. London comprises the ancient city with an area of one square mile, and an area of 118 square miles beyond the city, which is divided into 28 metropolitan boroughs, under the London Government Act, 1899, each with a mayor, aldermen, and councillors (women are eligible). The Councils have powers in regard to public health, highways, rating, housing, education, &c., but they are not municipal boroughs in the statutory sense as in the rest of the Kingdom. The County Council has certain powers of control over them.

In all incorporated towns, local business is administered by a municipal Corporation. There are two kinds of municipal boroughs, County Boroughs and Non-County Boroughs. A number of the latter are small boroughs of special and generally ancient jurisdiction. Most of the County Boroughs and a number of the Non-County Boroughs have a separate Court of Quarter Sessions. The County Boroughs are outside the jurisdiction of the County Councils. A municipal Corporation consists of the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses, and acts through a Council elected by the burgesses—practically by the ratepayers. The councillors serve for three years (women are eligible), one-third retiring annually; the aldermen are elected by the Council, and the mayor, who serves for one year, also by the Council. A Town Council as an Urban Authority is invested with all the normal powers of an Urban District Council; and in addition certain powers, such as making byelaws or maintaining a separate police force, are conferred either upon all Town Councils or upon Councils of towns of certain sizes, or complying with other conditions, in virtue of their status as Councils of incorporated towns.

Scotland.—A Local Government Act was passed for Scotland in 1889 and followed in its main outlines the English Act of the previous year. The powers of local administration in counties formerly exercised by the Commissioners of Supply, the Justices and Road Trustees were either wholly or in part transferred to County Councils, which took over their duties and responsibilities in 1890. By the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1894, a Local Government Board for Scotland was constituted, consisting of the Secretary for Scotland as President, the Solicitor-General for Scotland, the Under-Secretary for Scotland, and three other members nominated by the Crown. The latter Act provided that a Parish Council should be established in every parish to take the place of the Parochial Boards. Their principal function is the administration of the Poor Laws, and in addition they exercise powers similar to those of the Parish Councils in England. There were 869 civil parishes in 1921. The powers and duties of the Local Government Board were by the Scottish Board of Health Act, 1919, transferred to the Scottish Board of Health, constituted as in that Act provided. Municipal bodies exist in the towns of Scotland, as in those of England. The Provost corresponds to the Mayor in an English borough, and the Bailies exercise functions analogous to those of Justices in boroughs. There are no Aldermen, i.e. members appointed by elected members, on Scottish Town Councils. There are in Scotland three principal kinds of burghs, numbering altogether 201 (1921 census): (1) Royal Burghs, i.e. burghs created by a Charter of the Crown; (2) Parliamentary Burghs, which possess statutory constitutions almost identical with those of the Royal Burghs; (3) Police Burghs, constituted under a general Police Act. All burghs of whatever class have new Town Councils and their administration is regulated by the Burgh Police (Scotland) and Town Councils (Scotland) Acts or corresponding local Acts.

Area and Population.

I. PROGRESS AND PRESENT CONDITION.

The population was thus distributed at the census, taken June 19, 1921 :—

Divisions	Area in sq. miles	Males	Females	Total Population on June 19, 1921
England (including Monmouthshire) . . . . .	50,874	16,977,647	18,708,372	35,681,019

Proportion of male to female births in 1928 was 1,050 to 1,000.

2. Emigration and Immigration.

In the thirty-eight years 1815-1852, the total number of emigrants from the United Kingdom was 3,463,592. Up to 1852 the emigration returns made no distinction between British subjects and foreigners. From 1853 to 1924 inclusive, the number of passengers of British origin, to places out of Europe, was 15,261,000; and the number of foreigners, to such places, was 6,324,000, total, 21,585,000. Figures of the passenger traffic to and from non-European countries in recent years are given as follows :—

	Outward			Inward			Balance outward.
	British subjects	Aliens	Total	British subjects	Aliens	Total	Total
1924	203,480	107,826	371,306	175,069	78,368	253,437	117,874
1925	250,314	104,609	354,923	163,258	77,981	241,189	118,784
1926	284,009	118,409	402,438	160,680	76,699	237,379	165,059
1927	277,827	136,792	414,119	173,724	86,087	259,761	154,358
1928	270,720	126,527	397,247	187,890	88,815	276,705	120,542

The number of British emigrants (excluding persons only temporarily absent) to places out of Europe was 153,505 in 1927, 136,834 in 1928, and the immigrants of British nationality into Great Britain was 55,715 in 1927, 59,105 in 1928.

The destinations of British subjects leaving the United Kingdom to take up permanent residence in non-European countries in 1928 were mainly the United States (22,345) (25,662 in 1927), British North America (54,709) (52,916 in 1927), Australia (28,714) (40,991 in 1927), New Zealand (4,975) (7,841 in 1927), British South Africa (7,095) (7,572 in 1927), India and Ceylon (6,502) (6,476 in 1927). The bulk of the aliens travelled to the United States, 85,371 in 1927, and 79,276 in 1928.

The passenger movement between the United Kingdom and European countries (including all ports in the Mediterranean and Black Seas) in recent years is given as follows :—

Religion.

1. England and Wales.

The Established Church of England is Protestant Episcopal. Civil disabilities on account of religion do not attach to any class of British subjects. Under the Welsh Church Acts, 1914 and 1919, the Church in Wales and Monmouthshire was disestablished as from March 31, 1920, and Wales was formed into a separate Archbishopric. Property belonging to the Church in Wales, and a sum of 1,000,000*l.* provided by Parliament, were assigned to a temporary body not exceeding three persons, called the Welsh Commissioners, for distribution to a body representing the Church (called the Representative Body), and to certain other authorities including the University of Wales.

The King is by law the supreme governor of the Church in England, possessing the right, regulated by statute, to nominate to the vacant archbishoprics and bishoprics. The King, and the First Lord of the Treasury in his name, also appoint to such deaneries, prebendaries, and canonries as are in the gift of the Crown, while a large number of livings and also some canonries are in the gift of the Lord Chancellor.

There are 3 archbishops (at the head of the three 'provinces' of Canterbury, York and Wales) and 46 bishops, and 29 suffragan bishops in England and Wales. Each archbishop has also his own particular diocese, wherein he exercises episcopal, as in his province he exercises archiepiscopal jurisdiction. Under the bishops are 32 deans and 110 archdeacons. Under the Church of England Assembly (Powers) Act, 1919, there is a National Assembly, called 'the Church Assembly,' in England, consisting of a House of Bishops, a House of Clergy, and a House of Laymen, which has power to legislate regarding Church matters. The first two Houses consist of the Convocations of Canterbury and York, which in turn consist of the bishops (forming an Upper House), archdeacons, and deans, and a certain number of proctors, as the representatives of the inferior clergy (forming the Lower House). The House of Laymen is elected by the lay members of the Diocesan Conference. Parochial affairs are managed by a Parochial Church Meeting and Church Council. Every measure passed by the Church Assembly must be submitted to an Ecclesiastical Committee, consisting of fifteen members of the House of Lords nominated by the Lord Chancellor, and fifteen members of the House of Commons nominated by the Speaker. This Committee reports on each measure to Parliament, and the measure becomes law if each House of Parliament passes a resolution to that effect.

The number of civil parishes (districts for which a separate poor rate is or can be made) at the census of 1911 was 14,614. These, however, in most cases, do not coincide with ecclesiastical parishes, which have lost their old importance. Of such parishes there were (1925) 14,529, inclusive of the Isle of Man and the Channel Islands. Each parish has its church, presided over by an incumbent or minister, who must be in priest's orders, and who is known as rector, vicar, or perpetual curate, according to his relation to the temporalities of his parish. Private persons possess the right of presentation to 6,547 benefices; the patronage of the others belongs mainly to the King, the bishops and cathedrals, the Lord Chancellor, and the universities of Oxford and Cambridge. In 1925 there were about 13,907 beneficed clergy, and over 7,000 curates, etc. The contributions in the Church of England in 1925 amounted to 10,248,364*l.*

Of 84,975 churches and chapels registered for the solemnisation of marriage at the end of 1924, 16,249 belonged to the Established Church and the Church in Wales and 18,726 to other religious denominations. Of the marriages celebrated in 1924, 57·8 per cent. were in the Established Church and the Church in Wales, 5·5 per cent. in the Roman Catholic Church, 12·2 per cent. were Nonconformist marriages, 0·03 per cent. were Quaker marriages 6·7 per cent. Jewish, and 23·8 per cent. civil marriages in Registrar's Office.

The Unitarians have about 350 places of worship, the Catholic Apostolic Church over 80, the New Jerusalem Church about 75. The Salvation Army, a religious body with a semi-military organisation, carries on both spiritual and social work at home and abroad, and had (December, 1927) about 33,637 officers and employees, 15,517 corps and outposts, and 105,034 local officers; their places of worship in the United Kingdom have about 556,960 sittings. There are about 300,000 Jews in the United Kingdom with about 200 synagogues.

Roman Catholics in England and Wales are estimated at 1,930,000. There are (1924) four archbishops (of whom one is a cardinal), thirteen bishops, and four bishops-auxiliary; about 4,000 priests (not all officiating); and over 1,900 churches, chapels, and stations.

2. Scotland.

The Church of Scotland (established in 1560 and confirmed in 1688) is presbyterian, the ministers all being of equal rank. There is in each parish a kirk session, consisting of the minister, and of several laymen called elders. There are 84 presbyteries (formed by groups of parishes), meeting frequently throughout the year, and these are grouped in 18 synods, which meet half-yearly and can be appealed to against the decisions of the presbyteries. The supreme court is the General Assembly, which consists of over 750 members, partly clerical and partly lay chosen by the different presbyteries, with a few representatives from royal burghs and universities. It meets annually in May (under the presidency of a Moderator appointed by the Assembly the Sovereign being represented by a nobleman known as Lord High Commissioner), and sits for ten days. Any matters not decided during this period may be left to a Commission.

The number of parishes is 1,470, and the number of churches, chapels, and stations about 1,700. Under regulations enacted by the General Assembly, the parishioners choose their own ministers. The voluntary contributions of the congregations for religious and charitable purposes in 1927 amounted to 318,200%. The number of communicants in 1927 was about 760,000; ministers, about 1,800; lay missionaries, 90; Sunday scholars, 189,000; attending Bible classes, 60,000.

On October 31, 1900, the Free Church of Scotland and the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland constituted themselves into the United Free Church of Scotland. A minority, representing 26 congregations, continued to regard themselves as the Free Church of Scotland, and had in 1925, 130 congregations and stations, 100 ministers and probationers, and one college. Contributions to schemes amounted to 21,473*l.*, and other income to 24,895*l.* The United Church had, on December 31, 1927, 1,441 congregations, and 47 preaching stations; 536,380 members, besides adherents; 2,031 Sunday schools, with 25,180 teachers and 185,617 scholars in attendance. The Church courts are the General Assembly, 12 synods, 63 presbyteries, and 2 continental presbyteries. Income in 1927 was 1,543,752*l.* The Church has three theological colleges (at Edinburgh, Glasgow and Aberdeen) with 19 professors and lecturers. The United Church's foreign mission agents (including natives) exceed 6,000, and income 532,000*l.* There are in Scotland some small outstanding Presbyterian bodies and also Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, and Unitarians. The Episcopal Church in Scotland had in 1927, 7 bishoprics, 419 churches and missions, 339 clergy, and 59,657 communicants.

The Roman Catholic Church had in Scotland (1924) two archbishops, four bishops and one bishop-auxiliary; about 600 priests, 450 churches, chapels, and stations, and about 600,000 adherents.

The proportion of marriages in Scotland according to the rites of the various Churches in 1926 was: Established, 42·2 per cent.; United Free, 23·7; Roman Catholic, 11·5; Episcopal, 3·1; others, 7·6; irregular, 11·9.

Education.

University Education.

In England the highest education is given at the ancient universities of Oxford and Cambridge, the former having 22 colleges and 3 private halls, and the latter 17 colleges and 1 hall; the university of Durham, with a college of medicine and of science at Newcastle; the university of London, with 2 Incorporated Colleges, 34 "Schools," and 28 Institutions giving instruction in 8 faculties; the Victoria University (Manchester), the Birmingham University, the Liverpool University, the Leeds University, the Sheffield University, the Bristol University, and the University of Reading, which started in 1860 as a college for art classes. There are also University Colleges at Exeter, 64 lecturers, &c., 888 students, 1928-29; Nottingham (founded 1881), 169 lecturers, and 2,800 students, 1928-29; Southampton (founded 1850), 58 lecturers, &c., 963 students, 1928-29; Leicester (opened in 1928), 21 lecturers, &c., 121 students, 1928-29. A University College was founded at Hull in 1927 with 20 lecturers and 73 students in January 1929. There are special Agricultural Colleges at Carlisle, Cirencester, Glasgow, Newport (Shropshire), Kingston-on-Soar (Derby), Wye (Kent), Uckfield (Sussex), and Ripley (Surrey). The university of Wales has 4 colleges (Cardiff, 121 lecturers, 1,104 students; Aberystwyth, 128 lecturers, 698 students; Bangor, 79 lecturers, &c., 590 students; and Swansea, 50 lecturers, &c., 422 students). In Scotland there are 4 universities, viz., at St. Andrews, Glasgow, Aberdeen, Edinburgh. The Carnegie Trust, founded in 1901 with a capital of 2,000,000*l.*, has an annual income of 100,000*l.*, of which half is devoted to the equipment and expansion of the Scottish Universities and half to assisting students. The following table gives the approximate number of professors, lecturers, &c., and students of the Universities for 1927-1928. (The dates of foundation are given in brackets.)

At most of the Universities and University Colleges women students are admitted on equal terms with men. There are, however, several colleges exclusively for female Students:—Bedford (75 teachers, &c., 648 students), Royal Holloway (32 teachers, 200 students) and Westfield Colleges (19 teachers, &c., 146 students) in London; Newnham 12 teachers, &c., 275 students) and Girton (14 teachers, &c., 254 students) Colleges in Cambridge; Lady Margaret Hall (12 teachers, &c., 184 students), Somerville College (11 teachers, &c., 149 students), St. Hugh's College (9 tutors, 150 students), St. Hilda's College (9 teachers, 124 students), in Oxford. The Society of Oxford Home Students numbered 282 students in 1929. Women were first admitted to membership of Oxford University, and to take degrees, in October, 1920.

Secondary and Technical Education, &c.

England and Wales.—The latest available statistics for secondary schools are as follows:

	Total Efficient Schools	Schools on Grant List	Total Pupils in Efficient Schools.			Full-Time Teachers. (Grant List)
			Boys	Girls	Total
1924-5	1,667	1,284	221,924	199,764	421,688	19,069
1925-6	1,752	1,301	228,515	201,309	404,824	19,640
1926-7	1,752	1,319	233,104	206,723	439,827	19,251
1927-8	1,786	1,329	238,981	210,819	449,800	20,102

The number of secondary schools on the grant list in 1928 was 1,329, with 377,540 pupils (199,376 boys, 178,164 girls).

Included among the grant-receiving schools in 1927-28 were 680 Council Schools, 80 Roman Catholic Schools, 468 Foundation and other schools and 101 Welsh Intermediate Schools. In 1927-28 there were 111 preparatory schools not on the grant list, with 9,300 pupils.

In the year ending March 31, 1928, there were 54 larger Technical Institutes for advanced courses with 6,855 full-time students, and 138 Day Technical Institutes with 19,878 students. In addition there were 4,542 evening schools giving part-time technical and other instruction to 771,291 pupils, and 65 separate Day Continuation Schools. Among other institutions providing technical, commercial and other instruction were 104 junior technical schools with 19,541 pupils, and 6 nautical schools. There was in 1927-28 a total of 231 Schools of Art with 53,117 students. In the same year there were 109 training institutions for teachers with 17,486 students (772 as teachers of domestic subjects).

The Universities in 1927-28 supervised 148 University Extension Courses with 3,107 students and 642 tutorial classes.

The total estimated expenditure by local authorities on higher education in 1928 is 14,490,000*l.*, and for 1929 is 14,980,000*l.*; and the expenditure for London is estimated at 2,638,770*l.* for 1927-28.

Scotland.—In 1927 there were 251 secondary schools (206 with primary or preparatory departments) with a total accommodation of 182,982; the average number of scholars on the registers being 151,277 (76,125 post primary). The number of students attending Central Institutions in 1926-27 were 6,797 day students and 11,770 evening students. Continuation Classes numbered 953 in 1926-27 with a total attendance of 145,774 pupils. The number of teachers in secondary schools at March 31, 1927, was 6,280, including 3,582 University Graduates. In 1927 there were 368 students in training colleges and 1,960 students in other training centres.

Elementary Education.

England and Wales.—In the year 1927-28 the number of schools (public elementary, special, and certified efficient) for elementary education was 21,352. In 1928 there were 9,271 Council schools with accommodation for 4,433,555 pupils, and 11,413<sup>1</sup> voluntary schools with accommodation for 2,580,023 pupils; total ordinary public elementary schools 20,684, with accommodation for 7,063,578 pupils. The average attendance for the year 1927-28 at these schools was about 4,981,101. The number of scholars on the registers in 1928 was: 164,090 aged under 5; 4,115,580 aged 5 and under 12; 1,290,536 aged 12 and over. The number of teachers, 1927-28, was 165,010 (41,122 men and 123,888 women), of whom 122,812 were certificated, 32,762 are uncertificated and 8,803 were supplementary.

There were 576 'special' schools in 1927-28, comprising 76 for the blind, with accommodation for 4,484 pupils; 50 for the deaf, with accommodation for 4,726 pupils; 184 for the mentally defective, accommodation 17,035; 260 for the physically defective, accommodation 21,196; and 6 for epileptic children with accommodation for 525 pupils. There were also 59 Poor Law schools, 26 nursery schools and 272 play centres.

The number of meals provided free in 1927-28 for necessitous children was 15,875,340 as compared with 70,045,448 in 1926-27, and the total number of children in public elementary schools who were medically re-examined in 1927 was 13,806,144 (averaging 2.8 inspections per child).

Upwards of 100 new school clinics were opened in 1924-25, making a total of nearly 1,200 clinics. There were 1,844 medical officers, 511 dentists and 4,368 nurses employed for whole or part time.

The expenditure of local authorities for elementary education in 1926-27 was 60,181,822*l.*; the estimated expenditure for 1928 is 59,450,000*l.*, and for 1929 is 59,975,000*l.*; for London the estimate of gross expenditure for 1927-28 is 9,878,642*l.*

Scotland.—In 1926-27 there were 2,903 Primary Schools with an accommodation of 865,674 scholars; average number on the registers was 664,958, and the average attendance was 590,107.

On July 31, 1927, there were 30 special day schools, 9 residential schools and special classes attached to 61 ordinary schools, and the number of defective children under instruction was 9,619 (8,319 in 1913), of which 6,111 were physically defective and 3,508 were mentally defective. There were also 4 schools for blind children and 6 for deaf mutes and 1 school for both combined. The total number of children under instruction was 961 (290 blind and 671 deaf mutes). On December 31, 1927, there were 28 reformatory and industrial schools with a total of 2,217 boys and girls, excluding 397 voluntary scholars.

As at March 31, 1927, there were 18,673 certificated primary school teachers and 50 assistant teachers. There were in 1926-27, 4 training centres and 3 training colleges with 2,515 senior students.

The total ordinary expenditure of Education authorities during 1925-26 was 11,280,640*l.*, including 7,601,826*l.* on account of salaries and retiring allowances of teachers. Expenditure from Parliamentary grants for Education in Scotland amounted to 6,578,103*l.* in 1927-28.

Justice and Crime.

England and Wales.

The Supreme Court of Judicature is the ultimate authority in most cases, civil and criminal, in England and Wales, and in others, where there is an appeal to the House of Lords, the penultimate. It exercises its power through the High Court of Justice, the Courts of Appeal, and (in a sense) a variety of subordinate local courts. The principal courts having criminal jurisdiction are the petty sessional courts, the general or quarter sessions, the courts of oyer and terminer and gaol delivery, more popularly known as 'assizes,' and the Central Criminal Court, which is the Assize Court for London in the widest sense, including 'the City' and other neighbouring counties, and is also the Quarter Sessions for the City. Two or more justices of the peace, the Lord Mayor or any alderman of the City of London, or any stipendiary magistrate, sitting in a court house, constitute a petty sessional court. The courts of quarter sessions are held four times a year by the justices of the county. Two justices constitute a court, but usually a larger number attend. Women may be justices. Certain cities and boroughs have a court of quarter sessions, with similar jurisdiction to that of the county justices in quarter sessions, in which the recorder of the borough is the judge. The assize courts are constituted by Judges of the High Court (or in some cases by King's Counsel having His Majesty's special commission). These go on circuit twice or four times a year, visiting every county in turn, and hearing and determining all civil cases entered for trial and all criminal cases presented by the Grand Jury of the County or Riding, city or borough. Except in cases of treason when the trial is 'at bar' before the Lord Chief Justice and two or more judges of the King's Bench Division, criminal cases are tried by a jury, and the jury, subject to the direction of the Judge on points of law, are the sole judges of the facts of the case. Women serve on juries. The sessions of the Central Criminal Court are held at least twelve times a year and more often if necessary. The Recorder and the Common Serjeant, and, if the number of the prisoners makes it necessary, the judge of the City of London Court, sit on the first two days, after which they are joined by one or more of the judges of the High Court on the rota, for whom capital and certain other cases are reserved. Criminal cases of special importance or complexity arising in any part of the country may, by direction of at least two High Court judges, be brought for trial in the King's Bench Division. A petty sessional court deals summarily with minor offences, some of which are practically civil and can be reviewed by the judges. All offences are usually investigated by a petty sessional court before being tried at the sessions or the assizes, but with the consent of the accused, justices can dispose of many felonies. To every sessions, assize, and to every sitting of the Central Criminal Court, the sheriff summons a number of the chief inhabitants of the approximate district, of whom not less than 12 and not more than 28 are sworn and constitute a grand jury, which examines the bill of indictment against the accused person, hears the evidence of witnesses for the prosecution, and if it thinks a prima facie case for trial is made out, endorses the bill 'a true bill,' which is then tried by the petit jury. All criminal trials, except those which come before a court of summary jurisdiction or the House of Lords, take place before a judge and such a jury (twelve persons). Appeal is allowed in criminal cases: (i.) on a point of law; (ii.) on a question of fact, or other sufficient ground if the judge certifies the case as fit for appeal, or the Court of Criminal Appeal grants leave to appeal; and (iii.) against the sentence (if not fixed by law) with the leave of the Court of Criminal Appeal. This Court can reverse, amend, or affirm the judgment: in a few cases its decision may be reconsidered by the House of Lords. The only other method of securing the revision of a sentence is through the Royal prerogative, exercised on the advice of the Home Secretary, by which a sentence can be modified or annulled. No man can be tried again for the same crime after a petit jury has found him 'not guilty.' Nominally all the judges are appointed by the King, but in practice the Lord Chancellor (who is a minister, a member of the Cabinet, ex-officio president of the House of Lords, and goes out with the ministry), the Lord Chief Justice, the Lords of Appeal in Ordinary, who sit in the House of Lords and on the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and the Lords Justices of Appeal who sit in the Court of Appeal, are appointed on the recommendation of the Prime Minister, and all the other judges on the recommendation of the Lord Chancellor.

The courts chiefly having jurisdiction in civil cases are the modern County Courts, created in 1846, Assizes, and the High Court, Quarter Sessions and old local courts also have this jurisdiction to a certain extent.

The authorised strength of the police force in England and Wales on September 29, 1928, was 57,416 (including 19,379 Metropolitan police). The net expenditure in 1925-26 was 19,069,848*l.* The estimated expenditure on police account was 6,577,672*l.* for 1925-26, 6,914,997*l.* for 1926-27, and 7,096,102*l.* for 1927-28.

Scotland.

The High Court of Justiciary is the supreme criminal court in Scotland. It consists of all the judges of the Court of Session, and sits more or less frequently, as the number of cases before it may require, in Edinburgh or in the circuit towns. One judge can, and usually does, try cases, but two or more preside in cases of difficulty or importance. It is the only competent court in cases of treason, murder, robbery, rape, fire-raising, forcement of messengers, and generally in all cases in which a higher punishment than imprisonment is by statute directed to be inflicted; and it has moreover an inherent jurisdiction to punish all criminal acts, both those already established by common law or statute, and such as have never previously come before the courts and are not within any statute.

The sheriff of each county is the proper criminal judge in all crimes occurring within the county which infer only an arbitrary punishment, and if the case is tried with a jury the High Court has no power of review on the merits. Even in cases indicted to the High Court the accused is, under the Criminal Procedure (Scotland) Act of 1887, regularly asked to plead in the sheriff court, and minor objections to the indictment can be wholly or in part disposed of there. Borough magistrates and justices of the peace have jurisdiction in petty cases occurring within the burgh or county, and in a number of minor offences under various statutes.

The Court of Session exercises the highest civil jurisdiction in Scotland, with the House of Lords as a Court of Appeal.

The police force in Scotland at the end of 1927 had an authorised strength of 6,605. The estimated expenditure on police was 812,000*l.* in 1925-26, 825,000*l.* for 1926-27, and 840,000*l.* for 1927-28.

National Insurance. Pensions.

Under the National Health Insurance Act 1924, the Unemployment Insurance Acts 1920-25, the Old Age Pensions Act 1908-24, and the Widow's

Orphans and Old Age Contributory Pensions Act 1925, provision is made for insurance against loss of health, for prevention and cure of sickness, compulsory insurance against unemployment, and pensions for widows and orphans and aged persons.

National Health Insurance.—This is administered by the Ministry of Health in England and Wales, and the corresponding departments in Scotland and Ireland; by specially constituted authorities, by approved friendly societies and trade unions.

Subject to specific exceptions, persons who are compulsorily brought under the National Health Insurance Act, known as employed contributors, comprise all persons of the age of 16 years or over who are employed under contract of service, written or implied, whether by time or piece. Aliens are subject to compulsory insurance equally with British subjects. Among persons excluded are those employed in non-manual labour at a rate of remuneration exceeding £250 a year. Insured persons who are not members of an approved society must contribute to a Post Office Fund, and are known as deposit contributors; their benefits are limited. Certain persons not compulsorily insured may become voluntary contributors. The rates of contributions are given below. The ordinary benefits are (a) free medical treatment; (b) payments during sickness (not exceeding 26 weeks), amounting to 15s. a week for men and 12s. for women, after 104 contributions; 9s. (men), 7s. 6d. (women) after 26 contributions; (c) disablement benefit after 26 weeks sickness benefit, 7s. 6d. a week; (d) maternity benefit of 80s. payable to wife on confinement. Friendly societies may also give additional benefits. Deposit contributors receive sickness and disablement benefits at rates slightly less than the above.

Widows, Orphans and Old Age Pensions.—From January 4, 1926, all persons, with certain exceptions, who are insurable under the National Health Insurance Scheme, will be insurable also under the Widows, Orphans and Old Age Contributory Pensions Act. The provisions of the scheme apply to sailors, soldiers and airmen in the same way and to the same extent as to ordinary insured persons. A widow will receive 10s. per week until she is 70 (unless she remarries), with 5s. for the first child and 3s. for each other child until they reach the age of 14 (or 16 in certain cases). Orphans will receive 7s. 6d. per week for each child under 14 (or 16 if still at school). Persons over 70 years of age are entitled, as from July 2, 1926, to pensions of 10s. per week under the Old Age Pensions Acts 1908–24, irrespective of means, residence or nationality. As from January 2, 1928, insured persons over 65 will be entitled to pensions of 10s. per week under the provisions of the Old Age Contributory Pensions Act, 1925, subject to specified conditions, which include residence in Great Britain for two years immediately prior to the date of the 65th birthday. There is no means test. On reaching the age of 70, contributory pensioners will come under the provisions of the Old Age Pensions Act.

The full weekly contribution for National Health and Pensions Insurance is 1s. 6d. for men and 1s. 1d. for women, of which 9d. and 6d. respectively can be recovered from the worker. In the case of workers aged over 65 contributions of 9d. (men) and 7d. (women) are paid by the employer only.

Unemployment Insurance.—This is administered by the Ministry of Labour through the Employment Exchanges, Trade Unions, and Friendly Societies. The scheme is wholly compulsory in its operation, and substantially all persons covered by the Health Insurance Scheme are insured against unemployment. Domestic servants and persons employed in agriculture are among those excepted. Employees of local authorities, railways and certain other utility undertakings, and persons with rights under statutory superannuation schemes are also exempted where the Ministry of Labour certifies that they are employed under conditions which make the national insurance unnecessary.

The contributions are; men (over 18 years of age), 8*d.* a week from employer, 7*d.* from employee; women (over 18), 7*d.* a week from employer, 6*d.* from employee; boys (16 to 18), 4*d.* from employer and 3½*d.* from employee; girls (16 to 18), 3½*d.* from employer, 3*d.* from employee. The State contributes in addition, amounts ranging from 4½*d.* to 8*d.* per person. As from January 2, 1928, contributions will cease to be payable when a person attains the age of 65, but if such person continues to be employed after reaching that age, the employer will be required to pay his share of the contribution only. The standard rates of benefit are: men, 18*s.* per week; women, 15*s.* per week; boys (between 16 and 18), 7*s.* 6*d.*, and girls (between 16 and 18), 6*s.* weekly, subject to certain conditions.

The National Health Scheme covers about 14 million persons, increasing to 16½ millions in 1960. The total expenditure on benefits for England and Wales was estimated for 1927 at 32,025,900*l.*, including 6,368,000*l.* for disablement and 8,772,500*l.* for medical benefit. The number of persons entitled to benefits was 14,580,700. The cost of administration was 4,636,000*l.* The total amount paid in England and Wales in respect of widows' and orphans' pensions for the year ending March 31, 1928, was approximately 6,325,000*l.*; there were 188,218 widows' and 11,815 orphans' pensions, and 203,084 children's allowances. There were 465,362 pensions (2,546,500*l.*) awarded under the contributory old age pensions scheme from January 2, 1928, to March 31, 1928. The total amount of non-contributory old-age pensions paid in 1927-28 was 24,244,000*l.*

Contributions from employers and employed persons in the United Kingdom under the unemployment insurance scheme amounted in the year 1926-27 to 20,340,065*l.* Payments from the unemployment fund in respect of benefits amounted to 38,688,783*l.*

War Pensions.—The number of war pensions or allowances in payment as at March 31, 1928, was 1,584,850 approximately, and the estimated expenditure of the Ministry of Pensions for 1928-29 was 57,215,800*l.*, and for 1929-30 is 53,723,500*l.* (inclusive of administration expenses).

The Exchequer issues shown above are those with which the various departments were supplied to meet all requirements, whether original or supplementary.

In addition to the ordinary expenditure above given, there were in 1927-28 issues to meet capital expenditure under the Telegraph (Money) Act, 1925, 9,900,000£. An amount of 3,640,000£. was borrowed under the Unemployment Insurance Acts, 1921, and 3,996,000£. was repaid. The money raised by National Savings Certificates was 36,000,000£., and by Treasury Bills, 2,417,374,000£., while Treasury Bills paid off amounted to 2,486,250,000£. The balance in the Exchequer on April 1, 1927, was 6,459,656£.; the gross receipts into the Exchequer in the year 1927-28 amounted to 4,257,535,689£.; the gross issues out of the Exchequer amounted to 4,257,672,701£.: leaving a balance on March 31, 1928, of 6,322,625£.

The actual ordinary expenditure for the year 1928-29 was as follows: Interest and management of National Debt, 311,490,566£.; payments to Local Taxation Accounts, 15,202,644£.; payments to Northern Ireland Exchequer, 5,100,410£.; other Consolidated Fund services, 2,806,588£.; Supply Services (Army, Navy and Air, 118,470,000£.; Civil and Revenue Votes, excluding Post Office, 234,130,000£.), 347,600,000£.; total ordinary expenditure, 682,200,153£. The New Sinking Fund, 1928, amounted to 57,509,434£.; and the self-balancing expenditure amounted to 78,380,933£. (Post Office, 57,200,000£.; Road Fund, 21,180,933£.); Surplus Revenue, 1928, issued to Rating Relief Suspense Account was 18,394,463£.

The following were the principal items of the estimates for Grant Services for the years 1927-28 and 1928-29:—

Income Tax.—The gross amount of income brought under the review of the Inland Revenue Department in the year ended April 5, 1927, in Gt. Britain and Northern Ireland, was 2,916,638,272*l.*; in 1927-28 it was estimated to be approximately 2,904,000,000*l.* The income on which tax was actually received in 1926-27, after allowing for exemptions and reliefs, was 1,823,768,843*l.*, and the estimated amount for 1927-28 was 1,300,000,000*l.* The estimated number of incomes in Great Britain and Northern Ireland above the effective exemption limit in 1927-28 was 4,650,000: the number actually chargeable with tax was estimated at 2,250,000.

Prior to April 6, 1915, incomes not exceeding 160*l.* were exempt from Income Tax, and from April, 1915, to April, 1920, incomes not exceeding 130*l.* were exempt. The graduation of the tax on incomes in excess of these limits was effected by means of differential rates and by various abatements and reliefs (for wife, children, etc.) granted in the lower ranges of incomes only.

Under the new system of graduation introduced by the Finance Act 1920, the exemption limit was fixed at 135*l.* of assessable income, i.e. it ranged from 185*l.* to 150*l.* according as the income was wholly investment or wholly earned; personal allowances of 135*l.* assessable income (= 150*l.* earned income) for single persons and 225*l.* (= 250*l.* earned income) for married persons, and allowances for children, dependent relatives, etc., were granted to all taxpayers irrespective of the amount of their total income. The effect of the increase in the earned income relief (from one-tenth to one-sixth) by the Finance Act, 1925, was to increase the personal allowances, in the case of earned incomes, to 162*l.* and 270*l.* respectively. Tax is charged on the first 225*l.* of taxable income at one-half the standard rate, and on the remainder at the standard rate of tax, which has varied as follows:—

	1920-21 and 1921-22	6 l. in the g.
	1922-23	5 l.
	1923-24 and 1924-25	4 l. 6 d.
and from	1925-26 onwards	4 l.

The gross income brought under review in 1926-27 was distributed as follows:—

Profits from the ownership of Lands . . . . .	51,000,000
"    "    "    Houses . . . . .	340,322,804
Profits from the occupation of lands . . . . .	49,000,000
"    British and other Government securities . . . . .	153,398,239
"    businesses, professions, and certain interest . . . . .	1,377,734,689
Salaries of Offices and employments (including Manual wage-earners . . . . .	945,182,540
	2,916,638,872

The gross income from the ownership of lands and houses in 1926-27 was distributed as follows:—

—	England	Scotland	N. Ireland	Gt. Britain and N. Ireland
	£	£	£	£
Lands, etc.	42,600,000	6,300,000	2,100,000	51,000,000
Houses, etc.	307,208,886	50,270,096	2,758,822	340,322,504

Super-Tax.—Super-tax is payable by persons with incomes exceeding 2,000*l.* per year (prior to 1914-15, 5,000*l.* per year; from 1914-15 to 1917-18, 3,000*l.* per year, and in 1918-19 and 1919-20, 2,500*l.* per year).

As part of a general scheme for the simplification of the Income Tax, the Finance Act, 1927, merged the Super-tax into one tax with the Income Tax having the same basis of assessment and payable, under the name of Sur-tax, as a deferred instalment of Income Tax on the 1st January in the year following the year of assessment. The Super-tax is charged for the last time for the year 1928-29.

Local Taxation Grant.—In accordance with various Acts passed between 1888 and 1911, there are paid out of the Consolidated Fund to the Local Taxation Accounts of England and Scotland, sums equivalent to the proceeds (in some cases, of the year 1908-9, and in other cases of the current year) of certain excise licence duties, part of the beer and spirit duties, and part of the probate and estate duties. Certain other grants are also payable.

The total payments made to the Local Taxation Account for England and Wales in 1927-28 was 18,372,188*l.*, including 1,107,260*l.* on account of beer and spirit duties, 2,638,757*l.* on account of licence duties and 3,452,681*l.* under the Agricultural Rates Act, 1923. Scotland received a total of 1,997,257*l.* The total estimated payments for 1928-29 was 14,200,000*l.*

III. NATIONAL DEBT

Borrowing by the State on the security of taxes was practised in Norman times, but the National Debt really dates from the time of William III. The acknowledged debt in 1689 was about 664,000*l.*, on which the annual charge for interest and management was only 40,000*l.* At various subsequent dates the amounts were as follows (including the Irish debt throughout):—

Year	Debt	Annual charge, including annuities	Annuities only (included in previous column)
	Million £	Million £	Million £
1727. Accession of George II.	52	2.4	0.2

The following statement shows the total amount of the Gross Liabilities and the Assets of the State on March 31, 1928:—

Liabilities:	Million £	Million £
Funded Debt . . . . .	1,850.0
Estimated Capital Liability of Terminable Annuities . . . . .	12.6
Unfunded Debt . . . . .	6,248.4

Exchequer Balances at the Banks of England and Ireland . . . . .		6.3

The amount of debt provision issued in 1927-28 for interest and management was 313,816,287*l.*

The net decrease in the aggregate gross liabilities of the State in 1927-28 was 21,715,234*l.*

<sup>1</sup> Excluding advances from votes of credit to Dominions, Allied Powers, &c., and other war assets. The amount of loans remaining unpaid at March 31, 1928, was: loans owing by Allies, 1,970.3 million; Colonies, 123.5 million; loans for relief and reconstruction, 35.5 million; other debts, 4.2 million; total 2,133.6 million.

IV. LOCAL TAXATION.

The estimated rate expenditure of local authorities in recent years was as follows:—

	England and Wales	Scotland	Total
1923-24 . . . . .	143,275,000	17,591,000	160,866,000

1926-27 . . . . .	159,500,000	20,448,000	179,948,000
1927-28 . . . . .	167,000,000	21,400,000	188,400,000

The approximate allocation of amounts raised by rates during 1927-28 and 1928-29 was as follows:—

	England and Wales		Scotland		Total
	1927-28	1928-29	1927-28	1928-29	1927-28	1928-29
	£000	£000	£000	£000	£000	£000
On relief of the poor . . .	38,000	36,200	4,845	4,858	42,845	41,058
„ education . . .	33,500	35,100	5,225	5,307	38,725	40,407
„ police . . .	10,000	10,100	1,056	1,073	11,056	11,173
„ other services . . .	85,500	84,850	10,274	10,680	95,774	95,530
Totals . . .	167,000	166,250	21,400	21,918	188,400	188,168

In England and Wales the average amount of the rates per pound of assessable value was 6s. 8½d. in 1913-14, 12s. 5½d. in 1926-27, and 12s. 10½d. in 1927-28.

Defence.

The Committee of Imperial Defence is responsible for the co-ordination of naval, military, and air policy. Of this Committee the Prime Minister is ex-officio President, and he has power to call for the attendance at its meetings of any naval or military officers, or of other persons, with administrative experience, whether they are in official positions or not. The usual members are the Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, for War and Air, the Colonies, India, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the First Lord of the Admiralty, the First Sea Lord, the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, the Chief of the Air Staff, Directors of the Intelligence Departments of the War Office and the Admiralty. During 1923 a Cabinet Committee inquired into the co-ordination of the policy and administration of defence. As the result of its report a standing sub-committee of the Committee of Imperial Defence has been appointed, with a Cabinet Minister as Chairman, the heads of the three services and representatives of the Foreign Office and Treasury as members, for the purpose of correlating defensive policy. Three further sub-committees have since been appointed, one composed of the Chiefs of Staff of the three services of Navy, Army and Air, to furnish the Cabinet or the main committee with expert advice on problems of defence, the second sub-committee deals with man-power, and the third, the principal supply officers' sub-committee, with the provision of munitions and supplies in time of war. At the beginning of 1927 an Imperial Defence College was founded to educate selected officers of the three services in working together in the solution of problems of Imperial Defence and to carry out detailed studies for the main committee.

I. ARMY.

The land forces of the United Kingdom consist of the Regular Army, the Territorial Army, and the Reserve Forces. The British troops of the Regular Army serve both at home and overseas and are commonly referred to as the British Army in contradistinction to the Indian Army or Native Army, and to the Local Forces in certain British Colonies and Dependencies, the personnel of which is native with a proportion of British officers.

The Regular Army, whether at home or abroad, except India, is paid for by the Imperial Exchequer (although certain Dominions pay contributions towards its upkeep); India pays a contribution towards the cost of troops at home owing to these serving as a depot for the regular troops in India. The Imperial Exchequer pays for Indian and Colonial troops serving outside their own countries. The Territorial Army serves only at home in peace time, but as the supreme position of the British Navy in Home Waters has practically eliminated all risk of invasion, members of the Territorial Army are now asked to accept liability for service overseas in time of war, subject to the consent of Parliament. The rank and file for both Regular Army and Territorial Army are obtained by voluntary enlistment. The Reserve Forces consist of the Army Reserve, the Supplementary Reserve of Officers and the Supplementary Reserve, the Militia and the Channel Islands and Colonial Militia, and the Territorial Reserve. The Army Reserve is composed of men who have completed their period of colour service with the Regular Army; its strength on January 1, 1929, was 104,889. The Supplementary Reserve of Officers and the Supplementary Reserve were created in August 1924, with establishments of 2,489 and 20,639 respectively, for the purpose of supplying officers and technicians to the army on mobilisation. The strength of the Supplementary Reserve on January 1, 1929, was 14,061. The Militia, which is intended to serve as a supply source to the Regular Army after the Army Reserve is exhausted, is in process of reconstruction. The Channel Islands and Colonial Militia consist of the Channel Islands Militia, the Malta Militia, the Bermuda Militia, and the Isle of Man Volunteers. The Territorial Reserve is in process of formation.

Service is for 12 years, with permission to extend to 21 years in certain circumstances. Of the original 12 years, from 3 to 9 are spent 'with the colours,' i.e., on permanent service, and the remainder of the time in the Army Reserve; the majority of the men serve for 7 years with the colours and 5 years in the Army Reserve, which is the rule for infantry other than the Foot Guards. Men enlist between 18 and 25 years of age.

For purposes of training and command the fighting troops are for the most part organised in divisions, which consist of 3 infantry brigades, divisional artillery and engineers, together with the necessary auxiliary services. The cavalry is organised in brigades. The infantry brigades are composed of 4 battalions, the cavalry brigades of 3 regiments. The organisation of the Territorial Army is analogous to that of the Regular Army, and it consists of 14 divisions, composed of infantry, artillery, engineers, and auxiliary services, and of the mounted brigades, chiefly composed of yeomanry. During 1928 further progress was made in the process of mechanising the Army. The experimental mechanised brigade, composed of artillery, infantry and tanks carried out extensive tests on Salisbury Plain. New establishments were prepared increasing considerably the number of machine guns with infantry and cavalry, and providing infantry with anti-tank guns.

For purposes of command Great Britain is divided up into six 'commands' and the London and Northern Ireland Districts. The commands are (1) Aldershot, of very limited area, (2) Eastern, including the eastern and southern counties, (3) Northern, including the northern midlands and north-eastern counties, (4) Scottish, (5) Southern, including the southern midlands and south-western counties, (6) Western, including Wales, Lancashire and north-western counties. These commands (except the Aldershot command) are divided up into Territorial Recruiting districts for the Regular Army. The Eastern, Northern, Scottish, Southern, and Western commands and the London District each include from 1 to 4 Territorial mounted brigades, and 2 or 3 Territorial divisions. There are normally two Regular divisions in the Aldershot, one Regular division in the Eastern and one in the Southern command. At the head of each command is a general officer (styled the General-Officer Commanding-in-Chief). He is assisted by a general-officer of lower rank who is responsible for questions of administration apart from training and defence questions.

The land forces are administered by an Army Council which is composed of the Secretary of State for War, who is its President; the heads of the departments into which the War Office is primarily divided, and the permanent Secretary of the War Office. The Territorial Army is to a large extent administered by County Associations over which the War Office merely maintains a general control as regards expenditure.

The principal military educational establishments are the Royal Military Academy, educating youths to be officers in the artillery and the engineers, the Royal Military College whence officers are obtained for cavalry and infantry, the Senior Officers' School, which trains officers for command, and the Staff College, which trains officers for the staff. The Officers' Training Corps in two divisions representing respectively the universities and public schools, is intended to provide officers for the Territorial Army, and for the Regular Army on expansion.

The gross estimated expenditure for the army for the year 1929-30 amounted (March, 1929) to 48,958,000*l.*, and appropriations in aid to 8,413,000*l.*, leaving a net expenditure of 40,545,000*l.*

The total personnel charged to British votes for 1929-30 was 150,500, of whom 146,668 were British troops, 1,064 were additional numbers to cover temporary excesses over establishments, 2,263 were Colonial and Native Indian troops, 500 were additional required to cover the despatch of troops to China. There were in India 59,987 British troops, so that the total establishment of the Regular Army in 1929-30 was 146,688 + 59,987 = 206,655. The strength of the Territorial Force in August, 1928, was 140,699, exclusive of permanent staff.

The distribution of Regular troops, except in India, was as follows:

II. NAVY.

The British Navy is a permanent establishment, governed by the Board of Admiralty. The First Lord of the Admiralty is the Cabinet Minister responsible for the Navy.

The duties of the Admiralty are grouped under the two headings of Operations and Maintenance. The First Sea Lord and Chief of the Naval Staff, the Deputy Chief of the Naval Staff, and the Assistant Chief of the Naval Staff have charge and direction of the Operations Division. This Division is concerned with Naval policy and the general direction of operations, war operations in Home waters and elsewhere, strategy, tactics, the development and use of material, including types of vessels and weapons, and with trade protection and anti-submarine considerations. The four officials who are in charge of the Maintenance Division are the Second Sea Lord and Chief of the Personnel; the Third Sea Lord and Controller of the Navy; the Fourth Sea Lord and Chief of Supplies and Transport; and the Civil Lord. The Parliamentary Secretary and the Permanent Secretary are concerned with Finance and Admiralty business.

The Washington Treaty of 1922, which relates to the British Navy and the Navies of the United States, France, Italy, and Japan, is concerned mainly with capital ships, defining for each Power what her replacement tonnage shall be, and fixing the maximum displacement of such ships at 35,000 tons, and their heaviest armaments at the 16 in. gun. There is no restriction as to the number of cruisers, but they are not to exceed 10,000 tons, nor to have a heavier gun than the 8 in. The Powers concerned are therefore devoting far more attention than formerly to cruisers, with the object of getting as much as possible out of the maximum displacement allowed; and naval competition for some time past has found its chief expression in this class of vessel. Destroyers and submarines are not affected by the Treaty, but there are special restrictions as to aircraft-carriers, a class of vessel to which increasing importance is being attached.

Under the terms of the Treaty the British Empire retained 22 capital ships with a total displacement of 580,450 tons. To replace four of these which have been discarded, two new battleships, named Nelson and Rodney, were laid down at the end of 1922 and completed in 1927. These ships are described in the summary which follows.

Four 10,000-ton cruisers of an improved Kent type (Devonshire, London, Shropshire, Sussex), laid down under the 1925-26 Estimates, will all be completed during 1929. Under the 1926-27 Estimates there are building two 10,000 ton cruisers (Dorsetshire, Norfolk), one 8,400 ton cruiser (York), 6 submarines (Odin, Olympus, Orpheus, Osiris, Onwald, Olus); 2 depôt and repair ships (Medway, Resource); and under those for 1927-28 there are being built one 8,400 ton cruiser (Exeter), 1 flotilla leader (Codrington), 8 destroyers (Acasta, Achates, Acheron, Active, Antelope, Anthony, Ardent, Arrow), 6 submarines (Pandora, Parthian, Perseus, Phoenix, Poseidon, Proteus), 2 minesweepers (Bridgewater, Sandwich).

In future years it is proposed to lay down:—

In 1929: Two 10,000 ton cruisers, 1 flotilla leader, 8 destroyers, 6 submarines, 4 sloops, 1 gunboat, 1 submarine depôt ship.

In 1930: One 10,000 ton cruiser, two smaller (6-inch gun), 8,300 ton cruisers, 1 flotilla leader, 8 destroyers, 1 fleet submarine, 5 submarines, 1 net layer and target-towing vessel, 6 sloops.

The Navy estimates for 1926-27 amounted to 58,100,000*l.* net, for 1927-28, 58,450,000*l.* net, for 1928-29, 57,300,000*l.* net, and for 1929-30, 55,865,000*l.* net.

The number of officers, seamen and marines borne on January 1, 1914, was 144,871. The estimates for 1929-30 provide for a total personnel of 98,800. Officers included in this total numbered about 8,000.

SUMMARY OF THE BRITISH FLEET.

With the disappearance from the lists of all capital ships armed with guns of less than 13.5 inch calibre, the general tendency is to classify them as pre-Jutland and post-Jutland types. Of the last-named the only representatives at present are the Nelson and Rodney, though the Hood embodies in her design certain modifications based on war experience.

The following summary of the more important units will illustrate the present position.

Class.	Completed by end of
	1926	1927	1928
Battleships and Battle Cruisers . .	22	20	20
Cruisers . . . . .	49	50	50
Aircraft Carriers and Tenders . .	7	7	7
Flotilla leaders and Destroyers . .	174	174	157
Submarines . . . . .	56	56	51

Ships and vessels of the Dominions are included in the above table and in the following paragraph. See notes following the ship lists.

Of the 37 monitors which existed in 1919, three still survive. There are 10 seagoing depot and repair ships, 30 sloops, 29 minesweepers (mostly laid up in reserve), 12 surveying vessels, and a large number of smaller craft, such as gunboats, patrol boats, drifters and trawlers. A new sloop is projected for the Royal Indian Marine.

In the following tables the ships are grouped in classes according to type. The dates of the Naval Estimates under which they were sanctioned are given in certain cases, but, with reference to the capital ships affected by the Washington Treaty, the years are substituted in which they are due for replacement if desired.

The destroyers of the post-war Fleet are of the following classes: flotilla leaders, 1610–1800 tons, 34–36.5 knots, 17 (including 1 Australian); R class, 900–1085 tons, 11; S class, 930–1075 tons, 57 (including 5 Australian and 2 Canadian); V class, 1300–1325 tons, 27; W class, 1300–1350 tons, 37; A class (1210–1330 tons), 2; Parramatta class (Australia) 6; total number, 157. A flotilla leader and 8 destroyers of the A class are building (1927–28 Estimate), besides 2 more of the A type for the Royal Canadian Navy.

The submarines are of seven successive classes. H class (440 tons surface displacement) 15; K class (2140 tons) 1; L class (890–960 tons) 29; M class (1600 tons) 2; X class (2525 tons), 1; O class (1346 tons), 3 (including 2 Australian); total number, 56. Six more of the O type, provided for under 1926–27 Estimates, and 6 of the P type (1927–28 Estimates) are under construction.

Dominion Navies.—When Lord Jellicoe made a tour of the Dominions with the object of arriving at an understanding with the Governments on the naval defence of the Empire, his report to the Government of Australia emphasized the desirability of the Commonwealth becoming self-contained in regard to shipbuilding and the manufacture of guns, mountings, explosives, and aircraft, but no action of much importance has been taken on the proposals. The Imperial Cabinet (July, 1921) left on record its view that co-operation among the constituent parts of the Empire was necessary, but that the details must be left to the Dominion Parliaments. So far the only one of Lord Jellicoe's main recommendations to be carried into effect has been the reorganisation of the Royal Indian Marine on a naval basis. Its strength at present is limited to 3 sloops and 2 surveying vessels; the building of a fourth sloop is projected.

The Royal Australian Navy, in addition to the 4 cruisers and 1 aircraft tender named in the list above, has 1 flotilla leader, 6 destroyers of the River class and 5 of the S class, 2 submarines of the O class, 3 sloops, and other vessels.

The New Zealand Navy, in addition to the Diomedæ and Dunedin, has the obsolete light cruiser Philomel as a training ship and a mine-sweeping trawler for instructional purposes.

The Royal Canadian Navy has 4 mine-sweeping trawlers; and the Admiralty have lent 2 S class destroyers (renamed Vancouver and Champlain) from the Royal Navy, pending completion of 2 of the A class which have been ordered in England by the Canadian Government.

The South African Navy has 2 mine-sweeping trawlers and a surveying vessel.

Newfoundland has one sloop built in 1925, the Caribou, which is employed under the Finance and Customs Department.

III. AIR FORCE.

In May, 1912, the Royal Flying Corps first came into existence. On January 2, 1918, an Air Ministry was formed, and the control of the Royal Air Force was vested in an Air Council analogous to the Army Council. The Air Minister was given the status of a Secretary of State and became President of the Council. In April, 1918, the naval and military wings were amalgamated, under the Ministry of the Air, as the Royal Air Force.

The Force consists of the Royal Air Force, the Air Force Reserve, the Air Force Special Reserve, the Auxiliary Air Force, and the Territorial Air Force. The establishment of the Royal Air Force for the year 1929-30 is 32,000 exclusive of those serving in India, who are paid for by the Government of India. During 1922 the Air Ministry took over control of Iraq and Palestine, and in January 1928 of Aden.

The Air Force is organised into commands as follows:—

- I. United Kingdom: (a) Inland Area, (b) Coastal Area, (c) Irish Wing, (d) Cranwell, (e) Halton.
- II. Overseas: (a) Middle East Area, (b) Iraq, (c) India, (d) Mediterranean, (e) Palestine.

Areas are subdivided into groups and wings, a certain number of squadrons being allotted to each group or wing. Squadrons are subdivided into flights. In March 1929 the establishment of the Royal Air Force was 78 squadrons, 65 of which were regular squadrons and 8 Special Reserve or Auxiliary Air Force squadrons. Each squadron is of 12 aeroplanes. 38 squadrons were in Great Britain and 22 abroad, while 25 flights, the equivalent of 12½ squadrons, were provided for the fleet air arm. During 1923 a scheme for the expansion of the Air Force primarily for Home Defence was sanctioned. This scheme provides for an establishment of 52 squadrons for home defence, 39 of these being squadrons of the Royal Air Force, 6 being non-regular squadrons formed from the Auxiliary Air Force, and 7 being formed of the Special Reserve. At the end of 1928, 33 Home Defence squadrons had been formed, of which 25 are regular squadrons. In November 1924 an Air Officer, commanding-in-chief Air Defences of Great Britain, was appointed to organise and command the Air Forces allotted for Home Defence.

These are now divided into 3 sub-commands: the Fighting Area with headquarters at Uxbridge; the Wessex Bombing Area, with headquarters at Andover, and the Special Reserve and Auxiliary Air Force.

The chief educational establishments of the Air Force are the Cadet College at Cranwell and the Staff College at Andover. The chief training depot is at Halton. There are also 3 flying training schools, 1 central flying school, and schools of gunnery, ballooning, army co-operation, photography and wireless.

The net Air Estimates for 1929-30 amount to 16,200,000.

For 1929-30 the net sum allotted to Civil Aviation is 450,000. The air routes maintained were London-Manchester, London-Amsterdam, London-Brussels-Cologne, London-Paris and Cairo-Baghdad. During 1928 an extended cruise by four Southampton flying boats was made to the Far East involving a journey of 28,000 miles. Considerable progress was made in the construction of 2 giant airships.

<sup>3</sup> In Scotland all orchard land is also included against the crop, grass or fallow beneath the trees. In England and Wales orchard land is only duplicated where small fruit is grown beneath the trees. The figures for small fruit in all cases, therefore, include small fruit in orchards.

The production of meat in Great Britain in 1923-24 was estimated at 1,023,000 tons; of milk, 1,350 million gallons. The value of produce sold off the farms in 1923 (excluding produce consumed in farmers' households, is estimated at 258,750,000*l.*, namely: farm crops, 54,000,000*l.*; live stock, 95,000,000*l.*; dairy produce, 79,000,000*l.*; wool, 4,250,000*l.*; poultry and eggs, 13,500,000*l.*; miscellaneous crops, 13,000,000*l.*

For the quantities of cereals and live stock imported, see under Commerce.

The number of holdings in Great Britain (from 1 acre upwards) is given as follows:—

In England and Wales, the Ministry of Agriculture make grants for, and, to some extent, supervise vocational education and scientific research in agriculture. The Board of Agriculture for Scotland dispenses certain grants for the development and improvement of agriculture, including agricultural education and research, in that country.

Under the Development and Road Improvement Funds Acts, 1909 and 1910, there are eight 'Development Commissioners,' appointed to advise the Treasury in the administration of a national fund for the development of agriculture, fisheries, forestry, and analogous resources of the United Kingdom. The total sum guaranteed to the Fund was 2,900,000*l.*; interest on investments, and other receipts, up to March 31, 1920, made the total available funds, 3,541,000*l.* In 1921–22 a further 850,000*l.*, constituting the 'Special' Fund, was paid to the Fund under the Corn Production Acts (Repeal) Act, 1921, for the purpose of aiding and developing agriculture in England and Wales. Under the same Act 150,000*l.* was paid to the Agriculture (Scotland) Fund for similar purposes in Scotland. In 1928–29 a further 250,000*l.* was voted to the Fund by Parliament. During 1927–28 the payment of grants from the Ordinary Fund amounted to 233,063*l.* and loans to 5,320*l.*; grants from the Special Fund amounted to 130,399*l.* The balance in the Ordinary Fund at March 31, 1928, was 114,016*l.* and the balance in the Special Fund was nil.

The metals obtainable from the ores produced in 1927 were:—Copper, 177 tons, value 10,823*l.*; iron, 3,361,980 tons, 14,512,547*l.*; lead, 15,525 tons, 375,252*l.*; silver, 46,705 oz., 5,066*l.*; tin, 2,593 tons, 749,280*l.*; zinc, 976 tons, 27,788*l.*; total value, 15,680,756*l.*

The total number of persons ordinarily employed at all mines in Great Britain under the Coal and Metalliferous Mines Regulation Acts during 1927 was 1,053,275. The number of mines at work was 3,173; 824,866 persons (males) worked underground, and 207,751 males and 4,774 females above ground. The number employed at quarries under the Quarries Act was 81,692, of whom 51,747 (including 25 females) worked inside the quarries, and 29,945 outside. The number of quarries at work was 5,403.

Professor H. S. Jevons estimated the resources of British coal in 1915, within 4,000 feet of the surface, at 197,000 million tons.

The value of goods imported is generally taken to be that at the port and time of entry, including all incidental expenses (cost, insurance, and freight) up to the landing on the quay. For goods consigned for sale, the market value in this country is required and recorded in the returns. This is ascertained from the declaration made by the importers, and is checked by the expert knowledge available in the Customs Department, with the help of current price-lists and market reports. For exports, the value at the port of shipment (including the charges of delivering the goods on board) is taken. Imports are entered as from the country whence the goods were consigned to the United Kingdom, which may, or may not, be the country whence the goods were last shipped. Exports are credited to the country of ultimate destination as declared by the exporters.

<sup>3</sup> The expenditure on railway working was in 1927, 161,010,344; in 1928, 154,160,000. The number of passengers carried in 1928 was 1,198,420,000.

Tramways.—In 1927 there were in Great Britain 2,554 miles of tramways and light railways open for public traffic. The paid-up capital amounted to 101,173,000*l.*, gross receipts 26,916,000*l.*, working expenses 22,128,000*l.*, and net receipts 4,788,000*l.* The total number of passengers carried in 1927 was 4,460,299,000.

II.—CANALS AND NAVIGATIONS.

The total length of canals in the United Kingdom in 1905 was 4,673 miles, of which 3,641 miles were in England and Wales, 184 in Scotland, and 848 in Ireland.

The total tonnages originating on the principal canals<sup>1</sup> in Great Britain in 1927 were: Railway-owned canals, 1,987,799 tons; other than railway-owned, 13,185,072 tons, including Birmingham, 4,094,480 tons, Grand Junction, 1,406,907 tons, Leeds and Liverpool, 1,803,549 tons, and Bridgewater, 1,273,978 tons, Aire and Calder, 2,456,402 tons. Tonnage carried on the River Thames (above Teddington) was 357,552.

Manchester, fourth port in the United Kingdom, was opened to maritime traffic in 1894 by the construction of the Manchester Ship Canal, which is 35½ miles in length, 30 ft. in depth to Stanlow Oil Dock, thence to Manchester it is 28 ft. deep. The bottom width of the canal is not less than 120 ft. except for ¾ mile near Latchford, where it is 90 ft. The maximum width of the locks is 65 ft., with the exception of the entrance lock, which is 80 feet wide. The canal is in direct communication with all the principal railway systems and barge canals of the Kingdom. The total paid-up capital of the Company at December 31, 1928, was 19,518,220*l.* The gross revenue of the canal in 1928, including the Bridgewater department and the railways, amounted to 2,092,873*l.*, and the net revenue, including miscellaneous receipts, to 879,644*l.* The traffic receipts in 1928 amounted to 1,517,018*l.* The merchandise traffic paying toll in 1928 amounted to 6,266,896 tons.

The telegraphs were transferred to the State on February 5, 1870. On March 31, 1928, the mileage of Post Office wires used for telegraph purposes was 298,361 miles. The total mileage of Post Office wires, Telegraph, Telephone, and spare wires, was 7,528,641 miles. Of this total, 1,216,697 miles were aerial, 6,288,870 underground, and 23,074 submarine.

The total number of telegraph offices open on March 31, 1927 (including railway stations, etc., which transact public telegraph business), was 12,781. On February 1, 1929, there were 19 Post Office wireless stations in operation, and several 'stand by' stations for emergency purposes. The Marconi Company work certain stations under licence.

All telephone exchanges deal with trunk telephone business, but on March 31, 1928, there were 19 exchanges which dealt with trunk work only. On that date there were 14,982 trunk circuits containing 890,215 miles of wire; the number of calls during the year was 103,400,000. The London local exchange system had 118 exchanges, 6,224 Call Offices (including 887 kiosks), 2,235,555 miles of working wire, and 573,322 telephones. The Provincial local exchange system had 4,180 exchanges, 18,830 Call Offices (including 3,800 kiosks), 3,184,567 miles of working wire, and 1,052,869 telephones. The approximate number of effective originated calls in 1927-28 was 1,173 millions (469 millions in London). For private wires, the rentals in 1927-28 amounted to 471,000L.

The amount due to depositors on January 1, 1929, was approximately 288,600,000*l*.

The receipts and payments include purchases and sales of Government Stock for depositors, but the amount shown as due to depositors is exclusive of such stock held by depositors. The latter amounted to 184,562,661*l*. at the end of 1926, and 188,648,600*l*. at the end of 1927.

Trustee Savings Bank.—The number of depositors in these banks in 1924 was 2,295,535, and the amounts due to them were: in the General or Government Departments, 82,285,044*l*. Cash, and 30,895,527*l*. (face value) Stock; in the Special Investment Departments, i.e., money invested otherwise than with the National Debt Commissioners, 24,703,347*l*. Cash, and 33,420*l*. (face value) Stock; total Cash, 106,988,391*l*.; total face value of Stock, 30,928,947*l*. In 1913, the number of depositors was 1,912,820; the total Cash due to depositors, 68,548,000*l*., and the face value of Stock, 2,795,000*l*.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The sovereign weighs 123·274 grains, or 7·9881 grammes, ·916 (or eleven-twelfths) fine, and consequently it contains 113·001 grains or 7·3224 grammes of fine gold. The shilling weighs 87·27 grains or 5·6552 grammes, and down to 1920 was ·925 (or thirty-seven-fortieths) fine, thus containing 80·727 grains or 5·281 grammes of fine silver, but under the Coinage Act, 1920, the fineness was reduced to ·500 (one half). Bronze coins consist of a mixture of copper, tin, and zinc. The penny weighs 145·83 grains, or 9·45 grammes. The standard of value is gold. Silver is legal tender up to 40 shillings; bronze up to 12*d*., but farthings only up to 6*d*.. Bank of England notes are legal tender in England and Wales, except at the Bank itself (3 and 4 Will. 4, cap. 98). The 1*l*. and 10*s*. Treasury Notes issued since the outbreak of the War are also legal tender. Under the Gold Standard Act, 1925, the issue of gold coin is suspended but bullion may be purchased at the price of 3*l*. 17*s*. 10½*d*. per ounce troy of gold of the fineness prescribed for gold coin by the Coinage Act, 1870. The note circulation at February 29, 1928, was: currency notes and certificates, 287,480,131*l*.; Bank of England notes, 135,849,460*l*.; total, 422,820,591*l*. The net circulation of Bank Notes (exclusive of Notes set aside on account of Currency Note redemption, included in previous total) was 79,099,460*l*. The total of Currency Notes and certificates excluding Notes called in but not cancelled was 286,220,800*l*. The amount of currency in June, 1914, was estimated at 128,000,000*l*. in circulation, and 75,000,000*l*. in banks; total, 203,000,000*l*. In December, 1919, the amount was estimated at 393,000,000*l*. in circulation, and 191,000,000*l*. in banks; total, 584,000,000*l*. The silver circulation at the end of 1920 was estimated at about 60,000,000*l*.

Standard units are: of length the standard yard, of weight the standard pound of 7,000 grains (the pound troy having 5,760 grains), of capacity the standard gallon containing 10 pounds avoirdupois of distilled water at 62° F., the barometer at 30 inches. On these units all other legal weights and measures are based.

NORTHERN IRELAND.

Constitution.

UNDER the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, as amended by the Irish Free State (Consequential Provisions) Act, 1922 (18 Geo. V. Ch. 2, Session 2), a separate parliament and executive government were established for Northern Ireland, which comprises the parliamentary counties of Antrim, Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry, and Tyrone, and the parliamentary boroughs of Belfast and Londonderry. The Parliament consists of a Senate of 2 ex-officio and 24 elected persons and a House of Commons of 52 elected members. An allowance for expenses is made in the case of those members of both Houses who are not in receipt of salaries as members of the Government or as officers of Parliament, amounting to (a) two guineas a day to members of the Senate for attendance at meetings of the Senate or committees, and to (b) 200*l.* a year to members of the House of Commons. The Parliament has power to legislate for its own area except in regard to (1) matters of Imperial concern (the Crown, making of peace or war, military, naval, and air forces, treaties, titles of honour, treason, naturalisation, domicile, external trade, submarine cables, wireless telegraphy, aerial navigation, lighthouses, etc., coinage, etc., trade marks, etc.), and (2) certain matters 'reserved' to the Imperial Parliament (postal service, Post Office and Trustee savings banks, designs for stamps, registration of deeds, land purchase). The executive power is vested in the Governor on behalf of His Majesty the King: he holds office for six years and is advised by ministers responsible to Parliament. Senators hold office for a fixed term of years: the House of Commons is to continue for five years, unless sooner dissolved. The qualifications for membership of the Parliament are similar to those for membership of the Imperial House of Commons, but power is given to the Northern Ireland Parliament to alter such qualifications after June 1924. Northern Ireland continues to return 18 members to the Imperial House of Commons. In case of a disagreement between the two Houses they are to have a joint sitting and decide the question at issue by an absolute majority.

The legislative and administrative powers relating to Railways, Fisheries, and the Contagious Diseases of Animals were, under the Ireland (Confirmation of Agreement) Act, 1925, transferred to, and became, as from April 1, 1926, powers of the Parliament and Government of Northern Ireland.

The Northern Irish Parliament met for the first time in June, 1921. At the election in April, 1925, there were returned 32 Unionists, 10 Nationalists, 4 Independent Unionists, 3 Labour, 2 Republicans and 1 Farmer.

Governor.—The Duke of Abercorn, appointed for a term of 6 years from December 8, 1922; the appointment was extended on March 23, 1928 for a further term of 6 years from December 8, 1928. Salary, 8,000*l.* per year, payable from Imperial Revenues (2,000*l.* being recoverable from Northern Ireland Revenues).

The Ministry is composed as follows:—

Finance.—Rt. Hon. H. M. Pollock (salary, 2,000*l.*).

Home Affairs.—Rt. Hon. Sir R. Dawson Bates (salary, 2,000*l.*).

Labour.—Rt. Hon. J. M. Andrews (salary, 2,000*l.*).

Education.—Rt. Hon. Viscount Charlemont (salary, 2,000*l.*).

Agriculture.—Rt. Hon. Sir E. M. Archdale, Bart. (salary, 2,000*l.*).

Commerce.—Rt. Hon. J. Milne Barbour.

The usual channel of communication between the Government of Northern Ireland and the Imperial Government is the Home Office.

Local Government.

In the two chief cities, Belfast and Londonderry, local administration is vested in Corporations, who are responsible for roads, public health, rating, housing, lighting, etc.

In each of the six counties there is a County Council responsible for the construction and maintenance of roads and other public works, collection of rates, supervision of the arrangements for dealing with tuberculosis and special diseases; also of lunatic asylums, county infirmaries and county fever hospitals.

The counties are divided into thirty-two rural districts, in each of which is a Rural District Council, which is the sanitary authority for the district, and is also responsible for such matters as provision of labourers' cottages, burial grounds, etc. Urban District Councils to the number of thirty-two have been established in the majority of the towns in Northern Ireland.

The administration of poor relief and dispensary medical relief is vested in Boards of Guardians, which, in the majority of cases, are the Rural District Councils, but in a few cases their area extends over two Rural Districts.

Area and Population.

A census of Northern Ireland was taken on April 18, 1926. The area and population of the country at that date were as follows:—

Counties and County Boroughs.	Area in statute acres (exclusive of water).	Males.	Females.	Total.
Antrim . . . . .	702,856	92,506	99,047	191,643

Belfast C. B. . . . .	14,797	195,539	219,612	415,151
Down . . . . .	608,861	101,202	108,026	209,228
Fermanagh . . . . .	420,211	30,102	27,882	57,984
Londonderry Co. . . . .	512,494	47,119	47,415	94,534
Londonderry C. B. . . . .	2,199	20,735	24,374	45,159
Tyrone . . . . .	779,563	67,136	65,656	132,792
Northern Ireland . . .	3,353,754	608,088	648,473	1,256,561

The provisional estimated population of Northern Ireland at June 30, 1928, was 1,248,000.

The following statement shows the numbers of marriages, births and deaths registered in Northern Ireland in each of the four years 1924, 1925, 1926, and 1927:—

Year	Marriages	Births	Deaths	Year	Marriages	Births	Deaths
1924	7,514	28,496	20,299	1926	7,228	28,162	18,827

The religious professions in Northern Ireland, as recorded at the census of 1926, were: Roman Catholics, 420,428; Presbyterians, 393,374; Protestant Episcopalians, 338,724; Methodists, 49,554; Other professions, 54,481; Total, 1,256,561.

Education.

The following are the latest available statistics for the Academic year 1927-28:—

University: The Queen's University of Belfast (founded in 1849 as a College of the Queen's University of Ireland, and reconstituted as an independent University in 1909), 118 Professors and Lecturers, and 1,225 students in 1927. Secondary Education: 71 schools with 9,913 pupils. Technical Instruction: 56 technical schools and 83 other centres with approximately 24,000 students. Elementary Education: 1,948 public elementary schools with 201,688 pupils on rolls.

Justice.

Under the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, a Supreme Court of Judicature of Northern Ireland has been established, consisting of the Court of Appeal in Northern Ireland and the High Court of Justice in Northern Ireland. An appeal lies direct, in certain conditions, from the former to the House of Lords.

The Police Force consists of (a) the Royal Ulster Constabulary, with a statutory maximum strength of 3,000; and (b) the Special Constabulary, a part-time force.

Finance.

The bulk of the taxation of Northern Ireland is imposed and collected by the Imperial authorities, who make certain deductions and remit the balance to the Northern Irish Exchequer. The exact share of the latter in the proceeds of such taxation is determined by the Joint Exchequer Board, a special body consisting of one representative of the Imperial Treasury, one of the Northern Irish Treasury, and a chairman appointed by the King. The deductions made by the Treasury represent a contribution towards Imperial liabilities and expenditure, and the net cost to the Imperial Exchequer of Northern Irish services 'reserved' to the Imperial Parliament. The cost of these 'reserved' services, together with the Imperial contribution, represents about 40 per cent. of the total expenditure of Northern Ireland while the remaining 60 per cent. represents the cost of administration in the Province, including education, old age and blind persons' pensions, health and unemployment insurance, police, prisons, public works, agricultural development, commercial services, finance, etc. The Northern Irish Parliament has independent powers of taxation, except as regards customs duties, excise duties on articles manufactured and produced, excess profits duty, corporation profits tax, any tax on profits or a general tax on capital, or any tax substantially the same in character as any of these duties or taxes. It has no power to impose, charge or collect income tax, including super tax, but it can grant relief from these taxes to individuals resident and domiciled in Northern Ireland. The Northern Government also raises money, as required, by means of Ulster Savings Certificates and Treasury Bills, for the purpose of meeting temporary deficiencies of revenue and for advances to the Unemployment Fund. In October, 1925, a Government Loans Fund was established from which loans are made to local authorities and others for public utility services. This has been financed by issues amounting to 3,100,000*l.* Ulster Loans 4½% Stock, 1945-1975.

The revenue accruing to the Northern Irish Exchequer and the expenditure for four years was as follows:—

	£	£	£	£
Revenue . . . . .	12,726,000	11,173,000	11,024,000	10,842,000
Expenditure . . . .	12,676,000	11,137,000	10,775,000	10,842,000

			Hay . . . . .	468,403	448,329
			Total under Crops	1,022,915	1,013,877

The yield in 1927 was (in tons): oats, 275,758; potatoes, 1,057,010; turnips, 709,213; flax, 4,988; hay, 945,236.

The livestock in 1928 was: cattle, 737,866; sheep, 624,503; pigs, 229,125; goats, 51,443; horses used in agriculture, 87,205; unbroken horses, 5,684; mules and jennets, 252; asses, 8,473.

There were 102,446 agricultural holdings exceeding one acre in area in 1927, in the hands of 100,671 separate occupiers.

Mining.—The mineral output in 1927 and 1926 for Northern Ireland was:—

	1926	1927		1926	1927
	Tons.	Tons.		Tons.	Tons.
Bauxite, Iron Ore and			Gypsum . . . . .	89	111

Flint . . . . .	845	922	Sandstone . . . . .	139,976	156,665
Gravel and Sand . .	25,383	29,377

The number of persons employed, inclusive of those employed at coal mines, was: 1925, 2,776; 1926, 2,268; 1927, 2,348.

Manufactures.—The two principal industries are linen and ship-building, both centred in Belfast. The former provides employment for approximately 110,000 persons, excluding those engaged in growing the fibre; 1,000,000 spindles, and 40,000 looms. The value of linens exported from the United Kingdom during 1927 was 9,800,798*l.*, practically the whole of which came from Northern Ireland. The Belfast shipyards employ approximately 20,000 persons, and possess an output capacity exceeding 250,000 tons a year. Other important manufactures are ropes and twines, tobacco, soaps, aerated waters, biscuits, spirits, hosiery and underwear.

National Insurance. Pensions.

Schemes of compulsory insurance on similar lines to those in force in Great Britain are in operation in Northern Ireland, and make provision for benefits during sickness and unemployment, and for pensions to persons over 65 years of age and to widows and orphans.

A general outline of the provisions of these schemes is set out in the paragraph dealing with 'National Insurance' in Great Britain. Arrangements are in force under which insured persons may move between Great Britain and Northern Ireland without loss of benefit. The number of persons in Northern Ireland insured under the various schemes is approximately: Health Insurance and Contributory Pensions, 323,000; Unemployment Insurance, 249,000.

Non-contributory Pensions.—Old Age Pensions (non-contributory) and Blind Persons' Pensions are granted to individuals who are not eligible for Contributory Pensions provided they have reached the age of 70 (50 in case of Blind Persons), and comply with certain conditions as regards British nationality and residence in the U.K.

The number of persons in Northern Ireland in receipt of non-contributory Pensions is approximately 42,000.

Communications.

The total railway mileage of Northern Ireland amounts to 765 miles. The area is also well served by inland waterways, and possesses 180 miles of canals. Total length of roads is 12,971 miles; road budget for year ending March 31, 1926, was 1,285,126*l.*

ISLE OF MAN.<sup>1</sup>

The Isle of Man is administered in accordance with its own laws by the Court of Tynwald, consisting of the Governor, appointed by the Crown; the Legislative Council, composed of the Lord Bishop of Sodor and Man, two Deemsters, the Attorney-General, two members appointed by the Governor, and four members elected by the House of Keys, total 11 members, including the Governor; and the House of Keys, a representative assembly of 24 members chosen on adult suffrage with six months residence for 5 years by the 6 'sheadings' or local sub-divisions, and the 4 municipalities. Women have the franchise as well as men. Number of voters 1926-27, 37,748. The island is not bound by Acts of the Imperial Parliament unless specially mentioned in them.

Lieut.-Governor.—Sir Claude H. A. Hill, K.C.S.I., C.I.E.

The principal towns are Douglas (population in 1924, 20,326), Ramsey (4,150), Peel (2,463), Castletown (1,880). Births (1925), 761; deaths, 787.

In 1925-26 there were 43 elementary schools, 40 being provided schools. The enrolled pupils numbered 5,800, and the average attendance 5,065. The gross expenditure of the Education Authority on elementary education for the year 1925-26, amounted to 66,434*l*. There are 2 secondary schools (835 registered pupils), and 9 evening classes (300 registered pupils). The gross expenditure on higher education for 1925-26 was 23,018*l*. In 1925 the police force numbered 65; in the year 1924 there were 998 persons convicted.

Revenue is derived mostly from Customs. In 1925-26 the revenue amounted to 298,484*l*.; and expenditure to 273,261*l*., of which 10,000*l*. was paid to the Imperial Exchequer as contribution from the Customs revenue. Public debt (1926) 65,667*l*.

The principal agricultural produce of the island consists of oats, barley, turnips and potatoes, and grasses. The total area of the island, excluding water, is 140,986 acres; the total area of arable land in 1926 was 62,420 acres and of permanent grass, 18,621 acres. The total acreage under corn crops in 1926 was 18,158 acres, including 17,449 under oats, 176 under wheat, and 451 under barley or bere. There were also 6,060 acres under turnips and swedes, 1,899 under potatoes, and 34,302 under clover, sainfoin and grasses under rotation. The number of agricultural holdings in 1926 was 1,411. The live stock in 1926 consisted of 3,819 horses; 18,784 cattle; 89,717 sheep; and 2,642 pigs. Total value of minerals raised in 1923, 47,496*l*. Persons employed in mining numbered 414. In 1924 there were belonging to the Isle of Man 70 fishing boats of an aggregate tonnage of 560 net tons.

The registered shipping (1925) comprised 13 sailing vessels (586 net tons) and 34 steamers (8,450 net tons) and 24 motor vessels (440 net tons); total tonnage 9,476 net tons. The tonnage of vessels arrived at ports of the island in 1925 was 965,348 net tons (378,967 tons coastwise), and departed 932,921 net tons (874,873 tons coastwise). The railways have a length of 46½ miles, and there are 25 miles of electric railway.

CHANNEL ISLANDS.<sup>1</sup>

The Channel Islands are administered according to their own laws and customs. Jersey has a separate legal existence; it is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Crown, and a Bailiff also appointed by the Crown. The Lieutenant-Governor has a veto on certain forms of legislation. He and the Crown officers may address the States but not vote. The qualification for a vote is the possession of a minimum value of 30*l*. real or 120*l*. personal property. The Royal Court consists of a tribunal of first instance and an appeal court. The States for deliberation and legislation consist of 12 Jurats, 12 rectors, 12 constables (who are the mayors of the parishes), 17 deputies, and 2 Crown officers. Guernsey, Alderney, and Sark are under one Lieutenant-Governor, but Guernsey and Alderney have a government of their own, and Sark is a dependency of Guernsey and under its jurisdiction. On May 10, 1905, a law was passed for the Island of Guernsey requiring the approval of the Lieut.-Governor and of the Royal Court of the Island previously to the acquisition, or leasing, or occupation of immovable property by aliens or alien companies, registration and liability to local rates, &c., being also provided for. The Channel Islands are not bound by Acts of the Imperial Parliament unless specially named in them.

Births: 1927 :—Jersey, 809; Guernsey, 761; deaths:—Jersey, 733; Guernsey, 572.

Lieutenant-Governor of Jersey.—Major-General the Hon. Sir Francis Bingham, K.C.M.G., K.C.B. Appointed May 25, 1924.

Lieutenant-Governor of Guernsey, &c.—Major-General the Lord Sackville, K.B.E., C.B., C.M.G. Appointed July, 1925.

INDIA, THE DOMINIONS, COLONIES, PROTECTORATES, AND DEPENDENCIES OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

In the following pages the various sections of the British Empire outside Gt. Britain and Northern Ireland are arranged in alphabetical order under the divisions of the world to which they belong:—1. Europe; 2. Asia; 3. Africa; 4. America; 5. Australasia and Oceania.

The term 'Dominion' is used officially as a convenient abbreviation of the complete designation 'self-governing Dominion.' The Dominions are Australia, Canada, Irish Free State, Newfoundland, New Zealand, and South Africa.

The Imperial Conference of 1926 defined the Dominions as 'autonomous Communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or foreign affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown, and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations.' The Conference further laid down that, as a consequence of this equality of status, the Governor-General of a Dominion 'is the representative of the Crown, holding in all essential respects the same position in relation to the administration of public affairs in the Dominion as is held by His Majesty the King in Great Britain,' and that 'it is the right of the Government of each Dominion to advise the Crown in all matters relating to its own affairs.' The Conference also recognised certain treaty-making rights as appertaining to the Dominions.

The term 'Colony' is an abbreviation of the official designation 'Colony not possessing responsible Government,' and includes all such Colonies whether or not they possess an elective Legislature, but does not include Protectorates or Protected States. The term 'Crown Colonies' is properly applicable only to those Colonies in which the Crown retains control of legislation.

Under the recent Peace Treaties certain ex-German and ex-Turkish territories are administered by parts of the British Empire under mandates approved by the League of Nations. These territories include Samoa, New Guinea, Iraq, Palestine, and parts of the former German Colonies in Africa.

Up to July, 1925, all sections of the British Empire outside of Great Britain and Ireland were dealt with by the Colonial Office. In that month a new Secretaryship of State, for Dominion Affairs, was created, and as a result the Dominions Office was set up, to take over from the Colonial Office business connected with the self-governing Dominions, the self-governing Colony of Southern Rhodesia, and the South African territories (Basutoland, Bechuanaland Protectorate, and Swaziland), including business relating to the Imperial Conference.

The Colonial Office now deals with the administrative work of the Colonies, Protectorates, and Mandated Territories other than those for which the Dominions Office is responsible. It contains seven Departments—the West Indian, Far Eastern, Ceylon and Mauritius, East African, Tanganyika and Somaliland, Nigeria, Gold Coast and Mediterranean—dealing with the affairs of various groups of Dependencies; a Middle Eastern Division, which was established in March, 1921, to conduct business relating to Iraq, Palestine, Aden, and Arab areas under British influence; and a General Department, which is concerned with correspondence of a general and miscellaneous character including questions of promotion, postal, telegraph, and copyright matters, international conventions and commercial treaties, Letters Patent and Commissions, etc.

EUROPE.

THE IRISH FREE STATE (SAORSTAT EIREANN).

AN Act was passed in 1920 under which separate Parliaments were set up for "Southern Ireland" (26 counties) and "Northern Ireland" (6 counties). The Ulster Unionists accepted this scheme, and the Northern Parliament was duly elected on May 24, 1921, and opened by the King in person in the following June. The rest of Ireland, however, having proclaimed a Republic in January 1919 refused to work the Act. In December 1921 a treaty was signed with the British Government which was embodied in the Irish Free

State (Agreement) Act, 1922. The Treaty contains the following provisions among others:—

Ireland to have the same constitutional status 'in the community of nations known as the British Empire' as the Self-Governing Dominions, and to be called the Irish Free State.

Its position in relation to the Imperial Parliament and Government to be that of the Dominion of Canada, and the representative of the crown in Ireland to be appointed in like manner as the Governor-General of Canada.

The Irish Free State to undertake its own coastal defence, the defence by sea of Great Britain and Ireland being undertaken by the Imperial forces: these provisions to be reviewed at the expiration of five years. The Free State to afford, in time of 'war or strained relations' with other powers, such harbour and other facilities as the British Government may require. The establishments of the Irish defence force not to exceed such proportion to the British military establishment as the population of Ireland bears to the population of Great Britain.

The ports of Great Britain and of Ireland to be freely open to the ships of 'the other country' on payment of the customary dues.

By the Treaty 'Northern Ireland' was given the option of continuing its separate existence under the Act of 1920, subject to the award of a 'Boundary Commission.' On December 3, 1925, the British Government and the two Irish Governments signed an agreement by the terms of which the partition of 1920 continues in force as determined in that Act, the Boundary Commissions being discharged from the duty of delivering an Award.

By the same agreement the provisions of the Treaty relating to a Council of Ireland and that stipulating the liability of the Irish Free State for a share of the National Debt of the United Kingdom were cancelled.

Constitution.

Under the Treaty a Provisional Government was constituted on January 16, 1922, to carry on for a period of twelve months. In September 1922 the Provisional Parliament met as a Constituent Assembly to adopt a Constitution for the Irish Free State. This was passed on October 25, and duly enacted by the Imperial Parliament on December 4 (see the Irish Free State Constitution Act, 1922 [Session 2], 13 Geo. V. ch. 1). On December 6, 1922, the Constitution came into effect by Royal Proclamation.

The Constitution declares the Irish Free State to be a co-equal member of the Community of Nations forming the British Commonwealth, and that 'all powers of Government, and all authority, legislative, executive, and judicial, in Ireland are derived from the people of Ireland.' Every person domiciled within the area of the Free State on December 6, 1922, who was born in Ireland, or either of whose parents was born in Ireland, or who had been ordinarily resident within the area of the Free State for at least seven years, automatically became a citizen of the new State unless he or she elected not to accept such citizenship. The Irish language is declared to be the national language, but English is equally recognized as an official language. Liberty of person and the dwelling of the citizen are inviolable. There is to be no endowment of any religion. Freedom of religious opinion and the right of association are guaranteed. Elementary education is free.

The Legislature, known as the Oireachtas, consists of the King, a Chamber of Deputies (Dáil Eireann), and a Senate (Seanad Eireann). There must be at least one Session each year. Provision is made for payment of members, Legislative authority in respect of money bills is reserved to the Chamber alone, but the Senate may make recommendations. Every bill (other than a money bill) initiated in and passed by the Chamber of Deputies is sent to the Senate, and if amended there the Chamber shall consider the amendments. An elaborate machinery of procedure is established by the Constitution Act, 1928, to prevent the exercise of a veto by the Senate or a protracted deadlock between the Senate and the Chamber.

The Representative of the Crown signifies the King's assent to bills passed or deemed to have been passed by both Houses of the Oireachtas. He cannot signify or withhold such assent, or reserve a bill for the signification of the King's pleasure save upon the advice of the Executive Council.

Two articles, namely Articles 47 and 48, containing respectively provisions relating to a Referendum of the people and the initiation of proposals for legislation by the people have been removed from the Constitution.

Amendments of the Constitution may be made within eight years from the date of the coming into operation of the Constitution by ordinary legislation passed for the purpose. An extension of that time is at present under consideration by the Oireachtas.

All members of the Oireachtas must take the prescribed oath of allegiance to the Constitution.

Citizens of 21 years of age or over, without distinction of sex, who comply with the prevailing electoral laws, can vote for members of Dáil Eireann; each voter has only one vote, and voting is by secret ballot.

Every citizen of 21 years of age or over, not otherwise disqualified, is eligible for election to Dáil Eireann. Election is upon principles of Proportional Representation. The number of Deputies is fixed on a popular basis, and is at present 153. Each of the Universities existing in the year 1922 (the year in which the Constitution was enacted) is entitled to elect three Deputies. The General Election is to be held on the same day throughout the country, and Dáil Eireann, unless the Oireachtas is sooner dissolved, continues for "six years or such shorter period as may be fixed by legislation."

The Senate consists of 60 members. The first Senate consisted of 30 members elected by Dáil Eireann, and 30 nominated by the President of the Executive Council. Of the latter, 15 hold office for 12 years and 15 hold office for 6 years. In 1924 an election was held to elect 19 members in accordance with Articles 32 and 34 of the Constitution.

Considerable changes were made in the year 1928 in the Articles of the Constitution relating to election to and membership of the Senate. To be eligible for membership a citizen must be at least 30 years of age and eligible for election to Dáil Eireann. The members must be citizens who 'have done honour to the nation by reason of useful public service' or who represent important aspects of the nation's life. The term of office of a member of Seanad Eireann is normally nine years. One-third of the members retire every three years, and their places are filled by an election 'at which the electors are the members of Dáil Eireann and the members of Seanad Eireann voting together on principles of proportional representation.' A panel of candidates is prepared before each election in the manner prescribed by law.

A person may not be a member of both Houses.

The executive consists of a Council of not more than twelve nor less than five ministers. They must be members of the Dáil and responsible to it, and must include the President and Vice-President of the Council, and the Minister for Finance. The President is nominated by the Dáil. He nominates the Vice-President and other members of the Council, but the latter must be approved by the Dáil. Every minister may speak in the Senate.

The Chairman of the Dáil receives a salary of 1,700*l.* a year; the Deputy-Chairman 1,000*l.*; members, except ministers and officials, 80*l.* a month, and free first-class railway facilities between Dublin and their constituencies. Ministers receive a salary of 1,700*l.* a year, and the President a salary of 2,500*l.* a year.

The representative of the King is the Governor-General of the Irish Free State (Saorstát Éireann).

The Free State Parliament met for the first time, as such, on December 6, 1922. General Elections took place subsequently in August 1923, June 1927, and September 1927. The state of the parties in October 1927 was: Cumann na nGaedhael (Government), 61; Feanna Fáil, 57; Labour, 13; Farmers, 6; Independent, 18; National League, 2; Total, 152. The Ceann Comhairle (Speaker) is not required by law to vacate his seat at a General Election.

The Executive Council is as follows (October 1927):—

President.—Liam T. MacCosgair (William T. Cosgrave).

Vice-President, Minister for Finance and Minister for Posts and Telegraphs.—Eamán de Blaghd (Ernest Blythe).

Minister for Defence.—Deasmhumhan MacGearailt (Desmond Fitzgerald).

Minister for Industry and Commerce and Minister for External Affairs.—Pádraig MacGiollaigáin (Patrick McGilligan).

Minister for Education.—Sean O'Suilleabhain (J. Marcus O'Sullivan).

Minister for Agriculture.—Pádraig O hOgain (Patrick Hogan).

Minister for Local Government and Public Health.—Risteard Ua Maolchatha (Richard Mulcahy).

Minister for Lands and Fisheries.—Fionán O Loinsigh (Finian Lynch).

The usual channel of communication with the British Government is the Dominions Office and the Department of External Affairs.

Local Government.

The Irish Free State is divided into 27 administrative Counties and 4 County Boroughs, and for each of these areas a Council is elected triennially by the Local Government electors. Each County Borough is an administrative County of itself. The area of the counties and the number of members vary considerably, e.g. Carlow County 221,485 statute acres and 26 members, and Cork County 1,841,085 statute acres and 68 members. The smaller area of the Rural District in the County ceased to be an administrative unit after the passing of the Local Government Act, 1925.

By this Act also a new classification of roads is introduced, and they will be distinguished in future as 'main,' 'county,' and 'urban' roads. Main roads will be declared by the Central Authority, and will be under the direct control of the County Councils, charges for construction, repair, and maintenance being spread equally over the whole county. County roads are roads in rural portions which are not main roads, and urban roads are roads in urban areas not main roads. This classification of roads, together with the power to prescribe the standard and quality of materials to be used in road construction, and to fix the plans for and types of road signs, is to be the basis for a system of uniformly good roads throughout the Free State.

County Boards of Health have been elected consisting of 10 persons, all members of the respective County Councils. The method of election provides for the representation of each area and particular interest. These provisions do not, however, apply to Dublin County, in which Rural Councils continue to function as heretofore. The question of the future government of Dublin County and City has been the subject of investigation by a Commission.

Towns under Municipal Government include 4 County Boroughs, 5 Boroughs and 62 Urban Districts. The cities of Dublin, Cork, Limerick and Waterford are County Boroughs. Borough Councils and Urban District Councils are the local authorities for the purposes of the Public Health, Local Government and Housing Acts, and assess and levy rates. In a few small towns the local affairs are administered by a body of Commissioners appointed under the Towns Improvement Act, 1854, who have powers to discharge certain functions and levy a limited rate to defray the cost of administration.

The relief of the poor and destitute has until recently been administered by Boards of Guardians. It was commonly known as the Workhouse System and dated back to the year 1838. Workhouses have now been abolished, and a county system of administration is being established with the control vested in the County Councils and Committees thereof. Instead of a Workhouse in each Poor Law Union there will be provided in each County a Home for the aged and infirm poor, and, where necessary, hospitals properly equipped and in charge of a capable surgeon.

Elections to public bodies are held according to the principle of proportional representation. The franchise extends practically to all persons of either sex who are of full age and have during a qualifying period occupied as owners or tenants any land or premises in the area, except premises let as furnished lodgings. Any married woman of 30 years or over residing with her husband in premises in respect of which the husband is entitled to be registered as a local government elector is also qualified for the franchise. Women are eligible for election as members of all local government bodies in the same manner and on the same conditions as men.

Area and Population.

According to the census of population in the Irish Free State, taken in April, 1926, the following are the figures of area and population:—

Education.—Elementary Education.—Elementary Education is free and is given in the National Schools, which are under local managers, but are subject to the control of the Department of Education.

Since the establishment of the Saorstát the Irish language has been included as an essential part of the curriculum for all National Schools, and special courses in Irish have been held each year. Approximately 7,000 teachers have already qualified to teach the language. The use of Irish as a medium of instruction in the schools has also largely increased.

The latest statistics available show that the number of schools in operation is 5,648, affording accommodation for 550,000 pupils. The number of pupils enrolled in the schools is 518,002; the percentage average daily attendance is 77; the number of teachers of all classes is approximately 13,257.

There are five State-sided Training Colleges. The number of qualified teachers issuing from the Colleges each year is approximately 360.

The estimated State expenditure on Elementary Education for the year 1928–29 is 3,611,168*l.*, excluding the cost of administration.

Secondary Education.—The Secondary or Intermediate Schools are under private control and are conducted in many cases by Religious Orders; all schools receiving grants from the State are open to inspection by inspectors of the Education Department. The number of recognised Secondary Schools during the school year 1926–27 was 285, and the number of pupils between the ages of 12 and 20 years in attendance was 24,766. A new scheme of Secondary Education was introduced at the beginning of the school year 1924–25, under which the schools are allowed considerable freedom in drawing up their programmes, and the grants paid to the schools are reckoned on a capitation basis. Estimated total expenditure for 1928–29, 276,400*l.*, excluding the cost of administration.

Technical Education.—Technical Schools are established in all the cities and in the principal towns. These schools are controlled by the local authorities, and are maintained partly by the rates and partly by State Grants. Estimated total expenditure for Technical Education for 1927–28 is 197,300*l.* (taxes) and 60,000*l.* (rates).

University Education is given at the University of Dublin (Trinity College), founded in 1591, and at the National University of Ireland, founded in Dublin in 1909. The latter has three constituent colleges, namely, the University Colleges of Cork, Galway, and Dublin. The numbers of professors, &c., and students, in 1927–8, were as follows:—

Justice.

Justice is administered by Courts set up by the Courts of Justice Act, 1924, pursuant to the Constitution. They consist of a Supreme Court, a High Court, a Court of Criminal Appeal, a Central Criminal Court, a Circuit Court and a District Court.

The Supreme Court, which consists of the Chief Justice (who is ex-officio an additional Judge of the High Court) and two other Judges, has appellate jurisdiction from all decisions of the High Court. The High Court, which consists of a President (who is ex-officio an additional Judge of the Supreme Court of Appeal) and five ordinary Judges, has full original jurisdiction in and power to determine all matters and questions, whether of law or fact, civil or criminal. In all cases in which questions arise touching the validity of any law having regard to the provisions of the Constitution, the High Court alone exercises original jurisdiction. The Court of Criminal Appeal consists of the Chief Justice or some other Judge of the Supreme Court and two ordinary Judges of the High Court. It deals with appeals by persons convicted on indictment where the appellant obtains a certificate from the trial Judge that the case is a fit one for appeal, or, in case such certificate is refused, where the Court itself, on appeal from such refusal, grants leave. Where leave to appeal is granted, the appeal is heard and determined by the Court of Criminal Appeal on the report of the official stenographer present at the trial, with power to the Court to hear further evidence or to refer any matter back for report by the trial Judge. The decisions of the Court of Criminal Appeal are final, unless that Court or the Attorney-General certifies that the decision involves a point of law of exceptional public importance, and that it is desirable that an appeal should be taken to the Supreme Court of Appeal. The Central Criminal Court consists of a Judge of the High Court, to whom is assigned, for the time being, the duty of acting as such Court. It is held at such times and in such places as the President of the High Court may direct, and at it are tried criminal cases which are outside the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court or which may be sent forward to it for trial from the Circuit Court.

The Saorstát is divided into eight Circuits, each of which is presided over by a Judge of the Circuit Court. The jurisdiction of this Court in civil proceedings is limited as to amount, save by consent of the parties, in which event the jurisdiction is unlimited. In criminal matters, it has jurisdiction in all cases save murder, attempt to murder, conspiracy to murder, high treason, treason felony, treasonable conspiracy or piracy.

The District Court consists of thirty-three Justices of the District Court. Three of such Justices are assigned to the Dublin Metropolitan area; the remainder of the country is divided into thirty districts, to each of which a Justice of the District Court is assigned. The District Court is a Court of summary jurisdiction with a small civil jurisdiction—in contract cases up to 25*l.*, and in cases of tort, with certain exceptions, up to 10*l.*

All Judges and Justices of the District Court are appointed by the Governor-General on the advice of the Executive Council.

Defence.

Article 46 of the Constitution of the Irish Free State lays it down that the Oireachtas has the exclusive right to regulate the raising and maintaining of the armed forces in the Irish Free State and the Oireachtas possesses control of every such force. The Executive Council is authorised by the Defence Forces (Temporary Provisions) Acts, 1923 to 1927, to raise, train, equip, arm, pay and maintain an armed force consisting of such number of officers and men as may from time to time be provided by the Oireachtas.

The command in chief of, and all executive and administrative powers in relation to, the forces is by the Acts mentioned vested in the Executive Council and exercised through and in the name of the Minister for Defence. A Council of Defence is constituted by the 'Ministers and Secretaries Act, 1924' to assist the Minister for Defence in the administration of the business of his Department. It consists of the Minister (Chairman), a Civil Member (a member of Dáil Éireann), and three military members, being the Chief of Staff, the Adjutant-General and the Quartermaster-General.

Enlistment is voluntary in a maximum period of 12 years. Recruits must be eighteen years of age. The normal term of service is for infantry 1 to 3 years in the active army and 6 years in the reserve; for other corps 5 years in the active army and 7 in the reserve.

The Irish Free State is divided into four military districts: the Western Command; the Southern Command; the Eastern Command and the Curragh training camp. Infantry battalions, of which there are fourteen, are grouped to form brigades, of which there are six. The remaining services are Air, Artillery, Armoured Car, Engineer, Signal, Military Police, Medical and Transport Corps, a School of Music, and a Military College.

The strength provided for (1928-29) is 809 commissioned officers and 9,513 non-commissioned officers and men. The Reserve consists of officers of the Forces who have retired therefrom and non-commissioned officers and men who, having served in the Forces, have been transferred to the Reserve. Reservists may be called out for training for a period not exceeding 30 days in any year.

Coastal Defence.—In accordance with the Treaty between Great Britain and Ireland, the defence by sea of Great Britain and Ireland is undertaken by Imperial Forces. The question of Ireland undertaking a share of her own coastal defence is to be the subject of a Conference.

The estimated total expenditure for the financial year ending March, 1929, is 1,836,884*l*.

Production.

Fisheries.—The fishing industry represents a considerable factor in the national economy. Up to the present, however, most of the fishing has not been done on modern commercial principles; all classes of craft, from the steam trawler to the primitive curragh, being utilised.

The numbers of vessels, men, and boys engaged in fishing in the year 1927 were: 12 steam, 318 motor, 1,098 sail, and 2,337 row boats; total 3,765 vessels; men and boys, 13,137.

The quantities and values of fish landed during 1927 were: demersal fish, 95,997 cwts., value 144,168*l.*; pelagic fish, 540,078 cwts., value 236,653*l.*; shell fish, value 68,943*l.*

The inland fisheries are a very important national asset, providing some of the finest salmon and trout fishing in the world. There are also lakes of a total area of some 400 square miles containing considerable quantities of coarse fish available for capture. Precise figures as to the quantity and value of salmon captured are not available, but they may be stated as being not less than 2,000 tons and 600,000*l.* respectively.

Commerce.

Less than a quarter of the value of the goods imported into the Irish Free State are dutiable goods. These include sugar and articles containing sugar, tobacco, beer, wine and spirits, motor cars and motor cycles and parts, musical instruments and parts, boots and shoes, matches, soap, candles, empty coloured glass bottles and jars, apparel, blankets, furniture of wood, domestic woodware and bedsteads, oatmeal, wireless sets and parts.

MALTA.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—General Sir John Du Cane, G.C.B.; appointed March 16, 1927.

Lieut.-Governor.—Sir Thomas Alexander Vans Best, K.B.E., C.M.G.

Malta was held in turn by Phœnicians, Greeks, Carthaginians and Romans, and was conquered by Arabs in 870. From 1090 it was joined to Sicily until 1530, when it was handed over to the Knights of St. John, who ruled until dispersed by Napoleon in 1798. The Maltese rose in rebellion against the French and the Island was subsequently blockaded by the British Fleet, aided by the Maltese, from 1798 to 1800, and with the free will of the Maltese was finally annexed to the British Crown by the Treaty of Paris in 1814. It is one of the most important ports of call in the world, and is the base and resort for repair and refitment of the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

Constitution—Under the Malta Constitution Letters Patent, 1921, there is an elected Legislature to control local affairs, consisting of a Senate (partly nominated) of 17 members, and a Legislative Assembly of 32 elected members. Elections are on a proportional representation basis. There is a responsible ministry, as follows:

Head of the Ministry and Minister for Police and Posts.—The Lord Strickland of Sizergh, G.C.M.G., LL.B., M.L.A., Count della Catena.

Minister for Public Health.—Prof. Robert V. Galea, L.S.A., M.L.A.

Minister for Public Instruction.—Prof. A. Bartolo, LL.D., B.Lit., F.R.Hist.S.

Minister for Justice.—Prof. Alfred Parnis, O.B.E., LL.D., M.L.A.

Minister for Industry and Commerce.—Walter Salomone, M.L.A.

Minister for Public Works.—Edwin P. Vassallo, L.S.A., M.L.A.

Minister for the Treasury.—Col. A. Samut, C.B., C.M.G., F.R.G.S.

Certain 'reserved' matters, including control of naval, military and air forces, Imperial interests, external trade, coinage, immigration, treaties, and relations with foreign States, are dealt with by the Governor, who is assisted by two Councils—an Executive Council consisting of such ministers as he selects, and a 'Nominated Council,' consisting of the Lieutenant-Governor, a Legal Adviser, and three officers of the navy, army, and air force.

The English language, as the official language of the British Empire, and the Italian language, as the established language of record of the Courts of Law, are the official languages of Malta. The English language is the official language of administration, and all official records and public documents and all notices of general public importance or interest issued by the Malta Government are in that language, without prejudice, however, to the use of Italian as a second official language of administration accompanying the British text in such records, documents and notices in so far as may be found desirable and convenient. Both languages are recognised as equal languages of culture in the University, in Secondary Schools and in the higher classes of Elementary Schools, as subjects of study.

Area and Population.—Malta is 17·4 miles long; area, 95 square miles; and the neighbouring island, Gozo, 26 square miles; total area (with Comino), 122 square miles. ## ASIA.

ADEN, PERIM, SOKOTRA, AND KURIA MURIA ISLANDS

ADEN is a volcanic peninsula on the Arabian coast, about 100 miles east of Bab-el-Mandeb. It forms an important coaling-station on the highway to the East, and is fortified. The settlement includes Little Aden, a peninsula very similar to Aden itself, and the settlement and town of Shaikh Othmán on the mainland, with the villages of Imad and Hiswa.

In April, 1905, after demarcation of the frontier, Ottoman and British Commissioners signed an agreement which determines the boundary of the hinterland from Sheikh Murad on the Red Sea to Bana river, and thence north-east to the great Desert. By the Anglo-Turkish Convention of 1914, the boundary was prolonged through the desert to a point on the coast opposite Bahrein in the Persian Gulf. The territories of the Imam of San'a now march with the border-line demarcated by a Mixed Commission (Anglo-Turkish) in 1902-4. The Settlement also includes the island of Perim at the entrance to the Red Sea, and is subject to the Bombay Government. The Government is administered by a Resident and Commander-in-Chief with four assistants. The departments of the Aden Settlement (Municipal) and the Port Trust are supervised by an officer of the P.W. Department, Bombay. The India Office exercises internal administrative control (through the Government of India); the Colonial Office (Middle East Department) is responsible for political questions, and the Air Ministry in London for military questions.

Resident and Commander-in-Chief.—Lieut.-Colonel Sir Stewart Symes, K.B.E., C.M.G., D.S.O.

Area 75 square miles; including the Protectorate, about 9,000 square miles; of Perim, 5 square miles. Population of Aden and Perim in 1921, 54,923 (36,878 males and 18,045 females), against 46,165 in 1911.

The only Government revenue is from duties on liquor, opium, and salt, and from income tax, court fees and judicial fines; local taxes go to the Aden Settlement Fund. There is a Port Trust. The gross revenue of the settlement in 1927-28 was Rs. 7,42,625. Imports (1927-28), by sea, Rs. 8,11,83,758; by land, Rs. 33,77,641; treasure (sea and land), Rs. 1,29,77,592; total imports, Rs. 9,75,88,991 (total, 1926-27, Rs. 8,80,60,903). Chief imports: Cotton piece goods, grain, hides and skins, tobacco, coal, coffee, sugar, fruits, vegetables, and other provisions. Exports, by sea, Rs. 6,37,76,273; by land, Rs. 30,39,194; treasure (sea and land), Rs. 1,37,92,934; total exports, Rs. 8,06,08,401 (total, 1926-27, Rs. 6,95,40,118). Chief exports: Coffee, gums, hides and skins, cotton goods, tobacco, grain and pulse, provisions and sugar. These statistics are exclusive of government stores and treasure. In 1927-28, 1,575 merchant vessels of 5,707,205 tons (net) entered the port of Aden, of which 845 were British; in the same year 1,034 country (local) craft of 36,916 tons entered. At Perim 638 vessels entered, of which 64 were Government vessels. Aden itself produces little, its chief industries being the manufacture of salt and cigarettes. The trade is largely a transshipment one, and is divided into foreign, Indian, and inland. There is a branch of the National Bank of India, Limited, and there is also one firm of private bankers.

A railway was constructed in the Great War for military purposes from Aden to Lahej, 26 miles, and has since been extended to Habil, 8 miles beyond Lahej. The gauge is one metre.

The island of Sokotra (Hadibu alias Taharida) off the coast of Africa is under British protection, and the Kuria Muria islands, off the coast of Arabia, are attached to Aden. Area of former, 1,382 square miles. Population about 12,000, mostly pastoral and migratory inland, fishing on the coast. Religion, at one time Christian, Mohammedan since the end of the 17th century. The island came under British protection in 1876, by treaty with the Sultan. Chief products, dates and various gums; sheep, cattle, and goats are plentiful; butter is exported. The Kuria Muria Islands, five in number, were ceded by the Sultan of Muskat for the purpose of landing the Red Sea cable.

BAHRAIN ISLANDS.

The Bahrain islands form an archipelago in the Persian Gulf 20 miles off al Hasa on the Arabian coast. Bahrain, the largest island, is 27 miles long and 10 miles wide. About a twentieth part of its area is cultivated. Other islands are Maharaq, to the north-east of Bahrain, 4 miles long and  $\frac{1}{2}$  mile wide; Sitra, to the east, 3 miles long and 1 mile wide; Nebi Saleh, about 2 miles in circumference, and several uninhabited islets. The islands are low lying, the highest ground being a hill in the centre of Bahrain 400 feet high.

The Ruling Family, the Al Khalifa, came originally from the neighbourhood of Kuwait and occupied Bahrain, which was then in the hands of the Persians, in 1782. The present chief, Sir Isa bin Ali al Khalifa, K.C.I.E., C.S.I., became the Ruling Shaikh in 1869. In 1923, owing to his advanced age, he handed over the active conduct of affairs to his eldest son and heir-apparent, Shaikh Hamad bin Isa al Khalifa. The Ruler is in treaty relations with the Government of India, who are represented by a Political Agent.

The total population is estimated at about 100,000, of which three-quarters are the original inhabitants of the islands, of the Shia sect, the remainder, including the Ruling Family, being Sunnis. The Sunnis live mainly in the towns of Manama and Maharaq. There is a wealthy Persian community in Manama and a number of Indian merchants.

Manama, the capital and commercial centre, extends for  $1\frac{1}{2}$  miles along the shore. There are stone wharves and a pier, but at low tide the pier can only be reached in a light skiff. Manama contains two hospitals, schools, a branch of the Eastern Bank, Post Office, wireless station, and the official residence of the Ruler. Wide roads connect the various quarters of the town. There is a municipal council in Manama and also in the town of Maharaq, on the adjacent island. The two islands are connected by a service of motor launches, which also ply to the mainland. The population of Manama is about 25,000 and that of Maharaq is about the same. There is a community of some 20 Europeans in Manama, including members of the Dutch Reformed Church Mission. Water in the two towns is supplied by artesian wells and nearly 200 fresh-water springs on the various islands are used for irrigation. Motor traffic is in use and roads exist between the towns and villages, which number about 100.

In the centre of Bahrain island there are many thousands of ancient tumuli whose origin is still uncertain.

Bahrain is the centre of the famous pearl fishing industry of the Persian Gulf. Over 500 boats and 15,000 divers from Bahrain are engaged in fishing during four months of the summer. During the season Bahrain is visited by numerous arab and continental pearl buyers from Europe. Other industries are: boat-building, manufacture of sailcloth and reed mats, date cultivation and breeding of particularly fine white donkeys.

The greater part of the trade of Nejd and Hassa passes through Bahrain. The revenue of the State is obtained from the 5 per cent. ad valorem Customs Duty.

In 1927, the total imports amounted to Rs. 132,27,060; and exports to Rs. 83,58,825. The chief imports were: rice, Rs. 50,77,240; wheat, Rs. 3,51,710; wheat flour, Rs. 4,24,980; sugar, Rs. 14,15,910; loaf sugar, Rs. 7,33,980; coffee, Rs. 14,91,070; piecegoods, Rs. 29,89,330; tea, Rs. 3,13,650; ghee, Rs. 4,29,190. The chief exports were: rice, Rs. 22,32,885; wheat, Rs. 1,80,270; wheat flour, Rs. 100,720; sugar, Rs. 7,73,200; loaf sugar, Rs. 579,430; coffee, Rs. 4,27,730; piecegoods, Rs. 16,76,340; tea, 2,70,550; ghee, Rs. 58,400; pearls, Rs. 20,59,300.

There is a weekly mail service from India and a bi-weekly service to India. Import of arms and ammunition is subject to special permission.

The principal coins in use are Indian rupees, but Austrian (Maria Theresa) dollars (worth 1s. 11d.) and Turkish liras (worth about 18s.) are current. The measures employed are: dhara (= 19 inches). The weights are: roba (4 lbs.); maund (56 lbs.) and ruffa (560 lbs.).

BORNEO (BRITISH).

British North Borneo.—Governor.—J. L. Humphreys, C.M.G., C.B.E.

British North Borneo occupies the northern part of the island of Borneo. The interior is mountainous, Mount Kinabalu being 13,455 feet high.

Area, about 31,106 square miles, with a coast-line of over 900 miles. Population (1921 census) 257,804, consisting mainly of Mohammedan settlers on the coast and aboriginal tribes inland. The Europeans numbered 533; Eurasians, 213; Chinese, 37,856; Malays, 20,263. The number of natives was 197,058. The most numerous are the Dusuns, 112,287; the Muruts, 37,447; and the Bajaus, 33,070. Chief towns, Sandakan (population 11,936), on the east coast, and Jesselton, on the west coast.

The territory is under the jurisdiction of the British North Borneo

Company, being held under grants from the Sultans of Brunei and Sulu (Royal Charter in 1881). It is administered by a Governor (appointed with the approval of the Secretary of State) in Borneo, and a Court of Directors in London, appointed under the Charter. On May 12, 1888, the British Government proclaimed a formal protectorate over the State of North Borneo. In 1898 certain border lands were acquired from the Sultan of Brunei, and more recently certain inland territories have been occupied. For administrative purposes the whole country is divided into five Residencies, which are sub-divided into Districts. In December 1904, an area of about 200 square miles was transferred to Sarawak in exchange for rights over coal mines on Brunei Bay.

There are Protestant and Catholic missions. The laws are based on the Indian Penal, Criminal, and Civil Procedure Codes, and local Ordinances. There is an Imam's Court for Mohammedan law. Native and Indian constabulary, 800 men under European officers.

A railway, 127 miles, runs from Jesselton on Gaya Bay to Melalap in the interior, with a branch from Beaufort to Weston on Brunei Bay. There is communication by telegraphy, telephone, and wireless telegraphy.

At Jesselton and Sandakan there are agencies of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China, and the Bank of Taiwan. A State Bank has been established, with Head Office in Sandakan and a branch at Jesselton.

The Government issues its own copper coinage (cents and half-cents); nickel coinage of 1, 2½ and 5 cents; also notes of one, five, ten, and twenty-five dollars, and of 25 and 50 cents. Accounts are kept in dollar currency.

Brunei.—In 1888 the neighbouring territories on the north-west coast of Borneo, Brunei and Sarawak, were placed under British protection. On January 2, 1906, by treaty, the Sultan of Brunei handed over the general administration of his State to a British Resident. The present Sultan Ahmed Tajudin Akhazul Khairi Wad-din is a minor, and succeeded to the throne on the death of his father in September 1924. The Pengiran Bendahara and Pengiran Pemancha were appointed Joint Regents during his minority. The Sultan receives an allowance of 1,400*l.* a year from State funds, and his two principal ministers 700*l.* a year each. Area about 2,500 square miles, and population, 1921 Census, 25,454 (Europeans, 35; Malays and Bornean races, 23,938; Chinese, 1,434; Indians, 37, others 10). The chief town is Brunei (pop. 12,000). The old town is built over the water on the Brunei river, and a new town has developed on the mainland since 1910. There were five vernacular schools in 1927, with 183 pupils. Police force, 1927, 1 Chief Inspector, and 59 non-commissioned officers and men. The climate is hot and moist, with cool nights. Average annual rainfall is a little over 100 inches. The native industries in Brunei town include boat building, cloth weaving, brass foundries, and manufacture of silver ware. The principal products are cutch (mangrove extract), rubber, jelutong, and sago. Most of the interior is under jungle, comprising numerous kinds of serviceable timber. There is abundant evidence of oil, but it has not yet been found in payable quantities. There are vernacular schools at Brunei, and in some out-districts.

British Resident.—P. A. B. McKerron.

Sarawak.—Area about 50,000 square miles, coast line 450 miles, many rivers navigable. The government of part of the present territory was obtained in 1842 by Sir James Brooke from the Sultan of Brunei. Various accessions were made between 1861 and 1905. Under an agreement of 1888 Sarawak is recognised as an independent State under the protection of Great Britain. The present Rajah, H. H. Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, G.C.M.G. appointed May 17, 1917. Population estimated at about 600,000, Malays, Dyaks, Kayans, Kenyahs, and Muruts, with Chinese and other settlers. The chief towns are the capital, Kuching, about 23 miles inland, on the Sarawak River, Sibu, 60 miles up the Rejang River, which is navigable by large steamers, and Miri, the headquarters of the Sarawak Oilfields, Ltd. At Kuching are Church of England and Catholic missions with schools. The revenue is derived chiefly from Customs, the Govt. opium monopoly, gambling, arrack and pawn farms, royalty on oil, land revenue, timber royalty, exemption tax payable by Malays, and from Dyak and Kayan revenue. The revenue in 1927 was 6,243,065 dollars; expenditure, 5,764,318 dollars. Public debt, nil. Coal exists in large quantities, and a syndicate has been formed for developing the coal fields at Selantik. A considerable oil field is being developed at Miri and Bakong in the Baram district. Foreign trade, 1927: imports, 25,664,546 dollars; exports, 49,786,143 dollars. The chief exports (1927) included (in dollars) sago flour, 1,543,673; pepper, 1,465,141; plantation rubber, 15,499,432; gutta-jelutong, 1,563,758; gutta-percha, 23,732; cutch, 111,321; benzine, 16,712,282; kerosene, 4,072,574; liquid oil fuel, 3,696,542; crude oil, 2,835,368; fish, 324,354; damar, 172,144; rattans, 118,716. The trade is mostly with Singapore. Shipping entered and cleared in the foreign trade, 1927, 1,471,828 tons. There are military and police forces, consisting of about 700 men, principally Dyaks and Malays, under British army officers. Round Kuching are about 45 miles of roads, besides bridle paths. There are 34 post offices. The Government offices have a telephone system extending over Kuching and Upper Sarawak, and there is communication by wireless with Singapore, &c. There are also wireless stations at Kuching, Kuching (6th mile), Miri, Sibn, Sadong, Lundu, Mukah, Simang-gang, Bintulu, Binatang, Kapit, Selalang, Limbang, Baram, Saratok, Matu, Belangian, Tatau, Lawas and Rejang. Distance from London, 8,700 miles; transit, not less than 30 days, generally more. Telegrams are sent by wireless from Singapore.

CEYLON.

Constitution and Government, &c.

Ceylon, the ancient Taprobane (Tamraparni, the island of "dusky leaves"), is an island in the Indian Ocean, by the south of India, lying between 5° 55' and 9° 50' N. lat., and 79° 42' and 81° 53' E. long. Its area is 25,332 square miles.

In 1505 the Portuguese formed settlements on the west and south, which were taken from them about the middle of the next century by the Dutch. In 1796 the British Government annexed the foreign settlements to the Presidency of Madras; in 1802 Ceylon was separated from India and formed into a Crown colony.

According to the terms of the Constitution established in 1833, modified on various occasions, and now embodied in the Order in Council dated 19 December, 1923, and the Amendment Order in Council dated March 21, 1924, the administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council of nine members—viz., the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Controller of Revenue, the Colonial Treasurer, one official and four unofficial members nominated by the Governor, and a Legislative Council of 49 members (12 official and 37 unofficial) exclusive of the Governor. Of the unofficial members, 23 are elected to represent territorial divisions, 2 to represent the Europeans, 2 the Burgher Community, 1 the Chamber of Commerce, 1 the Western Province Tamils, 3 the Muslims, 2 the Indians. The remaining 3 are nominated by the Governor to represent Special Interests.

Governor.—Sir Herbert James Stanley, K.C.M.G. (1927). Salary 7,000*l.* (including entertainment allowance of 1,500*l.*).

For purposes of general administration, the island is divided into nine provinces, presided over by Government Agents, with assistants and subordinate head men. There are three municipalities, with eight Urban District Councils and fourteen local boards, mainly for sanitary purposes.

Area and Population.

The population of Ceylon (exclusive of the military and the shipping) at the Census held on March 18, 1921, showed an increase of 9·6 per cent. since 1911. The distribution by Provinces, and the average number of persons per square mile in each Province, are shown in the following table:—

Provinces	Area: English sq. miles	Population, 1921		Provinces	Area: English sq. miles	Population, 1921
		Total	Per sq. mile			Total	Per sq. mile

The estimated population on December 31, 1927, was 5,288,792.

The race distribution of the population at the census of 1921 and the increase per cent. since 1911 were as follows:—

Races	Population, 1921, exclusive of military shipping and miscellaneous	Increase per cent. since 1911	Military, shipping, and miscellaneous Population
Europeans . . . . .	8,099	6·7	838

	4,497,854	9·6	6,695

Of the population (exclusive of the military and the shipping) enumerated at the census of 1921, the occupation of 2,803,056 or 62.3 per cent. (of whom 1,347,415 were earners and 1,455,641 dependants) was returned as agriculture; 533,400 or 11.9 per cent. (288,697 earners, 244,703 dependants) industrial occupation; 345,824 or 7.7 per cent. (162,376 earners, 183,448 dependants) trade.

The population on the principal estates, mainly consisting of immigrant Tamils from Southern India, numbered, at the census of 1921, 568,850, and formed 12.6 per cent. of the total population. The Indian Tamils on Estates numbered 493,944.

Marriages registered, 1927, 30,566<sup>1</sup>; births registered, 205,470 (104,951 males and 100,519 females); deaths registered, 113,007 (56,784 males and 56,223 females).

The urban population is 12.9 per cent. of the total population. The principal towns and their population (exclusive of the military, shipping, and estates), according to the census of 1921, are:—Colombo, 244,163; Galle, 39,073; Jaffna, 42,436; Kandy, 32,562.

Religion and Education.

At the census of 1921 the numbers of adherents to the principal religions were:—Buddhists, 2,769,805; Hindus, 982,073; Muslims, 302,532; Christians, 443,400, exclusive of the military and the shipping.

Buddhism was introduced from India in the third century B.C., and is still the religion of the majority of the inhabitants, especially in the southern part of the island. It is (unlike Buddhism in Tibet, China, and Japan) materialistic and atheistic, and in popular usage has a large admixture of the doctrines and practices of popular Hinduism and of the aboriginal wild tribes.

Education is free in vernacular schools, but fees are charged in English schools.

The number of vernacular schools in 1927 was: Government schools, 1,130 (attendance, 114,856 boys and 57,892 girls); Aided schools, 1,876 (attendance, 137,863 boys and 90,775 girls); Unaided schools, 416 (attendance, 12,207 boys and 6,325 girls). There were also 423 English and Anglo-vernacular schools, attended by 63,539 boys and 17,783 girls.

The total sum spent by Government on vernacular education in 1926-27 was 3,777,715 rupees.

The Royal College and the Government Training College with the English school attached to it are Government institutions. The other English schools are grant-in-aid schools; the total grants to which in 1926-27 amounted to 1,456,491 rupees. A University College opened in January, 1921, has (1927-28) 279 students on the roll. Technical education is given in the 'Technical Schools' (489 students in 1926). There are 88 industrial schools.

Justice, Crime, and Pauperism.

The law is Roman-Dutch, modified by colonial ordinances. Kandyan Law is to a certain extent in force in the Kandyan Provinces, and special systems of personal law are recognised for the Muslim community, and for the Tamils of the Jaffna District. The criminal law has been codified on the principle of the Indian Penal Code. There are a Supreme Court, police courts and courts of requests, and district courts, intermediate between the latter and the Supreme Court. Village councils deal with petty offences. In 1927 the number of cases instituted in the police courts and municipal magistrates' courts was 112,662. Offences against the Penal Code dealt with during the year 1927 numbered 16,044; of these, the number disposed of by the courts as true cases was 11,658, and the convictions 5,085; 8,215 convicted persons were sent to prison. Police force, December 31, 1927, 3,111 of all ranks.

There is no poor law, though a few old persons receive a charitable allowance from the Government varying from Rs. 1 to Rs. 12.50 each per mensem.

Finance.

The principal sources of revenue in 1926-27: Customs, 3,387,397l.; port, harbour, wharf, warehouse, and other dues, 383,873l.; arrack, rum and toddy licences, 855,380l.; stamp duties, 593,716l.; Government railway receipts, 1,859,296l.; and land sales, 119,785l.

The principal items of expenditure in 1926-27: Military expenditure, 185,914l.; pensions and retired allowances, 343,900l.; interest and sinking fund on loans, 826,994l.; post and telegraph, 463,280l.; railway department, 1,303,008l.; department of medical and sanitary services, 607,164l.; education, 537,012l.; on public works (annually recurrent), 570,143l.; railway department (extraordinary works), 262,226l.

The net public debt on September 30, 1927, incurred entirely for public works, was 12,657,393l. 8s. 4d. sterling and 3,000,000 rupees. There were accumulated sinking funds for their redemption amounting to 3,628,543l. 10s. 9d. and Rs. 1,788,414.22 respectively.

Defence.

In normal times Ceylon pays three-fourths of the cost of the Imperial garrison. At present the defence of the Colony is almost entirely in the hands of local troops.

Production and Industry.

The area of the colony is 16,212,400 acres, of which it is estimated that about 3,000,000 acres are under cultivation, and about 456,000 acres pasture land. The approximate areas under the principal products in 1927 were: paddy, 834,000 acres; other grain, 102,000 acres; cacao, 34,000 acres; cinnamon, 25,000 acres; tea, 450,000 acres; coconuts, 887,000 acres; rubber, 490,000 acres. In 1927, the exports of tea were 227 million lbs., of which 145 million lbs. were sent to the United Kingdom. The exports of desiccated coconuts were 873,000 cwt., copra, 1,982,000 cwt., and coconut-oil, 678,000 cwt. In the same year, 125,063,000 lbs. of rubber were exported, of which 34,581,000 lbs. went to the United Kingdom and 78,985,000 lbs. to the United States of America. In 1927, 12,523 acres of crown land were sold and settled. The live stock in 1927 was reported to amount to 1,500 horses, 1,588,000 horned cattle, 60,000 sheep, 51,000 swine, and 176,000 goats. There is a Government Dairy, possessing over 300 head of cattle. There were 67 plumbago mines working at end of 1927. The exports of plumbago in 1927 were 258,000 cwt. Other minerals, such as gold, thorium, and monazite, exist, but, except the last-named, so far have not been found in quantities of commercial importance. There are some hundreds of small-gem quarries, from which sapphires, rubies, moonstones, catseyes, and other gems are obtained. Native manufactures, which are at present of very minor importance, are weaving, basket work, tortoise-shell boxes, &c., earthenwares, jewellery, metal work, lacquer work, carving, &c. Manufactures on any large scale are confined to the products of agriculture, such as the production of coconut oil. In 1927 there were about 1,600 tea, rubber and cacao factories, 1,400 cinnamon, citronella, coconut, fibre, oil, &c., factories, 20 saw mills, and 50 aerated water, ice, &c., factories.

Commerce.

The values of the imports and exports for six years are given in the following table (Rate of Conversion: 1£ = Rs. 15):—

Dependency.

The Maldiv Islands, 400 miles south-west of Ceylon, are governed by an elected Sultan, who resides in the island of Malé, and pays a yearly tribute to the Ceylon Government. Next to the Sultan is the first Wazir, or Prime Minister, then the Fadiyaru or Kázi (Chief Judge), and 6 Kilegefanus or Councillors, and besides them 6 Wazirs or Ministers of State. The Maldives are a group of 13 coral islets (atolls), richly clothed with coconut palms, and yielding millet, fruit, and edible nuts. Population over 70,000 Muslims at the 1921 census. The people are civilised, and are great navigators and traders.

Constitution and Government.—Cyprus is 40 miles from the coast of Asia Minor and 60 from the coast of Syria. At a very early date important Greek and Phœnician colonies were established in Cyprus, and later it formed part of the Persian and Roman Empires. Its government frequently changed hands until 1571, when the Turks conquered the island from the Venetians, and retained possession of it until its cession to England for administrative purposes under a convention concluded with the Sultan at Constantinople, June 4, 1878. On the outbreak of hostilities with Turkey on November 5, 1914, the island was annexed. On May 1, 1925, the Island was given the status of a colony by Letters Patent, and the High Commissioner became Governor. There is an Executive Council, consisting of the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, and the Treasurer, with three locally resident additional members. The Legislature consists of twenty-four members, nine being office holders, including the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General and the Treasurer, and fifteen elected (for five years), three by Mohammedan and twelve by non-Mohammedan voters. The voters are all male British subjects, or foreigners twenty-one years of age, who have resided five years, and are payers of any of the taxes known as 'Verghis.' Municipal councils exist in the principal towns, elected practically by all resident householders and ratepayers.

Area and Population.—Area 3,584 square miles. Population at 1921 Census: 310,715, including 61,339 Mohammedans. Population, Census 1911:—Mohammedans (Ottoman Turks), 56,428; Christians (Autocephalous Church of Cyprus), 214,480; others, 3,200; total, 274,108. Inhabitants per square mile, 86.68. Births registered 1927, 8,586; deaths, 5,328.

The principal towns are Nicosia (the capital), 18,579; Larnaca, 9,765; Limasol, 13,302; Famagusta and Varosha, 6,980; Paphos and Ktima, 4,117; Kyrenia, 1,910. There are six administrative districts named after these towns.

Education.—The system of elementary education is designed so that each race has its own schools. Besides elementary schools there were in 1927 4 Gymnasiums, a commercial Lyceum, 7 Greek high schools for boys and 4 high schools for girls, a Priests' Training School, and two Moslem high schools, one for boys and one for girls. Total number of elementary schools in 1927, 908 (626 Greek-Christian, 268 Moslem, 3 Armenian, 5 Maronite, 5 Roman Catholic, and 1 Jewish); teachers, 1,295 in elementary schools, of whom 882 were Greek-Orthodox, 344 Moslem, and 69 of other denominations. Total enrolment in elementary schools, 46,677, comprising 9,078 Moslem, 36,384 Greek-Orthodox, 610 Armenian, 171 Maronites, 417 Latins, and 17 Jews. The Government contributed (1927) 62,850*l.* to education. Total expenditure on elementary and secondary education, 126,724*l.* There are 3 weekly newspapers in Turkish and 18 in Greek and 2 in Armenian.

Languages spoken are a local dialect of Modern Greek; Osmanli Turkish by Moslems; French by educated classes. English is becoming more and more widely spoken.

Justice.—The law courts have been reconstituted by an Order in Council of 1927, which divided the Colony into three judicial districts, viz., Nicosia-Kyrenia, Famagusta-Larnaca, and Limassol-Paphos. There now are: (1) a supreme court of civil and criminal appeal, with original civil jurisdiction in disputed claims of 300*l.* and over, patents and admiralty actions, and election petitions; (2) three assize courts, having unlimited criminal jurisdiction; (3) three district courts, having, subject to (1) above, an unlimited civil jurisdiction; (4) magisterial courts with summary jurisdiction; (5) three assistant district judges' courts. In all the courts Cypriot (Christian and Moslem) judges take part. There are also three Sheri Courts, for Mohammedans only, which administer the Moslem Sheri or ecclesiastical law, and a Sheri Tribunal of Appeal. In the year 1927 the number of offences was 22,188, and the number of persons committed to prison was 6,446. Strength of police force, December 31, 1927, 25 officers and 827 men; total, 852.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure for five years, exclusive of Grant-in-Aid, and share of the Turkish debt charge, were:—

Public debt, 1927, for harbours, railways, and irrigation, 180,438*l.*

Production.—Chief agricultural products in 1927: wheat, 1,872,975 kiles; barley, 2,080,170 kiles; vetches, 288,500 kiles; oats, 244,401 kiles; olives, 9,125,014 okes; cotton, 1,004,750 okes; raisins, 2,360,888 okes; carobs, 190,140 cantars; potatoes, 11,305,870 okes; linseed, 172,638 okes; silk, 14,361 okes; cocoons, 205,032 okes; cheese, 1,647,940 okes; butter, 10,299 okes; flax, 69,886 okes; hemp, 52,659 okes; wine, 5,270,706 gallons; olive-oil, 1,865,065 okes. In 1927 there were 259,718 sheep, and 225,821 goats. One-third of cultivable land is under cultivation. There are irrigation works for the storage and distribution of rain-water. The Forest Department has done much for the preservation and development of the forests existing at the time of the British occupation, and for the re-afforestation of denuded districts. The area of delimited forest is 635 square miles. Sponge fisheries are carried on, the take in 1927 being about 16,680 lbs. Gypsum, terra umbra and marble are found in abundance; cupriferous iron pyrites are being mined on a large scale and 208,122 tons of ore were exported in 1927. Asbestos is mined, 10,904 tons being exported in 1927.

Commerce.—The commerce, and the shipping, exclusive of coasting trade, for five calendar years were:—

HONG KONG.

Constitution and Government.

THE Crown Colony of Hong Kong was ceded by China to Great Britain in January, 1841; the cession was confirmed by the treaty of Nanking, in August, 1842; and the charter bears date April 5, 1843. Hong Kong is the great centre for British commerce with China and Japan, and a military and naval station of first-class importance.

The administration is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, the Secretary for Chinese Affairs, and the Director of Public Works (the last two being special appointments), and three unofficial members. There is also a Legislative Council, presided over by the Governor, and composed of the General Officer Commanding the Troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, the Director of Public Works, the Captain Superintendent of Police, the Secretary for Chinese Affairs (the last three being special appointments), and six unofficial members—viz., four nominated by the Crown (two of whom are Chinese), one nominated by the Chamber of Commerce, and one by the Justices of the Peace. In 1929 the full strength of the Council was increased to 18.

Governor—Sir Cecil Clementi, K.C.M.G. Appointed 1925. Salary 6,000*l.*, including 1,200*l.* allowance.

Colonial Secretary—W. T. Southorn, C.M.G.

Area and Population.

Hong Kong is situated at the mouth of the Canton River, about 90 miles south of Canton. The island is an irregular and broken ridge, stretching nearly east and west about 11 miles, its breadth from 2 to 5 miles, and its area rather more than 32 square miles; separated from the mainland by a narrow strait, the Lyeemoon Pass, about half a mile in width. The opposite peninsula of Kowloon, on the mainland, was ceded to Great Britain by treaty in Oct. 1860, and now forms part of Hong Kong. The city of Victoria extends for upwards of five miles along the southern shore of the beautiful harbour. By a convention signed at Peking on June 9, 1898, there was leased to Great Britain for 99 years a portion of Chinese territory mainly agricultural, together with the waters of Mirs Bay and Deep Bay and the island of Lan-tao. Its area is about 356 square miles, including islands, with about 94,000 inhabitants, exclusively Chinese. Area of Old Kowloon is 3 square miles. Large areas have also recently been reclaimed at Kowloon Bay, Wanchai, and North Point. Work on these areas is still in progress. Total area of colony, 391 square miles.

The population of Hong Kong, excluding the Military and Naval establishments, was estimated to be at the end of 1927 as follows:—Non-Chinese civil population, 16,500; Chinese civil population: City of Victoria (including Peak), 500,000; villages of Hong Kong, 39,900; Kowloon (including New Kowloon), 240,000; New Territories (land), 87,500; population afloat, 94,000; total Chinese population, 961,400; total civil population, 977,900; 1921 Census returns: 12,856 Non-Chinese, 612,310 Chinese; total 625,166.

The registered births and deaths for five years were as follows:—

1923 . . .	4,414	15,536	7·4	25·9
1924 . . .	4,143	15,553	5·8	21·75
1925 . . .	3,654	14,991	4·64	19·05
1926 . . .	4,041	12,516	4·5	15·90
1927 . . .	7,500	14,761	8·4	16·50

<sup>1</sup> Birth and death rates are calculated only on the population of Hong Kong and Kowloon, there being no jurisdiction by the sanitary authorities over the New Territories (except New Kowloon).

In 1924 the number of Chinese emigrants was 129,859, and the number of immigrants 130,194; in 1925, 140,534 and 91,622; in 1926, 460,479 and 276,501, and in 1927, 600,233 and 544,447 respectively.

Education.

Education is not compulsory, but all schools are State-inspected, and required to maintain a certain standard of efficiency. There are 5 secondary Government schools for children of British parentage, with an average attendance of 348 (1927), and 11 Government schools for Chinese boys and two for Chinese girls, with a total average attendance of 2,957. There is one school for Indians, with an average attendance of 107 (1927). There are also numerous schools in receipt of grants. The total number of pupils in all schools in 1927 was 49,111. The total expenditure on education in 1927 was 1,091,423·21 dollars, net.

The Hong Kong University in 1927 had 321 students, mostly Chinese.

Faculties of Medicine, Engineering and Arts have been established, with a large staff of British professors and lecturers, well-equipped scientific laboratories, and schools for instruction in physiology, pathology, and tropical medicine.

Justice and Crime.

There are a Supreme Court, the second court or Court of Summary Jurisdiction, and a third court or Appeal Court, a police magistrate's court, and a marine magistrate's court. In 1927, 1,740 were committed to Victoria gaol for criminal offences; in 1926, 1,154. The daily average of prisoners in gaol was 1,054 in 1926, and 1,189 in 1927. There is a police force in the colony numbering (1927) 1,996 men, of whom 246 are Europeans, 709 Indians, and 1,041 Chinese.

Finance.

The public revenue and expenditure of the colony were as follows in recent years. The dollar of Hong Kong is of variable value; for 1924 it is here taken at 2s. 4½d., 1925 2s. 4d., 1926 2s. 2½d., 1927 2s. 0d.

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1924	2,874,895	3,173,763	1926	2,333,268	2,587,103
1925	2,711,843	3,297,795	1927	2,134,453	2,084,506

The revenue is derived chiefly from land-taxes, licences, quarry rent, liquor and tobacco duties, and an opium monopoly. The revenue for 1927 was: revenue, 21,344,536 dollars; expenditure, 20,845,065 dollars.

Public debt, 341,800£, raised in 1887 and 1893 for public works. Another loan, 1,143,933£ in Inscribed Stock at 3½ per cent., was raised in 1906 for purposes of railway construction, also a 6 per cent. Public Works (1927) Loan of 5,000,000 dollars was authorised. On December 31, 1927, the balance of assets over liabilities was 3,985,761 dollars.

Defence.

The military expenditure for 1927 was 3,554,457 dollars. The Defence Corps cost 62,562·92 dollars for 1927. Hong Kong is the headquarters of the China Squadron.

Industry, Commerce, Shipping, and Communications.

The chief industries are sugar refining, ship-building and repairing, rope-making, tin refining, tobacco manufacture, the manufacture of cement, and the manufacture of knit goods. Deep-sea fishing is important, especially for the New Territories.

The commerce of Hong Kong is chiefly with Great Britain, India and Ceylon, Australia, United States, China, Japan, Indo-China, and Siam. Hong Kong is a free port (except as regards the importation of intoxicating liquor and tobacco). Hong Kong is the centre of trade in many kinds of goods. Among the principal are sugar and flour, rice, cotton, cotton yarn and cotton piece goods, silk, hemp, leather, tin, wolframite, bulk and case oil (kerosene), oils and fats, peanuts, Chinese medicines, fish and fishery products, tea, coal, cement, condensed milk, matches. The Chinese tea and silk trade is largely in the hands of Hong Kong firms.

The trade of Hong Kong with China and French Indo-China in 1924 (latest available statistics) was as follows: Imports, 36,968,000*l.*; exports, 44,873,000*l.*

The trade of Hong Kong and the United Kingdom (Board of Trade returns) for five years is given as follows:—

Imports (consignments) into Gt. Britain from Hong Kong . . . . .	£ 765,341	£ 718,188	£ 664,502	£ 477,203	£ 480,311
Exports of British Pro- duce to Hong Kong . . .	8,554,434	5,100,808	3,182,460	4,900,994	5,476,230
Exports of Foreign and Colonial produce . . .	114,437	92,853	67,077	90,557	97,526

In 1927, 51,289 vessels (including 24,054 junks and 7,893 steamships under 60 tons), representing altogether 36,834,014 tons, entered and cleared in the foreign trade. Of these, 3,861 with a tonnage of 9,660,440 were British ocean-going steamers.

There is an electric tramway of 9½ miles, and a cable tramway connecting The Peak district with the lower levels of Victoria. The British section of the Kowloon-Canton Railway was opened to traffic on October 1, 1910.

There were 20 post offices in Hong Kong in 1927; revenue (1926) postal, 767,250 dollars; telegraphic, 124,139 dollars; expenditure, postal, 336,885 dollars; telegraphic, 70,381 dollars. Telegraph lines, including cables, in 1926, 326 miles; telephone wires, excluding military lines, 30,272 miles. There is a wireless telegraph service under the control of the Public Works Department, besides a military and naval wireless station. There is a wireless telegraph meteorological station, under the control of the Royal Observatory.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The British banking institutions in the Colony are the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, whose head office is at Hong Kong, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, the Mercantile Bank of India, Ltd., and the P. & O. Banking Corporation, Ltd. Note circulation of the three former banks, end of 1927, 64,806,432 dollars. There are also several Chinese and foreign banks.

The currency of the Colony consists of the notes of the above-mentioned banks, and of British, Hong Kong, and Mexican dollars, besides subsidiary coins. The British Dollar is of 416 grains of silver 900 fine, as compared with 417·74 grains of 902·7 fineness of the Mexican dollar.

Subsidiary coins are 50 cent pieces (209·52 grains 800 fine), 20 cent pieces (83·81 grains 800 fine), 10 cent pieces (41·90 grains 800 fine), 5 cent pieces (20·95 grains 800 fine), and 1 cent copper pieces of 115·75 grains of copper or mixed metal.

The circulation of foreign copper coin was prohibited in 1912, and similar action is being taken with regard to foreign silver and nickel coins and bank notes.

Weights and Measures are :

The Tael . . . . .	=	1½ oz. avoirdupois.
„ Picul . . . . .	=	133½ lbs.
„ Catty . . . . .	=	1½ „
„ Chok . . . . .	=	14½ inches. „
„ Cheung . . . . .	=	12½ feet.

Besides the above weights and measures of China, those of Great Britain are in general use in the Colony.

INDIA AND DEPENDENCIES.

INDIA, as defined by Parliament (52 and 53 Vict. c. 63, s. 18), comprises all that part of the great Indian Peninsula which is directly or indirectly under British rule or protection. In a popular sense it includes also certain countries such as Nepal, which are beyond that area, but whose relations with India are a concern of the Foreign and Political Department of the Government, whose envoy resides in the country concerned. These countries will be found included in the third part of the YEAR-BOOK among Foreign Countries. The term British India includes only the districts subject to British law, and does not include Indian States. The term is so used, unless otherwise stated, in the tables, &c., that follow.

Government and Constitution.

The present form of government of the Indian Empire is established by various Parliamentary Statutes which are now consolidated in the Government of India Act, 1915, as amended by the Government of India (Amendment) Act, 1916, the Government of India Act, 1919, and the Government of India (Leave of Absence) Act, 1924. All the territories originally under the government of the East India Company are vested in His Majesty, and all its powers are exercised in his name; all revenues, tributes and other payments are received in his name, and disposed of for the purposes of the government of India alone. Under the Royal Titles Act, 1876, the King of Great Britain and Ireland has the additional title of Emperor of India.

It is the declared policy of Parliament, as stated in the preamble of the Act of 1919, to provide for 'the increasing association of Indians in every branch of the administration and the gradual development of self-governing institutions with a view to the progressive realisation of responsible government in British India as an integral part of the British Empire.' The Royal Statutory Commission was appointed on November 8, 1927, with The Rt. Hon. Sir John Simon, K.C.V.O., K.C., as Chairman.

Government in England.—The administration of the Indian Empire in England is entrusted to a Secretary of State for India, assisted by a Council of not less than eight and not more than twelve members, appointed for five years by the Secretary of State. At least one-half of the members must be persons who have served or resided ten years in India, and have not left India more than five years previous to their appointment. No member can sit in Parliament. The duties of the Council, which has no initiative authority, are to conduct the business transacted in the United Kingdom in relation to the government of India. Subject to the Government of India Act and rules made thereunder, the expenditure of the revenues of India, both in India and elsewhere, is subject to the control of the Secretary of State in Council, and no appropriation can be made without the concurrence of a majority of votes of the Council. The Secretary of State regulates the transaction of business.

In exercise of the power given by the Government of India Act, a High Commissioner for India in the United Kingdom was in 1920 appointed to act as agent of the Governor-General of India in Council, and on behalf of provincial governments in prescribed cases, and to conduct any business assigned to him by the Secretary of State in Council.

The salary of the Secretary of State, and the cost of the India Office for other than agency services are borne by the British, and not, as formerly, by the Indian Exchequer.

Central Indian Government.—The superintendence, direction and control of the civil and military government of India is vested in the Governor-General in Council, often styled the Government of India. The Governor-General, or Viceroy (so called since 1858), is appointed by the Crown, and usually holds office for five years. The Capital of India and the seat of government were moved from Calcutta to Delhi in 1912, the latter being formed into a separate territory under a Chief Commissioner.

Viceroy and Governor-General of India.—His Excellency the Rt. Hon. Baron Irwin of Kirby Underdale, P.C. (April, 1926). Salary, Rs. 2,56,000 a year.

The following is a list of the past Governors-General of India, with the dates of their assumption of office:—

Warren Hastings . . . . .	1774	Lord Canning . . . . .	1856
Sir John Macpherson . . . . .	1785	Earl of Elgin . . . . .	1862
Earl (Marquis) Cornwallis . . . . .	1786	Sir John (Lord) Lawrence . . . . .	1864

Earl (Marquis) of Dalhousie . . . . .	1848	Earl of Reading . . . . .	1921

Until 1834 these were Governors-General of Fort William in Bengal, no of India.

There is an Indian Legislature consisting of the Governor-General and two Chambers, the Council of State and the Legislative Assembly (opened 1921). The Council of State consists of 60 members, of whom 33 are elected and 27 nominated; not more than 20 may be officials; but not more than 17 officials are at present (1929) nominated. The Legislative Assembly contains 145 members, 41 nominated, of whom 26 are to be official members, and 104 elected. The life of the Council of State is five years, and of the Assembly three years, but dissolution may occur sooner, or the period may be specially extended by the Governor-General. Joint sittings of the two Chambers may be held for the settlement of differences between them. The Legislative Assembly was presided over for the first four years by a President appointed by the Governor-General; thereafter he is to be elected. This Legislature has power, subject to certain restrictions, to make laws for all persons within British India, for all British subjects within other parts of India, and for all native Indian subjects of the King in any part of the world. The Governor-General, with the assent of His Majesty signified, after copies of the proposed enactment have been laid before both Houses of the British Parliament, may enact measures essential for the safety, tranquillity, or interests of British India or any part thereof, against the wish of the Council or Assembly.

The Members of the Governor-General's Executive Council are appointed by the Crown: three must have had ten years' service in India, and one must be a barrister or pleader of not less than ten years' standing. They have charge of the following Portfolios:—

Home.—James Crerar, Esq., C.S.I., C.I.E., I.C.S.

Finance.—Sir George Schuster, K.C.M.G., C.B.E., M.C., October, 1928.

Education, Health and Lands.—Khan Bahadur Sir Muhammad Habibullah Sahib Bahadur, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E., Kt.

Law.—Sir Bragendra Lal Mitter, Kt., Barrister-at-Law. November, 1928.

Railways and Commerce.—Sir George Rainy, K.C.I.E., C.S.I., I.C.S.

Industries and Labour.—Sir Bhupendra Nath Mitra, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E., C.B.E.

The salary of each member is Rs. 80,000 a year.

The Foreign and Political Department is directly under the Governor-General. The Commander-in-Chief is also the Army Member of the Executive Council. At the head of each Department (except the Railway Department which is under the Chief Commissioner of Railways) is one of the Secretaries of the Government of India.

British India is now divided into fifteen administrations. Madras, Bombay, Bengal, the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the Punjab, Burma, Bihar and Orissa, the Central Provinces and Berar, and Assam are each under a Governor; and the N.W. Frontier Province, Ajmer-Merwara, Coorg, Baluchistan, Delhi, and Andaman and Nicobar Islands are each under a Chief Commissioner as far as British territory is concerned. Detailed information regarding the British Provinces will be found at p. 144.

High Commissioner for India in the United Kingdom.—Sir Atul Chandra Chatterjee, K.C.I.E. (appointed 1925), 42, Grosvenor Gardens, London.

Provincial Government.—According to the Government of India Act, 1919, which came into operation in December, 1920, and January, 1921, the various functions of government are classified as Central and Provincial subjects, the latter being practically definitely committed to the Provincial Governments, while for purposes of convenience certain Central subjects, such as the collection of income tax, may be dealt with by the Provincial Governments as the agents of the Central Government. The Governor-General in Council retains unimpaired powers of control over the Provincial Governments in their administration of 'reserved' subjects, but in 'transferred' subjects is only competent to intervene where it is necessary to safeguard Central subjects or to decide questions where two or more Provinces are concerned, or to safeguard the due exercise and performance of any powers and duties possessed by or imposed on the Governor-General in Council in regard to the High Commissioner, to the raising of loans by local Governments, or under rules made by the Secretary of State in Council. The list of subjects transferred to Indian Ministers, with certain reservations, includes local self-government, medical administration, public health and sanitation, education, public works, agriculture, fisheries, co-operative societies, excise, registration, development of industries, adulteration, weights and measures, and religious and charitable endowments. Certain sources of revenue are definitely allocated to the Provinces, which are required to contribute to the Central Government certain annual sums which are to be the first charge on their revenues.

The Provincial Governments are based upon a scheme of diarchy, or dualised form of government, and consist of the Governor-in-Council and the Governor acting with Ministers. The Ministers, who are elected members of the Legislative Council, have charge of certain Departments of Government known as 'transferred subjects,' while others, the 'reserved subjects,' are administered by the Governor-in-Council. Thus each side has its share in the conduct of the Government, with responsibility for its own work, while co-ordination is achieved by the influence of the Governor, who is associated with both sections.

The Governor's Executive Council consists of not more than four members, to be appointed by the Crown, one being qualified by twelve years' public service in India. The Legislative Council contains not more than 20 per cent. of official members and at least 70 per cent. (in Burma 60 per cent.) elected members, and, in addition to its legislative functions, votes all expenditure, subject to certain specified exceptions and to the power of the Local Government to incur expenditure, on reserved subjects without the Council's assent if the Governor certifies such expenditure to be necessary. The normal duration of the Legislative Council is three years, but it may be dissolved sooner by the Governor, or its term specially extended for one year. The Ministers are appointed by the Governor to administer the transferred subjects, and are not to be officials. The Governor may not be a member of the Legislative Council, but may address the Council.

The Provinces to which this new form of government has been applied are Bengal, Madras, Bombay, Bihar and Orissa, United Provinces, Punjab, Central Provinces, Coorg, Assam and Burma. The minimum number of members in each Legislative Council is: Madras, 118; Bombay, 111; Bengal, 125; United Provinces, 118; Punjab, 83; Bihar and Orissa, 98; Central Provinces, 70; Coorg, 17; Assam, 53; Burma, 92. The numbers may be increased. There are 7·8 million voters out of the population of 247 millions in British India, including Burma. In Madras, Bombay, Bengal, United Provinces, Punjab, Central Provinces, Assam, Burma, and Bihar and Orissa the franchise has been extended to women; and women are eligible as candidates for the Madras, Bombay, United Provinces, Central Provinces, and Punjab Councils and for these constituencies in the Legislative Assembly.

The provinces are usually formed into divisions under Commissioners, and then divided into districts, which are the units of administration. At the head of each district is an executive officer (collector and magistrate, or deputy-commissioner), who has entire control of the district, subject to the control of his official superior. Subordinate to the magistrate (in most districts) there are a joint magistrate, an assistant-magistrate, and one or more deputy-collectors and other officials. There are 273 of such districts in British India.

Government of Indian States.—The control which the Supreme Government exercises over the Indian States varies considerably in degree; but they are all governed by the Indian Princes, ministers, or councils. The Princes have no right to make war or peace, or to send ambassadors to each other or to external States; they maintain military forces within certain limits; no European can be employed by them without special sanction; and the Supreme Government can exercise control in case of misgovernment. Within these limits the more important Princes are autonomous in their own territories. Some, but not all of them, are required to pay an annual fixed tribute. The number of Ruling Princes and Chiefs having a salute of guns is 118, and of States and Estates without a salute, 445. The total area is 711,000 square miles, with a population of nearly 72 millions. Detailed information is given on p. 164.

In 1921 a Chamber of Princes was established as a permanent consultative body to discuss matters relating to affairs of Imperial or common concern.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT.

There were at the end of 1926-27, 771 municipalities, with a population of 19 millions. The total number of members of the municipal bodies was 12,586, of whom 11,684 were non-official. The municipal bodies have the care and lighting of the roads, water supply, drainage, sanitation, medical relief, vaccination, and education, particularly primary education; they impose taxes, enact bye-laws, make improvements, and spend money, with the sanction of the Provincial Government. Their aggregate income in 1926-27 was Rs. 16,82,99,671, exclusive of loans, sales of securities, and other extraordinary receipts amounting to Rs. 20,98,78,428. The aggregate expenditure was Rs. 18,79,14,468, excluding extraordinary and debt expenditure of Rs. 19,09,16,598. By the Local Self-Government Acts of 1883-84, the elective principle was introduced, in a large or small measure, all over India; and has since been further extended by recent legislation. In all larger towns, and in many of the smaller towns, the majority of members of committees are elected by the ratepayers; everywhere the majority of town committees consists of Indians, and in many committees all the members are Indians. In many municipalities women have the right to vote, and in a few they are eligible for election. For rural tracts, except in Burma, there were 786 district and sub-district Boards or Councils, and 479 Union Panchayats in Madras, with 21,432 members in 1926-27, 15,889 being elected. These Boards are in charge of roads, district schools, markets, public health institutions, &c. Their aggregate income in 1926-27 was Rs. 15,09,16,314, and expenditure Rs. 15,13,14,867.

Lutheran . . . .	240,816	Syrian (others) . . . .	367,688

Education.

The following statistics are those of the census of 1921 :—

—	Able to read and write	Unable to read and write	Total
Males . . . .	19,841,438	142,623,691	162,465,129
Females . . . .	2,782,213	150,807,889	153,590,102

<sup>1</sup> This number falls short of the total population of India by 2,887,249 persons enumerated in tracts where literacy was not recorded.

The persons with a knowledge of English numbered 2·5 millions.

Educational institutions in India are of two classes :—(a) those in which the course of study conforms to the standards prescribed by the Department of Public Instruction or by the Universities, and either undergo inspection by the Department, or regularly present pupils at the public examinations held by the Department or Universities. These institutions are called 'Recognised,' but may be under public or private management. (b) Those that do not fulfil these conditions. These are called 'Unrecognised.' As regards recognised institutions, the system of education operates, in general, through (i) the Primary Schools, which aim at teaching, through the vernacular languages, reading, writing, and other elementary knowledge; (ii) the Secondary Schools, in which the instruction does not go beyond the matriculation or school-leaving certificate standard. The schools are divided into English or vernacular, and also into high and middle schools; (iii) the Intermediate Colleges; and (iv) the Colleges. The colleges are affiliated to eight federal universities—Calcutta (1857), Madras (1857), Bombay (1857), Punjab (1882), Patna (1917), Nagpur (1923), Andhra (1926), and Agra (1927). There are also five unitary teaching and residential universities—Allahabad (1887), Lucknow (1920), Rangoon (1920), Dacca (1921), and Delhi (1922); two denominational universities—the Hindu University at Benares (1916), and the Muslim University at Aligarh (1920); and two universities in Indian States—Mysore (1916) and Hyderabad (Osmania) (1918).

There are in addition, various institutions of a special character, such as technical schools teaching arts and industries, engineering, &c.; law schools; medical schools and colleges; and training colleges and normal schools for the training of teachers.

The following table gives the number of institutions and scholars in 1926-27 in British India, including Ajmer-Merwara, British Baluchistan, and Civil and Military Station of Bangalore:—

There were in 1926-27 in British India 211,048 'recognised' institutions with 10,529,350 scholars, and 35,216 'unrecognised' with 628,146 scholars.

The following was the educational expenditure for recognised institutions in recent years from fees, provincial resources, local rates, municipal funds, endowments, etc. :—

Year	Rs.	Year	Rs.
1921-22	18,37,52,969	1924-25	20,87,02,222
1922-23	19,04,04,036	1925-26	22,77,83,531
1923-24	19,90,36,346	1926-27	24,58,47,572

A system of State Scholarships exists by which it is possible for a boy to pass from the village school to the University. There are also State Scholarships, awarded by local Governments and the Government of India, to enable the holders to study in the United Kingdom for two or more years.

During 1926-27 the following newspapers and periodicals were published: in Madras, 1,149; Bombay, 1,685; Bengal, 681; United Provinces, 493; Punjab, 462; Burma, 233; Bihar and Orissa, 115; Central Provinces and Berar, 91; Assam, 44; Delhi, 158. The number of printing presses was 5,724; and 2,147 books in English or other European languages and 15,246 in Indian languages were published.

Justice and Crime.

The Presidencies of Madras, Bombay, and Bengal, and also the Province of Agra, the province of Bihar and Orissa, the province of the Punjab and the Province of Burma, have each a supreme high court, with 14, 10, 16, 11, 9, 13 and 11 judges, respectively, in 1927. There is appeal to the Privy Council in England. Oudh has a chief court. The Central Provinces and Berar, North-West Frontier Province, Coorg, Sind, and Chota Nagpur have judicial commissioners. For Assam the high court of Calcutta is the highest judicial authority. Below these courts are, for criminal cases, Courts of Session, and below these, Courts of Magistrates (first, second, and third class). The inferior civil courts are determined by special acts or regulations in each province. The most extensive system consists of the sessions judge acting as a 'District Judge'; subordinate judges; and below them 'Munsifs.' There are also numerous special courts to try small causes. Side by side with the civil courts there are revenue courts, presided over by officers charged with the duty of settling and collecting the land revenue. The number of civil suits instituted in 1926 was 2,252,000, and of persons under trial in criminal cases 2,375,000.

Nearly all the civil judges, and the great majority of the magistrates, in the courts of original jurisdiction are Indians; in Bengal, Madras, and Bombay the proportion of Indians in the appellate court is considerable.

The civil police in 1926 were 194,743 in strength, varying from 4·2 per 10,000 of the population in Bihar and Orissa to 25·5 per 10,000 in the North-West Frontier Province.

<sup>1</sup> Since the introduction of the Reforms from April 1, 1921, definite sources of revenue are now allocated to Provincial Governments. Hence the accounts and estimates of the Government of India now embrace only the transactions of the Central Government. Provincial Governments used to pay annual contributions to the Central Government. The contributions in the first year were 988 lakhs. These were reduced to 608 lakhs in 1926-27. In 1927-28 there was a permanent remission of 850 lakhs, and a non-recurring remission of the balance 258 lakhs. There was complete and final remission of Provincial contributions in 1928-29.

<sup>3</sup> The Excise revenue is derived from intoxicating liquors, hemp drugs, and opium consumed in the country. The bulk of the revenue comes from spirits. The excise systems and rates of duty vary from province to province.

<sup>4</sup> Liquors, petroleum, sugar, tobacco, cotton manufactures, metals, manufactured articles, are the chief items from which the customs revenue is derived. Under this head are also included the proceeds of export duties on rice, on jute (imposed in 1916), on tea (imposed in 1916, abolished in 1927), and on hides (imposed in 1919); and of excise duties on motor spirit (imposed in 1917), and on kerosene (imposed in 1922). The import of silver bullion and coin except under licence was prohibited in July, 1917, but the prohibition was withdrawn during 1920-21.

Land Revenue.—This is levied according to an assessment on estates or holdings. In the greater part of Bengal, and Bihar and Orissa, about one-fourth of Madras, and some districts of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the assessment was fixed permanently at the end of the 18th century; while it is fixed periodically at intervals of from twelve to thirty years over the rest of India. For details as to the nature of the different tenures of land that prevail in India see the YEAR-BOOK for 1886, p. 799. See also under AGRICULTURE.

The land revenue was contributed in 1927-28 (revised estimate) as follows :—

Administrations	Rs.	Administrations	Rs.
India, General . . . . .	8,28,000	Punjab . . . . .	3,15,64,000
Baluchistan . . . . .	10,61,000	Burma . . . . .	5,42,00,000
N.W. Frontier Province . . . . .	23,17,000	Shan States Federation . . . . .	4,20,000
Madras . . . . .	6,11,46,600	Bihar and Orissa . . . . .	1,67,26,000
Bombay . . . . .	5,45,30,000	Central Provinces and Berar . . . . .	2,45,55,000
Bengal . . . . .	3,15,02,000	Assam . . . . .	1,12,89,000
United Provinces of Agra and Oudh . . . . .	6,94,96,000	Coorg . . . . .	3,67,000

Opium.—In British territory the cultivation of the poppy for the production of opium is practically confined to the United Provinces, and the area under cultivation in that Province is being gradually reduced. Opium is also grown in many of the Indian States of Central and Northern India. The question of suppressing poppy cultivation in these States is receiving the attention of the Government of India in consultation with the States, and they recently appointed a committee to investigate and report in the matter. Public auctions at Calcutta were discontinued from April 1926. Export to China was prohibited in 1913; and in June 1926 the Government of India decided to reduce progressively exports of opium from India, except for strictly medical and scientific purposes, so as to extinguish them altogether at the end of 1935. The maximum for each country is fixed, and a reduction of 10 per cent of the 1926 exports is made each year.

Debt.—On March 31, 1928, out of a total debt of 991.61 crores (sterling portion converted at 1s. 6d. = R. 1), 686.54 crores were productive in railways, telegraphs and irrigation; 178.73 crores were unproductive; and 126.34 crores were incurred on behalf of Provincial Governments.

Finance of Separate Governments, and Local Finances.—The revenue and expenditure of each Government, Central and Provincial, in 1927–28 (revised estimates) were as follows:—

Government	Revenue	Expenditure
	Rs.	Rs.
India, Central . . . . .	1,27,73,98,000	1,27,73,98,000

Local Funds.—The above excludes the revenue and expenditure of municipalities and of district and local boards. The income of the former is derived mainly from rates, octroi, taxes on houses, lands, vehicles and animals, tolls, and assessed taxes; and of the latter from cesses on land. The gross income for 1926–27 of all municipalities was Rs.37,81,78,000. The gross expenditure was Rs.37,88,31,000. The income of district and local boards was Rs.15,09,16,000, and the expenditure Rs.15,13,15,000.

Defence.

The defence forces of India consist of units of the Royal Air Force, units of the British Regular Army, the Indian Army, the Auxiliary and Territorial Forces, the Indian Army Reserve and the Indian State Forces. With the exception of the last, these forces are administered by the Air Vice-Marshal and the headquarters staff of the Army in India respectively, under the supreme control of the Commander-in-Chief, who is the Army-Member of the Viceroy's Executive Council. The military forces are organised into the Northern, Southern, Eastern and Western Commands, and the Burma Independent district; each Command contains a number of districts and independent brigades. The garrison of Aden has been recently transferred from the Indian to the Home Command.

The British regular forces in India are paid by the Indian exchequer. They are organised in brigades and divisions with the Indian Army, the normal proportion being 1 British battalion to 3 Indian. There are 19½ Indian Pack Batteries. The personnel of the remaining batteries of Horse, Field and Garrison Artillery is wholly British except for a proportion of Indian drivers. The Tank Corps and Royal Air Force are wholly British.

The Auxiliary Force, organised under the Indian Auxiliary Force Act, 1920, is confined to persons of British extraction. Enrolment is voluntary, but entails periodical training extending to 64 hours annually for infantry and 80 hours for other arms. The force is liable to be called out or embodied for local service within strictly defined limits, and acts as a second line to the permanent garrison of India. Its strength in 1928 was 32,700.

The Indian Territorial Force was brought into existence in 1920, and is organised on the lines of a militia, with an annual training of 28 days. It is intended to form a second line to the regular Indian Army in time of war, the whole of its personnel being liable to general service. Its strength in 1928 was 25,000.

The Army in India Reserve has been recently constituted, in 2 classes: class A, of men with 8 years' combined army and reserve service; class B, of men up to 15 years' combined service. Strength in 1928 was 29,924.

The Indian State Forces are raised and maintained by Indian States, and are trained under the supervision of British officers, who act in an advisory capacity. Strength, in 1927, 28,500.

The composition of the forces in India was, in 1928, except for Indian State Forces, as follows:—

	Cavalry Regiments	R.H.A. Batteries	R.F.A. Batteries	Medic. Batteries	Pack Batteries	S. & M. Field Troops	S. & M. Field Companies	Infantry Battalions	Pioneer Battalions	Armoured Car Companies

Auxiliary Force	11	20	5	19	25	12	5	—
Territorial Force	—	—	—	—	20	—	—	8

The strength of the British army in India in 1928 was 60,004, and of the Indian Army 167,352. The Field Army is organised in 4 divisions and 5 cavalry brigades.

The supply and transport services are provided by the Indian Army Service Corps. The medical services of the British troops are provided by the Royal Army Medical Corps, and those of the Indian Army by the Indian Medical Service.

There are units of the Indian Army serving in Iraq, Palestine, and Colonial stations. These are paid by the British exchequer.

The 7th Light Cavalry, the 16th Light Cavalry, the 2/1st Madras Pioneers, the 4/19th Hyderabad Regt., the 5th Royal Battn. 5th Mahratta Light Infantry, the 1/7th Rajput Regt., the 1/14th Punjab Regt., and the 2/1st Punjab Regt. have been selected for Indianisation. Ten Indian gentlemen are now nominated annually to the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, to enable them to qualify for commissions in the Indian Army. The preliminary education is given at the Prince of Wales' Royal Indian Military College at Dehra Dun.

The Royal Air Force in India comprises 6 squadrons organised in 3 wings of 2 squadrons each; the Aircraft Depot and Aircraft Parks are directly under R.A.F. Headquarters, India. Its establishment is 218 officers and 1,757 British and 138 Indian other ranks.

The Government of India has decided to complete the reconstruction of the Royal Indian Marine in accordance with the recommendations of the Departmental Committee of 1925, but the force will not have the right to be called the Royal Indian Navy. It will, however, become a combatant force and serve under conditions similar to those originally proposed for the Royal Indian Navy. At present the seagoing units of the R.I.M. comprise the 3 sloops Cornwallis, Clive and Hardinge, 2 surveying vessels and 2 patrol vessels.

Agriculture and Industry.

Agriculture, Land Tenure, &c.—The chief industry of India has always been agriculture. The total number of the population supported by agriculture, including forestry and raising of livestock, was, according to the census of 1921, a little more than 229 millions out of a total population of 318 millions. In most of the provinces there is a Department of Land Records, and in every province a Department of Agriculture. There are staffs of experts in the provinces; an Imperial staff of experts with a fully equipped central station, Research Institute and College for post graduate training of private students and of those who have completed the Agricultural Course in provincial colleges; a Civil Veterinary Department for the prevention and cure of cattle diseases; an Imperial Institute for veterinary research for the preparation of sera and antitoxins, and an Imperial Institute of Animal Husbandry and Dairying. Improved varieties of crops have been introduced in 8,815,000 acres, the average increased value of the produce being nearly ten and a half crores of rupees.

In provinces where the zamindari tenure prevails (i.e., where single proprietors or proprietary brotherhoods possess large estates of several hundreds or thousands of acres), the State land revenue is assessed at an aliquot part (usually about one half) of the ascertained or assumed rental. The revenue is payable on each estate as a whole, the assessment remaining unchanged for the period of settlement. In the greater part of Bengal, and Bihar and Orissa, and in parts of the United Provinces and Madras the settlement is a permanent one and not liable to revision. In provinces where the raiyatwari (or ryotwari) tenure prevails (i.e., where each petty proprietor holds directly from the State, as a rule cultivates his own land, and has no landlord between himself and the Government), the revenue is separately assessed on each petty holding, and land revenue becomes payable at once (or after a short term of grace in the case of uncleared lands) on all extensions of cultivation. The raiyatwari proprietor may throw up his holding, or any portion of it, at the beginning of any year after reasonable notice, whereas the zamindār or large proprietor engages to pay the revenue assessed upon him throughout the term of the settlement.

The following table shows in 1926-27 the latest available returns of the land surveyed under the two types of tenure, and the land revenue assessed:—

The net cultivated area actually sown in British India in 1926-27 was 226,012,207 acres.

Of the total area under irrigation in 1926-27, 24,667,813 acres were irrigated by canals; 5,565,265 acres by tanks; 12,006,462 acres by wells; and 5,545,093 acres by other sources. The average area irrigated by Government Works rose from 26,750,000 acres in 1918-20 to 28,100,000 acres in 1925-26. The net return on capital outlay was 6·47 per cent. in 1926-27.

Livestock Census, in British India (exclusive of Baluchistan), 1924-25: oxen, 120,340,000; buffaloes, 30,612,000; sheep, 23,233,000; goats, 39,237,000; horses and ponies, 1,711,000; mules, 70,000; donkeys, 1,411,000; camels, 505,000.

Forests.—The lands under the direct control of the State Forest Department are classified as 'Reserved Forests' (forests intended to be permanently maintained for the supply of timber, &c., or for the protection of water supply, &c.), 'Protected Forests,' and 'Unclassed' forest land. The following table shows the extent of these areas in 1926-27:—

The net revenue from the State forests in 1926-27 was about Rs. 2,64,31,932.

Industries.—The most important indigenous industry, after agriculture, is the weaving of cotton cloths. Other important indigenous industries are silk rearing and weaving, shawl and carpet weaving, wood-carving and metal-working. One of the most important industries connected with agriculture is the tea industry, the average number of persons employed being about 867,000. The area under tea in 1927 was about 752,900 acres, distributed as follows: Assam, 423,800; Bengal, 189,800; Bihar and Orissa, 2,100; United Provinces, 6,000; Punjab, 9,700; Madras, 58,900; Coorg, 400; Tripura (Bengal), 6,900; and the Travancore State, 57,300. The production was, in 1927, 391 million lb. The exports of Indian tea from British India (including the State of Travancore) in 1927-28 were: to United Kingdom, 307,246,000 lb.; Canada, 9,286,000 lb.; United States, 8,799,000 lb.; Persia, 4,218,000 lb.; and to Australasia, 3,026,000 lb. The total exports were 326,545,000 lb. in 1925-26; 350,502,000 lb. in 1926-27; and 362,012,000 lb. in 1927-28.

The total capital at charge on Railways to the end of 1927-28, including lines under construction and survey, &c., was Rs. 8,22,86,25,000. From 1924-25 Railway Finance has been separated from the general finances of Government. The Delhi-Umballa-Kalka was purchased by the State in April, 1926.

Passengers carried in 1927-28, 623,114,800; aggregate tonnage of goods and live stock, 89,791,000; gross earnings on railways, 118·22 crores; working expenses, 72·29 crores; net earnings, 45·92 crores; average return on the capital at charge 5·58 per cent. The net gain to the State, after meeting all charges for interest, &c., was 10·13 crores. The railway staff in 1926-27 numbered 4,998 Europeans and 757,555 Indians; total, 762,553.

India and Ceylon are connected by rail and steamer ferry combined, the steamers plying between Dhanushkodi Point on Rameswaram Island and Talaimannar in Ceylon.

II. POSTS, TELEGRAPHS, AND TELEPHONES.

On March 31, 1927, there were 20,737 post-offices and 55,441 letter-boxes.

In the year 1926-27, the number of letters, post-cards, and money-orders passing through the post-offices was 1,134,666,000; of newspapers 82,828,000; of parcels 16,025,000; and of packets 97,214,000; being a total of 1,330,728,000.

There were 12,012 telegraph offices in India on March 31, 1927. Statistics of the Government telegraphs for 1926-27 :—Miles of wire, 511,866; miles of line, 98,112; receipts, 2·46 crores; charges, 2·55 crores; paid messages, 19,022,602.

The number of wireless stations maintained and worked by the Indian Posts and Telegraphs Department was 24 on March 31, 1927, of which six were coast stations available for general public correspondence with ships at sea, and the remainder were inland stations.

The telephone system is in the hands of the Indian Posts and Telegraph Department, but telephone exchanges have been established in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Ahmedabad, Karachi, Rangoon, and Moultmein, by private companies, under licences from the Government. On March 31, 1927, there were 18 telephone exchanges, with 28,384 connections, established by the licensed companies, and 271 exchanges with 17,115 connections established by the Department.

Money and Credit.

The value of money coined at the Calcutta and Bombay Mints in five years was as follows :—

Yearended March 31	Silver	Nickel	Copper	Bronze	Total
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1924	50,00,791	21,52,454	50,000	1,39,300	73,42,555
1925	45,36,200	38,04,037	123,300	2,65,383	87,28,920

A branch of the Royal Mint was established at Bombay at the end of 1917, but since April, 1919, the Branch Mint has been closed.

In August, 1926, the Royal Commission on Indian Currency and Finance submitted their report, including the recommendation of the stabilisation of the rupee at a rate corresponding to an exchange rate of 1s. 6d. (gold). In March, 1927, the Indian Currency Act made this stabilization statutory.

Since 1900, rupees have been coined as required to meet public demands. The entire profit accruing to Government on the coinage up to March 31, 1907, and during the year 1912-13, and half such profit for the years 1907-08 and 1908-09 were placed to the credit of a separate fund termed the Gold Standard Reserve, with the object of ensuring the stability of the currency policy of Government. Any profit arising from this source is at present credited entire to the Gold Standard Reserve. On June 30, 1928, the Reserve amounted to 40,000,000.

Notes of the values of one, two-and-a-half, five, ten, fifty, and a hundred rupees are legal tender throughout British India. The total value of notes in circulation on March 31, 1928, including the notes held in Government treasuries and the Head Offices of the Imperial Bank of India, was Rs. 1,84,87,44,545.

BRITISH PROVINCES.

Information concerning the Provinces in British India is given below, in alphabetical order.

AJMER-MERWARA.

An agency subordinate to the factory at Surat was established at Ajmer early in the 17th century. The British received the tract by cession after the Pindari War in 1818. This small province of Ajmer-Merwara consists of one district with three sub-divisions, Ajmer, Kekri, and Merwara, with an area of 2,711 sq. miles and a population of 495,271. The administration is under a Chief Commissioner, who in the capacity of Agent to the Governor-General in Rajputana resides at Mount Abu. The local administration is under a Commissioner. The city of Ajmer has a population of 113,512. The income of the province was Rs. 16·7 lakhs in 1926-27, and the expenditure Rs. 29·5 lakhs. In 1927 there were 10,566 scholars in 178 recognised educational institutions for males; and 1,707 in 20 similar institutions for females. The Government College at Ajmer had 125 students in 1927.

Chief Commissioner.—The Hon. Mr. L. W. Reynolds, C.I.E., C.S.I., M.C., I.C.S. (appointed March 14, 1927); salary, Rs. 48,000 per year.

ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS.

The Andaman Islands lie in the Bay of Bengal, 120 miles from Cape Negrais in Burma, the nearest point on the mainland. Five large islands closely grouped together are called the Great Andaman, and to the south is the island of Little Andaman. There are some 200 islets, the two principal groups being the Ritchie Archipelago and the Labyrinth Islands. The total area is 2,508 square miles. The Great Andaman group is about 219 miles long and, at the widest, 32 miles broad. The group, densely wooded, contains many valuable trees, the best known of which is the padouk or Andaman red-wood (a race of Pterocarpus dalbergioides). The islands possess a number of harbours and safe anchorages, notably Port Blair, Port Cornwallis, and Bonington, the last being most favourably situated for forest trade. The aborigines, 786 (414 males and 372 females) in 1921, live in small groups over the islands; some are savages of a low Negrito type. The total population of the Andaman Islands in 1921 was 17,814 (15,551 males and 2,263 females). In 1926-27 the forest receipts amounted to 11,70,863 rupees. The coconut, rubber (Hevea brasiliensis), Manila hemp (Musa textilis), and Bahamas aloe (Agave sisalana) are successfully cultivated. In 1927 there were 9,784 head of cattle and 4,841 goats. There is wireless telegraphy with Burma. A mail steamer connects Port Blair with Calcutta, Rangoon, and Madras. The islands have been used since 1858 by the Government of India as a penal settlement for life and long-term convicts, but the practice is being discontinued, the island being left to develop on free lines. The settlement possesses about 72,410 acres of cleared land. There were, in 1927, 7,196 convicts (including 246 women) in the place, of whom 6,489 (including 217 women) were on ticket-of-leave in the settlement supporting themselves. The Andaman Islands are under the Government of India, and the Officer in Charge is the Chief Commissioner. The Civil, Military and convict population of Port Blair in 1927 was 14,395.

The Nicobar Islands are situated to the South of the Andamans, 75 miles from Little Andaman. The British formally took possession in 1869. There are twenty-one islands, nine uninhabited; total area, 635 square miles. The islands are usually divided into three groups, Southern, Central, and Northern, the chief islands in each being respectively, Great Nicobar, Camorta with Nankauri, and Car Nicobar. There is a fine land-locked harbour between the islands of Camorta and Nankauri, known as Nankauri Harbour. The Nicobarese inhabitants numbered 9,272 (5,242 males and 4,030 females) in 1921. The islanders are known to have pursued the coconut trade for at least 1,500 years. The coconut production is estimated at 15 million nuts per annum, of which some 6 million are sold by barter and exported in small native craft and Chinese junks in the form of copra. The Government is represented by a permanent Assistant Commissioner and a Tahsildar. The islands are attached to the Chief Commissionership of the Andamans and Nicobars.

Chief Commissioner at Port Blair.—Lieut.-Col. M. J. L. Ferrar, C.S.I., C.I.E., O.B.E., I.A.: salary, Rs. 36,000 per year.

ASSAM.

Constitution and Government.—Assam first became a British Protectorate at the close of the first Burmese War in 1826. In 1832 Cachar was annexed: in 1835 the Jaintia Hills were included in the East India Company's dominions, and in 1839 Upper Assam was annexed to Bengal. In 1874

Assam was detached from the Administration of the Lieut.-Governor of Bengal, and made a separate Chief Commissionership. On the partition of Bengal in 1905, it was united to the Eastern Districts of Bengal under a Lieut.-Governor. From 1912 the Chief Commissionership of Assam was revived; and from 1921 a Governorship was created. There are two Members (one an Indian) of the Governor's Executive Council for 'reserved' subjects, and two Indian Ministers for the 'transferred' subjects. The Legislative Council consists of 53 Members, 39 elected, and 14 nominated and ex-officio (not more than 7 may be officials). For the purposes of administration there are two Commissionerships with 12 Districts and 2 frontier tracts. There are 19 Local Boards; and there are 17 Municipalities and 8 Town Committees.

Manipur State (p. 164) is in relation with the Government of Assam.

Governor.—H.E. Sir Egbert Laurie Lucas Hammond, K.C.S.I., C.B.E. I.C.S.; appointed June 27, 1927: salary Rs. 66,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The plains districts, the hill districts and the frontier tracts exclusive of the State of Manipur cover an area of 53,015 square miles, with a population of 7,606,230 in British territory. More than half are Hindus: and only 22 per cent. speak Assamese. The capital is Shillong.

Instruction.—There were two Art Colleges, affiliated to the Calcutta University, with 997 students in 1927-28; also the Farle Law College, at Gahnati, founded in 1914. The number of secondary schools for boys was 357 with 50,320 pupils: primary schools for boys numbered 4,673, with 216,436 pupils. The number of girls at school was 40,268. There were 1,498 pupils in 46 Tea Garden schools.

Justice and Crime.—The Province (Manipur State and certain hill and frontier areas excepted) is under the jurisdiction of the High Court of Calcutta. For criminal work there were, in 1926, 2 Sessions Judges and 92 other Officers. In 1926, 25,430 criminal cases were brought to trial, and 38,721 civil suits were instituted. The Assam Rifles, with 5 Battalions—formerly known as the Military Police—supply garrisons for the frontier. There is a civil Police Force of 4,328 under an Inspector-General.

Finance.—The gross revenue for 1927-28 was 269 lakhs of rupees, to which Land Revenue contributed 113 lakhs, Excise 71 lakhs, Forests 26 lakhs, and Stamps 24 lakhs. The total expenditure in 1927-28 was 257 lakhs. General Administration cost 26 lakhs, Education 28 lakhs, Police 26 lakhs, Land Revenue Administration 19 lakhs, and Forests 14 lakhs. No contribution was paid by the Local Government to the Central Government during 1927-28.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture employs nearly 89 per cent. of the population. Silk-weaving and Cotton-weaving are the most important of the Home Industries. At the end of 1927 there were 957 Tea Gardens with 423,891 acres under tea. The area of tea plucked in 1927 was 399,930 acres; the total out-turn was 235 million lbs., and the daily average number of persons employed was 536,465. All-India statistics regarding the tea industry are given on p. 131. In 1927-28 there were 6,108 sq. miles of reserved forests. In 1927, 24½ millions of gallons of crude oil were extracted from the oil fields of the province.

Commerce and Communications.—In 1923-27 there were 565 miles of metalled roads, 6,916 miles of unmetalled roads, and 2,271 miles of bridle roads. The open mileage of railways was 1,164 miles.

BALUCHISTAN.

Government.—After the Afghán War, 1878-81, the districts of Pishin, Shorarúd, Duki, Sibi, and Sháhrig were assigned to the British and in November, 1887, were formally constituted as British Balúchistán. In 1883, the districts of Quetta and Bolán were made over by the Khán to the British on an annual quit-rent of 25,000 rupees and 30,000 rupees respectively. In 1886, the Bori valley, in which is now the cantonment of Loralai, was occupied. In 1887, the Khetrán country, now known as the Bárkhán tahsil, was brought under British control; in 1889 British authority was established in the Zhob valley and Kákar Khurásán; in 1896 Chágai and Western Sinjrání were included in administered territory; in 1899, the Nuskhí Niabat was made over by the Khán of Kalát on an annual quit-rent of 9,000 rupees; and in 1903 the Nasirábád tahsil was acquired from the Khán on an annual quit-rent of 117,500 rupees. The area of British and administered territory, including tribal areas, is 54,228 sq. miles, and the population (1921) 420,648. The chief town is Quetta, with a population (1921) of 49,001. It is the only municipality. The head of the civil administration is the Agent to the Governor-General and Chief Commissioner in Baluchistan. The area under his direct administration is divided as follows: Quetta-Pishin, Sibi, Zhob, Loralai, Chágai districts and Bolán Sub-division. The revenue administration of the Province is entrusted to an officer who is styled the Revenue and Judicial Commissioner.

Regular troops are cantoned at Quetta, Chaman, Fort Sandeman, and Loralai, and detachments are stationed at different places, principally in the Zhob and Loralai Districts, for the preservation of law and order. There is also a police force, supplemented by levies and the Zhob Militia and Mekrán Levy Corps. The Indian Staff College was opened in Quetta in 1907.

Agent to the Governor-General and Chief Commissioner in Baluchistan.—The Hon. Lt.-Col. H. B. St. John, C.I.E., C.B.E.: salary, Rs. 48,000 per year.

Area and Population.—Area, 134,638 square miles; population (1921 census), 799,625. The main divisions are: (1) British Balúchistán proper, with an area of about 9,096 square miles, consisting of tracts assigned to the British Government by treaty in 1879; (2) Agency Territories, with an area of about 45,132 square miles, composed of tracts which have from time to time been acquired by lease, or otherwise brought under control, and placed directly under British officers; and (3) the States of Kalát and Las Bela, with an area of about 80,410 sq. miles, the former consisting of a confederation of tribes under the Khán of Kalát, and stretching westwards to Persia, while the latter occupies the alluvial valley between the Pab and Hálá ranges from the sea to Bela.

Religion and Education.—The religion of the population is either Musalman, in general of the Sunni sect, or Hindú. The Musalmans numbered (1921 census) 733,477; Hindus, 51,348; Christians, 6,693; Sikhs, 7,741; others, 366. At the close of 1927-28 there were 99 public schools and 177 private schools for boys and 8 schools for girls; also 2 European schools for boys and girls. Of the 8,563 pupils 1,456 were girls. More than one-third of the pupils were Hindus, children of men from Sind and the Panjab in trade or in Government service.

Justice.—Almost all cases in which local men are concerned are referred to 'councils of elders' (locally called jirga) for settlement along the well-tried lines of the ancient customary and tribal law.

Finance.—In the directly administered territory the chief items of revenue are: Land revenue, excise, court fees and stamps, and judicial fines. In some places the land revenue is levied in money in accordance with a fixed assessment, but generally it is levied in kind. The revenue from all sources in 1927-28 was Rs. 22·73 lakhs; and the expenditure Rs. 91·73 lakhs.

Production and Industry.—The country consists largely of barren mountains, deserts and stony plains; its climate is subject to the extremes of heat and cold, and the rainfall is uncertain and scanty. The agricultural products are wheat, barley, millet, lucerne, rice, maize, and potatoes; while grapes, apricots, peaches, apples, and melons are grown in abundance. Panjgur in Mekran is famous for its dates.

Commerce and Communications.—Registration of trade was discontinued from April, 1925. There are 1,397 miles of metalled and partly metalled roads and 892 miles of railway.

The North-Western railway, gauge 5ft. 6in., enters Baluchistan near Jhatpat and crosses the Kachhi plain to Sibi, where it bifurcates, one branch going by Harnai and the other by Quetta, and reunites at Bostan, whence the line runs to Chaman. There is a line of railway to Nushki 82½ miles long, and an extension from Nushki up to Duzdap on the Persian border, and also a short line from Khanai to Killa-Saifulla, a distance of about 84 miles.

There is a complete and frequent postal service in British and administered territory, extending to Kalat and through Duzdap to Seistan and Meshed.

A network of telegraph wires covers the north-eastern portion of the Province and extends to Kalat, and westwards via Nushki to Killá Robát, where it connects with the Indo-European system, while a further line connects India with Persia and Europe, via Las Bela, Panjgur, and Nok Kundi.

BENGAL PRESIDENCY.

Constitution and Government.—The British first came to the shores of Bengal in 1633, when the first factories were established. A new centre of trade was fixed by Job Charnock at Calcutta in 1690. In 1699 Bengal was constituted a separate Presidency, and there were Presidents and Governors of Fort William from 1700 to 1774, the last being Warren Hastings. There were Governors-General of Fort William from 1774 to 1834. In 1834 the Bengal Presidency was divided into two Presidencies, 'Agra' and 'Fort William in Bengal.' In 1854 the Government of Bengal was entrusted to a Lieutenant-Governor, the offices of Governor-General of India and Governor of Bengal having previously been united in one person. In 1874 the Bengal Province was reduced to Bengal proper, Bihar and Orissa. In 1905 a portion of Bengal proper together with Assam went to form a new Province, Eastern Bengal and Assam. In 1910 the Government of the remainder of Bengal with Bihar and Orissa was constituted into a Lieutenant-Governorship with an Executive Council consisting of three Members. A new Presidency of Bengal, reuniting all the Bengali-speaking districts, was established in 1912 under a Governor in Council (three Members). Finally, from 1921, in accordance with the Government of India Act of 1919, the administration consisted of the Governor with four Executive Councillors (two being Indians) for the 'reserved' subjects and of the Governor with three Indian Ministers for the 'transferred' subjects. There is a Legislative Council of 140 Members consisting of 114 elected and 26 nominated and ex-officio Members (not more than 20 may be officials). For administrative purposes there are five divisions, under which there are 27 districts, exclusive of Calcutta. For the purposes of Local Self-Government there are 26 District Boards, all except two with non-official Chairmen; 82 Local Boards; and 2,217 smaller units called Union Boards. There are 115 Municipalities. The Calcutta Corporation was reconstituted by an Act of 1923 with a Mayor, Chief Executive Officer and other officials, all of whom are to be elected by the Corporation; there are 85 Councillors and 5 Aldermen.

Governor.—H.E. Colonel the Rt. Hon. Sir Francis Stanley Jackson, P.C., G.C.I.E.: appointed March 28, 1927: salary Rs. 120,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—Bengal in its present form, as reconstituted in 1912, covers 82,277 square miles, of which 76,843 square miles are British territory. The population (1921) is 46·6 millions in British territory and 896,926 in two Indian States. Calcutta with its suburbs accounts for 1,132,246; the urban population of the remainder of the Province is only 4 per cent. of the whole. Howrah has a population of 195,301; and Dacca of 119,450. Mohammedans constitute 53·5 per cent., and Hindus 43·7 per cent. Of the 149,075 Christians, 22,730 were Europeans. Bengali is the mother tongue of 92 per cent. of the total population, though altogether 80 different languages are found spoken in Bengal.

Education.—Recognised Educational Institutions in 1926-27 numbered 58,833, and unrecognised 1,610. The number of pupils in all classes of Institutions was 2,343,380. The Calcutta University is both an affiliating and a teaching University, dating from 1857. Dacca University is a teaching University, founded in 1921. Art Colleges for males number 41 with 22,131 students; of these 9 were maintained by Government. There were 2,675 secondary schools for Indian boys. The primary schools for boys numbered 38,187. Of the total number of pupils in primary schools 53·3 per cent. were Muhammedans and 45·9 per cent. were Hindus. There were 98 Institutions for the training of teachers. There were 731 students in Engineering in 2 Institutions. There were 14,748 Institutions of all kinds for Indian girls. For children of Europeans and Anglo-Indians there were 62 Institutions.

Justice and Crime.—The High Court consists of a Chief Justice and 16 Judges. For Criminal and Civil justice there were in 1927

42 District and Sessions Judges (including Additional Judges). For Criminal justice there were 411 stipendiary and 635 honorary Magistrates, and for Civil justice 44 Subordinate Judges and 235 Munsifs (Civil Judges of the first instance). There were 295,039 criminal cases brought to trial in 1927; and outside Calcutta 588,164 civil suits were instituted. The Bengal Police has a strength of 24,325 under an Inspector-General. The Calcutta force is a separate force under a Commissioner of Police who is directly under Government.

Finance.—The Revenue (revised estimates) collected in 1927–28 was 1,077 lakhs of rupees. To this sum Stamps furnished the largest contribution, nearly 350 lakhs; next, Land Revenue, 315 lakhs, and then Excise, 224 lakhs. Registration fees gave 40 lakhs and Bengal Forests 34 lakhs. On the expenditure side the total was 1,103 lakhs. Police cost 188 lakhs, Education 138 lakhs, General Administration 119 lakhs, and Medical Department 55 lakhs. The administration of Justice cost 108 lakhs. Forests gave a surplus of income over expenditure of 17 lakhs. As a special measure, the annual contribution of 63 lakhs to the Central Government has been remitted for six years from 1922–23.

Production and Industry.—During the close of 1926 there were 1,234 registered factories of all kinds. There were 85 jute mills and a daily average of 325,190 operatives. Cotton mills numbered 12 with 12,781 operatives. The Coal Mining Industry in Bengal had in 1926–27 209 mines, employing 43,506 operatives with an output of 5,137,688 tons. Seventy-seven per cent. of the population depend on agriculture.

Commerce and Communications.—The foreign trade of Bengal in 1927–28 amounted to 89 crores of rupees of Imports and 148 crores of Exports. Cotton goods accounted for 34·06 per cent. of the Imports. Of the Exports, jute manufactures and raw jute accounted for 62·2 per cent. The United Kingdom sent 55·9 per cent. of the Imports, and received 21·6 per cent. of the Exports.

In 1926–27 the length of metalled roads was 3,434 miles and of unmetalled roads 34,261 miles. Bengal possesses no less than 1,876 miles of navigable canals. The length of railways within the province on March 31, 1927, was 3,288 miles.

BIHAR AND ORISSA.

Constitution and Government.—The Province, containing the three different ethnic areas, Bihar, Chota Nagpur and Orissa, was taken from the old Province of Bengal and constituted under a Lieut.-Governor in Council in 1912. After the Reforms Act of 1919, the administration was changed into a Governorship. For the 'reserved' subjects there is an Executive Council with two Members (one an Indian), and for the 'transferred' subjects two Indian Ministers. There is a Legislative Council of 103 Members, 76 elected and 27 nominated and ex-officio (of whom no more than 18 may be officials). For the purposes of administration there are 5 divisions, covering 21 districts.

Governor.—H.E. Sir Hugh L. Stephenson, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E., I.C.S.: appointed April 7, 1927: salary Rs. 100,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The British territories cover 83,180 square miles, with a population (1921) of 34 millions. The Feudatory States of Orissa and Chota Nagpur attached to the Province of Bihar and Orissa have an area of 28,656 square miles and a population of 3,959,669. The three principal towns are Patna, the capital (119,976), Bhagalpur (68,878), and Gaya (67,562). Hindus form the great majority of the population.

Education.—At the census of 1921 the proportion of literates was only 4·7 per cent. as compared with 7·5 for the rest of India. The percentage of Indian boys attending school reached 39·1 in 1926–27. The University of Patna constituted in 1917 is an affiliating University. A Board of Secondary Education was constituted in 1922. In 1926–27 there were 3,474 students in Arts Colleges. There were 101,799 pupils in 730 secondary schools, and 941,675 pupils in 30,247 primary schools. There is a College for Engineering at Patna (Bihar) and a School at Cuttack (Orissa); also the Tirhut Technical Institute and the Ranchi Technical School.

Justice and Crime.—There is a High Court (constituted in 1916) at Patna with a Chief Justice and 8 Judges. On the Criminal side there are Sessions Judges, Stipendiary and Honorary Magistrates. For the administration of Civil Justice there are District Judges, Subordinate Judges, and Munsiffs (Courts of first instance). The Police Force is under an Inspector-General; there is one policeman to 2,376 of the population and to 5·8 square miles of the area of the Province, the combined proportion being less than in any other Province of India.

Finance.—The revenue (revised estimates) for the Bihar and Orissa Province in 1927–28 was 565 lakhs of rupees, including 195 lakhs from Excise, 167 lakhs from Land Revenue, 110 lakhs from Stamps, and nearly 11 lakhs from the Forest Department. The expenditure was 594 lakhs. The chief items were: Police 83 lakhs, Education 88 lakhs, and General Administration 72 lakhs. No contribution is required for the Central Government.

Production and Industry.—The Province is principally agricultural; 814 persons per mille depend on agriculture for their livelihood, and 963 per mille live in villages. The principal crop, rice, covers nearly half the cropped area; then come sugar-cane and maize. The area under indigo in Bihar was 16,100 acres in 1924–25. The coal area is in the Manbhum and Hazaribagh districts of Chota Nagpur. The total output was 14·5 million tons out of 22 millions for the whole of India in 1927. The districts of Hazaribagh, Monghyr and Gaya form the most important source of mica in the world. In Singhbhum are the Tata Iron and Steel Works at Jamshedpur, with a pay-roll of 30,000 employees, and an additional 16,000 engaged in collieries, mines and quarries. The reserved forests cover an area of 1,785 square miles. In 1927 there were 8,221 Co-operative Societies with a working capital of 502 lakhs.

Commerce and Communications.—There was in 1924–25 a trans-frontier trade of 526 lakhs with Nepal, and a small maritime trade in Orissa. The total mileage in 1927–28 of metalled roads was 3,900 and of unmetalled roads 26,401. There are also 501 miles of navigable canals in Bihar and Orissa. The East Indian, Bengal and North-Western and Bengal Nagpur Railways traverse the province. There are also 4 light railways with 149 miles.

BOMBAY PRESIDENCY.

Constitutional Government.—The English obtained a factory at Surat in 1616. Bombay was acquired by the Portuguese in 1530, and given in 1661 to Charles II as part of the dowry of Catherine of Braganza. In 1668 the king granted the Island of Bombay to the East India Company for the small annual rent of £10: it was placed under the President of the factory at Surat. The headquarters of the Bombay Governor were transferred from Surat to Bombay in 1708. The administration is in the hands of the Governor and an Executive Council of four (of whom two are Indians) for the 'reserved' subjects, and of the Governor with three Indian Ministers (the Minister of Local Self-Government, the Minister of Education and the Minister of Forests and Excise) for the 'transferred' subjects. The Legislative Council consists of 114 Members, including the 4 Members of Council. There are 86 elected Members and 28 nominated and ex-officio Members, of whom not more than 20 may be officials; but the present (1928) number is 17 only. There are, in addition to Bombay city, 5 administrative Divisions—Northern, Central and Southern, Bombay Suburban, and Sind—under which are 27 Districts. In 1927–28 there were 156 Municipalities, 26 District Local Boards, and 220 Taluka Boards.

Governor.—H. E. Major-General Sir Frederick Sykes, G.C.I.E., G.B.E., appointed June 27, 1928. Salary Rs. 120,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The British Districts cover an area of 123,621 sq. miles: population (1921), nearly 19½ millions, mainly Hindus. The Indian States in relation with the Bombay Presidency cover 28,562 sq. miles and have a population of 4 millions (p. 165). The Western Indian States (p. 171) are in relation with the Government of India. In Sind, the Mohammedans are in the majority. Parsis are only 0·43 per cent. of the population in British territory. The density varies from 71 per sq. mile in Sind to 48,996 in Bombay City. The chief languages are Sindi, Gujarati, Marathi, and in the South Kanarese. The principal towns are Bombay (1,175,914), Ahmedabad (274,007), Poona (214,796), and Karachi (216,883).

Education.—The Bombay University founded in 1857 is an affiliating University. Under the University are 18 Arts Colleges and 6 Professional Colleges, for Engineering, Medicine, Agriculture, Commerce, and Law. In 1926–27 the number of students in the Arts Colleges was 7,027, and in the Professional Colleges 2,161. Recognised and unrecognised Educational Institutions numbered, in 1926–27, 18,211 with 1,148,714 scholars. Secondary schools numbered 529 with 100,294 pupils, and primary schools 12,300 with 851,433 pupils. To the total expenditure on education Government contributed 51·9 per cent., local authorities 18·7 per cent., and fees 17·4 per cent.

Justice and Crime.—The High Court of Bombay has a Chief Justice and 10 Judges. In Sind there is the Court of the Judicial Commissioner. Criminal justice is administered by the High Court, the Sessions Judges and 969 Magistrates. The number of persons tried was 318,000 in 1926–27. The Stipendiary Police Force of 23,200 men is under an Inspector-General; but Bombay City is under the control of a Commissioner of Police. Outside of Bombay City the incidence of the Police Force varies from one to every 623 inhabitants in Sind to one to every 1,031 in the Southern Division.

Finance.—The revenue of the Government of Bombay for 1927–28 was 1,550 lakhs, the chief contributions being 467 lakhs from Land Revenue, 409 lakhs from Excise, 167 lakhs from Stamps, and 76 lakhs from Forests. The expenditure for 1927–28 was 1,601½ lakhs. General Administration cost 227 lakhs, Education 201 lakhs and Police 170 lakhs. The contribution of the Bombay Government to the Central Government was 33½ lakhs for 1927–28. Under the head of Capital Expenditure 235 lakhs were spent on the construction of Irrigation Works; and 183 lakhs on the Bombay Development Scheme.

Production and Industry.—Sixty-four per cent. of the population are dependent on agriculture. The textile trade is dominant in production. The number of looms in 1927 in Bombay Island was 73,701, and in the rest of the Bombay Presidency 48,408. The number of factories of all kinds was 1,596 in 1927, and the number of operatives in all industries was 381,868, including 80,155 women and 6,322 children. There was a decrease of 10 per cent. in the number of child operatives. There are 12,000 sq. miles of reserved forests.

Irrigation.—There are two spheres, the Deccan and Gujarat, and the Sind. The Lloyd Barrage at Sukkur is intended to supply the defect due to the low natural level of the Indus. This scheme provides for the irrigation of 500,000 more acres than the total cultivated area of Egypt; and the estimated cost is over £12,000,000. In Sind 3,860,000 acres were irrigated in 1926–27, and in the Deccan and Gujarat 273,000.

Commerce and Communications.—In 1926–27 Bombay had 8,719 miles of metalled roads and 20,595 miles of unmetalled roads. In 1926–27 the total length of railway open in the Bombay Presidency was 5,595 miles.

In January, 1928, the electrification of the suburban services to the North of Bombay was inaugurated.

The total foreign trade in 1926–27 was 184 crores of rupees, and the total coasting trade 65½ crores. Bombay had 112 crores of Imports and 72 crores of Exports; Karachi had 31 crores of Imports and 44 crores of Exports. India cotton to the extent of 385,000 tons left Bombay for abroad.

BURMA.

Constitution and Government.—As far back as 1612 the East India Company had agents and factories at Syriam (near Rangoon), Prome and Ava. From 1796 there was a Resident at Rangoon. The first Burma War gave in 1826 Arakan and Tenasserim to the British; in 1852 Pegu was annexed by Lord Dalhousie; in 1862 the Provinces in Burma were amalgamated under a Chief Commissioner; and in 1886 Upper Burma was annexed. In 1897 the charge was changed to a Lieut.-Governorship. From 1923 the Province has been constituted a Governor's Province under the Government of India Act of 1919. The Governor and two Members of the Executive Council (one a Burman) are in charge of the 'reserved' subjects, and the Governor and two Burman Ministers are in charge of the 'transferred' subjects. There are seven administrative Divisions, exclusive of the Shan States (four Lower Burma, three Upper Burma) under Commissioners, and under these again 38 Deputy Commissioners of Districts. The Northern and Southern Shan States, which form part of British India, are administered by their Chiefs under the supervision of the Commissioner of the Federated Shan States. These groups were federated in 1922; and since 1923 there has been a Council of Chiefs. The Legislative Council of Burma consists of 103 Members, of whom 80 are elected and 23 nominated and ex-officio. No more than 14 may be officials.

Governor.—H.E. Sir Charles Alexander Innes, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., I.C.S.; appointed 1927: salary, Rs. 1,00,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The area of the Province is 262,732 sq. miles. Burma proper, inclusive of the Chin Hills and Kachin Hill Tracts, covers 184,102 sq. miles. The Shan States cover 62,805 sq. miles; and there are 16,825 sq. miles of unadministered territory. The total population (1921) was 13,212,192. The leading towns are Rangoon, the capital (345,505), and Mandalay (148,917). The proportion of religions per 1,000 in 1921 was: Buddhists, 851; Animists, 53; Hindus, 37; Mohammedans, 38; Christians, 20; and others, 1. The Burmans belong to the Tibetan group. Cultivation of various kinds supported 9,158,932.

Education.—The number of pupils in the 6,885 recognised colleges and schools was 443,302 in 1926-27; and 202,670 in the unrecognised institutions. Burma is the most literate Province in the Indian Empire; far ahead of India in primary education. Higher education is controlled by the University, Anglo-Vernacular and English schools by Government, and Vernacular education by Local Bodies. In almost every village there is a Buddhist monastery, where the three R's are taught. There were in 1926-27 238,837 pupils in upper and lower primary schools, and 188,463 pupils attending 1,504 secondary schools of all kinds. The teaching University of Rangoon was constituted in 1920, with two Arts Colleges; and there is an Intermediate College at Mandalay. There is also an Agricultural College and Research Institute at Mandalay, and a Technical Institute and a Veterinary School at Insein (near Rangoon).

Justice and Crime.—There is a High Court at Rangoon (constituted 1922) for the control of the administration of Civil and Criminal Justice; there are a Chief Justice and 11 Judges. Besides Sessions Judges there were 599 Stipendiary Magistrates in 1925-26: 120,666 criminal cases were brought to trial in 1925. The number of civil suits instituted was 66,102 in 1925. There is a Civil Police Force of 13,644 officers and men under an Inspector-General; a Rangoon Town Force of 1,496 under a Commissioner of Police; and—the special feature of Burma—several battalions of Military Police, the strength of which is 10,090 men.

Finance.—The revenue receipts (revised estimates) of 1927–28 were 1,077 lakhs, to which Land Revenue contributed 546 lakhs, Forests 205 lakhs, Excise 128 lakhs, Stamps 72 lakhs, and Irrigation 30 lakhs. The expenditure charged to revenue (revised estimates) in 1927–28 totalled 1,229 lakhs, the largest item being Civil Works 273 lakhs; next, Police 176 lakhs; Education 136 lakhs; and General Administration 108 lakhs. There was no contribution to the Central Government by the Provincial Government in 1927–28. The net surplus from Forests was 123 lakhs of rupees.

Production and Industry.—The area of reserved Forests at the end of 1926–27 was 28,647 sq. miles. The out-turn of teak by lessees was 854,855 tons. In 1927 the output of tin was, in the Tenasserim area, 3,220 tons; of tungsten ore, 166 tons; of silver, almost entirely from the mines of the Burma Corporation, Ltd., in the N. Shan States, 6,004,437 ounces. The total provincial output of petroleum (1927) was 245,904,044 gallons. The total number of factories of all kinds was 940; and the total number of persons employed in factories was 101,353.

Commerce and Communications.—In 1926–27 the whole sea-borne trade of Burma was 113·6 crores of rupees. Customs duty realised 531 lakhs. The length of metalled roads was 1,925 miles, and there were 7,383 miles of unmetalled roads. Burma had also 60 miles of navigable canals. Its great river, the Irrawaddy, is navigable up to Bhamo, 900 miles from the sea; and its tributary, the Chindwin, is navigable for 300 miles. The railways of the Province were taken over by the Government of India in January 1929. The open mileage for the year 1927–28 was 1,908·45 miles.

CENTRAL PROVINCES AND BERAR.

Constitution and Government.—From 1853 the territories of the Kingdom of Nagpur were declared by Lord Dalhousie to have lapsed to the Paramount Power, and were then administered as the Nagpur Province by a Commissioner under the Government of India. With some additions this area was constituted the Central Provinces in 1861. Owing to the bankruptcy of Berar and the debts owing to the British Government, a treaty with the Nizam of Hyderabad in 1853 allotted to the British certain districts known as the Hyderabad 'Assigned Districts' for the payment of the Hyderabad Contingent. In 1902 the rights of the Nizam over Berar were leased in perpetuity to the Government of India at an annual rental of 25 lakhs; and Berar was transferred to the administration of the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces. In 1920 a Governorship was created. Associated with the Governor are two Executive Councillors (one an Indian) for the 'reserved' subjects, and two Ministers for the 'transferred' subjects. There are five main administrative divisions with 22 districts, each under a Deputy Commissioner. All the Feudatory States are under a Political Agent. The Legislative Council of 73 has 55 elected Members and 18 nominated and ex-officio Members (not more than 10 may be officials). For Local Self-Government there are 18 District Councils and 2 Independent Local Boards in the Central Provinces, and 4 District Councils in Berar; also 66 Municipalities.

Governor.—His Excellency Sir Montagu Butler, K.C.S.I., C.B., C.I.E., C.V.O., C.B.E.: appointed 1925: salary Rs. 72,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The British Districts of the Central Provinces have an area of 82,109 sq. miles and a population (1921) of 10,837,400; Berar an area of 17,767 sq. miles and a population of 3,075,300; and the Feudatory States an area of 31,176 sq. miles and a population of 2,066,900. The urban population is only 90 per mille. The leading towns are: Nagpur, the capital, 145,193; and Jubbulpore, 108,793. The Hindus in 1921 numbered 13·1 millions (nearly five-sixths of the total population); the Animists 2·1 millions; Mohammedans 0·5 million; and Christians 0·07 million.

Education.—The Nagpur University was established in 1923: to this the Colleges at Nagpur, Jubbulpore and Amraoti are affiliated. There were 1,833 collegiate students in 1926-27. There is a High School Board for regulating and supervising high school education. There were 95,749 pupils in secondary schools in 1926-27. Under the head of primary education there were 4,189 recognised Institutions (with 270,072 pupils) for boys, and 334 similar Institutions (with 21,027 pupils) for girls. For Technical Education there is an Engineering School with 160 students at Nagpur. There are 50 pupils at the Rajkumar College, Raipur.

Justice and Crime.—The Court of the Judicial Commissioner at Nagpur, with a Judicial Commissioner and four Additional Judicial Commissioners, is the highest Criminal and Civil Court. There were in 1926 11 District and Sessions Judges, with 815 Magistrates for criminal cases, and about 116 Subordinate Judges for civil cases. There were 38,256 criminal cases tried; and 113,225 civil suits were instituted.

Finance.—The revenue (revised estimates) for 1927-28 was 546 lakhs. Towards this total Land Revenue contributed 245 lakhs, Excise 125 lakhs, Stamp Duties 65 lakhs, and Forests 53 lakhs. On the expenditure side the total was 539 lakhs; General Administration cost 66 lakhs; next, Police 58 lakhs; Education 54 lakhs; and then Forests 39 lakhs. The contribution of the Provincial Government of the Central Provinces and Berar to the Central Government of India was 22 lakhs for 1926-27.

Production and Industry.—The Agricultural College at Nagpur had 109 students in 1926-27. The result of the distribution of improved seeds by the Department of Agriculture was an increased out-turn valued at about 82 lakhs. The area irrigated was 551,743 acres. The number of Co-operative Societies of all kinds in 1926-27 was 4,124. Berar and the Western Districts of the Nagpur Provinces grow cotton. Nagpur is the centre of a cotton-spinning and weaving industry. The Forest Department controls 19,677 sq. miles of Forests: the Forests gave in 1925-26 a surplus of 14·7 lakhs of rupees. The coal output in 1927 was 666,758 tons, and the manganese output was 761,365 tons. There were 747 factories of all kinds with a daily average of 67,106 employees.

Communications.—In 1927-28 there were 4,751 miles of metalled roads, and 3,754 unmetalled. The railway mileage is 2,498, of which 1,630 miles are broad gauge and 868 narrow and metre gauge.

COORG.

This Province came under British control in 1834, when, at the wish of the inhabitants, the reigning Raja, a cruel tyrant, was deposed. At first there was a Superintendent of Coorg, acting under the Commissioner of Mysore and Coorg. In 1881 the Resident in Mysore became the Chief Commissioner of Coorg. The local Administrator is the Commissioner of Coorg at the capital, Mercara. A Legislative Council of 20 was created in 1924. The area is 1,582 sq. miles; and the population (1921) is 163,838. Kanarese is the chief language: Kodagu (Coorg language) is a dialect of old Kanarese. In 1927-28 the revenue was 12·67 lakhs and the expenditure 13·59 lakhs. There were, in 1927, 758 boys in high schools and 7,307 in primary schools, and 180 girls in high schools and 666 in primary schools. There are 39,822 acres under coffee, and 3,623 tons were exported in 1926-27.

Chief Commissioner.—The Hon. Mr. S. E. Pears, C.S.I., C.I.E.: salary, Rs. 48,000 per year.

Administration Report. Annual. Bangalore.

DELHI.

The Delhi Province, with an area of 593 sq. miles, was part of the Punjab Province before October 1912, when the enclave was created into a separate province under a Chief Commissioner. In 1915 a tract of land in the United Provinces comprising 65 villages was added to the Delhi Province, and is included in the above-mentioned area. The population is 488,188 (1921); the urban population in Delhi town itself is 304,420.

The revised estimate for the new capital is 1,532 lakhs of rupees; an expenditure of 1,371 lakhs was incurred up to 31st March, 1928. Accommodation is required for a population of about 66,000.

The University of Delhi, intended to be a unitary, teaching and residential institution, was founded in 1922. There are three Arts Colleges affiliated. There is also the All-India Lady Hardinge Medical College for the Medical Education of Indian Women (opened 1916). A Board of Secondary Education was established in 1926.

The revenue of the Province in 1927-28 (estimate) was 42 lakhs; and the expenditure (estimate) 41 lakhs.

Chief Commissioner.—Sir John Thompson, K.C.I.E., C.S.I.: appointed August 8, 1928: salary, Rs. 36,000 per year.

MADRAS PRESIDENCY

Constitution and Government.—The first trading establishment made by the British in the Madras Presidency was at Peddapali (now Nizampatam) in 1611 and then at Masulipatam. In 1639 the English were permitted to make a settlement at the place which is now Madras; and Fort St. George was founded. Fort St. George was raised to the rank of a separate Presidency in 1652. Until 1785 there were Presidents and Governors of Fort St. George in Madras; and from 1785 onwards there were Governors of Madras. The military history of the Presidency ceased with the treaty after the fourth Mysore War in 1799. By 1801 the whole of the country from the Northern Circars to Cape Comorin (with the exception of certain French and Danish settlements) had been brought under British rule. The administration is now in the hands of the Governor in Council (four members, two being Indians) for 'reserved' subjects, and of the Governor acting with three Indian Ministers for the 'transferred' subjects. The Legislative Council at present (1929) consists of 132 Members, of whom 98 are elected, and 34 nominated and ex-officio. The maximum number of officials is 23. There are 26 Districts each under a District Collector and Magistrate. Under the head of Local Self-Government there are 25 District Boards (all but two under non-official Presidents), 81 Municipal Councils, and the Corporation of Madras.

Governor.—His Excellency the Rt. Hon. George Joachim Goschen, Viscount Goschen of Hawkhurst, G.C.I.E., C.B.E., V.D.; appointed 14th April, 1924; salary Rs. 120,000 per year.

Area, Population and Religion.—Area, 142,260 sq. miles. There are also five Indian States which are separately described (p. 168). Population (1921), 42·3 millions. Principal languages, Tamil, Telugu, Malayalam and Kanarese. The first two account for 78 per cent. of the population. The principal towns are, Madras with 526,911 inhabitants, Madura with 138,894, and Trichinopoly with 120,422. Hindus form 89 per cent., Mohammedans 7 per cent., Christians 3 per cent., and Animists 1 per cent.

Education.—The Madras University, founded 1857, is an affiliating and (since 1923) a teaching University. There were in 1927-28, 76 Colleges, of which 18 were under Government; 64 were Arts Colleges, and 12 Professional. Male Arts students numbered 12,848, and the women Arts students numbered 421. Public educational institutions numbered 53,625, with 2,586,544 scholars. There were 48,407 public elementary and 526 secondary schools for Indian boys; and 4,044 elementary and 64 secondary schools for Indian girls. Public funds contributed 59 per cent. of the total expenditure on education.

Justice and Crime.—There is a High Court with a Chief Justice and 13 Judges. There were in 1926 in all 911 Criminal Courts; and 367,163 criminal cases were instituted in 1926. The Police Force in 1926-27 numbered 27,000, under an Inspector-General, while there was a force of nearly 2,000 for Madras City. The total number of civil suits instituted was 593,428 in 1926.

Finance.—The revenue (revised estimates) of the Government of Madras was 1,676 lakhs in 1927-28, the chief contributions being 745 lakhs from Land Revenue, 520 lakhs from Excise, 252 lakhs from Stamps and 53 lakhs from Forests. The expenditure (revised estimates) in 1927-28 was 1,558 lakhs. General Administration accounted for 232 lakhs, Police for 192 lakhs, and Education for 224 lakhs. The contribution to the Central Government was completely remitted during 1927-28, a portion of the remission amounting to 48·73 lakhs being temporary for the year. The proportion of the expenditure in the 'transferred' departments to the total expenditure (excluding the contribution to the Central Government) was 36 per cent. in 1926-27.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture engages 70·25 per cent. of the population. There were in 1926-27 20 cotton mills with 28,483 workers. The total number of factories working in 1926 was 1,198 with 127,411 operatives. The Madras Government in 1927-28 treated at the Government Quinine Factory 604,328 lbs. of cinchona bark. The area irrigated in 1926-27 was 7,012,943 acres: productive irrigation works showed a return of 10·64 per cent. on the capital outlay. The output of timber by the Forest Department was 4,707,000 cubic feet in 1926-27.

Commerce and Communication.—In 1926-27, Madras Presidency had 21,105 miles of metalled roads, and 10,489 miles of unmetalled roads; as well as 1,493 miles of navigable canals. There were 4,001 miles of railway, in addition to 275 miles of District Board lines. The imports of private merchandise under the head of Seaborne Foreign Trade were valued in 1926-27 at Rs. 21·26 crores, and the exports at Rs. 38 crores. Trade to the United Kingdom represented 87 per cent. of the total trade of the Presidency. The Madras Port accounted for 46 per cent. of the total trade; its imports and exports amounted to Rs. 41·97 crores in 1926-27. Tuticorin is the chief of the other ports.

LACCADIVE ISLANDS.

(ATTACHED TO MADRAS PRESIDENCY.)

A group of 14 islands (9 inhabited), about 200 miles off the west or Malabar coast of the Madras Presidency. The northern portion is called the Amindivis and is attached to the collectorate of South Kánara, the remainder to the administrative district of Malabar. Population 13,633, nearly all Moham-medans. The language is Malayalam, but the language in Minico, which is considerably to the south of the other islands, is Mahl. The staple products are coconut husk fibre (coir) and coconuts.

NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

In 1849 the territory on the frontier was annexed and placed under a Board of Administration at Lahore in the Punjab. The frontier districts were separated in 1901 from the Punjab under the name of the North-West Frontier Province: the districts are Hazara, Peshawar, Kohat, Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan. The British territory represents one-third of the whole area of 38,665 sq. miles under the Chief Commissioner and Agent to the Governor-General; the remaining area is tribal territory, partly under Political Agents, and partly under the political control of the Deputy Commissioners of the British districts. The British territory in the five districts has an area of 13,419 sq. miles and a population of 2,251,340 (1921). About 95 per cent. are Mohammedans. Peshawar, the capital, had in 1921 a population of 104,452. The chief language is Pashtu, an Iranian tongue with many Punjabi words. The chief Court is that of the Judicial Commissioner and Additional Judicial Commissioner; and there are three Sessions Judges. In 1926-27 the total number of offences reported was 26,490. The total number of civil suits instituted was 20,680. (The gross revenue in 1927-28 (revised estimate) was 85·10 lakhs, of which 23·17 lakhs came from Land Revenue, and 11·47 lakhs from Stamps. The gross expenditure (revised estimate, 1927-28) was 313·15 lakhs, 22·91 lakhs being Political expenditure, 124·62 lakhs on Frontier Watch and Ward, 27·73 lakhs expenditure on Police, and 26·08 lakhs on Civil Works.) In 1926-27 there were 661 recognised educational Institutions for males with 56,420 scholars, and 86 similar Institutions for females, with 6,656 scholars. The percentage of scholars to the total population is 3·0. The expenditure on Education was 20·8 lakhs, of which 68 per cent. is from Government Funds. Wheat covered 41 per cent. of the acreage sown in 1926-27. The irrigated area in that year was 347,937 acres. The new railway line through the Khyber, 27 miles long, with 34 tunnels, from Jamrud to the frontier of Afghanistan, was opened in November 1925.

PUNJAB.

Government and Constitution.—British power in the Punjab began with the dissipation by the successors of Ranjit Singh of the power consolidated by him. In 1849 the country was annexed, and placed under a Board of Administration. Punjab denotes the land of the five rivers, viz. Jhelum, Chenab, Ravi, Beas and Sutlej. In 1853 it was placed under a Chief Commissioner, and by 1859 the Punjab and the Delhi Territory constituted the charge of a Lieut.-Governor. The N.W. Frontier area was separated in 1901, and the Delhi enclave in 1911. In 1921 the administration was handed over to a Governor with an Executive Council of two Members (one an Indian) in charge of 'reserved' subjects, and the Governor with three Indian Ministers in charge of 'transferred' subjects. The Legislative Council consists of 94 Members, 2 ex-officio, 71 elected, and 21 nominated: of the latter not more than 14 may be officials. There are 29 districts grouped for administrative purposes under five Commissioners. The system of election has been introduced in the membership of all the District Boards, except Simla. There are 107 Municipalities.

Governor.—H.E. Sir Geoffrey Fitzhervey de Montmorency, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E., K.C.V.O., C.B.E.: appointed October 8, 1928: salary Rs. 1,00,000 per year

Area, Population and Religion.—The Punjab proper comprises an area of 99,846 sq. miles and has a population of 20·6 millions (1921). Its Indian States, 34 in number, have an area of 37,059 sq. miles with 4·4 million people. Of the population 55 per cent. is Mohammedan, 31 per cent. Hindu and 11 per cent. Sikh. The leading towns are: Lahore, the capital (281,781), Amritsar (160,218) and Rawalpindi (101,142).

Education.—The Punjab University was constituted as an examining University in 1882. It has always maintained an Oriental College and a Law College; and since 1920 various departments of University teaching, notably in Science, have been added. In 1927-28 there were 9,727 male students in Arts Colleges; 549,866 male scholars in secondary schools, and 385,989 scholars in primary schools. The total expenditure on Education in 1927-28 was 302 lakhs, of which 152 lakhs were provided by Government Funds and 57 lakhs from fees.

Justice and Crime.—The Chief Court of two Judges created in 1866 was converted in 1919 into a High Court at Lahore, consisting of a Chief Justice and 12 Judges. There are 22 permanent District and Sessions Judges, and 5 others. In 1927 the number of criminal cases brought to trial was 131,431, and the number of civil suits instituted was 206,815. The Provincial Police Force of more than 21,000 officers and men is under an Inspector-General.

Finance.—The revenue in 1927-28 was 1,207 lakhs of rupees, to which the receipts from Irrigation Works contributed the large proportion of 412 lakhs. Land Revenue 300 lakhs, Stamps 118 lakhs, and Excise 117 lakhs. The expenditure was 1,215 lakhs. The chief items of expenditure were: Education 152 lakhs, Police 111 lakhs, Irrigation 149 lakhs, and General Administration 109 lakhs. 50 lakhs of the annual contribution of the Punjab to the Central Government were permanently, and 26 lakhs temporarily, remitted in 1927-28 by the Central Government. The latter sum has also been permanently remitted in 1928-29. The net profit earned by the Irrigation Department has been:—

	Lakhs		Lakhs
1921-22 . . .	261	1924-25 . . .	383
1922-23 . . .	206	1925-26 . . .	357
1923-24 . . .	307	1926-27 . . .	270

Production and Industry.—Agriculture affords subsistence to 60·5 per cent of the population. In 1928 there were 3,541,531 acres of Protected Forests under the Forest Department. The Department from 1869 to 1927-28 had receipts of 917 lakhs and expenditure of 695 lakhs. The surplus over this period was 222 lakhs. The net profit in 1927-28 was 2·69 lakhs. There is a Punjab Arts and Crafts depot at Lahore which serves a dual purpose; the provision of art craftsmen with a market for their wares, and the improvement of design and workmanship. Next to agriculture, handloom weaving is the most important industry, both as regards the number of workers engaged and the value of the products: it is estimated that over 200,000 rely on weaving as their main occupation. Agricultural prosperity is mainly due to irrigation: the canal-irrigated area rose from 3 million acres in 1893 to 12 million acres in 1927-28, larger than the total arable area of England and Wales.

Commerce and Communications.—The Punjab possesses an extensive system of railway communications. The route mileage (6,513 miles) on the N.W. Railway has been increased by the opening to public traffic of 173 miles of new lines during 1927-28, and in addition 510 miles of new lines were under construction at the end of the year. The main source of wealth lies in the export of wheat and cotton. The wheat traffic to Karachi on the N.W. Railway fluctuates considerably. In 1927-28 the export of wheat was 298,000 tons; and of cotton, 131,000 tons. The passenger traffic on the N.W. Railway was 87.9 millions in 1927-28. There are about 3,000 miles of metalled roads and about 25,000 miles of unmetalled roads. Punjab has also 220 miles of navigable canals.

UNITED PROVINCES OF AGRA AND OUDH.

This territory grew out of various cessions and acquisitions. In 1833 the then Bengal Presidency was divided into two parts, one of which became the Presidency of Agra. In 1835 the Agra area was styled the North-West Province and placed under a Lieut.-Governor. Oudh was annexed in 1856. The two provinces of Agra and Oudh were placed, in 1877, under one administrator, styled Lieut.-Governor of the North-West Province and Chief Commissioner of Oudh. In 1902 the name was changed to 'United Provinces of Agra and Oudh,' under a Lieut.-Governor, and the Lieut.-Governorship was altered to a Governorship in 1921. The administration of the 'reserved' subjects is in the hands of the Governor and an Executive Council of two Members, one of whom is an Indian; and the 'transferred' subjects are under the Governor with three Indian Ministers. The Legislative Council consists of 123 Members. There are 100 elected Members, and 23 nominated and ex-officio Members: of the latter not more than 16 may be officials. There are 10 administrative divisions, covering 48 districts, the average size of which is 2,000 square miles and the average population just under a million. The Municipalities in 1926-27 numbered 85, and the District Boards 48; of the former all but 6, and of the latter all are under non-official Chairmen. There are three Indian States, one of which, Benares, came into existence in 1911.

Governor.—His Excellency Sir William Malcolm Hailey, G.C.I.E., K.O.S.I., I.C.S.; appointed August 9, 1928; salary Rs. 120,000 a year.

Area, Population and Religion.—The area of the British districts is 106,295 square miles; population (1921) about 45½ millions; slightly over 1 million are in the 6,267 square miles of the three Indian States. The population is rural to the extent of 89.4 per cent. Lucknow (240,566 in 1921) is the largest city; but the second place is now taken by Cawnpore (216,436) instead of Benares (198,447). Agra had in 1921 185,532, and Allahabad 157,220 inhabitants. Hindus during the last decade have lost numbers to Christianity and Aryaism, but still cover 85 per cent. Mohammedans form 14 per cent.

Education.—The University of Allahabad, first constituted as an affiliating University in 1887, was recognized in 1921 as a unitary teaching and residential University: at the same time it exercised control over the affiliated colleges. Since July 1927 these colleges have been transferred to the new Agra University, which is a purely affiliating and examining University. The Benares Hindu University was constituted in 1916; Lucknow University in 1920; and the Aligarh Muslim University in 1920, all being unitary teaching and residential Universities. All four had 4,907 students in 1926-27. Government maintains an Engineering College at Roorkee, an Agricultural College at Cawnpore, and an Industrial School and a Medical College at Lucknow, besides three Training Colleges for English Teachers at Allahabad, Lucknow and Agra. Educational Institutions of all kinds numbered 24,820 in 1926-27. For secondary education there were 889 Institutions with 132,366 scholars; and for primary education 18,817 schools with 1,038,406 scholars. There were 1,984 institutions for Indian girls with 81,285 scholars. There was compulsory primary education in 29 Municipalities, Government supplying two-thirds of the extra cost involved. The percentage of scholars to the population is 5·15 for males and 0·57 for females. Government contributed 58 per cent. of the total cost of education in 1926-27.

Justice and Crime.—There is a High Court of the Agra Province with a Chief Justice and 11 Judges, sitting at Allahabad; also a Chief Court of Oudh (constituted November 1925) with 5 Judges in all, at Lucknow. There are 19 Sessions divisions in Agra and 6 in Oudh. The persons brought to trial were 176,072 in the Agra Province and 94,542 in Oudh in the year 1927. The stipendiary Police Force is under an Inspector-General, with a force of nearly 29,700 officers and men. The village watchmen have in recent years been reduced from 88,000 to 43,800.

Finance.—The revenue (revised estimates) of the United Provinces in 1927-28 was 1,283 lakhs of rupees. To this total the main contributions were: 895 lakhs from Land Revenue, 172 lakhs from Stamps, 139 lakhs from Excise, 64 lakhs from Forests, and 96 lakhs from Irrigation. On the expenditure side the total (revised estimates) for 1927-28 was 1,171 lakhs. On Education were spent 192 lakhs; on Police 166 lakhs; and on General Administration 131 lakhs. No less than 80 lakhs were spent on the interest on debt incurred on Irrigation Works for which Capital Accounts are kept. On the construction of new Irrigation work, 143 lakhs went in capital expenditure in 1927-28. No contribution was made by the Provincial Government to the Central Government in 1927-28.

Produce and Industry.—Agriculture absorbs 76·8 per cent. of the population; over 34 million acres were under cultivation in 1926-27, and 3 million acres were irrigated from canals. The productive canals gave a net revenue of 6·0 per cent. on the total capital outlay. The Sarda Kichha and Sarda Oudh estimates have been combined into one project, which is estimated to cost 95 lakhs and to irrigate 1,350,000 acres. The great centre of industry is Cawnpore. In 1927 there were 354 factories in the United Provinces. The cotton mills employ most labour; then follows engineering.

Communications.—There were, in 1927–28, 7,750 miles of metalled and 27,660 of unmetalled roads. On the River Ganges and Gogra 425 miles were kept open for navigation. The trunk lines of the East Indian Railway intersect the province.

INDIAN STATES AND AGENCIES.

Information is given below regarding the leading States and Agencies, arranged in alphabetical order.

Assam State (Manipur).—The only feudatory States with which the Assam Administration has political relations are Manipur and the petty States in the Khasi Hills. Manipur has an area of 8,456 square miles and a population (1921) of 384,016. About one-third are animistic tribes. The revenue is nearly 8 lakhs. There is a tribute of Rs.5,000. The ruler is H.H. Maharaja Chura Chand Singh, C.B.E., born 1885; succeeded 1891; salute of 11 guns. Capital, Imphal. The State Administration is under a Darbar consisting of a President (whose services are lent by the Assam Government), three ordinary and three additional Members.

Baluchistan States.—There are two States—Kalat and Las Bela—in relation with the Agent of the Governor-General, who is also the Chief Commissioner of Baluchistan and resides at Quetta. There is the Political Agent, Kalat. The leading chief of Kalat is His Highness Beglar Begi Mir Sir Mahmud Khan, G.C.I.E., Wali of Kalat, who was born in 1864 and succeeded in 1893; he has a personal salute of 21 guns. He is the head of a confederacy of chiefs. The area of Kalat State is 73,278 square miles, and the population 328,281 (1921). The Khan's revenue, including the subsidies and rents for the leased areas paid by the British Government, amounts to nearly 17 lakhs of rupees annually. In 1926 private property in slaves in Kalat was abolished.

The ruling chief of Las Bela is Mir Ghulam Muhammed Khan, Jam of Las Bela, who was born in 1895 and succeeded in 1921. The area of the State is 7,132 square miles; population, 50,696 (1921); the revenue is about 3·8 lakhs of rupees. The State is under the immediate control of the Political Agent in Kalat.

Baroda.—The State was carved out of the remains of the Moghul Empire under Sivaji and then under the Peshwa, and is interlaced with territory in Gujarat and Kathiawar. The Gaekwar Pilaji acquired portion of Gujarat in 1726. The influence of the British as suzerain dates from 1772. The Gaekwar, Malhar Rao, installed in 1870, was deposed in 1875 for misgovernment, and on May 27, 1875, the widow of Khandi Rao adopted as heir the present ruler, a descendant of the founder of the family, who was invested with full ruling powers in 1881. The area of the State is 8,135 square miles; the population, 2,126,522. Baroda City, the capital, has a population of 91,178. The receipts in 1926-27 were 246 lakhs. There were 2,996 educational institutions with 217,036 pupils, including Baroda College with 812 students. There were 750 Co-operative Societies of all kinds, with 25,739 members and a working capital of 47.9 lakhs. The ruler is H.H. Farzand-i-Khas-i-Daulat-i-Inglish-i-a Maharaja Sir Sayaji Rao Gaekwar, Sena Khas Khel Shamsheer Bahadur, G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., born 1863; succeeded 1875; salute of 21 guns. There is an Executive Council of 5 members, and a Legislative Council of 27 members, 10 being elected. The Government of India is represented by a Resident, who resides at Baroda.

Administration Report. Baroda. Annual.
Sergeant (P. W.), The Ruler of Baroda. London, 1928.

Bengal States.—There are two semi-independent States, Cooch Behar and Tripura, in respect of which the Governor of Bengal acts as Agent to the Governor-General. Cooch Behar is under a Regent, H.H. the Maharani of Cooch Behar, on behalf of her son, H.H. Jagaddipendra Narayan Bhup Bahadur, who, when only seven years of age, succeeded in 1922. The ruler has a salute of 13 guns. There is a Regency Council, the Vice-President of which is an officer lent by the British Government who resides at Cooch Behar. The area is 1,307 square miles; population (1921) 592,489; the approximate annual revenue is 40 lakhs of rupees.

Tripura State covers 4,116 square miles; the population is (1921) 304,437; the approximate revenue 29 lakhs (inclusive of the revenue of the landed properties owned by the State in British India). The ruler is H.H. Maharaja Manikya Bir Bikram Kishor Deb Barman Bahadur; born 1908; succeeded 1923; salute of 13 guns. He was formally invested with the powers of a Ruling Chief by the Governor of Bengal in August, 1927.

Bihar and Orissa Feudatory States.—There are 26 Feudatory States attached to Orissa, the Political Agent and Commissioner of which resides at Sambalpur. Seventeen are administered by their own Chiefs, and 9 are under the administration of the Government of Bihar and Orissa. The total population is 3,959,669, and the total area 28,664 square miles. The real income in 1927-28 was Rs.1,04,39,578, and their tribute to the Government was Rs. 96,449.

Bombay States.—There are 151 (131 being without a salute) States and Estates which are in political relations with the Bombay Government, the chief of which is Kolhapur, with an area of 3,217 sq. miles, a population of 833,728, and an approximate revenue of 113 lakhs. The Maharaja of Kolhapur is H.H. Sir Rajaram Chhatrapati, G.C.I.E.; born 1897; succeeded 1922; salute of 19 guns. From 1926 the Dewan of Kolhapur and three Ministers constitute the Council of the State. Khairpur has an area of 6,050 sq. miles and a population of 193,152. The Mir of Khairpur is H.H. Mir Ali Navaz Khan Talpur; born 1884; succeeded 1921; salute of 15 guns. The State of Idar is under Lieut.-Colonel H.H. Maharaja Sir Daulat Singhji, K.C.S.I. (born 1878; succeeded 1911; salute of 15 guns). The area is 1,669 sq. miles; and the population (1921) 226,355. See also Western India States (p. 171).

Burma States.—The 6 Northern and the 35 Southern Shan States, federated since 1922, are not States on the same footing as States in other parts of the Indian Empire, but are an integral part of British India, forming, as they did, part of the old Burmese Kingdom. They do not, however, form part of Burma proper, and are specially administered. The total area is 56,313 sq. miles, with a population of 1,433,000.

To the south of the Southern Shan States are the three Karen-ni States, with an area of 4,280 sq. miles and a population of 63,000. They form a group of Feudatory States, and are not part of British India. They are administered by their own Chiefs under the advice of the Commissioner of the Federated Shan States through his representative, an Assistant Political Officer, who resides at Loikaw.

Central India Agency.—This Agency, covering 51,531·3 sq. miles, with a population of 5,997,023, includes 28 Salute States and 58 Minor States and Guaranteed Estates. The bulk of the population are Hindus. The Government of India is represented by an Agent to the Governor-General at Indore; and under him are Political Agents for Baghelkhand, Bundelkhand, Bhopal, and in the Southern States of Central India and Malwa. The territories of the different States are much divided and intermingled, and their political relations with the Indian Government and with one another are very varied.

Indore has an area of 9,519 sq. miles, a population of 1,151,598, and an approximate revenue of Rs. 1,35,36,000. The Ruler is H.H. Maharajadhiraja Yeshwant Rao II. Holkar Bahadur; born 1908; succeeded 1926; permanent salute of 19 guns.

Bhopal has an area of 6,902 sq. miles, a population of 692,448, and an approximate revenue of 62,10,000 lakhs. The Ruler is Lt.-Col. H.H. Nawab Haji Muhammad Hamidulla Khan Bahadur, C.S.I., C.V.O., B.A., the youngest and surviving son of the Nawab Begam, who abdicated in his favour in 1926; permanent salute of 19 guns. In 1927 the King Emperor recognised the right of a daughter of a Ruler to succeed in the absence of a son; and a Legislative Council was established.

Rewa has an area of 13,000 sq. miles, a population of 1,401,672, and an approximate revenue of 62 lakhs. The ruler is H.H. Maharaja Sir Gulab Singh Bahadur, K.C.S.I.; born 1903; succeeded 1918; salute of 17 guns.

Central Provinces States.—Under the Government of the Central Provinces are 15 Feudatory States covering 31,082 sq. miles, with a population of two millions. Their total revenue is 52 lakhs, and they pay tribute in all of 2·4 lakhs. The largest is Bastar, which has an area of 13,062 sq. miles, a population of 464,407, and an approximate income of Rs. 8,26,000 to which the Forest income contributed 2·6 lakhs in 1926. The headquarters of the Political Agent is at Raipur.

Gwalior.—This State is the principal fragment of the great empire of the Marathas. The founder of the dynasty, Ramaji Sindhia, held military rank under Peshwa Baji Rao (1720), and established his headquarters at Ujjain. From 1782 Mahadji Sindhia was recognised by Hastings as an independent ruler, and a British resident was posted at his court. The present area of the territory was finally settled in 1886 when Gwalior Fort was restored by Lord Dufferin.

The area is 26,882 sq. miles, and the population 3,195,476 (1921). Hindus form the bulk of the population. The approximate revenue is 214 lakhs. In 1922-23 there were 1,044 educational institutions with 46,075 pupils, including Victoria College, Lashkar, with 110 students. There were 13 municipalities. There were 1,978 co-operative societies with 32,778 members and a working capital of 19·9 lakhs. Up to 1923 the capital outlay on State railways was 22·5 lakhs.

The ruler is H.H. Maharaja George Jivaji Rao Scindia Alijah Bahadur; born 1916; succeeded 1925; salute of 21 guns. The State is in direct relation with the Government of India through a Resident, who resides at Gwalior. The administration is carried on by a Council of Regency under the presidency of the Senior Maharani during the minority of the Maharaja.

Administration Report. Lashkar. Annual.

Hyderabad.—The territory of this State, the largest and most populous of Indian States, had become a province of the Moghul Empire in 1687. In 1713 the Emperor appointed Mir Kamruddin Ali Khan, otherwise known as Chin Killij Khan, of Turkoman descent, as Subadar or Viceroy of the Deccan with the title of Nizam-ul-Mulk (administrator of the land). Nizam-ul-Mulk became independent, and founded the present dynasty of the Nizam in 1724; and Hyderabad, founded in 1589 by a descendant of the Golconda dynasty which gave way to the Moghuls, became the capital. The present ruler is a direct descendant of the original Nizam-ul-Mulk.

The area is 82,698 sq. miles; and the population, 12,471,770 (1921). Most of the people are Hindus. The administration is carried on, subject to the order of H.E.H. the Nizam, by an Executive Council. There is a Legislative Council of 20 members, in addition to the President. Of these, 11 are official, 7 non-official and 2 extraordinary members. The Government of India is represented by a Resident whose headquarters are at Hyderabad. Besides the Hyderabad Municipality, there are 15 District and 107 Sub-district Boards. There are Regular Troops, Imperial Service Troops and the Golconda Brigade.

In 1925-26 there were 157 officers administering criminal justice, and 143 Civil Judges of all classes. In that year 28,864 criminal cases were instituted and 23,181 civil suits. The District and City Police numbered 14,580. The number of public educational institutions was 4,098 with 258,298 pupils, with a total expenditure from public and private sources of about 74 lakhs. There were 5 Arts Colleges with a total strength of 1,030 pupils. The revenue (estimate) for 1928-29 is 790 lakhs of rupees and expenditure (estimate) 737 lakhs. The number of co-operative credit societies was 1,926, with 51,525 members in 1925-26. Under Industry there were 5 cotton mills, 272 ginning and pressing factories, and 253 flour and other mills. Trade covered 1,460 lakhs of imports, and about 1,586 lakhs of Exports.

The ruler is Lieut.-General H.E.H. Sir Mir Usman Ali Khan, Faithful Ally of the British Government, G.C.S.I., G.B.E., Nizam of Hyderabad; born 1886; succeeded 1911; salute of 21 guns.

Jammu and Kashmir.—The State of Kashmir, which had been under Hindu rulers and Mohammedan Sultans, became part of the Moghul Empire under Akbar from 1581. After a period of Afghan rule from 1756 it was overrun by the Sikhs in 1819. Ranjit Singh entrusted in 1820 the territory of Jammu to a feudatory, Gulab Singh, and after the decisive battle of Sobraon in 1846 Kashmir was made over to the latter by Lord Hardinge on payment of the indemnity demanded from the Sikhs. British supremacy was then recognised. The bulk of the population are Mohammedans, though the ruling race is Hindu. The area is 84,258 sq. miles; the population 3,320,518. The Government of India is represented by a Resident, who resides at Srinagar. In addition to the High Court there are 121 Criminal Courts; and 2,984 offences were reported in 1923-24. There were also 21,680 civil suits instituted in 52 courts. There were 9,259 sq. miles of demarcated forests. The trade in that year was: Imports, 301 lakhs; Exports, 196 lakhs. The revenue of the State is 227 lakhs. In 1923-24 there were two Arts Colleges at Srinagar and Jammu with 587 students. There were in all 565 educational institutions with 39,636 pupils.

The present ruler is Colonel H.H. Maharaja Sir Hari Singh, K.C.I.E., K.C.V.O., Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir; born 1895; succeeded 1925; salute of 21 guns.

Mysore.—The ancestors of the present dynasty came to Mysore in 1399. From 1565 the territory passed to the Hindu Wodeyar dynasty. The soldier, Haider Ali, usurped the throne; but his dynasty closed with the defeat of his son Tippu in 1799. The ancient Hindu dynasty was restored from 1811. Owing to misgovernment Lord William Bentinck assumed direct administration in 1831; and for fifty years Mysore was thus governed. In 1865 the father of the present Maharaja was adopted as heir by the deposed ruler. The rendition was effected by Lord Ripon in 1881 by an Instrument of Transfer to the heir on his majority; but Bangalore remained under British administration. In 1913 a Treaty was substituted for the Instrument of Transfer. In 1927 the Government of India remitted in perpetuity 10½ lakhs of the annual subsidy.

The area is 29,607 sq. miles; and the population (exclusive of the civil and military station of Bangalore) 5,859,952 (1921), nearly all Hindus. The administration is carried on under the Maharaja by the Dewan and three Members of the Council. There is a Representative Assembly of 252 members and a Legislative Council of 50 members. The Government of India is represented by a Resident at Bangalore. In 1926-27 there were 116 criminal courts besides the Chief Court, and 30 civil courts. There were 18,449 offences reported and 37,239 civil cases instituted in that year. There were 1,748 co-operative societies with 98,933 members. The University of Mysore has 5 Colleges with 1,749 students. The number of educational institutions, public and private, in 1927 was 8,212, with 319,517 scholars. The total revenue of the State in 1926-27 was 339 lakhs, and the expenditure chargeable to revenue was 347 lakhs. The State forests cover 3,875 sq. miles. The five mining blocks in the Kolar Gold Fields area produced 382,899 ounces of fine gold in 1927.

The Ruler is Colonel H.H. Maharaja Sir Sri Krishnaraja Wadiyar Bahadur, G.C.S.I., G.B.E.; born 1884; succeeded 1895; salute of 21 guns. Administration Report. Bangalore. Annual.

North-West Frontier Agencies and Tribal Areas.—Between the border of the British Districts of the N.W. Frontier Province and the Afghan frontier is the tribal territory. The Government of India exercises the minimum of interference. The region is divided into five Political Agencies: Malakand (Dir, Swat and Chitral), Khyber, Kurram, North Waziristan and South Waziristan. There are, further, areas known as Tribal Areas under the political control of the Deputy Commissioners of the five British Districts. All are under the Chief Commissioner of the N.W. Frontier Province in his capacity of Agent to the Governor-General. Chitral is ruled by H.H. Sir Shujaulmulk, K.C.I.E., the Mehtar of Chitral.

The area under tribal territory, including that of the Agencies, beyond the British border is approximately 25,500 sq. miles, with a population of 2,825,136. The protective units are the North Waziristan Scouts, South Waziristan Scouts, Kurram Militia and the Chitral Scouts in the Frontier Corps; a Frontier Constabulary; and Levies and Khassadars.

THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

Constitution and Government.

THE Straits Settlements, a Crown colony, comprise Singapore, Penang (including Province Wellesley and the Dindings), and Malacca. Malacca is one of the oldest European settlements in the East, having been occupied by the Portuguese in 1511, and held by them until driven out by the Dutch in 1641. It was transferred to the English in 1824. Penang was the first British settlement in the Malay Peninsula, having been ceded to the East India Company in 1786. Singapore was important in the fourteenth century, but was destroyed by the Javanese in 1377, and was almost uninhabited until 1819, when it was ceded by the Johore princes. In 1826 these three settlements were incorporated under one government, which was transferred from the control of the Indian Government to that of the Secretary of State for the Colonies on April 1, 1867. The Cocos Islands were placed under the Straits Settlements in 1886, and Christmas Island in 1889. On January 1, 1907, the boundaries of the Colony were extended so as to include the Colony of Labuan.

The administration of the colony is in the hands of a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, composed of the General Officer commanding the troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Resident Councillors of Penang and Malacca, the Attorney-General, the Treasurer, the Colonial Engineer and two unofficial members. There is a Legislative Council, consisting of the officer commanding the troops, twelve other official members, and thirteen unofficial, eleven of the latter nominated and two elected by the Chamber of Commerce at Singapore and Penang.

Governor.—Sir Hugh C. Clifford, M.C.S., G.C.M.G., G.B.E. (March 24, 1927).

Colonial Secretary.—Sir Hayes Marriott, K.B.E., C.M.G.

The Governor is also High Commissioner for the Federated Malay States of Perak, Sélángor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, High Commissioner of Brunei, and British Agent for North Borneo and Sarawak.

There are municipal bodies in each settlement, the members of which are appointed by the Governor.

Area and Population.

The total area of the colony, with dependencies, is about 1,600 sq. miles. Singapore is an island about twenty-seven miles long by fourteen wide, with an area of 217 square miles, separated from the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula by a strait three-quarters of a mile in width. A number of small islands adjacent form part of the settlement. The seat of government is the town of Singapore, at the south-eastern point of the island. Penang is an island of 108 square miles, off the west coast of the Malayan Peninsula, and at the northern entrance of the Straits of Malacca. On the opposite shore of the mainland, distant from two to ten miles, is Province Wellesley, a strip of territory forming part of the Settlement of Penang, averaging eight miles in width, and extending forty-five miles along the coast, including ten miles of territory to the south of the Krian; total area 280 square miles. The chief town of Penang is George Town. Off the coast of Perak is the small island of Pangkor, which, together with a strip of the mainland, is British territory, the whole being known as the Dindings. Malacca is on the western coast of the peninsula between Singapore and Penang—about 110 miles from the former and 240 from the latter; it is a strip of territory 42 miles in length, and from eight to 25 miles in breadth, with an area of 720 square miles.

The population, according to the census of 1921, was 883,769 (558,741 males and 325,028 females). The estimated population for 1927 and the census totals in 1921, inclusive of the military, are as follows:—

Deaths	17,383	6,523	566	4,303	6,582	204	35,561

In 1927 there were 359,262 immigrants from China, and 156,132 from Southern India.

Education.

There is an Education Board consisting of official and unofficial members, and provision exists for an Education Rate. Vernacular instruction is provided for Malays free of charge, and attendance is compulsory. Instruction in English for all nationalities is provided in Government and numerous aided schools, and fees are charged. All the Government schools are unsectarian. There is a reformatory in Singapore for juvenile offenders and vagrants, where industrial instruction is provided.

The numbers of schools and scholars in 1927 were as follows :—

—	No. of Schools	Enrolment	Attendance
Government English schools (boys and girls)	20	8,146	7,681
Grant-in-aid English schools (boys and girls)	29	15,010	14,064

Grant-in-aid Vernacular schools (boys and girls)	19	2,017	1,814
Total	282	43,217	40,249

The expenditure on education was 355,832*l*.

There is a joint training college for teachers in the Federated Malay States, and an agricultural school is being started.

In the colony are Raffles College, giving a higher education in arts and science, and King Edward VII. College of Medicine.

Justice and Crime.

The law in force is contained in local ordinances and in such English and Indian Acts and Orders in Council as are applicable to the colony. The Indian Penal Code, with slight alterations, has been adopted, and there is a Civil Procedure Code based on the English Judicature Acts. There is a Supreme Court which holds assizes at Singapore and Penang every two months, and quarterly at Malacca, civil sittings monthly at Singapore and Penang, and once a quarter at Malacca.

There are, besides, district courts, police courts and marine magistrates' courts. Convictions before the Superior Courts in 1925 were 221; before the other courts, 43,145 persons. Police force, actual strength 3,490 in 1927.

Finance.

The principal imports into the United Kingdom in 1927 were tin, 3,037,112*l.*; rubber, 10,150,239*l.*; sago and sago meal and flour, 406,617*l.*; tapioca, 49,951*l.*; fruit, canned or bottled, 861,930*l.*; gutta percha, 54,275*l.*; nuts and kernels, 417,568*l.*; gambier, 48,288*l.*; spices, 858,974*l.* The principal exports from the United Kingdom were:—cotton piece goods, 2,259,944*l.*; iron and iron and steel manufactures, 1,623,774*l.*; machinery, 942,880*l.*; tobacco, 1,889,863*l.*; soap, 224,849*l.*; electrical goods, 253,631*l.*; motor cars and parts, 562,910*l.*

Shipping and Navigation.

The total number of merchant vessels entered at the ports of the Colony during 1927, exclusive of native craft, was 13,187, with a tonnage of 19,836,549. The number of native craft was 31,774, with a tonnage of 1,134,594. The number of merchant vessels cleared at the ports of the colony and dependencies was 13,188, with a tonnage of 19,857,217. The total number of native craft cleared in 1927 was 32,788, with a tonnage of 1,168,244.

Communications.

There is a railway from Singapore to Woodlands on the Johore Straits, and thence across the Johore Causeway to Johore Bahru. The Federated Malay States Railway extends from Parit Buntar in Krian to Kuala Prai in Province Wellesley, whence are steam ferries to Penang. There is a railway from Malacca to Tampin in Negri Sembilan. All the railways have a gauge of one metre, and form a part of the Federated Malay States Railway system, a continuation of which through Johore was opened in 1909. There are electric tramway systems in Singapore and Penang. There are cables connecting Singapore and Penang, and land lines from Singapore to Johore, Malacca, Kuala Lumpur, Ipoh, and Penang, from Penang to Alor Star (Kedah), Song Khla (Siam), Taiping, Ipoh, Kuala Lumpur and Singapore, and from Malacca to Tampin and Kuala Lumpur. There are 2,436 miles of telephone line in Penang and Province Wellesley, and 1,661 miles in Malacca.

In 1927, 22,837,855 letters and other articles of correspondence were posted, and 17,939,851 delivered. The number of letters sent to China in clubbed packets was 2,193,887. The parcels posted numbered 209,261, those delivered 157,921.

From Labuan there are telegraph cables connecting with Hong Kong, Singapore and Sandakan.

Wireless stations exist at Paya Lebar on Singapore Island and at Penaga in Province Wellesley; their functions at present are limited to ship traffic (except for traffic with Burma, Christmas Island and Kuching in Sarawak).

Money, Weights, and Measures.

There are twenty-seven banks with establishments in the Colony. The amount of deposits in the Post Office Savings Bank on December 31, 1927, was 3,745,797 dollars.

The dollar, value 2s. 4d., is the standard coin of the Colony, and with the half-dollar and the British sovereign is legal tender for the payment of any amount. A bill was introduced in 1923 to base the currency on British sterling. Subsidiary silver coins are 20, 10, and 5 cent pieces; nickel five cent pieces; copper cents, half-cents, and quarter-cents. On December 31, 1925, Government currency notes to the value of 161,432,313 dollars were in circulation.

The measure of length in use in the Settlements is the English yard, with its divisions and multiples, and land is measured by the English acre. The native terms are, however, still in use. Commercial weights are:—

1 Kati = 16 Tabil =  $1\frac{1}{2}$  lbs. avoirdupois.

1 Pikul = 100 Kati =  $133\frac{1}{2}$  „ „

1 Koyan = 40 Pikul =  $5,333\frac{1}{2}$  „ „

The kati of  $1\frac{1}{2}$  lbs. is known as the Chinese kati. Another weight, known as the Malay kati, and still in partial use in Penang, is equal to the weight of 24 Spanish dollars, or 9,984 grains. This gives 142·628 lbs. as the weight of the pikul, and 5,705·143 lbs. as the weight of the koyan. The measures of capacity throughout the Colony are the gantang or gallon, and chupak or quart.

The Cocos or Keeling Islands, a group of about twenty small coral islands, annexed in 1857, lie about 700 miles S.W. of Sumatra and 1,200 miles S.W. of Singapore. They were placed under Ceylon in 1878, under the Straits Settlements in 1886, and annexed to Singapore in 1903. The estimated population in 1921 was about 800. There are large coconut plantations, and copra, oil, and nuts are exported.

Christmas Island is 190 miles south-west of Java and 700 miles east of the Cocos Islands, and was annexed in 1888. It was attached to Singapore in 1900. It is of irregular shape, about 12½ miles (at the longest point) and about 4½ miles (at the narrowest point). Area about 62 square miles. At the end of 1927 the population was 1,159, the majority being Chinese coolies. All the inhabitants, except the District Officer and his staff and the Sikh police, are directly or indirectly employed by the company which works the enormous phosphate deposits on the island. Revenue, 1927, 10,750*l.* approx.; expenditure, 2,720*l.* Imports, 1927, 8,375*l.*, composed chiefly of machinery and engineering goods; exports, 1927, 116,651*l.*, solely phosphate of lime, value 230,000*l.* Tonnage entered and cleared in 1926 was 66,736, and in 1927 was 58,956 tons; of the latter 8,616 tons were British and 48,307 tons were Japanese. Opium revenue for 1927 was about 9,700*l.*

The island of Labuan lies about 6 miles from the north-west coast of Borneo. It was ceded to Britain in 1846; on January 1, 1907, was incorporated with Singapore, and on December 1, 1912, was created a separate Settlement. Area 30 sq. miles; the population in 1927 was 5,996, mostly Malays from Borneo, with some Chinese traders and about 23 Europeans. Capital, Victoria, which has about 1,500 inhabitants. Revenue (excluding opium sales amounting to 108,421 dollars), 1927, 58,611 dollars; expenditure (excluding Government Monopolies), 158,423 dollars. Shipping entered and cleared, 1927, 282,906 tons. Trade, 5½ million dollars.

THE FEDERATED MALAY STATES.

Constitution and Government.—The Federated Malay States of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, and Pahang, in the Malay Peninsula, are under British protection. The Governor of the Straits Settlements is ex officio H.M.'s High Commissioner for these States and the other Malay States in the British sphere.

High Commissioner.—Sir Hugh Clifford, G.C.M.G., G.B.E., M.C.S.

Chief Secretary to Government.—Sir W. Peel, K.B.E., C.M.G., M.C.S.

The following are the Rulers and Residents of the four States:—

Ruler of Perak.—H.H. Paduka Sri Sultan Iskandar Shah, K.C.V.O., K.C.M.G., ibni Idris. Resident.—H. W. Thomson, C.M.G., M.C.S.

Ruler of Selangor.—H.H. Sultan Ala'idin Sulaiman Shah, K.C.M.G., ibni Al-Marhum Raja Muda Musa. Resident.—J. Lorne, M.C.S.

Ruler of Negri Sembilan.—H. H. Muhammad, K.C.V.O., K.C.M.G., ibni Al-Marhum Antah, Yang Di-Pertuan Besar, Negri Sembilan. Resident.—J. W. Simmons, M.C.S. (acting).

Ruler of Pahang.—H.H. Al-Mu'tasim Bi'llah Al-Sultan Abdullah, K.C.M.G., ibni Al-Marhum Al-Sultan Ahmad Al-Maazam Shah. Resident.—A. F. Worthington, M.C.S.

In Perak, Selangor, and Sungai Ujong, which State was subsequently amalgamated with other States to form the Confederation of Negri Sembilan, Residents were appointed in 1874, with a staff of European officers whose duty was to aid the native rulers by advice, and to exercise executive functions. The supreme authority in each State is vested in the State Council, consisting of the Sultan, the Resident, the Secretary to the Resident, and some of the principal Malay chiefs and Chinese merchants. The Residents are under the control of the Chief Secretary and the High Commissioner.

In 1888 the relations of the Straits Settlements with the small Native States on the frontier of Malacca were consolidated. These States were confederated in 1889, under the name of Negri Sembilan (signifying Nine States). In January, 1895, Sungai Ujong (including Jelebu, which had been administered by a Collector and Magistrate under the Resident of Sungai Ujong since 1888) and Negri Sembilan were placed under one Resident; and in July, 1895, a treaty was signed by which the administrations were amalgamated. The new federation, which retains the ancient name of Negri Sembilan, comprises the States of Sungai Ujong, Johol, Jelebu, Rembau and five smaller States. In 1887, by agreement with the Raja of Pahang, the control of his foreign relations, &c., was surrendered to the British Government. This was followed by a further agreement in 1888 with the Raja (now styled Sultan), under which Pahang was taken under British protection, on the same terms as the Protected Native States on the west coast of the peninsula. Pahang is situate on the east coast, within 200 miles by sea from Singapore. In July, 1896, the treaty between the four Protected Native States, Perak, Selangor, Pahang, and Negri Sembilan, and the British Government came into force by which the administrative federation of these States under a Chief Secretary to Government is provided for, and the States agree to furnish a contingent of troops for service in the Colony should His Majesty's Government be at war with any foreign nation.

The laws of each State are contained in enactments passed by the State Councils, up to December, 1909, and from that date, in matters common to the four States, by the Federal Council; the State Councils may still legislate in purely State matters.

The Federal Council was created in 1909 in order to give effect to a desire for the joint arrangement of all matters of common interest to the Federation or affecting more than one State, and for the proper enactment of all laws intended to have force throughout the Federation or more than one State. The Federal Council, as now constituted, consists of the High Commissioner for the Malay States (an appointment held ex officio by the Governor of the Straits Settlements) as President, the Chief Secretary to Government, Federated Malay States, the four British Residents, the Legal Adviser, the Financial Adviser, the Principal Medical Officer, the Controller of Labour, Malaya, the Director of Education, S.S. and F.M.S., the Director of Public Works, the General Manager, F.M.S. Railways, and eleven unofficial members, who are nominated by the High Commissioner with the approval of His Majesty the King. The Federal Council generally meets at least three times a year. All Federal legislation is passed by it, and the estimates of expenditure and revenue require its approval.

Area.—The areas of these States are approximately:—Perak, 7,800 sq. miles; Selangor, 3,156 sq. miles; Negri Sembilan, 2,550 sq. miles; Pahang, 14,000 square miles; total, 27,506 sq. miles.

Population.—Census 1921: Perak, 599,055 (378,902 males and 220,153 females); Selangor, 401,009 (267,165 males and 133,844 females); Negri Sembilan, 178,762 (119,569 males and 59,193 females); Pahang, 146,064 (87,892 males and 58,172 females); total 1,324,890 (853,528 males and 471,362 females). The population contained 510,821 Malays, 494,548

Chinese, 305,219 natives of India, 5,686 Europeans, and 3,204 Eurasians. The preponderance of males over females is due to the number of Chinese and Indian immigrants. Estimated population, June 1926, 1,476,032. The largest town is Kuala Lumpur (in Selangor) with about 80,000 inhabitants. Births, 1924, 39,512; deaths, 33,585.

Education.—In 1927, there were 47 English schools (35 for boys, 12 for girls), with an average enrolment of 12,369 boys and 3,332 girls, and an average attendance of 11,625 and 3,068 respectively, maintained or assisted by the Government; also 1,132 vernacular schools (Malay, Tamil, and Chinese), with an average enrolment of 61,131, and an average attendance of 55,168, which are under the control of the Education Department. The total number of schools (1927) was 1,179 with an average attendance of 69,861. There are many Chinese vernacular schools, of which 59 having an enrolment of 5,386 pupils were assisted by the Education Department. Expenditure on education (excluding buildings) in 1927 was 315,502*l*.

Justice and Crime.—The courts in the States are :—(1) The Supreme Court, comprising the Court of a Judge and the Court of Appeal. (2) The Court of a Magistrate of the first class. (3) The Court of a Magistrate of the second class. (4) The Court of a Kathi and the Court of Assistant Kathi. (5) The Court of a Penghulu. The Court of Appeal consists of two or more Judges the Chief Justice being President. There is a final appeal in civil matters to the Privy Council.

The number of cases of serious crime reported in 1927 was 1,050, discovered 312. The number of prisoners in gaol on December 31, 1927, was 1,123.

The Police Force, with European and Malay officers, consists of an Indian and a Malay contingent. The strength at the close of 1927 was: Gazetted Officers, British, 42 and Malay, 4; British Chief Inspectors and Inspectors, 40; Malay and Asiatic Inspectors, 37; Malay subordinate police officers and constables, 2,084; Indians, 1,639; others, 263; total, 4,109.

Leading items of revenue in 1927 were—railways, 2,689,810*l*.; licences, 385,103*l*.; customs, 4,129,997*l*.; Excise, 2,015,223*l*.; fees of court, etc., 552,669*l*.; lands and mines, 464,118*l*.; interest, 548,295*l*.; municipal, 293,710*l*.; posts, telegraphs, and telephones 321,555*l*., and forests, 224,517*l*. Expenditure—police, 362,020*l*.; medical, 580,678*l*.; education, 302,134*l*.; posts and telegraphs, 259,652*l*.; sanitary boards, 261,240*l*.; public works, 2,284,664*l*.; other departments, 2,236,538*l*.; railways, 2,689,810*l*.; charges on account of public debt, 592,782*l*.; miscellaneous services, 897,202*l*. and pensions, 414,070*l*. Public debt on December 31, 1927, 9,355,000*l*.

Production.—The staple products are coconuts, rice, rubber, sugar, tapioca, pepper, gambier, nipah and oil palms. The chief industrial enterprises are the cultivation of rubber, and the mining of tin. The Krian irrigation works in Perak irrigate 70,000 acres of rice (padi) land and supply drinking water to the district. The canal is 21 miles long with 16½ miles of branches and 188½ miles of distributory channels. The total area under rubber cultivation in 1924 was 1,231,257 acres; padi, 187,349 acres; coconuts, 215,076 acres; kampong fruit, 196,322 acres. The forests produce many excellent timbers, besides gutta-percha, oils, resins, and canes. In 1925 the total quantity of timber of all kinds taken from the forests, on which payment was made, was 844,605 tons, in addition to a large quantity used free of royalty by the native Malay population and the tin miners. In 1927 the tin export amounted to 52,179 tons, and in 1926 to 45,947 tons. In 1927, 11,758 ounces of gold, and in 1926, 14,475 ounces were produced in the Federated Malay States. Besides gold and tin, many minerals are found, including lead, iron, copper, mercury, arsenic, manganese, wolfram, scheelite, plumbago, silver, zinc, and coal, but with the exception of coal, they have not so far been discovered in workable form. The exports of tungsten ore in 1927 were 20 tons. The labour force engaged in mining at the end of 1927 was 122,888.

Commerce.—The trade (excluding bullion and specie) was as follows in 1927, with total for 1926:—

—	Perak	Selangor	Negri Sembilan	Pahang	Total 1927	Total 1926
	£	£	£	£	£	£
Imports .	6,844,870	11,029,465	1,557,847	877,707	20,309,979	19,861,136
Exports .	19,720,693	13,482,245	5,195,923	1,221,061	39,619,922	51,937,399

Chief imports, 1927: Rice, 2,884,694L; wheat flour, 245,865L; feeding stuffs for animals, 249,703L; live animals for food, 291,510L; milk condensed, sweetened, 452,706L; sugar, 380,100L; tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, 1,189,374L; spirits, wines and malt liquors, 591,644L; iron and steel and manufactures thereof, 1,139,335L; machinery, 1,348,453L; cotton yarn and manufactures (including cotton piece goods), 1,233,419L; kerosine, 415,871L; motor spirit, 912,966L; lubricating oil, 262,688L; motor cars, 746,450L. Chief exports, 1926: Para rubber (161,188 tons), 34,783,031L; copra, 1,499,373L; tin and tin ore, 13,027,629L; timber, 61,120L; hides, 18,700L; 1927, gross rubber exports, 371,322 tons. Output of tin and tin-ore in 1928 was 61,898 tons.

Trade with United Kingdom: imports, 1928, 3,555,535; 1927, 3,274,143L. Exports, 1928, 2,251,256L; 1927, 5,028,994.

Bullion and specie imported 1927, 242,160L; exported 1927, 138,065L.

Shipping, 1927. The total number of vessels, exclusive of native craft entered and cleared at the various ports in the F.M.S. was 10,677 with a tonnage of 7,027,914. The number of native craft entered and cleared was 38,936 with an aggregate tonnage of 613,698.

Communications.—There were in 1927, 2,600 miles of metalled cartroads, 113 miles of unmetalled roads, and 1,972 miles of bridle roads and paths; also more than 388 miles of paths maintained by the Forest Department. The Government has made, purchased, leased, or is making, the railway systems of the whole peninsula south of the Siamese boundary, including the railway on Singapore Island. When the system is complete, there will be a main trunk line throughout the peninsula, diverging at Gemas in Negri Sembilan into West Coast and East Coast lines, and linking up with the Southern Siamese railway system on the Perlis-Siam and Kelantan-Siam boundaries respectively. The two Siamese lines converge at Haad Yai, in Singora, and thence a single line continues north to Bangkok. On the West Coast, the line is open for traffic from Singapore to Padang Besar (Perlis-Siamese boundary), 585 miles, and on the East Coast from Gemas (a point situated at mile 142 on the West Coast Main Line) to Merapoh (in Pahang), 184 miles. A section in Kelantan from Tumpat to Manek Urai (68 miles), and one from Pasir Mas to Sungei Golok (Kelantan-Siam boundary) (12 miles) are also open. The Siamese line from the Golok to Haad Yai was opened on November 1, 1921, thus making through rail communication between Kelantan and the rest of the Peninsula. The section in Johore, from Johore Bahru to Gemas (120 miles), is leased from the Johore Government. The total length of track open for traffic was 1,105 miles in 1927. The lines under construction during 1927 were about 81 miles. A causeway, carrying a double line of railway and a roadway, connects Singapore with the mainland across the Johore Straits.

There were, in 1927, 102 post offices and 58 other places for postal business. In that year 36,856,378 postal packets (registered letters, 1,173,967, and parcels, 304,720) were received and delivered. In 1927 there were 2,602 miles of telegraph and telephone lines, and 21,716 miles of overhead wire, of which 18,483 were telephone wires. In addition there were 102 miles of underground cables containing 9,908 miles of wire single line. The net revenue collected by the department amounted to 321,555 $\frac{1}{2}$ ., and expenditure 376,811 $\frac{1}{2}$ . Savings Banks: 32,595 depositors and 428,603 $\frac{1}{2}$ . deposits on December 31, 1927.

Money, &c.—The current money consists of Straits Settlements dollars with subsidiary silver and copper coins. In February, 1906, the value of the dollar was fixed at 2s. 4d. or 60 dollars = 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. Currency notes and bank notes also circulate, and the sovereign is legal tender for any amount at the above rate. Weights and measures (as well as currency) are as in the Straits Settlements.

THE MALAY STATES NOT INCLUDED IN THE FEDERATION.

The Malay States not included in the Federation are five in number, namely, Johore, Kedah, Perlis, Kelantan, and Trengganu.

The relations of Johore with Great Britain are defined by a treaty dated December 11, 1885; and, by an amendment to this treaty made on May 12, 1914, the Sultan agreed to accept, and to act upon the advice of, a British officer called the General Adviser. The Sultan is assisted in the administration of the State by an Executive Council, and by a Legislative Council consisting of official and unofficial members.

The rights of suzerainty, protection, administration and control of the other four States were transferred from Siam to Great Britain by the Anglo-Siamese treaty of March 10, 1909. In all four States the Rulers are assisted in the administration by State Councils, and by British Advisers appointed by the British Government.

In these States the currency, weights and measures are the same as in the Straits Settlements and the Federated Malay States. Their trade is almost entirely carried on with the Straits Settlements.

The religion of the Malays is Mohammedanism.

Johore (area 7,678 square miles, population in 1921, 232,234, of whom 157,852 were Malays, 97,255 Chinese, and 24,180 Indians) lies at the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula. Births registered (1927), 16,324; deaths, 15,142. There were (1927) 4 English schools and 91 vernacular schools, and an English College (with 57 boys in residence).

Revenue (1927), 18,239,023 dollars (from Customs, 5,905,439 dollars, land 2,380,293, licences 6,113,477); expenditure, 15,348,473 dollars. Imports (1927), 59,422,852 dollars (animals, food, drink and tobacco, 23,809,484; raw materials and articles mainly unmanufactured, 2,411,915; articles wholly or mainly manufactured, 13,176,890; coin and bullion, 25,063; sundries, nil). Exports, 88,317,154 dollars (rubber, 69,084,686 dollars). Rubber output (1927), 825,268 pikuls.

At the end of 1927, 671 miles of metalled road had been constructed. The railway from Penang to Singapore traverses Johore for a distance of 120 miles. The Johore section has been leased to the Federated Malay States Government for a term of years. Rubber estates are situated on either side along practically the whole length, and thus, with the help of roads and navigable rivers, good communication is available. A causeway across the Straits of Johore and connecting Johore with the island of Singapore was opened to railway traffic in October, 1923, and to vehicular traffic in June 1924.

An efficient medical service and thirteen public hospitals are maintained by the Government. Police force, end of 1927, 1,000.

The Postal revenue (1927) was 238,717 dollars. Letters, parcels, &c., received, 4,200,067; despatched, 2,804,466.

Ruler.—His Highness Sultan Ibrahim, G.C.M.G., K.B.E.

General Adviser.—C. E. Shaw, O.B.E. (acting).

Kedah, on the west coast of the Peninsula, and north of Province Wellesley and Perak, has an area of 3,648 square miles. The population (census 1921) is 333,554, of whom 237,043 are Malays, 59,408 Chinese, 33,019 Indians, 235 Europeans, 73 Eurasians, and 8,779 other races. The capital is Alor Star on the Kedah River, about 70 miles from Penang by sea, and 69 by rail or road. Owing to the Sultan's ill-health, the head of the Government is the Regent. There are (1927) 52 Europeans in the Government service. The police force had a strength (June, 1927) of 758 men (principally Malays). There were at the end of June, 1927, 72 Government schools (about 6,400 pupils), 13 telegraph offices, and 19 post offices. A telephone system extends throughout the State, the wire mileage in 1927 being 1,930. The railway connecting the Federated Malay States and Siam passes through the State. A metalled road (26 miles) connects Alor Star with Perlis, and (39 miles) with the Senggora frontier (Siam), and a metalled road (44 miles) connects it with Province Wellesley. Another metalled road (7 miles) connects Baling with Upper Perak in one direction and with Province Wellesley in the opposite direction. The total mileage of metalled road (1927) is 305. 213 miles of canal were maintained in June 1927. The revenue of the State for the year 1927 (Mohammedan year 1346) was 7,722,507 dollars, including Customs, 2,604,423; lands, 847,725; and land sales, 265,279 dollars; and the expenditure, 7,385,338 dollars. Public debt, July, 1927, nil. The principal produce of North Kedah is rice. There are rubber (output 1924, 16,466 tons; export, 1927, 16,758 tons), coconut, and tapioca estates in South Kedah. Several steamers ply between Penang and the various ports of Kedah. Kedah internal trade (1927-28): imports, 9,280,175 dollars; exports, 28,509,759 dollars. Postal and telegraph revenue, 1927-28, 126,071 dollars; expenditure, 366,229 dollars. Postal articles dealt with, 3,276,169.

Ruler.—H. H. Sultan Sir Abdul Hamid Halim Shah, K.C.M.G., ibni Almerhum Sultan Ahmad Tajudin Mukarram Shah (succeeded in 1881).

Regent.—H. H. Thunku Ibrahim, C.M.G., C.V.O.

British Adviser.—T. W. Clayton, M.C.S.

Perlis, on the west coast of the Peninsula and north of Kedah, has an area of about 315 square miles and a population (1921 census) of 40,091. Malays numbered 34,167 of the population, Chinese 3,589, Indians 816, and other races 1,519. Police force (1928) 84 N.C.O.'s and men. Eighteen boys' and 2 girls' schools were maintained in 1928 with about 2,000 pupils. The principal products are rice, tin, and coconuts. There are guano deposits. There are 86½ miles of metalled and 15½ miles of gravelled road in the State. The revenue for 1946 A.H. (1927-28) was 645,114 dollars (customs 246,337), and the expenditure 22,752 dollars. Public debt, 1928, 50,000 dollars.

Ruler.—H. H. Raja Syed Alwi, O.B.E.

British Adviser.—L. A. Allen, M.C.S. (acting).

Kelantan, on the east coast of the Peninsula, has an area estimated at 5,713 square miles and a population (1921 census) of 309,300, including 12,799 Chinese. Kota Bharu, the capital, has a population of about 11,000. There are 65 Government elementary schools in the State. The High Court, the Central Court, and the Small Court are at Kota Bharu, and there are District Courts at Kuala Kral, Pasir Puteh, Pasir Mas, and Tumpat respectively. Police force, 1927, 445. The revenue of the State in 1927 amounted to 2,448,090 dollars (licences, excise, &c., 640,050 dollars; customs, 811,439 dollars; land revenue, 568,561 dollars), and the expenditure to 2,949,488 dollars. Public debt (1927) 4,080,664 dollars.

The chief industry is agriculture. About 877,365 acres were under cultivation in 1927. Chief products: rice (173,987 acres), coconuts (57,200 acres), rubber (66,178 acres). Pepper, tapioca, sugar-cane, and maize are grown in smaller quantities for local consumption. The jungle which covers a large part of the State produces some serviceable timber, resin and rattans and bamboos. The State supports cattle (109,044 in 1927), buffaloes (25,329 in 1927), sheep, goats, and poultry. Numerous estates are owned by British companies. Mineral resources are said to comprise gold, galena, and tin, but the existence of these metals in payable quantities has not been proved. The principal manufacturing industries are silk-weaving, boat-building, and brick-making. In 1927, total exports, 9,021,746 dollars; total imports, 6,530,025 dollars (1926, 12,518,719 dollars; and 5,632,002 dollars respectively). Chief exports, 1927: betel-nuts, 96,412 dollars; fish, 123,352 dollars; copra, 674,814 dollars; Para rubber, 7,796,450 dollars. Chief imports, 1927: fish, 49,378 dollars; rice, 1,656,937 dollars; wheat and flour, 100,464 dollars; milk, 208,606 dollars; sugar, 239,772 dollars; tobacco, 492,628 dollars; salt, 10,429 dollars; gambler, 34,723 dollars; petroleum, 366,095 dollars; textiles (all kinds), 639,943 dollars; timber, 54,210 dollars; cement, 74,716 dollars; machinery and metal goods, 531,155 dollars; opium, 137,942 dollars.

Tonnage of steamships inwards and outwards, 1927, 139,324 tons. 5,171 fishing and other boats are registered. There is regular steamship communication with Bangkok and Singapore. The principal roads are the Kota Bharu-Pasir Puteh road and the trunk road from Kota Bharu to Kuala Krai, and there are others extending a few miles from Kota Bharu. The metalling of these roads is not yet completed. Communication inland is by the rivers. There is railway communication between Tumpat (on the coast) and Manek Urai (63 miles inland). There is also a line to the Siamese border, on which a daily service is run in connection with the Siamese trains to the Kedah boundary, and thence with the Kedah service to Penang and the Federated Malay States. Kota Bharu is in direct telegraphic communication with Bangkok and Penang (via Siam), and possesses a limited telephone service. There were (1927) 6 post offices and 7 sub-post offices in the State.

Ruler.—H. H. Sultan Ismail, K. C. M. G.

British Adviser.—R. J. B. Clayton, (acting).

Trengganu, with an area of about 5,500 square miles, and a population, at the census 1921, of 153,456, lies on the east coast between Pahang and Kelantan. The capital is Kuala Trengganu, with a population of 12,456. There are 1. vernacular schools (1,417 pupils enrolled in A. H. 1346, average attendance 996, teachers 45), 1 Government English school (37 pupils enrolled in 1346) and 1 Chinese school (average attendance 145, teachers 8 in 1927). Trengganu was the last British possession to tolerate slavery for debt. The practice has been abolished by an enactment passed in 1919. Police force, 1927, 267. There are about 32 miles of road open to traffic, and a 60 mile trunk road connecting Kuala Trengganu with Kelantan is under construction. There are telephone exchanges at Kuala Trengganu, Kemaman and Besut. There is telegraphic communication with other parts of Malaya. There are no railways, and communication with the interior is by rivers, and good native paths. Steamers connect regularly with Singapore and Bangkok, and locally-built motor-boats maintain passenger services along the Trengganu coast. The industries are similar to those of Kelantan, and the country is of the same general character. Revenue, 1346, 1,402,150 dollars, chiefly chandu and liquor; customs, 775,862 dollars; land including land sales, 94,058 dollars. Expenditure, 1346, 1,542,404 dollars. Debt, 1346, 1,600,000 dollars. Total imports in 1927 were 6,064,758 dollars, and total exports 8,244,479 dollars. Chief exports: dried fish, 1,135,519 dollars; tin ore, 1,919,524 dollars; Para rubber, 2,588,788 dollars; silk sarongs, 456,341 dollars; iron ore (haematite), 372,012 dollars; copra, 318,760 dollars. Chief imports: rice, 2,198,420 dollars; cotton piece goods, 457,539 dollars; tobacco, cigars and cigarettes, 359,384 dollars; sugar, 263,074 dollars; petroleum, 149,407 dollars.

Ruler.—H. H. Sir Sulaiman Badar-ul-alam Shah, K. C. M. G. He is assisted by a State Council.

British Adviser.—A. J. Sturrock (acting).

WEIHAIWEI.

Weihaiwei, in the Chinese province of Shantung, with the adjacent waters was, by a Convention with the Chinese Government, dated July 1, 1898, leased to Great Britain. The territory leased comprises, besides the port and bay, the island of Liu Kung, all the islands in the bay, and a belt of land 10 English miles wide along the entire coast-line of the bay. The boundary has been demarcated and regulations settled for the management of frontier affairs. The area of about 285 square miles contains (1921 census) 154,416 inhabitants, including 600 on the island of Liu Kung. The native city of Weihaiwei is a walled town with about 2,000 inhabitants.

Under an Order in Council of July 24, 1901, the territory is administered by a Commissioner. Legislation is by Ordinances. The seat of government is at Port Edward on the mainland. There is a High Court for both civil and criminal cases, subject to appeal to the Supreme Court at Hong Kong, and provision is made for courts of district magistrates. There are 3 European inspectors of police. There are 7 Chinese sergeants, 13 corporals and 142 warders, detectives, and constables. In the numerous villages the headmen system is maintained. At the Government Free School there were in 1927 about 200 pupils, and at 6 other schools about 600 pupils. About 6 per cent. of the inhabitants can read and write.

Revenue is derived from (1) a land tax and a road tax; (2) junk registration, shipping dues, wine monopoly; (3) fines and miscellaneous sources. For the year 1927-28 the gross revenue was 275,946 dollars, and the gross expenditure was 247,506 dollars.

The station is used as a flying naval base and as a depot, exercising ground, and sanatorium for the China squadron, which assembles at Weihaiwei during the summer.

The leased territory, consisting of rocky hill ranges with fertile valleys, is most picturesque; it is well populated, and the inhabitants are in general well-to-do. Cereals, vegetables and fruits (apples, grapes and apricots) are grown, and oak-fed silk is produced. Mulberry cultivation is being tried. Seedlings of fir trees, acacias, willows, and plane trees have done well. Those of the inhabitants who are not farmers are mostly fishermen. Some rope and line making, boat-building, and stone-cutting are carried on. The territory contains gold, but, so far as is known, not in workable quantities.

The trade is carried on by junks and steamers. In 1927, 858 steamers entered the port, the tonnage being 1,029,478, exclusive of Admiralty colliers and Government transports. The total volume of trade in 1927 amounted to 1,691,843 packages valued at 17,650,100 dollars. The chief imports (value in dollars) were: piece goods, 2,221,800; raw cotton and yarn, 1,827,080; ground-nut oil, 769,128; rice, 982,920; flour, 864,190; tobacco and cigarettes, 495,770; Chinese wine, 435,848; Indian corn, 411,961; ground-nuts (shelled and unshelled), 459,920; Gunny bags, 197,100; sugar and sugar-cane, 320,160; fish (salt and dried), 291,720; coal, 160,973; bean cakes, 822,530; provisions, 243,805; kerosene, 198,670; paper, 151,281. The chief exports (value in dollars) were: ground-nuts (kernels), 4,086,378; ground-nut oil, 1,096,296; fish (salt and dried), 331,380; fresh eggs, 114,144; sugar, 93,702. Weihaiwei is a duty-free port.

Good roads have been made round the coasts and into the interior of the Territory. The value of land is rising, which is a sign of the increasing prosperity of the place. There is a regular weekly mail service to and from Shanghai. Many Europeans visit the place in summer on account of the excellence of the climate, which is unsurpassed in the Far East.

MANDATED TERRITORY IN ASIA. PALESTINE.

THE natural and historic boundaries of Palestine run from the desert on the east, along the slopes of Mount Hermon over to the Litani on the west, where the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon first break into a series of elevated plateaux, and thence over to the Mediterranean coast, and on the south from the Gulf of Akaba across the Desert of Sinai.

For the present political boundaries, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1928, p. 185.

Government.—After its conquest in 1917–18, by the British Forces, the country remained under British Military Administration till July 1, 1920, when a Civil Administration was set up.

High Commissioner.—Lieutenant-Colonel Sir John Robert Chancellor, G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., D.S.O. (Appointed July 6, 1923.)

Chief Secretary.—H. C. Luke, C.M.G.

The country is administered by Great Britain under a Mandate, which was passed by the Council of the League of Nations on July 24, 1922, and came officially into force on September 29, 1923. This provides for the Balfour Declaration of November 2, 1917, to the effect that 'His Majesty's Government view with favour the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavours to facilitate the achievement of that object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country.'

Constitution.—On September 1, 1922, a new constitution was promulgated. It provides for the appointment of a High Commissioner and Commander-in-Chief and an Executive Council.

A Legislative Council will replace the Advisory Council and have authority to pass such Ordinances as may be necessary for the peace, order, and good government of Palestine, provided (1) that no Ordinance shall restrict complete freedom of conscience and the free exercise of all forms of worship, save in so far as is required for the maintenance of public order and morals, or should tend to discriminate in any way between the inhabitants of Palestine on the ground of race, religion, or language; (2) that no Ordinance shall take effect until either the High Commissioner or His Majesty has assented thereto; (3) that the High Commissioner may reserve any Ordinance for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure, and shall so reserve any Ordinance which concerns matters dealt with specifically by the provisions of the Mandate; and (4) that His Majesty may disallow any Ordinance to which the High Commissioner may have assented within one year of the date of the High Commissioner's assent.

The Legislative Council will consist, in addition to the High Commissioner, of 22 members, 10 official and 12 unofficial. The latter will be elected, not less than two being Christians, and two Jews. The elected members will be chosen by primary and secondary elections. Every male Palestinian citizen over 25 years of age is entitled to vote at the primary election, unless he has lost his civil rights or claims to be a foreign subject, or under foreign protection, or is otherwise disqualified. The number of secondary electors to be elected in each electoral area is determined on the basis that every 200 primary electors will elect one secondary elector. The secondary electors will be formed into twelve electoral colleges according to the religious community to which they belong; and each electoral college elects one member of the Council.

In exercise of the powers vested in him by the Palestine (Amendment) Order in Council 1923, the High Commissioner has appointed an official Advisory Council composed of the heads of the principal Government Departments and the District Commissioner of the Jerusalem-Southern District. Owing to the abstention from the elections of considerable numbers of the Arab inhabitants, the Legislative Council under the new constitution has not yet been formed, and the Advisory Council will remain in being until such time as the election of a Legislative Council becomes possible.

All Ordinances are laid before the official Advisory Council and made public, as Bills, in the Official Gazette, for one month, before promulgation.

The Jewish population of Palestine have perfected their internal organisation by convening an Elected Assembly, which elects a National Committee, to represent the Jewish population of Palestine in its dealings with the Administration.

The British Government and Palestine Administration recognise the World Zionist Organisation, which in Palestine is represented by the Palestine Zionist Executive, as the Agency of the Jewish people in all matters pertaining to the upbuilding of the Jewish National Home.

There is a Supreme Moslem Council to control Moslem religious affairs. English, Arabic, and Hebrew are the official languages of the country.

Area and Population.—Palestine under British Mandate is about 10,000 square miles in extent. The population, taken by official census on October 23, 1922, was 757,182, of whom 590,890 were Moslems, 83,794 Jews, 73,024 Christians, 7,028 Druzes, 163 Samaritans, 265 Bahais, and the remainder Sikhs, Hindus and Metawilehs. In 1927 there were 648,556 Moslems, 147,687 Jews and 76,839 Christians. The estimated population on July 1, 1927, was 882,000.

The country is at present divided into two districts: Southern (Jaffa), and Northern (Haifa); and the Jerusalem division.

The chief town, Jerusalem, which had been in Moslem hands since 1244, and under Turkish rule since 1517, surrendered on December 9, 1917. Its population in 1922 was 62,678. The population figures for the other principal towns at the 1922 census were: Jaffa, 47,709; Tel-Aviv, 36,754; Haifa, 24,634; Gaza, 17,480; Nazareth, 7,424; Nablus, 15,947; Safad, 8,761; Tiberias, 6,950; Hebron, 16,577; Ramleh, 7,312; Bethlehem, 8,668; Lydda, 8,103; Acre, 6,420. There is an appreciable immigration of Jews. Total immigrants, 3,595; Jewish immigrants, year ended December 31, 1927, numbered 2,713—956 men, 1,140 women and 617 children—while Jewish emigrants in the same period numbered 5,071.

There are some 750 Arab villages and a considerable number of Arab tribes, and three German Templar (Christian) settlements, Wilhelma, Sarona and Neuhardtshof.

The Jewish Settlements are grouped in four districts, namely, in Judea 43; in Samaria 18; in Lower Galilee 43; in Upper Galilee 11. The total population of these settlements is now about 32,000. More than 30 of them are built on land belonging to the Jewish National Fund, which was established by the Zionist Organisation for the purpose of acquiring land to remain the property of the Jewish people, and were founded with the assistance of the Keren Hayesod (Foundation Fund), also created by the Zionist Organisation. The total area of the Jewish Settlements exceeds 1,200,000 dunums (4½ dunums equal one acre). The local affairs of the smaller Jewish settlements are controlled by Vaadim or Councils elected by the male and female residents who own registered holdings or pay taxes. The larger villages, Arab and Jewish, are, for internal order and rates, administered by Local Councils, constituted under Ordinance, which exercise modified municipal powers.

Births and deaths for recent years are given in the following table :—

Year.	Estimated Population (mid-year).	No. of Births.	No. of Deaths.	Infantile Mortality (per 1,000 births).
1925	719,508	35,479	19,611	188·6
1926	761,896	40,741	18,020	163·0
1927	778,369	39,193	21,806	200·5

Education.—The schools maintained by the Government number 315, and contain 20,079 scholars, the great majority of whom are Moslems. In the Government Training Colleges for teachers there are 78 men and 64 women students. Technical education is being carried out in some of the Government town schools. A Law School exists in Jerusalem, in which lectures are given in the three official languages.

The Christian and Jewish Communities provide, the former to a very large extent, and the latter almost entirely, for the education of their own children.

The Zionist Organisation, through the Department of Education attached to the Palestine Zionist Executive, controls 191 schools attended by 17,688 pupils, and other Jewish bodies control schools attended by 8,808 pupils, making a total of 275 Jewish schools attended by 26,491 pupils. These institutions include secondary schools in Jerusalem, Tel-Aviv and Haifa, Teachers' Training Colleges (General, Orthodox, Women's and Kindergarten), Schools of Music in Jerusalem, Jaffa, and Haifa, Agricultural Schools, an Arts and Crafts Institute (Bezalel), Evening Classes, and a Technical College at Haifa.

There are 192 Christian Schools, including Orthodox, 22 schools with 2,122 pupils; Catholic, 116 schools with 9,856 pupils; Protestant, 52 schools with 3,632 pupils; miscellaneous, 2 schools with 172 pupils.

There are also 53 private Moslem schools mainly maintained by local committees; these provide for about 4,500 children. Two of these schools are secondary.

Most non-Government schools receive a capitation grant-in-aid from the Department of Education. The schools of the Zionist Organization receive a block grant of £P20,000 a year.

The Hebrew University on Mount Scopus, Jerusalem, was inaugurated on April 1, 1925.

Justice.—The Courts in Palestine are either civil or religious courts. The former have jurisdiction over local subjects in all matters save those of personal status and Waqfs or charitable endowments, and over foreign subjects in all matters, subject to the provisions mentioned below.

There is a Magistrate's Court in every sub-district, and in the larger towns such as Jerusalem, Jaffa, and Haifa, two such courts. The magistrate is in every case a Palestinian and has jurisdiction in first instance in minor criminal cases for which the punishment is not more than one year's imprisonment, and in civil cases where the subject-matter does not exceed £P100.

There are four District Courts, each composed of a British President and two Palestinian judges. They serve respectively the sub-Districts of Jerusalem, Hebron, and Beersheba; Jaffa and Gaza; Nablus, Jenin, Tulkarem, and Nazareth; and Haifa, Acre, Tiberias, and Safad. They go on circuit within the area of their jurisdiction. A District Court has jurisdiction in first instance over all crimes except those punishable with death, and civil cases outside the jurisdiction of a magistrate; it also hears appeals from the decisions of magistrates both in civil and in criminal cases. Crimes punishable with death are tried by the Court of Criminal Assize, which consists of the Chief Justice or Senior British Judge of the Supreme Court sitting with the District Court.

The highest Court in Palestine is the Supreme Court, which is composed of a British Chief Justice and one other British judge and four Palestinian judges. The Court sits in two forms: (1) as a Court of Appeal, in which capacity it has appellate jurisdiction in civil and criminal matters decided in first instance by the District Courts, the Land Courts and the Court of Criminal Assize; (2) as a High Court of Justice, in which capacity it hears applications of the nature of habeas corpus and of mandamus proceedings.

The Court of Appeal is composed normally of three judges, while the High Court may sit with two judges. In either case a British judge presides. An appeal lies from the Supreme Court in civil cases to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council where the value of the suit exceeds £P500, and leave to appeal may be granted where the suit is of less value.

A Bench of honorary magistrates has been established in Jerusalem, Jaffa, Haifa, and other towns, who try contraventions for which the maximum penalty does not exceed £P5 fine and 15 days imprisonment. In addition to the bench of honorary magistrates, a stipendiary magistrate has been appointed to try such contraventions in the Municipal Areas of Jerusalem and Jaffa.

Special arrangements exist in the Beersheba sub-district, where minor cases are disposed of according to tribal custom by the Court of Sheikhs. The District Court of Jerusalem visits Beersheba every month to hear appeals from the local courts and to try more serious criminal cases.

All matters of personal status affecting Moslems are within the jurisdiction of the Sharia Courts. A Sharia Court consists of a Qadi, and appeals from his decision lie to the Moslem Court of Appeal, which is composed of a President and two members.

Jewish Religious Courts have exclusive jurisdiction in certain matters of personal status of Jews, and jurisdiction by consent in other matters. An appeal from the decision of the Jewish Religious Courts lies to the Rabbinical Council.

The different Christian communities (such as the Orthodox and the Latin), have similar jurisdiction to that of the Jewish courts.

Questions of jurisdiction as between the Civil and Religious Courts are decided by a Special Tribunal composed of two British judges of the Supreme Court and the President of the Highest Court of the Religious Community concerned.

The police establishment in 1927 was 132 officers and 1,594 other ranks. 1,028 heinous crimes were reported in 1927 (971 in 1926), and 7 death sentences were carried out.

Finance.—For the year ending December 31, 1928, the receipts were estimated at £P2,322,935, and the expenditure at £P2,443,677.

The main heads of revenue for the period were: customs, £P750,000; port and marine, £P5,200; licences, taxes, etc., £P740,400; fees of court, etc., £P215,200; posts and telegraphs, £P176,850; railways, £P368,000; revenue from government property, £P17,000; interest, £P8,000; miscellaneous, £P4,000.

Production and Industry.—Palestine comprises four zones of country. On the west, along the shores of the Mediterranean, which are deficient here in good natural harbours, is the maritime plain, which varies in width from 15 to 20 miles at Gaza to about 2 miles at Acre, and at the Plain of Esdraelon stretches for a considerable distance into the interior, and separates the highlands of Galilee from those of Samaria and Judæa. From the coastal plain the country rises into a plateau intersected by deep wadis or valleys, which drop steeply to the east to the third zone, formed by the great depression down which the river Jordan runs to the Dead Sea, and which is prolonged for another 100 miles to the Red Sea as the Wadi Araba. This depression reaches a depth below sea-level of 2,600 feet in the deepest portion of the Dead Sea, the surface of which is about 1,300 feet below sea-level. The Dead Sea is 46 miles long and has an average width of  $8\frac{1}{2}$  miles; it receives the waters of the Jordan and of six other rivers and has no outlet, the surplus being carried off by evaporation. It is intensely salt, with a specific gravity one-sixth greater than water, and with 24 per cent. of salt. East of the Jordan Valley the country rises again steeply to a plateau and merges into the Arabian desert.

Palestine is essentially an agricultural country. In 1927 the area under British Administration, exclusive of Trans-Jordan, produced:—Wheat, 99,406 tons; barley, 44,524 tons; durra, 37,441 tons; olives, 1,866 tons; olive oil, 3,737 tons; and lentils, 3,155 tons. In 1927 there were in the country 242,625 sheep, 385,762 goats, 22,569 camels, and 596 buffaloes.

Limestone is found all over the country; sandstone abounds on the coast; gypsum of good quality is found at Mount Usdum and at Mount Gipsia near Melhamia (Galilee). Rock salt abounds in the Jordan Valley and on the shores of the Dead Sea, where also sulphur is obtainable. Mineral oil is said to have possibilities, but trial drills have not, so far, indicated the presence of oil in paying quantities. The Dead Sea contains cooking salt, carnallite, and bromide. There are medicinal springs near Tiberias.

The principal industries of export importance are those of wine-making, especially in the Jewish Colonies, Zichron Jacob, Rishon le Zion, and Petah-Tikvah; soap-boiling in Nablus and Haifa; olive oil in Nablus, Acre, and the district round Jaffa. Oranges grown chiefly in the Jaffa district are exported to Egypt and Europe. The orange and lemon crop in 1926-27 was 2,658,716 cases. The wine production was 1,488,477 litres.

Further progress has been made in the reservation of state forest; nearly 800,000 dunums have been reserved out of a total area of 1,200,000 dunums of natural forest land. Extensive planting of timber, fruit and shade trees, has been effected by Government and private agency. Approximately one million trees were planted during 1927—both timber trees and fruit trees, including vines, oranges and olives; 17 nurseries have been maintained during 1927 for the free issue and sale of stock to the public and the provision of material to Government plantations.

Exports to the United Kingdom (Board of Trade returns), 1928, 1,308,024 $\frac{1}{2}$ : imports from the United Kingdom, 1928, 683,711 $\frac{1}{2}$ .

Shipping and Communications.—The most important ports of Palestine are Jaffa and Haifa; the two ports of lesser significance are Acre and Gaza. For the calendar year 1927, 697 steamers, totalling 1,570,542 tons, and 1,919 sailing vessels, totalling 35,171 tons, arrived at Palestinian ports, whilst 699 steamers of 1,550,922 tonnage and 1,961 sailing vessels of 35,997 tonnage, cleared. Palestine possesses no shipping of its own, other than some small sailing vessels and power launches.

A regular passenger service to Palestinian ports is provided by 30 shipping lines.

The total length of the Palestine railways, which are State-owned, is 774 miles, divided as follows: standard gauge (4' 8 $\frac{1}{2}$ ")—Kantara-El Arish-Rafa-Lyddá-Tulkarem-Haifa, 259 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles; Jaffa-Lyddá-Jerusalem, 64 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles; Safrieh-Sarafand, 2 $\frac{3}{4}$  miles; Kafr Jinis-Beit Nabala, 2 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles; Ras El Ain-Petah Tikva, 4 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles; narrow gauge (3' 6")—Haifa-El Hamme, 59 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles; Nassib South Mudawara, 232 $\frac{3}{8}$  miles; Acre Junction-Acre, 11 miles; Afule-Jenin-Nablus-Tulkarem, 61 miles. The section Kantara to Rafa, known as the 'Sinai Military Railway' (125 miles), is being worked by the Palestine Railways on behalf of the Air Ministry. There is through communication with Egypt, and trains connect at Kantara West daily with Cairo, Alexandria, Port Said, and Suez and other parts of Egypt, railway vehicles being sent across the canal by means of a truck transporter.

East of Haifa the Palestine Railways system terminates at El Hamme, and the section El Hamme-Deraa (Junction of the Hejaz Railway to Medina) is operated by the Hejaz Railway, which in turn is controlled by the French Government.

There are 403 miles of metalled roads in Palestine extensively used by motor transport, and in addition, many hundreds of miles of tracks passable for wheeled traffic of all kinds during dry weather.

Posts and Telegraphs.—In 1927 there were conveyed 11,996,470 letters, 980,158 postcards, 4,607,608 printed communications and samples, 145,503 parcels, and 275,165 telegrams. Length of telegraph and telephone trunk lines, 12,078 km.; local lines, 7,686 km. Number of telephone subscribers, 1,940.

Banking and Currency.—The most important bank in Palestine is Barclay's Bank with branches at Jerusalem, Jaffa, Haifa, Nazareth, and Tel-Aviv. The Anglo-Palestine Company has its head office in Jaffa, with branches in Jerusalem, Tel-Aviv, Haifa, Tiberias, and Safad. In addition there is a branch in Jerusalem of the Banco di Roma. The Ottoman Bank has branches in Jerusalem, Jaffa, Haifa, Nablus, and Amman (Trans-jordan).

There are also established, in addition, a Jewish Workers' Bank, several Co-operative Credit Institutions, a Building Loan and Saving Association, a Central Bank of Co-operative Institutions and other savings societies.

The standard of currency from November 1, 1927, is the Palestine pound (dīnār), divided into 1,000 mills, and equivalent in value to the pound sterling. Silver coins of 100 and 50 mills, nickel of 20, 10 and 5 mills, and bronze of 2 and 1 mills are used. The 2-mill coin is about equal in value to the United States cent. The Egyptian money in circulation is being gradually withdrawn.

The metric system is followed by the Government, but the local weights and measures are still commonly employed by the public.

Trans-Jordan.—This territory is governed by a local Arab Administration under His Highness the Amir Abdullah Ibn Hussein, K.C.M.G., G.B.E., second son of ex-King Hussein of the Hijaz and elder brother of King Feisal of Iraq, who became its ruler in April 1921 and is assisted by an Executive Council. The country is covered by the Palestine Mandate, but the clauses relating to the establishment of a national home for the Jews are expressly excluded from operation therein. In April 1923 a Declaration was made that, subject to the approval of the League of Nations, His Majesty's Government will recognise the existence of an Independent Government in Trans-Jordan, under the rule of His Highness the Amir Abdullah, provided such government is constitutional and places His Britannic Majesty's Government in a position to fulfil its international obligations in respect of the territory by means of an Agreement to be concluded between the two Governments. This agreement was signed in Jerusalem on February 20, 1928, and will come into force when ratified by the High Contracting Parties after its acceptance by the Constitutional Government to be set up under Article II. The Organic Law has been published, and the Legislative Council assembled for the first time in November 1928. In 1928 a separate commission was issued to the High Commissioner for Palestine appointing him High Commissioner for Trans-Jordan, who is thus High Commissioner for both areas.

The western frontier of Trans-Jordan (i.e. the frontier between Trans-Jordan and Palestine) is a line drawn from a point 2 miles west of the town of Akaba on the gulf of that name, up the centre of the Wady Araba, of the Dead Sea, and of the River Jordan, up to its junction with the River Yarmuk and thence up the centre of that river to the Syrian frontier which meets the Yarmuk river at the bridge which is situated about 500 metres to the East of El Hamme Station. The eastern frontier of Trans-Jordan (i.e. between Trans-Jordan and Nejd) is defined in Article 1 of the Hadda Agreement of the 2nd November, 1925 (Omd. 2566) and starts in the north-east from the point of intersection of meridian  $39^{\circ}$  E. and parallel  $32^{\circ}$  N., which marks the termination of the frontier between Nejd and Iraq. Thence it proceeds in a straight line to the point of intersection of meridian  $37^{\circ}$  E. and parallel  $31^{\circ} 30'$  N., and thence along meridian  $37^{\circ}$  E. to the point of its intersection with parallel  $31^{\circ} 25'$  N. From this point it proceeds in a straight line to the point of intersection of meridian  $38^{\circ}$  E. and parallel  $30^{\circ}$  N. leaving all projecting edges of the Wadi Sirhan in Nejd territory, and thence proceeds along meridian  $38^{\circ}$  E. to the point of its intersection with parallel  $29^{\circ} 35'$  N. The exact southern frontier of Trans-Jordan and Iraq have not yet been finally defined, but the following may be considered as the provisional frontiers between Trans-Jordan and the Hedjaz, Syria and Iraq:—

Frontier between Trans-Jordan and the Hedjaz.—A line drawn from a point 2 miles south of Akaba to a point on the Hedjaz Railway 2 miles south of Mudawara, and thence proceeding to the intersection of meridian  $38^{\circ}$  E. and parallel  $29^{\circ} 35'$  N.

Frontier between Trans-Jordan and Iraq.—A line drawn from the intersection of meridian  $39^{\circ}$  E. and parallel  $32^{\circ}$  N. to the nearest point on the frontier laid down in Article 1 of the Franco-British Convention of the 23rd December, 1920.

Frontier between Trans-Jordan and Syria.—As laid down in Article 1 of the Franco-British Convention of 23rd December, 1920. The relevant extract of this article reads as follows: From Abu Kemal on the Euphrates in a straight line to Imtan to the S. of the Jebel Druz, then a line to the South of Nesib on the Hedjaz Railway, then a line traced to the South of the Railway, which descends towards Lake Tiberias and parallel to the Railway. . . . The line will be traced as close as possible to the Railway. . . .

The population is probably about 260,000. Of these, 220,000 are Arab Moslems, 30,000 Arab Christians; the remaining 10,000 are Caucasian elements (chiefly Circassian) settled by the Turks in Trans-Jordan some 45 years ago following the Turco-Russian war. Most of the towns and larger villages have schools, and the Budget provision for education in 1928-29 is 21,582*l.* The Police Force, which is known as the Arab Legion, consists of a body of 855 officers and men under the command of a British officer who has a British officer as his Second-in-Command. The Headquarters of the Royal Air Force in Trans-Jordan and Palestine is located at Amman, and there is a military force of some 700 men raised locally, but officered largely by British Officers stationed in the country. This Force is known as the Trans-Jordan Frontier Force. The country to the east of the Hedjaz Railway line is largely desert, but to the west of this line is potentially of high agricultural value. The resources of the country are agricultural and pastoral products, while several antiquity sites, of which the most notable are Amman, Jerash, Kerak and Petra, are becoming an essential part of the itinerary of Eastern tourists. There are also phosphate deposits (undeveloped, though examined). Potash is found in the Dead Sea, and possibly there is oil in the southern area. A metalled road, fit for motor traffic, connects Amman with Jerusalem while unmetalled roads have been constructed making motor traffic possible from Amman to all the chief towns in the country. The road running from Amman to Maan has been continued to Aqaba, and, from this main road, branches run to Madeba, Kerak, Tufileh and Wady Musa (Petra). The towns of Jerash, Irbid, Ajloun, Kufriji, Remte and Deraa, the last named being in Syrian territory, are joined by good roads to Amman. From Irbid a branch runs to Jisr Mejamie and Jisr Sheikh Hussein on the Palestine boundary. An alternative route from Amman to Deraa may be taken, the road running via Zerka and Mafrak. From this latter, a branch road runs to Remthe, El Hosh and Irbid. The oasis of Azrak may be reached by motor car from Mafrak, Zerka or Amman, and from Azrak cars can pass across the desert via Rutba to Baghdad. The Hedjaz Railway from Deraa to Kalaat Mudawara runs, with the exception of the first few miles, through Trans-Jordan territory. South of Maan, however, the Railway is in disrepair. The Cairo-Baghdad air route traverses the country from west to east, and there is an aerodrome with a Royal Air Force detachment at Amman, while at Zizia there is a landing ground used by the Imperial Airways Co. as a fuel replenishing station. The estimated revenue of the country in 1928-29 is 240,916*l*. The estimated Grant in Aid from the Imperial Government for 1928-29 is 40,000*l*. Great Britain is represented by a British Resident subordinate to, and the agent of, the High Commissioner for Palestine. The official language of the country is Arabic.

British Resident: Lt.-Col. C. H. F. Cox, C.M.G., D.S.O.

AFRICA.

ASCENSION ISLAND. See ST. HELENA.

BRITISH EAST AFRICA.

British East Africa consists of a large area on the mainland, together with the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba. For details as to international agreements, &c., with regard to the British sphere in East Africa, see the STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1907, pp. 216 and 217.

KENYA COLONY AND PROTECTORATE.

Government.—The Kenya Colony and Protectorate extends, on the Indian Ocean, from the Umba River to Dick's Head, and inland as far as Lake Victoria and Uganda. The Protectorate consists of the mainland dominions of the Sultan of Zanzibar, viz., a coastal strip of territory ten miles wide, to the northern branch of the Tana River; also Kau, Kipini, and the Island of Lamu, and all adjacent islands between Rivers Umba and Tana, these territories having been leased to Great Britain in 1895 for an annual rent of 10,000*l.* The colony and protectorate were formerly known as the East Africa Protectorate. On April 1, 1905, this was transferred from the authority of the Foreign Office to that of the Colonial Office, and in November, 1906, the Protectorate was placed under the control of a Governor and Commander-in-Chief and (except the Sultan of Zanzibar's dominions) was annexed to the Crown as from July 23, 1920, under the name of 'The Colony of Kenya,' thus becoming a 'Crown Colony.' The territories on the coast rented from the Sultan of Zanzibar were proclaimed as the Kenya Protectorate.

A treaty was signed (July 15, 1924) with Italy under which Great Britain ceded to Italy the Juba River and a strip from 50 to 100 miles wide on the British side of the river. Following on ratification of the treaty, cession took place on June 29, 1925.

In 1906 Executive and Legislative Councils were constituted, the former consisting of 4 members, in addition to the Governor, the latter of 8 official and 4 unofficial members. In 1919 the Legislative Council was enlarged to consist of 11 elected representatives of the European community, three nominated members, two representing the Indian population and one the Arabs, and a sufficient number of official members to give a majority in the Council. A new constitution was adopted in December, 1925, under which the Executive Council consists of 11 members, in addition to the Governor, while the Legislative Council consists of 11 elected European members, 5 elected Indian members, 1 member nominated to represent African interests, 1 elected Arab member, and a sufficient number of ex-officio and nominated official members to give to these a majority. Until such time as five Indian members have been elected, as many Indian members may be nominated as will make the number of Indian members, including elected Indian members, five in all. The constituencies for Europeans, Indians and Arabs are separated from one another (i.e. communal franchise). Legislation is by Ordinances made by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council. In 1908 foreign consular jurisdiction in the Zanzibar strip of coast was transferred to the British Crown.

There are 7 provinces, which are as follows: Coast (capital Mombasa), Ukamba (capital Nairobi), Kikuyu (capital Nyeri), Nyanza (capital Kisumu), Northern Frontier Province (capital Meru), Kerio Province (capital Eldama Ravine), and the Masai Province (capital Ngong). There are also five extra provincial districts.

Area and Population.—The territory has an area of 225,100 square miles; population in 1926 estimated at 2,736,517, including 12,529 Europeans, 30,583 Asiatics, and 10,557 Arabs. On the coast the Arabs and Swahilis predominate; further inland are races speaking Bantu languages, and non-Bantu tribes such as the Nilotic Kavirondo, the Nandi, the Lambwa, the Masai, the Somali, and the Gallas. Mombasa is the largest town; population about 39,824, of whom 869 are Europeans. The harbour is situated on the eastern side of an island of the same name, and is the terminus of the Kenya and Uganda Railway. Kilindini harbour on the south-western side of the island is the finest land-locked and sheltered harbour on the east coast of Africa and is accessible to vessels of deep draught. The principal river in the North is the Tana, which flows into the Indian Ocean. It is navigable for about 400 miles by shallow-draught steamers. Nairobi, the capital and the headquarters of the administration, has 32,864 inhabitants, of whom about 3,612 are European. There are about 2,324 European farmers in the Colony.

Religion, Education, Justice.—The prevailing religious beliefs are Pagan; but on the coast Mohammedanism has made great progress. There are many Christian mission societies, British, French, Italian, Swedish, and American, several being Roman Catholic. There were twenty (including 6 European) Government schools in operation in 1925, and over 900 mission and native schools. The Supreme Court is at Nairobi, and sessions are held at Mombasa, Nakuru, Eldoret, Kisumu, and other places. District Courts presided over by magistrates are held in each district. In native cases local ideas and customs are considered. The legal status of slavery has been abolished throughout East Africa.

Finance.—Revenue and expenditure for 6 years:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1922	1,649,082	1,972,212	1925	2,480,509	2,339,996
1923	1,839,447	2,137,633	1926	2,627,223	2,414,681
1924	2,111,564	1,861,510	1927	2,846,110	2,515,115

Of the revenue for 1927, customs accounted for 830,550*l.*; licences, duties, taxes, etc., 898,166*l.*; posts and telegraphs, 165,099*l.*; fees, etc., 129,669*l.*; earnings of Govt. depts., 54,021*l.*; revenue from Govt. property and royalties, 90,044*l.*; sale of Govt. property, 35,075*l.*; miscellaneous receipts, 12,277*l.*; reimbursements, 397,889*l.*; interest, 145,630*l.*; and land sales, 48,387*l.* Public debt at end of 1927, 10,000,000*l.*

Agriculture and Mining.—The agricultural products in the low-lying areas, where rainfall is sufficient, are rice, coconuts, cotton, simsim, ground-nuts, cassava, sugar-cane. In the Highlands of the Colony, where the temperature is moderate and the rainfall good, considerable areas now exist under coffee, maize, wheat and sisal, while dairy and wool industries are growing in importance.

The merchantable forest area extends over 4,500 square miles, of which 316 square miles are tropical. Near the coast are mangroves, rubber trees, ebony, copal, and other trees. The commonest and most important tree is Pencil cedar; the sawing of pencil slats for export is an important industry.

The mineral resources are not yet fully explored. They consist of natron, diatomite, gold, graphite, marble, limestone and manganese. Gold is being exploited in the S. Kavirondo district.

Commerce and Shipping.—There is a uniform Customs tariff in Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika. The Colony and Protectorate of Kenya and Uganda Protectorate are one administrative unit for Customs purposes, and complete freedom of trade exists between the two territories and Tanganyika, Customs Revenue being allocated to the consuming territory.

Imports into Kenya and Uganda (excluding Government stores, bullion and specie), the domestic exports of Kenya and Uganda, and the tonnage entered and cleared—Colony and Protectorate of Kenya—were :—

Years	Imports for Home Consumption	Domestic Exports	Customs Revenue	Tonnage entered and cleared

1928 exports to the United Kingdom (Board of Trade Returns), 3,497,636*l.*; imports from the United Kingdom, 3,369,970*l.*

Communication between the ports of Kenya is kept up by small steamers owned by the British India S.S. Co., Messrs. Cawasji Dinshaw Brothers, at Aden, and the African Wharfrage Co., Ltd., at Mombasa.

Communications.—The Kenya and Uganda Railway is a State railway consisting of: Main Line, Mombasa Island to Kisumu on Lake Victoria, 589 miles; Voi-Kahe Branch, 92 miles, with running power over the Tanganyika Railway to Moshi; Lake Magadi Branch, 91 miles; Nyeri Branch, 128 miles; Uasin Gishu line, 142 miles; Solai Branch, 26 miles; Kitale Branch, 41 miles. Railways under construction or under survey are: Turbo to Mbulamuti on the Busoga Railway (Uganda) via Tororo, 185 miles; Tororo to Mbale (Uganda) 40 miles; North Kavirondo Branch, 45 miles; Thika-Nyeri extension, 48 miles; Gilgil to Thomson's Falls, 47 miles.

The Kenya and Uganda Railway also controls the Busoga Railway (Uganda), steamer services on Lakes Victoria and Kioga (Uganda), a motor transport service between Lakes Kioga and Albert, and a steamer service on Lake Albert. During the year ending December 31, 1927, 813,062 tons of goods and 1,065,225 passengers were carried; revenue, 2,126,043*l.*; expenditure, 1,150,786*l.* There is a telegraph along all lines of rail. The country is fairly well provided with roads and tracks. There is a motor road from Nairobi, across Uganda, to Mongalla in the Sudan.

The Post Office of the Colony and Protectorate (inclusive of the Uganda Post Office, which is worked by the Kenya Post Office) received and despatched 13,283,900 letters, packets, &c., and 620,200 telegrams during 1927. The telegraph system has 7,124 miles of wire (exclusive of Uganda). A cable connects Mombasa with Zanzibar.

Money.—The currency of the Colony and Protectorate, which is the same as that of the Uganda Protectorate and the Tanganyika Territory, is controlled by the East African Currency Board domiciled at 4 Millbank, London, S.W. 1, who maintain a stable rate of sterling exchange. The standard coin is the East Africa shilling (20 = 1*l.*) introduced as from January 1, 1922, which is legal tender to any amount. The subsidiary coins consist of 50 cent (silver), 10 cent, 5 cent and 1 cent (bronze). The paper currency consists of notes of the following denominations: 5, 10, 20, 100, 200 and 1,000 shillings. Three banks operate in the colony. Savings bank deposits end of December, 1927, 78,007.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Lt.-Col. Sir Edward W. M. Grigg, K.C.M.G., K.C.V.O., D.S.O., M.C. (1925). (Salary, with allowances, 8,500*l.*)
Colonial Secretary.—H. M. M. Moore.

THE UGANDA PROTECTORATE.

The territories now comprised within this Protectorate came under British influence in 1890, and a portion of them was for a time administered by the Imperial British East African Company. In 1894 a British Protectorate was declared over the kingdom of Uganda and some of the adjoining territories. The present limits are approximately as follows:—On the north, the Uganda-Sudan boundary; on the east, a line drawn from Mt. Zulia on the Sudan boundary along the Turkana escarpment over the top of Mt. Elgon, and along the west boundary of the Colony of Kenya to the eastern shores of Lake Victoria; on the south by Tanganyika Territory (late German East Africa); and on the west by the eastern boundary of the Belgian Congo. Within these boundaries lie part of the Victoria Nyanza, part of Lake Edward, the whole of Lake George, half of Lake Albert, the whole of Lake Kioga, the whole of Lake Salisbury, and the course of the Nile from its exit from Lake Victoria to Nimule, where the Egyptian Sudan commences. Total area 94,204 square miles, including 15,017 square miles of water. For administrative purposes it is divided into 4 provinces: (1) the Eastern Province, comprising the districts of Busoga, Teso, Lango, Karamoja, Bugwere, Bugishu, and Budama; (2) the Northern Province, comprising the districts of Bunyoro, Gulu, Chua, and West Nile; (3) the Western Province, comprising the districts of Toro, Ankole, and Kigezi; and (4) Buganda Province, with islands in Lake Victoria, comprising the districts of Mengo, Masaka, Mubende, and Entebbe.

The whole Protectorate is now under direct administration; but the native kings or chiefs, whose rights are in some cases regulated by treaties, are encouraged to conduct the government of their own subjects. The province of Buganda is recognised as a native kingdom under a 'Kabaka,' with the title of 'His Highness.' He is assisted in the government by three native ministers and a Lukiko, or native assembly. In Buganda, and in Bunyoro, Ankole and Toro, also ruled over by native 'Kings,' purely native matters are dealt with by the various Lukikos, but in serious cases there is an appeal to higher courts. For Europeans and non-natives justice is administered by his Majesty's courts. The principal British representative is the Governor, who is assisted by a Legislative Council and an Executive Council in carrying out the functions of Government. The headquarters of the British Administration is at Entebbe; the native capital of Buganda is at Mengo, Kampala.

The total population of Uganda (December, 1927) was estimated at 3,157,008, composed as follows: Native, 3,143,670; Asiatic, 11,464; European, 1,874. Among the natives approximately 790,000 belong to the intelligent, civilised Baganda, a race converted to Christianity by British and French missionaries. Until recently educational work has been in the hands of the various Missionary Societies, who receive grants towards scholarships, &c., for students and teachers. Their efforts are now being supplemented by a Government educational scheme. The attendance at the Mission Schools in 1927 was 115,525 boys and 100,876 girls. About 2,000,000 natives speak Bantu languages; there are a few Congo pygmies living near the Semliki river; the rest of the natives belong to the Masai, Nilotic, and Sudanese groups.

There are local and special courts of justice, and a High Court with civil and criminal jurisdiction. The appeal court consists of the judges of the High Courts of the Colony of Kenya, Uganda, Nyasaland, Zanzibar and Tanganyika territory. In 1927, 6,284 criminal cases were tried. There is an armed constabulary force under a British Commissioner of Police and British officers. There is also a volunteer reserve of Europeans.

Cotton is the principal product, and is grown almost entirely by natives. The area under cultivation in 1927 was estimated at about 533,004 acres. Other products are coffee, Para rubber, cocoa, oil-seeds. There are valuable forests.

Total exports in 1927, 2,310,260*l.* (1926, 1,690,838*l.*); cotton, 2,310,260*l.*; coffee, 170,407*l.*; cotton seed, 170,308*l.*; rubber, 82,007*l.*; ivory, 34,574*l.*; hides and skins, 99,541*l.* The total value of imports for consumption in 1927 was 1,819,961*l.*, consisting mainly of cotton fabrics and manufactures, 520,514*l.* Total imports in 1926 amounted to 2,114,044*l.* The trade is chiefly with Great Britain, the United States, and India. There is a uniform Customs tariff in Kenya, Uganda, and Tanganyika.

The revenue and expenditure (exclusive of loan disbursements) for 6 years were:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1922	820,365	920,228	1925	1,479,284	1,108,396
1923	999,750	938,990	1926	1,889,641	1,295,612
1924	1,239,790	918,662	1927	1,292,306	1,480,976

In 1927 the poll-tax amounted to 526,605*l.*, and customs to 348,083*l.* Debt, 1,107,595*l.*

There are steamer services on Lakes Victoria, Kioga, and Albert. The steamers on Lake Albert descend the Nile to Nimule, on the Sudan boundary, whence there is a motor road (about 100 miles) round the rapids extending to Rejaf, the terminus of the Nile steamers from Khartum. The Busoga Railway (62 miles) from Jinja (on Lake Victoria) to Namasagali, the highest point on the Nile served by the Lake Kioga steamers, is the main outlet for the Uganda cotton crop. A railway runs from Mbulamuti on the Jinja-Namasagali Railway and joins up with the Kenya and Uganda Railway, via Tororo, Turbo, and Eldoret. There is a railway from Port Bell to Kampala, 7½ miles in length, and a new track is under construction between Kampala and Jinja. A network of motor roads has been constructed, and a fleet of Government motor vans serves the main routes.

Mail services by motor and relays of runners radiate from Entebbe, Kampala and Jinja. The Sudan-Egyptian telegraph and telephone system is established to Rejaf. The Uganda telegraph line is extended to Mutir and to Nimule, 89 miles from Rejaf, and also connects with the Belgian Congo via Fort Portal and the Semliki. The length of telegraph and telephone line in the Protectorate is (1927) 1,597 miles. Telephone exchanges are installed at Entebbe, Kampala, Jinja, and Mbale.

The currency was based on the rupee (originally valued at 1*s.* 4*d.*, but in and after 1920 at 2*s.*), and consisted of silver rupees, with a subsidiary coinage of silver 50 and 25 cent pieces, and nickel 10 cent, 5 cent, 1 cent, and  $\frac{1}{2}$  cent pieces. The shilling has been introduced and standardised. East Africa Government currency notes of shillings 10,000, 1,000, 500, 200, 100, 50, 20, 10, 5, and one florin, are also in circulation. New cental coins were issued during 1922. The Savings Bank had 18,674½ deposits and 1,224 depositors on December 31, 1927. The National Bank of India (Limited) has branches at Entebbe, Kampala and Jinja, and the Standard Bank of South Africa has opened branches at Kampala and Jinja.

ZANZIBAR.

The Island of Zanzibar is situated in 6° S. latitude, and is separated from the mainland by a channel 22½ miles across at its narrowest part. It is the largest coralline island on the African coast, being 53 miles long by 24 broad, and having an area of 640 square miles. To the north-east, at a distance of some 25 miles, lies the Island of Pemba in 5° S. latitude, 42 miles long by 14 broad, having an area of 380 square miles.

In the sixteenth century the Arabs of the East Coast sought the assistance of the Imams of Muscat to drive out the Portuguese. The subsequent allegiance to Muscat, however, was of a more or less nominal character until Seyyid Said transferred his capital to Zanzibar in 1832. On his death in 1856 the African possessions were, under an arbitration by Lord Canning (then Governor-General of India), declared independent of the parent State. In 1890 the supremacy of the British interests in the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba was recognised by France and Germany, and they were declared a British Protectorate in accordance with conventions by which Great Britain waived all claims to Madagascar in favour of France and ceded Heligoland to Germany. In the same year the mainland possessions, which extended over the coast from Warsheikh in 3° N. latitude to Tunghi Bay in 10° 42' S. latitude, were ceded to Italy, Great Britain, and Germany, respectively, Great Britain and Italy paying rent for the territories under their protection, while Germany acquired the Sultan's rights by the payment of a sum of 200,000*l.* At a later date Italy also acquired similar rights by payment of a sum of 144,000*l.* The British-rented territories on the mainland were included in the East Africa Protectorate, and now form the Protectorate of Kenya (see above under Kenya). Thus the Zanzibar Protectorate is confined for administrative purposes to Zanzibar, Pemba, and adjacent small islands. In 1891, a regular Government was formed for the Protectorate with a British representative as first minister. In 1906 the Imperial Government assumed more direct control over the Protectorate and reorganised the Government. On July 1, 1913, the control of the Protectorate was transferred from the Foreign Office to the Colonial Office, legal effect being given to the change in the following year.

Constitution and Government.—The Sultan, Seyyid Khalifa bin Harub, K.C.M.G., K.B.E. (born 1879), succeeded on the abdication of his brother-in-law, Ali bin Hamoud bin Mahomed, December 9, 1911. The Government is administered by a British Resident, who is appointed by commissions under His Majesty's Sign Manual and Signet, and exercises his functions under the Zanzibar Order-in-Council, 1924, as amended by the Zanzibar Order in Council, 1925.

Legislation consists of Decrees of His Highness the Sultan, which are binding on all persons when countersigned by the British Resident under the Order-in-Council.

In 1926 Executive and Legislative Councils were established. The former is presided over by His Highness the Sultan, and the latter by the British Resident. The Legislative Council consists of three ex-officio official members and five others. There are six unofficial members, representing various communities.

Population, Religion, Education, &c.—The population of Zanzibar and Pemba, according to the census of 1924, was 216,790 (Zanzibar, 128,099; Pemba, 88,691). The registered birth rate in 1927 was 19·96 per 1,000 for Zanzibar and 24·27 for Pemba; and the death rate 22·54 and 13·58 respectively. The Arabs are the principal landlords and employers of labour. The black population is mostly Swahili, but there are representatives of nearly every African tribe. According to the 1921 census there were 14,125 non-native inhabitants, including about 270 Europeans, most of whom are English, and about 12,000 British Indian subjects, through whose hands almost the whole trade of East Africa passes. Zanzibar town has a population of 38,700.

Most of the natives are Mohammedans (Sunnis of the Shafi school); the Sultan and the principal Arabs are of the Ibadhi sect. There are 3 Christian Missions: the Universities Mission to Central Africa (Church of England), the Mission of the Holy Ghost (Roman Catholic), and the Friends' Industrial Mission.

Education is free. Subjects of H.H. the Sultan are liable to compulsion, but for others education is voluntary. There are Government schools mainly for Moslems, a number of mission schools, Indian schools supported by different communities for the children of their sects, private schools and a non-sectarian school. The total number of children attending these schools in 1927 was 3,778. There is a Teachers' Training School and a Commercial School. In 1927 education for Arab girls was started under the auspices of government.

Justice.—In cases in which persons subject to the Zanzibar Order-in-Council, 1924, are concerned, justice is administered by His Britannic Majesty's High Court and the Courts subordinate to it, and in other cases by H.H. the Sultan's Court for Zanzibar and the Courts subordinate to that Court. Subordinate Courts are held by Resident Magistrates, Administrative Officers and Arab Qadis, and an appeal lies from those Courts to the British or Zanzibar Court as may be required. An appeal lies from the British Court and from the Zanzibar Court in the exercise of their original civil and criminal jurisdiction to His Majesty's Court of Appeal for Eastern Africa and thence to the Privy Council.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure for 6 years were as follows:—

Year	Revenue from Customs	Total Revenue (excluding loans)	Expenditure	Year	Revenue from Customs	Total Revenue (excluding loans)	Expenditure
	£	£	£		£	£	£
1922	251,766	426,418	508,789	1925	341,021	578,023	543,000
1923	365,863	589,224	480,136	1926	199,063	449,037	648,677
1924	291,737	492,527	451,730	1927	309,159	540,545	606,801

Besides Customs, the chief sources of revenue in 1927 were: interest on loan to Kenya and other investments, 29,448*l.*; railway and electricity department, 29,450*l.*; agriculture, 30,317*l.*; court fees, fines, etc., 95,746*l.*; rent of Kenya Protectorate, 10,000*l.*; rent of Kismaya to the Italian Government, 1,000*l.*; rent of Government property, land and houses, 21,786*l.* The chief heads of expenditure in 1927 were: public works department, 224,360*l.*; port and marine, 28,970*l.*; police and prisons, 33,124*l.*; railway and electricity department, 26,056*l.*; judicial department, 25,796*l.*; agricultural department, 69,488*l.*; district offices, 28,933*l.*; medical, 48,679*l.*; education, 18,270*l.*; pensions, 28,062*l.*

Public debt at end of 1927, 100,000*l.*; sinking fund, 97,534*l.*

Production and Industry.—The clove industry is by far the most important in the Protectorate, the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba yielding the bulk of the world's supply. It is estimated that there are in both islands about 48,000 acres under cloves and over 3 million trees in bearing, the average output of the last 20 seasons being 19,343,004 lbs. The exports in 1927 were 259,453 cwts., and clove-stems 49,209 cwts. The large plantations are chiefly owned by Arabs, but many natives possess small holdings. The coconut industry ranks next in importance after cloves. It is estimated that there are about 55,000 acres under cultivation and 3½ million trees in both islands. The export of copra amounted in 1927 to 284,000 cwts.

The manufactures are pottery, coir fibre and rope, soap, oil (coconut and simsim), jewellery, and mats. There are no mines in the Protectorate.

Commerce.—The total imports, exports, and shipping for 5 years were:—

Years	Imports (Including bullion and specie)	Exports (Including bullion and specie)	Shipping entered (gross tonnage)
	£	£	Tons

Shipping and Communications, &c.—Several British and foreign Steamship Companies have regular services to Zanzibar and all the important ports on the coast of East Africa. The Zanzibar Government steamers maintain regular weekly connection with Pemba, as well as making calls at Dar-es-Salaam.

Ocean-going shipping dealt with in 1927, 1,368,609 tons net (353 vessels); coastwise, 107,627 tons (258 vessels); dhows, 85,739 tons entered and 85,778 tons cleared.

There is cable communication with Europe either via Aden or via Durban.

There are 190 miles of roads throughout the Islands of Zanzibar and Pemba suitable for motor traffic. A light railway runs north from the town to Bububu, seven miles distant.

The Government maintains wireless stations in Zanzibar and Pemba, and a telephone system in the town of Zanzibar, which is connected with the District and Agricultural stations in the country. There is also a Telephone Service connecting the three Administrative Districts in the island of Pemba. There are six post offices in the two islands. The number of articles dealt with at the post office in 1927 was 1,393,926 (letters, 1,381,284). The Post Office Savings Bank at the end of 1927 had 2,587 depositors, with 173,367 rupees on deposit.

The British Indian rupee is universally current; currency notes of Re to 500 rupees are in circulation. The value of notes in circulation on December 31, 1927, was 24,01,815 rupees. Seyyidieh copper pice are legal tender up to 64 pice (= one rupee). A frasila (or frasila) of cloves is equivalent to 35lbs. av.

MAURITIUS.

Mauritius was discovered by the Portuguese early in the 16th century, but the Dutch were the first settlers. In 1710 they abandoned the island and it was occupied by the French under the name of Isle de France. The British occupied the island in 1810, and it was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris of 1814.

Constitution and Government.—Under Letters Patent of 1885, 1901, 1904, and 1913, partially representative institutions have been established. The government of the Colony, with its dependencies, Rodrigues, Diégo Garcia, &c., is vested in a Governor, aided by an Executive Council, consisting of the officer in command of His Majesty's troops, the Colonial Secretary, the Procureur-General, the Receiver-General, and such other persons holding office in the service of the Government of the Colony as the Governor, through instructions from the Secretary of State, may from time to time appoint. There is also a Council of Government, consisting of the Governor and twenty-seven members, ten being elected under a moderate franchise, eight ex-officio, and nine nominated by the Governor. The official councillors comprise the four Executive members, the Collector of Customs, the Protector of Immigrants, the Director of Public Works and Surveys, and the Director of the Medical and Health Department.

Governor of Mauritius.—Sir Herbert James Read, K.C.M.G., C.B.

Area, Population, &c.

Mauritius, in the Indian Ocean, 500 miles east of Madagascar, has an area of about 720 square miles. According to the census of 1921, the population of the island, including Dependencies (8,394) and Military (206), was 385,074, consisting of general population, 112,370, Indian population, 265,884, Chinese population, 6,820. ### NYASALAND PROTECTORATE (BRITISH).

The Nyasaland (until 1907 British Central Africa) Protectorate, constituted on May 14, 1891, lies along the southern and western shores of Lake Nyasa, and extends towards the Zambezi. It is administered under the Colonial Office by the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, assisted by an Executive and a Legislative Council, both consisting of nominated members, the Governor having the right of veto (Order in Council of September 4, 1907). The Laws consist of local Ordinances duly enacted, with such British Acts as are of general application.

Land area, 37,890 square miles, divided into four Provinces, each in charge of a Provincial Commissioner, and twenty districts, each administered by a Resident and his assistant. Population on Dec. 14, 1927, 1,829 Europeans (mostly in the Shiré Highlands), 982 Asiatics, and 1,304,123 natives. The chief settlements are Blantyre and Limbe in the Shiré Highlands, with about 600 European inhabitants; others are Zomba (the seat of Government), Port Herald, and Mlanje; on Lake Nyasa are Fort Johnston, Kota-Kota, Bandawe, Chintechi, Nkata, Likoma, and Karonga. Good motor roads are being made in all directions, and life and property are safe. Education is controlled by the Education Department, but there are no Government schools; native education is undertaken by various missionary societies. Fourteen Christian missions are at work; in 1927 there were 2,788 schools, with 154 European teachers, 166,022 pupils and 112,883 in average attendance. A grant of 4,000*l.* was made to the missionary societies in 1927 and is distributed in accordance with the conditions laid down in the Education Ordinance, 1927.

Justice is administered in the High Court, which has jurisdiction in civil and criminal matters, and also as a Court of Admiralty. Subordinate courts are held by magistrates and assistant magistrates in the various districts. Appeals from decisions of the High Court are heard in H.B.M.'s. Court of Appeal for Eastern Africa, sitting at Mombasa.

In the Shiré Highlands coffee is cultivated; in 1926, 56,931 lbs., and in 1927, 35,984 lbs. were exported. Tobacco exported: in 1927, 15,466,032 lbs.; and in 1926, 9,142,437 lbs. The area under tobacco in 1927 was 25,002 acres. The area under cotton cultivation in 1927 was 2,545 acres. In 1927, 1,859,293 lbs., and in 1926, 3,085,022 lbs. were exported. Tea-growing is tried on estates aggregating about 7,070 acres; in 1927, 1,170,107 lbs., and in 1926, 1,182,405 lbs. were exported. Cattle in the Protectorate (1927), goats, 198,508; horned cattle, 138,434; sheep, 100,235; pigs, 55,833; asses and mules (mostly belonging to the natives), 294; horses, 9.

The trade ports are Port Herald (Lower Shiré), Kota-Kota, Fort Manning, Karonga, and Fort Johnston (Lake Nyasa).

There are military, volunteer reserve, and civil police forces. Police force, December 31, 1927, 16 European officers and 459 African ranks. There is a Marine Transport Department on Lake Nyasa, consisting of three vessels. For ordinary traffic there are small steamers, besides small sailing vessels.

There are 31 post offices through which, in 1927, about 2,411,622 postal packets passed. The postal savings bank had 625 depositors at end of 1927; deposits, 4,368*l.* A railway, of 3 ft. 6 in. gauge, from Chindio on the Zambezi in Portuguese East Africa to Blantyre has been constructed (174 miles). A railway from Murraça on the southern bank of the Zambezi to the Port of Beira (175 miles) in Portuguese East Africa was opened for traffic in April, 1922, thus establishing direct railway communication between Blantyre and Beira. The question of a bridge across the Zambezi to connect these two railways is under consideration (1928), as is also a proposal to extend the railway system northwards to Lake Nyasa. During 1928 the new road from Salisbury to Blantyre via Tete in Portuguese East Africa was open for light cars. There is a telegraph line through the Protectorate connecting southwards with Cape Town and northwards with Tanganyika, Kenya and Uganda. Telegraphs are controlled by the Government. At Zomba there is a water-power electric light installation which provides for the whole settlement.

At Blantyre, Zomba, and other centres there are branches of the Standard Bank of South Africa and at Blantyre there is a branch of the National Bank of South Africa. The currency consists of British coin, gold, silver, and bronze. There is no note circulation.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir C. C. Bowring, K.C.M.G. K.B.E.

Chief Secretary.—Lt.-Col. W. B. Davidson-Houston, C.M.G.

The revenue from customs in 1927 was 5,011*l.*

Public debt, nil, but the Colony's assets at December 31, 1927, exceeded the liabilities by 8,701*l.*

The principal export is fibre and tow, 1,103 tons in 1927.

Savings-bank deposits on December 31, 1927, 15,201*l.*, belonging to 246 depositors.

Fruit trees, Norfolk pines, eucalyptus, and cedars flourish in St. Helena. Cattle do well, but there is no outside market for the meat. The flax (phormium) industry is now established, a Government mill having commenced operations in 1908. There are six private mills. The area of land under flax was estimated at 2,000 acres in 1927. A lace-making industry has been started. The number of vessels that called at the Island in 1927 was 39 (38 British). Total tonnage entered and cleared (1927) was 143,131.

The Post Office in 1927 received 301 bags of mail, 2,125 parcels and 1,630 registered articles, and despatched 116 bags of mail, 307 parcels and 3,135 registered articles.

The Eastern Telegraph Company's cable connects St. Helena with Cape Town and with St. Vincent. There are telephone lines, with 40 miles of wire.

St. Helena is an Admiralty coaling station. About two of the Cape of Good Hope Squadron visit St. Helena every year.

Ascension is a small island of volcanic origin, of 34 square miles, in the South Atlantic, 700 miles N.W. of St. Helena. Down to November 1922 it was under the control and jurisdiction of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, but it was then transferred to the administration of the Colonial Office and annexed to the colony of St. Helena. There are 10 acres under cultivation providing vegetables and fruit.

The island is the resort of the sea turtle, which come in thousands to lay their eggs in the sand annually between January and May. Rabbits, wild goats, and partridges are more or less numerous on the island, which is, besides, the breeding ground of the sooty tern or "wideawake," these birds coming in vast numbers to lay their eggs about every eighth month. Phosphates and guano are collected. The island is included in the Postal Union.

Resident Magistrate.—Frederick Wood.

Tristan da Cunha, a small group of islands in the Atlantic, half-way between the Cape and S. America, in  $37^{\circ} 6' \text{ S. lat. } 12^{\circ} 1' \text{ W. long.}$  Besides Tristan da Cunha and Gough's Island, there are Inaccessible and Nightingale Islands, the former two and the latter one mile long, and a number of rocks. Tristan consists of an extinct volcano rising to a height of 8,000 feet, with a circumference at its base of 21 miles. The habitable area is a small plateau on the north-west side of about 12 square miles, 100 feet above sea-level. Here the struggle for life is great: it is now impossible to grow corn owing to the depredation of rats, which came from a wreck in 1882; and fuel is scarce owing to deforestation. The staple food appears to be the potato. There are apple and peach trees; bullocks, sheep and geese are reared, and fish are plentiful. Besides being inhospitable, the island is extremely lonely. Until the middle of the last century the neighbouring waters were frequented by numerous American whalers, but these have now disappeared, as have also the clippers which called occasionally. Since 1900 the annual visits of a warship have been discontinued. Despite these disadvantages, the community is a growing one. In 1880 it numbered 109, declining to 52 in 1893, since when it has increased to the present figure of 130. The characteristics of the people are longevity, good health, and a certain shyness of disposition. It had been argued that inter-marriage must have a bad effect upon their qualities, but Surgeon Commander Rickard, of the Dublin, who visited the island in 1923, reported that this was not the case. The original inhabitants were shipwrecked sailors and soldiers who remained behind when the garrison from St. Helena was withdrawn in 1817. Many attempts have been made to induce the inhabitants to leave. The lack of educational facilities for their children was the sole argument which carried weight in the eyes of the inhabitants. A proposal to establish a settlement in South Africa for the surplus population has been revived in order to prevent the recurrence of times of scarcity. There is no form of government.

SEYCHELLES.

Seychelles and its Dependencies consist of 101 islands and islets with a total estimated area of 156 square miles. The principal island is Mahé (55 square miles), smaller islands of the group being Praslin, Silhouette, La Digue, Curieuse, and Félicité. Among dependent islands are the Amirantes, Alphonse Island, Bijoutier Island, St. François, St. Pierre, the Cosmoledo Group, Astove Island, Assumption Island, the Aldabra Islands, Providence Island, Coetivy, Farquhar Islands, and Flat Island.

The islands were first colonised by the French in the middle of the eighteenth century, the object being to establish plantations of spices to compete with the lucrative Dutch monopoly. They were captured by the English in 1794 and incorporated as a dependency of Mauritius in 1810. In 1888 the office of Administrator was created, an Executive Council of 2 ex-officio members and 1 nominated member was appointed, with a Legislative Council of 3 official and 3 unofficial members, the Administrator being president of both Councils and having an original and casting vote in the Legislative Council. In 1897 the Administrator was given full powers as Governor, and in November, 1903, he was raised to the rank of Governor.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—de Symons M. G. Honey, C.M.G. (January, 1928).

The population at December 31, 1927, was estimated to be 26,835; census of April 24, 1921, 24,523 (11,974 males and 12,549 females). The death-rate for 1927 was 15·87; the birth-rate 28·28. The number of births in 1927 was 759; deaths, 426; marriages, 208. The capital is Victoria, which has a good harbour. Education is not compulsory. There were in 1927, 26 grant-in-aid schools and 2 other primary schools. In addition, there is a Catholic secondary school for boys, and one for girls. Total number of children attending school in 1927 was 2,771; average attendance, 73 per cent. In 1927, 144 cases were brought before the Supreme Court (Criminal Side). The police force numbered 86 of all ranks (1927).

Chief exports, 1927: Copra, 4,612 tons; cinnamon oil, 59,007 litres; Patchouli oil, 1,053 litres; guano, 11,329 tons; rubber, 8,783 kilos; tortoise shell, 1,014 kilos; vanilla, 3,245 kilos; tripangs, 7,176 kilos. Imports in 1927 from: United Kingdom, Rs. 510,391; India, Rs. 787,545; France, Rs. 147,953; Dutch Possessions, Rs. 121,635; French Possessions, Rs. 60,043; Japan, Rs. 64,299; Arabia, Rs. 47,616. Exports, 1927 to: United Kingdom, Rs. 476,964; South Africa, Rs. 597,587; Germany, Rs. 386,679; France, Rs. 244,781; U.S.A., Rs. 231,456; Mauritius, Rs. 87,237.

Shipping entered and cleared (1927), 222,118 tons, mainly British, exclusive of coasters trading between Mahé and the dependencies. The British India steamers call every four weeks from Bombay on their way to Mombasa, and every eight weeks on their way from Mombasa to Bombay. There is fairly regular communication between the islands.

There is a good road system in Mahé, and further road-making is in progress in Mahé and in Praslin. In 1927 the post office despatched and received 152,500 letters and post cards, 127,500 newspapers, &c., and 4,018 parcels. There is direct telegraphic communication with Mauritius, Zanzibar, Aden, and Colombo, and a Government wireless telephone service has been recently opened up between Victoria and the Praslin group of islands.

At the end of 1927 the Savings Bank deposits amounted to 12,824*l.* to the credit of 605 depositors.

Current money in the islands consists of rupees and notes.

SOMALILAND PROTECTORATE.

The Somali Coast stretches from Lahadu, west of Zeyla, to Bandar Ziyada 49° E. long. After 1884, when Egyptian control ceased, the territory was administered by the Government of India, but was taken over by the Foreign Office on October 1, 1898, and was transferred to the Colonial Office on April 1, 1905.

By an arrangement with Italy in 1894 the limits of the British Protectorate were defined; but in 1897, by an arrangement with Abyssinia, a fresh boundary as required by that country was determined, and about 15,000 square miles were ceded to Abyssinia. An agreement for the regulation of Anglo-Italian relations in Somaliland was concluded on March 19, 1907. The area is about 68,000 square miles; population about 344,700—Mohammedan, and entirely nomadic, except on the coast, where considerable towns have sprung up during the British occupation.

No census of the population other than the Europeans and Indians has been taken, but a rough estimate of the main towns of the Protectorate is as follows: Berbera, between 15,000 and 30,000; Hargeisa, 20,000; Burao, 10,000; Zeilah, 5,000. Police, 528 officers and men on March 31, 1927. Convictions in 1927, 958. Revenue in 1926-27, 90,568*l.*, reckoned at 15 rupees to 1*l.*; 1927 (April-December) 88,879*l.*, reckoned at 1*s.* 6*d.* to rupee 1*l.* (customs in 1927, 69,715*l.*); expenditure, 1926-27, 149,125*l.*; 1927 (April-December), 123,447*l.* Free Grant-in-aid in respect of military expenditure, 1926-27, 43,500*l.* Imports, 1927, 427,516*l.*; exports, 1927, 355,575*l.* Bullion and specie are included. The imports are chiefly rice (100,515 cwt.), dates (46,358 cwt.), sugar (49,302 cwt.), textiles (5,150,783 yds.), and specie; the exports, skins and hides, gum and resins, ghee, cattle and sheep, and specie. Tonnage entered in 1927, 51,682; cleared, 50,861. The rupee is the basis of the currency. Government of India notes are also in circulation. Transport is by camel and motor-car; there are no porters. Besides ordinary telegraphs there are wireless telegraph stations at Berbera, Burao, Hargeisa, Zeyla, and Erigavo, and a station is under construction at Buramo.

The Protectorate forces now comprise a Camel Corps of 400, with a reserve of 150 men, and 500 Police.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—His Excellency Sir H. B. Kittermaster, K.B.E., C.M.G. Appointed January 26, 1926.

SOUTH AFRICA.

BASUTOLAND.

Basutoland, an elevated but rugged plateau, forms an irregular parallelogram on the north-east of the Cape of Good Hope Province. The provinces of the Orange Free State, Natal, and the Cape of Good Hope form its boundaries. Area, 11,716 square miles. The territory, which is well watered and has a fine climate, is stated to be the best grain-producing country in South Africa, and the abundant grass enables the Basutos to rear large herds of cattle.

Basutoland has been under the authority of the Crown since 1884, and is governed by a Resident Commissioner under the direction of the High Commissioner for South Africa, the latter possessing the legislative authority which is exercised by proclamation. The country is divided into seven districts, namely: Maseru, Leribe, Mohale's Hoek, Berea, Mafeteng, Quthing, and Qacha's Nek. Each of the districts is subdivided into wards, mostly presided over by hereditary chiefs allied to the Moshesh family.

According to the census of 1921 the population numbered 495,937 natives, 1,608 Europeans, 172 Asiatics, and 1,069 coloured. European settlement is in general prohibited, and is more or less limited to the few engaged in trade, Government, and missionary work. Maseru, the capital and largest town, has a population of 1,890 natives and 399 Europeans.

There were 531 native elementary schools with 44,252 pupils at the end of December, 1926; expenditure in connection with education amounted during the year ended March 31, 1927, to 41,412*l*. There are some Normal and Industrial schools (aided). There is also a large and well-fitted Government native industrial school at Maseru. There are 8 white schools with 114 pupils.

The police force at 31st December, 1926, numbered:—14 European officers, 1 drill instructor, 4 European constables, 28 non-commissioned officers (native) and 313 men (natives).

The revenue arises mainly from the Post Office, native tax, licences, and income tax customs rebate from neighbouring territories. Under the Native Tax Law every adult male native pays 1*l.* 5*s.* per annum, and if he has more than one wife by native custom he pays 1*l.* 5*s.* per annum for his wives up to a maximum of 3*l.* 15*s.* A levy of 3*s.* for educational purposes is paid by every adult native. An Income Tax has been enacted on the lines of that existing in the Union of South Africa, and the collections for the year 1927-28 amounted to 12,843*l.*

—	1922-23	1923-24	1924-25	1925-26	1926-27	1927-28
	£	£	£	£	£	£
Revenue . .	212,538	252,300	260,577	281,522	274,404	292,378
Expenditure .	224,547	241,570	250,053	267,880	272,627	288,602

Native tax yielded 137,455*l.* in 1927-28, and customs, 92,201*l.*, education levy, etc., 13,553*l.* Balance of assets over liabilities, March 31, 1928, was 105,932*l.*

The products are wool, wheat, mealies, and Kaffir corn. There are indications of iron and copper, and coal has been found and is used in some parts.

Basutoland is in the South African Customs Union. The total trade in recent years was:—

—	1923	1924	1925	1926	1927
	£	£	£	£	£
Imports . .	827,054	942,279	850,978	665,014	842,893
Exports . .	803,769	958,810	756,106	696,950	839,095

The imports consist chiefly of blankets, ploughs, clothing, iron and tin ware, and groceries, and the exports (1927) of wool (508,687*l.*), wheat and wheat-meal (115,453*l.*), mohair (139,226*l.*), Kaffir corn (20,020*l.*), maize and maize-meal (17,663*l.*).

There are telegraph offices at the various magistracies in connection with the systems of the Cape Province and Orange Free State.

A railway built by the C.S.A.R., 16 miles, connects Maseru with the Bloemfontein-Natal line at Marseilles Station.

The currency is exclusively British.

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE.

The Bechuanaland Protectorate comprises the territory lying between the Molopo River on the south and the Zambezi on the north, and extending from the Transvaal Province and Matabeleland on the east to South-West Africa. That part of the territory of South-West Africa east of long.  $21^{\circ}$  E., known as Caprivi Zipfel, is, by reason of its geographical position, now administered as if it were a portion of the Bechuanaland Protectorate. Area about 275,000 square miles; population, according to the census of 1921, 152,983, of whom 1,743 were Europeans. The most important tribes are the Bamangwato (35,000), under the Chief Tshekedi (acting as regent during the minority of Seretse, the son of Sekgoma, who died in November, 1925) whose capital is Serowe (population 17,000), 40 miles west of the railway line at Palapye Road; the Bakhatla (11,000), under Chief Isang Pilane (acting during minority of Kgafella, grandson of the late chief Linchwe); the Bakwena (13,000), under Sebele II.; the Bangwaketse (18,000), under chief Bathoen, the eldest son of the late chief Gasetsiwe; the Batawana, under Mathibe; and the Bamalete (4,500), under Seboko Mokgosi, who assumed the Chieftainship on July 9, 1917. In 1885, the territory was declared to be within the British sphere; in 1889 it was included in the sphere of the British South Africa Company, but was never administered by the company; in 1890 a Resident Commissioner was appointed, and in 1895, on the annexation of the Crown Colony of British Bechuanaland to the Cape of Good Hope, new arrangements were made for the administration of the Protectorate, and special agreements were made in view of the extension of the railway northwards from Mafeking. Each of the chiefs rules his own people as formerly, under the protection of the King, who is represented by a Resident Commissioner, acting under the High Commissioner. The headquarters of the Administration are in Mafeking, in the Cape Province, where there is a reserve for Imperial purposes, with ample buildings. An assistant Resident Commissioner was appointed in 1923, and stationed at Francistown.

The Territory is divided for administrative purposes into 11 districts, each under a Resident Magistrate. There is a tax of 1*l.* on each hut and 3*s.* (increased to 5*s.* in certain reserves for a Native Fund), for education, &c. Licences for the sale of spirits are granted only at certain railway stations. The police force consists of 31 European officers, warrant officers and sergeants, 51 mounted police, chiefly Basutos, and 215 dismounted constables.

Education is provided (there were 10 European and 86 native schools, 1927-28). The European schools were assisted financially by the Government to the extent of 1,790*l.* The native schools, with the exception of the school at Serowe, which is supported by the Chief, are now mainly financed by the Native Fund, the charge to which for 1927-28 was 4,253*l.* The schools are supervised by the various missionary bodies operating in the Reserves (chiefly the London Missionary Society, Church of England, and Dutch Reformed Church).

Cattle-rearing, and agriculture to a limited extent (production of maize and Kaffir corn), are the chief industries, but the country is more a pastoral than an agricultural one, crops depending entirely upon the rainfall. Cattle numbered on May 3, 1921, 495,000 head, sheep and goats, 380,000. During the year 1927-28, 30,050 head of cattle were exported.

Gold and silver to the total value of 8,671*l.* were mined in 1927-28.

Revenue and expenditure for six years:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1921-22	84,982	89,598	1924-25	99,581	87,373
1922-23	91,995	82,486	1925-26	107,344	104,173
1923-24	99,996	81,574	1926-27	131,568	108,222

Chief items of revenue, 1927-28: income tax and poll tax, 46,749*l.*; customs, 29,910*l.*; hut-tax, 38,575*l.*; licences, 6,144*l.*; posts, 18,281*l.*; Chief items of expenditure, 1927-28: Resident Commissioner, 9,525*l.*; district administration, 12,434*l.*; posts, 4,961*l.*; police, 30,009*l.*; administration of justice, 5,544*l.*; public works (extraordinary and recurrent), 12,646*l.*; medical, 8,597*l.*; veterinary, 15,768*l.* There has been no Imperial grant-in-aid since 1911-12, when the grant amounted to 10,000*l.*

There is no public debt. Excess of assets over liabilities on April 1, 1928, 102,344*l.*

When the Union of South Africa was established, an agreement was made with the Union Government under which duty on all dutiable articles imported into the Protectorate is collected by the Union Customs Department and paid into the Union Treasury, a lump sum representing a certain portion of the annual Customs Revenue of the Union being paid over to the Protectorate. Under this arrangement full figures relating to imports and exports of the Protectorate are not available. The export of dairy products was in 1926-27, 33,605*l.*; 1927-28, 36,650*l.*

The telegraph from the Cape of Good Hope to Rhodesia passes through the Protectorate. Similarly the railway extending northwards from the Cape of Good Hope traverses the Protectorate. It is the property of the Rhodesia Railways, Limited. In the Protectorate are 22 post offices; receipts, in 1927-28, 18,281*l.*; expenditure, 4,961*l.* In 1927-28, 1,772*l.* was deposited in the Savings Bank and 2,037*l.* withdrawn.

The currency is British. There is no bank in the Protectorate.

Resident Commissioner.—Lieut.-Col. R. M. Daniel, C.B.E.

Government Secretary.—O. L. O'B. Dutton.

SOUTHERN RHODESIA.

Rhodesia includes the whole of the region extending from the Transvaal Province northwards to the borders of the Belgian Congo and Tanganyika Territory, bounded on the east by Portuguese East Africa, Nyasaland, and the Tanganyika Territory, and on the west by the Belgian Congo, Portuguese West Africa, and Bechuanaland. The region south of the Zambezi (Matabeleland and Mashonaland) is called Southern Rhodesia; that north of the Zambezi is known as Northern Rhodesia.

Prior to October, 1923, Southern Rhodesia, like Northern Rhodesia, was under the administration of the British South Africa Company. In October, 1922, Southern Rhodesia voted in favour of responsible government. On September 12, 1923, the country was formally annexed to His Majesty's Dominions, and on October 1, 1923, the new form of government was established under a Governor, assisted by an Executive Council, and a Legislature. The latter consists at first of a single elected Legislative Assembly, but that body may pass a law constituting a Legislative Council in addition. There must be a session at least once a year, and the duration of the Legislature is five years, unless sooner dissolved. The Legislature may amend, by a two-thirds vote of the total membership, the Letters Patent setting up the Constitution, with certain exceptions (relating to reservation of bills by the Governor, native administration, Crown Land Agent, and Governor's salary). The Crown reserves the right to disallow laws. The powers of the Legislative Council respecting appropriation and Taxation Bills are limited. In July 1923 the franchise was extended to all British subjects over 21 years of age and to married women, subject to certain qualifications.

A native Council may be established in any native reserve, representative of the local chiefs and native residents, to advise the Governor and manage such local affairs as may be entrusted to it.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir Cecil H. Rodwell, K.C.M.G., Appointed August, 1928. (Salary, 4,000*l.*; allowances, 2,000*l.*).

The Cabinet is as follows (Aug. 1928)—

Premier and Secretary for Native Affairs.—Mr. H. U. Moffat.

Mines, Works, and Industries.—Mr. J. W. Downie.

Agriculture and Lands.—Mr. R. A. Fletcher.

Attorney General.—Major R. J. Hudson, M.C., K.C.

Colonial Secretary.—Mr. W. M. Leggate, C.M.G.

Treasurer.—Mr. P. D. L. Fynn, C.M.G.

High Commissioner in London.—Sir Francis Newton, K.C.M.G., C.V.O.

Area and Population.—The area is 149,000 square miles. The growth of the population is given in the following table:—

Year	Europeans			Asiatic Coloured Total	Native Total	Total Population
	Males	Females	Total
Census of—	No.	No.	No.	No.	No.	No.

Estimated mean population, June 30, 1927 }	23,172	18,452	41,624	3,706	950,638	995,968

The chief towns are Salisbury (the capital, population, 20,137, including 7,324 Europeans), Bulawayo (13,674, including 3,251 Europeans), Umtali, Gwelo, Gatooma, Que Que, Shamwa, Wankie and Victoria.

The number of births (European) was 1,013 in 1927, 939 in 1926; deaths, 338 in 1927, 348 in 1926.

Education.—At the end of 1927 the schools for Europeans numbered 78 primary and 11 secondary, the latter including one school—the Matopos

School—of a new type specially designed to prepare boys for life on the land. There is a primary teachers' training centre with 27 teachers in training in 1927. There were also 104 aided farm schools, taught by private tutors or governesses, with an aggregate enrolment of 520 pupils. Including these, the total enrolment of European children at the end of the year 1927 was 7,488. There were also six schools for coloured children, including Eurafrian and Asiatic, with a total enrolment of 469 pupils; and 1,534 schools for native pupils, with a total enrolment of 99,535 pupils. The total expenditure on public education in the Colony in the calendar year 1927 amounted to 283,607*l.*, against which receipts from boarding and tuition fees were 87,007*l.*

Justice.—There is a High Court with criminal and civil jurisdiction. Single Judges are stationed at Salisbury and Bulawayo and sittings are held at five of the other principal towns twice a year. There are nine principal Courts of Magistrate, also courts presided over by detached Assistant Magistrates and several periodical courts. Natives are subject mainly to the same laws as Europeans, though there are special restrictions relating to arms, ammunition and liquor, and there are laws particularly applicable to natives, such as those dealing with marriage, taxation and registration and passes. Native Commissioners have jurisdiction in civil and criminal matters in which natives only are concerned, but generally exercise jurisdiction in their capacity as Assistant Magistrates.

Finance.—The total revenue for the year ended March 31, 1928,<sup>1</sup> was 2,165,000*l.* (2,009,600*l.* in 1926-27), of which the receipts from stamps and licences were 121,500*l.* (110,100*l.* in 1926-27); Native tax, 317,400*l.* (310,900*l.* in 1926-27); income tax, 377,500*l.* (341,800*l.* in 1926-27); and customs and excise duties, 686,200*l.* (569,700*l.* in 1926-27), and lands department, 135,800*l.* (172,500*l.* in 1926-27). Total expenditure, 1927-28,<sup>1</sup> was 2,761,200*l.* (2,633,100*l.* in 1926-27), including 376,300*l.* for education, 293,600*l.* for police and defence, 303,000*l.* for public works and roads, and 273,400*l.* for debt services.

The net amount of the Public Debt outstanding was, at March 31, 1928, 4,095,000*l.* (4,119,000*l.* in 1927).

Production and Industries.—The British South Africa Company has relinquished all rights and interests in the land in Southern Rhodesia, except in the estates which it was already developing and working on 10th July, 1923. The Crown has recognized the Company as the owner of the mineral rights throughout both Southern and Northern Rhodesia. Land has been set apart for tribal settlements ('native reserves'). The country is well adapted for agriculture and European settlers. Live stock (1927): cattle, 2,325,400 (2,188,700 in 1926); sheep, 351,600 (331,700 in 1926), and pigs, 55,700 (56,300 in 1926). Acreage under crops (1927): maize, 267,400 (239,700 in 1926); tobacco, 30,200 (13,900 in 1926); ground-nuts, 7,800 (6,200 in 1926); legumes and fodders, 21,300 (20,000 in 1926). Large fruit orchards have been planted, and nearly all fruit trees thrive, the cultivation of oranges and lemons constituting a rapidly expanding industry. Exports of citrus fruit have increased from 53,000 boxes in 1923-24 to 130,000 boxes in 1926-27. The sale of dairy produce is a profitable industry. Animal products sold in 1927 include, 343,000 doz. eggs, 826,000 gallons milk, 99,000 lbs. cheese, and 1,711,000 lbs. butter.

A Land and Agricultural Bank makes loans to settlers on easy terms of repayment, for the purpose of improving and developing their agricultural holdings. The amount of applications for advances granted was 272,986*l.* in 1927 and 329,596*l.* in 1926. Numerous companies have been formed with the purpose of developing land and minerals.

Mining.—The country contains gold and other minerals. The total output of gold from 1890 to December 31, 1927, is valued at 86,611,536*l.* The gold output in 1926 was valued at 2,508,527*l.*, and in 1927 at 2,458,862*l.* The output in 1927 of other minerals was: silver, 113,200 oz., valued at 11,700*l.*; coal, 1,001,700 tons raised, sales, &c., 419,700*l.*; chrome ore, 218,000 tons, 490,700*l.*; asbestos, 33,200 tons, 794,200*l.*; mica, 205 tons, 52,900*l.*; other minerals to the value of 10,300*l.* The total mineral output for 1927 was valued at 4,238,300*l.*

In addition to the foregoing a number of minor industries are now established in the Colony. These include brick and tile works (10), cigarette and tobacco factories (6), cold storage and ice making installations (8), iron and brass foundries (13), mineral water manufactories (12), and electric light and power undertakings (14).

Commerce.—The total value of imports (including bullion and coin) into Southern Rhodesia in 1927 was 7,574,000*l.*, the chief being: food and drink, 806,717*l.*; textile goods, wearing apparel, boots, etc., 1,596,702*l.*; machinery, 542,000*l.*; metals and manufactures, including motor cars, 2,168,598*l.*; railway and tramway materials and locomotives, 566,000*l.* The value of the exports, including gold, was 7,444,000*l.* (including re-exports, 195,000*l.*), the chief being: raw gold, 2,425,000*l.*; asbestos, 537,000*l.*; maize, 321,000*l.*; chrome ore, 424,000*l.*; animals, 204,000*l.*; tobacco, 1,273,000*l.* Total imports from the United Kingdom in 1927 amounted to 3,608,000*l.* (3,050,000*l.* in 1926); from the Union of S. Africa, 1,402,000*l.* (1,970,000*l.* in 1926); from the United States, 1,031,000*l.* (808,000 in 1926). Domestic exports to the United Kingdom in 1927, 2,597,000*l.* (2,690,000*l.* in 1926); Union of S. Africa, 2,197,000*l.* (1,870,000*l.* in 1926).

Communications.—The British South Africa Company has a controlling interest in the Rhodesian railway system, the total mileage of which (including the Beira Railway) at the end of 1927 was 2,462. The system begins at Vryburg in the Cape Colony, and extends through the Bechuanaland Protectorate and Southern and Northern Rhodesia to the Belgian Congo and Portuguese East Africa. In conjunction with the railways of the Union of South Africa it provides through communication from Cape Town to the Congo border (2,149 miles), and (by a line from Bulawayo via Salisbury) to the port of Beira on the Indian Ocean (2,036 miles). There are also several branch lines in Southern Rhodesia. At a conference in London in 1926, attended by the representatives of the Company and of the Governments of Southern and Northern Rhodesia and the Bechuanaland Protectorate, a scheme was drawn up for the public control of traffic rates, which has resulted in a deduction of the railway rates aggregating 1,128,000*l.* A system of road motor services has been organised, having in May 1928 a total mileage of 1,126 miles.

On December 31, 1927, there were in Southern Rhodesia 192 post offices, 35 of which are money order and savings bank offices. During the year 1927, 10,059,844 letters and post-cards were despatched; 4,988,854 newspapers, books, and parcels, and 184,416 registered articles. The postal revenue for the year 1927 was 192,000*l.*, and the expenditure, 157,000*l.* There is an extensive telephone system in operation. An automatic telephone exchange has recently been brought into operation in Salisbury, and an additional one has been ordered for Umtali.

On January 1, 1905, a Post Office Savings Bank was established, and on December 31, 1927, the deposits amounted to 207,000l.

NORTHERN RHODESIA.

By an Order in Council, dated May 4, 1911, the two provinces of North-Eastern and North-western Rhodesia were amalgamated under the title of Northern Rhodesia, the amalgamation taking effect as from August 17, 1911. The limits of the territory, as defined by the Order in Council, are 'the parts of Africa bounded by Southern Rhodesia, German South-west Africa (now South-west Africa), Portuguese West Africa, the Congo Free State (now the Belgian Congo), German East Africa (now Tanganyika Territory), Nyasaland, and Portuguese East Africa.'

An Administrator was appointed by the British South Africa Company with the approval of the Secretary of State, and had, for consultative purposes, an Advisory Council of five members, chosen by the white settlers.

By an Order in Council dated February 20, 1924, the office of Governor was created, an Executive Council constituted and provision made for the institution of a Legislative Council. This latter Council is composed of five ex-officio members, who also constitute the Executive Council, four nominated official members and five elected unofficial members. On April 1, 1924, the British South Africa Company was relieved of the administration of the Territory by the Crown, from which date the Order in Council of February 20, 1924, took effect.

Northern Rhodesia has an area of 287,950 square miles, and consists for the most part of high plateau country, covered with thin forest. Much of the country is suitable for farming and contains areas carrying good arable and grazing land. The permanent European population in December 1927 was computed at 7,275. The native population on December 31, 1927, was estimated to number 1,237,486. The territory is divided into nine magisterial districts. The seat of Government is at Livingstone, on the Zambezi. The most important centres are Broken Hill, Fort Jameson, Lusaka, Mazabuka, Abercorn, Fort Rosebery, Ndola, and Lealui. The police force, called the Northern Rhodesia Police, is composed of natives, with European officers and non-commissioned officers.

There were in December 1927, 5 Government, 5 Farm Schools, and 3 aided schools for Europeans, with 33 teachers and 480 pupils. There is 1 Government school for natives, at Mongu, and a large number of Mission stations and schools, many of which receive Government grants.

Revenue, 1927-28, 474,683l. (taxes, licences, etc., 220,339l.; customs, 146,501l.; posts and telegraphs, 32,867l.; fines and fees, 33,363l.; land sales and rents, 29,850l.; miscellaneous, 11,763l.). The expenditure for 1927-28 was estimated at 518,666l.

Imports (inclusive of specie), 1927, 2,030,599l.; exports (including specie), 777,890l., including living animals, 36,205l., pig lead, 88,652l.; copper, 133,115l.; gold (bar), 1,690l.; vanadium, 6,749l.; wheat, maize and maize meal, 91,694l.; tobacco (unmanufactured), 240,568l.; hides, skins, and horns, 21,844l.; ivory, 8,214l.; timber (unmanufactured), 8,993l.; timber (sleepers), 26,540l.

Agricultural products are maize, tobacco, cotton, wheat, and European fruits. There is timber of various kinds; gold, copper, zinc, lead and vanadium are mined; coal has been discovered. Production 1927: gold, 352 ozs., value 1,479*l.*; silver, 54 ozs., value 5*l.*; copper, 3,290 tons, value 197,231*l.*; lead, 5,857 tons, value 143,127*l.*; zinc, 326 tons, value 8,481*l.*; vanadium, 10 tons, value 2,465*l.*; mica, 8.5 tons, value, 4,378*l.* Total value of mineral production: 1927, 360,337*l.*

The trunk line of the Rhodesian railway system traverses Northern Rhodesia from Livingstone to the Congo border. The Zambezi, Kafue, Chambesi, and other rivers of Northern Rhodesia are navigable for a considerable portion of their extent.

There are 37 post offices, 11 being money order offices. There is a telegraph line alongside the railway from Livingstone to the Congo border. There is also a telegraph line from the Nyasaland border to Abercorn, and another from the same border further south to Fort Jameson.

Governor (Appointed August 31, 1927).—Sir James Crawford Maxwell, M.D., K.B.E., C.M.G.

SWAZILAND.

Swaziland lies at the South-eastern corner of the Transvaal. On June 25, 1903, an Order in Council was issued conferring on the Governor of the Transvaal authority over Swaziland, and by Order in Council of December 1, 1906, this authority was transferred to the High Commissioner for South Africa.

The seat of the administration is at Mbabane; altitude 3,800 feet.

Area, 6,704 square miles. Population, census 1921: 112,838 (Europeans, 2,235). The Government maintains 13 European schools at different centres, average attendance, 445 in 1927; and 1 native school at Zombode, the kraal of the ex-Chief Regent, average attendance, 146 in 1927. The Government also subsidises certain native schools with an average attendance in 1927 of 3,458, and two schools for coloured children, at which the total average attendance in 1927 was 45 and 28 respectively.

A Special Court, having the full jurisdiction of a Superior Court, and Assistant Commissioners' Courts have been established. A local Swaziland police force was created in 1907. Authorised strength (1927) 20 Europeans and 135 natives. During 1927, there were 3,494 summary convictions, and 46 convictions in the Superior Court. Native chiefs continue to exercise jurisdiction according to native law and customs in all civil matters between natives, subject to a final appeal to the Resident Commissioner.

Gold is subject to a tax of 10 per cent. on profits; base metals to a royalty of 2½ per cent. on output, in addition to any rentals now payable.

The agricultural and grazing rights of natives are safeguarded, and delimited. The agricultural products are cotton, tobacco, maize (the staple product), millet, pumpkins, ground-nuts, beans, and sweet potatoes, grown in insufficient quantities for local supply. Stock numbers approximately (1927): horses, 1,000; cattle, 350,000; native sheep and goats, 200,000; pigs, 9,500. About 350,000 sheep are brought into Swaziland from the Transvaal each year for winter grazing. The territory is reported to be rich in minerals, but it has not yet been systematically prospected. Alluvial tin is being mined and shipped. In 1927 the output was 153·5 tons, valued at 42,776*l.* A few gold mines are worked on a small scale, the output in 1927 being 1,135 oz. valued at 4,795*l.*

By agreement (dated June 30, 1910) with the Union of South Africa, Swaziland is treated for customs purposes as part of the Union and receives a pro rata share of the Customs dues collected. The chief exports, 1927, were: slaughter cattle, 63,560*l.*; cassiterite tin, 42,776*l.*; tobacco, 36,825*l.*; hides, 10,157*l.*; cotton, unginned, 7,900*l.*; cotton, ginned, 3,870*l.*; wattle bark, 6,576*l.*

There is bi-weekly communication by motor between Bremersdorp, Mbabane and Breyten, and between Piet Retief and Hlatikulu. In January 1928 the South African Railways commenced a daily motor service on the main routes. Elsewhere communication is by carts, donkey packs, or runners. Post offices working in 1927, 16. There are telegraph and telephone offices at Mbabane, Pigg's Peak, Bremersdorp, Ezulweni, Hlatikulu, Dwaleni, Mahamba, Stegi, and Nsoko. Post Office Savings Banks deposits, 2,275*l.* on March 31, 1928, belonging to 472 depositors.

The currency is British coin and coins of the late South African Republic, which are of similar denomination to the British. The National Bank of South Africa, Ltd., has branches at Mbabane and Hlatikulu. This bank conducts savings bank business—73 depositors, total deposits during 1927, 1,338*l.*

Resident Commissioner.—T. Ainsworth Dickson, M.C.

Deputy Resident Commissioner and Government Secretary.—B. Nicholson, C.B.E., D.S.O., M.C.

THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.

Constitution and Government.

THE Union of South Africa is constituted under the South Africa Act, 1909 (9 Edw. 7, Ch. 9), passed by the Parliament of the United Kingdom on September 20, 1909. Under the terms of that Act the self-governing Colonies of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange River Colony were united on May 31, 1910, in a legislative union under one Government under the name of the Union of South Africa, these Colonies becoming original provinces of the Union under the names of the Cape of Good Hope, Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange Free State respectively. There is a Governor-General, and an Executive Council in charge of the Departments of State.

Legislative power is vested in a Parliament consisting of the King, a Senate, and a House of Assembly. The Governor-General has power to summon, prorogue, and dissolve Parliament, either both Houses simultaneously or the House of Assembly alone. There must be a session of Parliament every year.

The Senate consists of forty members, eight (four being selected mainly for their acquaintance with the reasonable wants and wishes of the non-European races) being nominated by the Governor-General in Council and thirty-two being elected, eight for each Province. Each senator must be a British subject of European descent, at least 30 years of age, qualified as a voter in one of the provinces, and resident for five years within the Union; an elected senator must be a registered owner of property of the value of 500*l.* over any mortgage.

The House of Assembly consists, according to the Fifth Delimitation Commission appointed on July 19, 1927, of 148 members chosen in Electoral Divisions in numbers as follows:—The Cape of Good Hope, 58; Natal, 17; Transvaal, 55; Orange Free State, 18. Parliamentary voters must have the qualifications existing in the several colonies at the time of the Union. Each electoral district in each province returns one member, who must be a British subject of European descent, qualified as a registered voter, and resident five years within the Union. A House of Assembly continues five years from the date of its first meeting unless sooner dissolved.

The House of Assembly, not the Senate, must originate money bills, but may not pass a bill for taxation or appropriation unless it has been recommended by message from the Governor-General during the Session. Restrictions are placed on the amendment of money bills by the Senate. Provision is made respecting disagreements between the Houses, the Royal Assent to Bills, and the disallowance of laws assented to by the Governor-General.

Each member of each House must make Oath or Affirmation of Allegiance. A member of one House cannot be elected to the other, but a Minister of State may sit and speak, but not vote in the House of which he is not a member. To hold an office of profit under the Crown (with certain exceptions) is a disqualification for membership of either House, as are also insolvency, crime, and insanity.

Pretoria is the seat of government of the Union, and Cape Town is the seat of Legislature.

Governor-General, Commander-in-Chief, and High Commissioner for South Africa.—Earl of Athlone, G.C.B., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., D.S.O., A.D.C. (salary £10,000 per annum).

The Executive Council was constituted (November 1924) as follows:—

The Governor-General.

Prime Minister and Minister of Native Affairs and of External Affairs.—General The Honourable J. B. M. Hertzog (3,500l.).

Minister of the Interior, of Public Health and of Education.—The Honourable Dr. D. F. Malan (2,500l.).

Minister of Mines and Industries.—The Honourable F. W. Beyers, K.C. (2,500l.).

Minister of Railways and Harbours.—The Honourable C. W. Malan (2,500l.).

Minister of Finance.—The Honourable N. C. Havenga (2,500l.).

Minister of Justice.—The Honourable Tielman J. de V. Roos, K.C. (2,500l.).

Minister of Defence.—Colonel The Honourable F. H. P. Creswell, D.S.O. (2,500l.). (November 1925.)

Minister of Labour.—The Honourable T. Boyde (2,500l.). (November 1925.)

Minister of Agriculture.—General The Honourable J. C. G. Kemp (2,500l.).

Minister of Lands.—The Honourable P. G. W. Grobler (2,500l.).

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs and of Public Works.—The Honourable H. W. Sampson, O.B.E. (2,500l.). (November 1928.)

Secretary to the Prime Minister and Secretary for External Affairs.—H. D. J. Bodenstein, LL.D.

Assistant Secretary to the Prime Minister, Assistant Secretary for External Affairs and Clerk of the Executive Council.—W. J. H. Farrell.

The result of the elections in June 1924 was: Nationalists, 63; South African Party, 53; Labour, 18; Independent, 1: total, 135.

In each province there is an Administrator appointed by the Governor-General for five years, and a Provincial Council elected for three years, each council having an executive committee of four (either members or not of the council), the administrator presiding at its meetings. Members of the Provincial Council are elected on the same system as members of Parliament, but the restriction as to European descent does not apply. The number of members in each Provincial Council is as follows:—Cape of Good Hope, 51; Natal, 25; Transvaal, 50; Orange Free State, 25. The provincial committees and councils have authority to deal with local matters such as provincial finance, education (elementary), charity, municipal institutions, local works, roads and bridges, markets, fish and game, and penalties for breaches of laws respecting such subjects. Other matters may be delegated to these Councils. All ordinances passed by a Provincial Council are subject to the veto of the Governor-General-in-Council.

There is a provincial Revenue Fund in each province. The old colonial capitals are the capitals of the provinces.

The railways, ports, and harbours are managed by a Harbour and Railway Board, under the chairmanship of a Minister of State. The revenues therefrom are paid into a special fund. All other moneys received by the Union are paid into a Consolidated Revenue Fund, on which the interest on debts of the colonies forms a first charge. To the Union has been transferred the public property, real and personal, of the colonies.

The English and Dutch languages are both official. The word 'Dutch' has now been expressly declared by Act of Parliament to include Afrikaans. The administration of native affairs and affairs specially or differentially affecting Asiatics vests in the Governor-General-in-Council. The government of native territories may be transferred to the Union Government.

High Commissioner in London.—Mr. Eric Louw (Appointed Nov. 1928).

Agent-General of the Government of India in South Africa.—Sir K. V. Reddi (1929).

Area and Population.

The total area of the Union is 471,917 square miles divided between the Provinces as follows:—Cape of Good Hope, 276,536; Natal, 35,284; Transvaal, 110,450; Orange Free State, 49,647.

The census taken in 1904 in each of the four Colonies was the first simultaneous census taken in South Africa. In 1911 the first Union census was taken.

The following tables give the returns of population at the various censuses, classified according to race and sex:—

Year	All Races			European		Non-European
	Total	European	Non-European	Males	Females	Males	Females
1904 . . .	5,175,824	1,116,806	4,059,018	625,117	481,689	2,047,118	2,011,900

1926 . . .	—	1,676,660	—	856,918	819,742	—	—

The 1926 population census was a quinquennial one of Europeans only, and was taken under the provisions of the South Africa Act for the delimitation of political constituencies.

Walvis Bay, area 490 sq. miles, previously included in the area of the Cape Province, has been included for administrative purposes in the mandated territory of South West Africa.

Of the non-European population in 1921, 4,697,813 were Bantu, 165,731 Asiatic, and 545,548 of other races.

The increase in the total population, 1911-21, was: Union, 15.99 per cent.; Cape, 8.49 per cent.; Natal, 19.71 per cent.; Transvaal, 23.81 per cent.; O.F.S. 19.06 per cent. The increase in the European population in the Union, 1911-21, was 19.06 per cent., and in other races 15.16 per cent. The proportion of Europeans to the total population in 1921 was 21.93 per cent.

Principal towns (including suburbs) in the Union classified according to the number of inhabitants of European race, 1921 and 1926:—

Owing to wide variation of the laws relating to the registration of births and deaths of natives in the four provinces, and to the entire absence of native registration in one province, the figures of 1923 must be regarded as merely recording registrations and not the total number of actual events. Unifying Act No. 17 of 1923, which came into effect as from January 1, 1924, abolished compulsory registration of native vital events in rural areas, but made registration compulsory in all urban areas throughout the Union.

Religion.

Religions.—The results of the European census of 1921 as regards religions are as follows:—Europeans: Dutch Churches, 338,982; Anglicans, 294,026; Presbyterians, 74,999; Congregationalists, 10,598; Wesleyans, 102,771; Lutherans, 19,098; Roman Catholics, 61,246; Baptists, 15,414; Jews, 62,103; others and unspecified, 40,251; total, 1,519,488. Non-Europeans as at the census of 1921: Dutch Churches, 276,486; Anglican, 420,059; Presbyterians, 115,897; Independents (Congregationalists), 145,723; Wesleyans, 730,022; various Christian Sects, 57,186; Lutherans, 241,807; Roman Catholics, 82,008; Hindus, 109,261; Buddhists and Confucians, 14,127; Mahomedans, 49,936; no religion, 2,402,652; others and unspecified, 763,928; total, 5,409,092.

Education.

Under the South Africa Act, for a period of five years after the establishment of the Union and thereafter subject to decree of Parliament, control of education other than higher education was granted to the four Provincial Administrations. This arrangement still obtains. For practical purposes it has been provisionally determined that all post-matriculation instruction shall be deemed to constitute Higher Education.

Higher Education.—By legislation of 1916 three Universities, with teaching and examining functions, were established on April 2, 1918, in place of the University of the Cape of Good Hope, provision being made for the conversion of the South African College into the University of Cape Town, of the Victoria College into the University of Stellenbosch, and of the University of the Cape of Good Hope into a federal University, styled the University of South Africa, with the remainder of the University Colleges as constituent colleges, the names of which, with appropriate details, will be found in the table hereunder. In 1921 the University College of Johannesburg was created the University of the Witwatersrand, and Potchefstroom University College was incorporated as a constituent college of the University of South Africa.

Justice.

The Common Law of the Union is the Roman-Dutch Law, that is, the uncodified law of Holland as it was at the date of the cession of the Cape in 1806. The sources of the law are the Dutch Commentaries and text-books of the seventeenth, eighteenth, and early nineteenth centuries. The Law of England as such is not recognised as authoritative, though by Statute the principles of English Law relating to mercantile matters, e.g., companies, patents, trademarks, insolvency and the like, have been introduced. In shipping, insurance, and other modern business developments English Law is followed, and it has also largely influenced civil and criminal procedure. In all other matters, family relations, property, succession, contract, &c., Roman-Dutch Law rules, English decisions being valued only so far as they agree therewith. The prerogatives of the Crown are, generally speaking, the same as in England.

The Supreme Court consists of an Appellate Division with a Chief Justice and two ordinary and two additional Judges of Appeal. In each Province of the Union there is a Provincial Division of the Supreme Court; while in the Cape there are two Local Divisions, and in the Transvaal one, exercising the same jurisdiction within limited areas as the Provincial Divisions. The Judges hold office during good behaviour. The Circuit System is fully developed.

Each Province is further divided into Districts with a Magistrate's Court having a prescribed civil and criminal jurisdiction. From this Court there is an appeal to the Provincial and Local Divisions of the Supreme Court, and thence to the Appellate Division. A distinctive feature of the Criminal system is that Magistrates' convictions carrying sentences above a prescribed limit are subject to automatic review by a Judge.

Persons convicted, all courts, 1927: males, 385,875, females, 53,360.

Finance.

Prior to 1913-14 the expenditure of the four Provinces was entirely met from grants by the Union Government. Since then various Financial Relations Acts have been passed defining the conditions upon which subsidies shall be granted to the Provinces, assigning and transferring to them certain revenues and limiting their powers of taxation. Act No. 46 of 1925 bases the subsidy on the attendance of pupils receiving education, assigns certain revenues collected by the Union to the Provinces and gives special grants to the two smaller Provinces.

Revenue and expenditure of the Union (excluding Interest on Railway Capital, now paid direct to the Public Debt Commissioners, and Subsidies to Provincial Administrations).

Defence.

The South Africa Defence Act 1912, which became law on June 14, 1912, as amended by the South Africa Defence Act Amendment Act of 1922, provides for the establishment of Defence Forces comprising :—

1. The South African Permanent Force, which consists of :—(i) The South African Staff Corps; (ii) The South African Instructional Corps; (iii) The South African Naval Service; (iv) The South African Field

Artillery; (v) The South African Permanent Garrison Artillery; (vi) The South African Engineer Corps; (vii) The South African Air Force; (viii) The South African Service Corps; (ix) The South African Medical Corps; (x) The South African Ordnance Corps; (xi) The South African Veterinary Corps; (xii) The South African Administrative, Pay, and Clerical Corps.

The South African Naval Service includes the officers and men of the South African Division of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve engaged for whole-time service. A surveying vessel of 800 tons and two minesweeping trawlers are maintained in commission.

2. The Active Citizen Force; 3. The Citizen Force Reserve; 4. The Coast Garrison Force Reserve; 5. The Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve; 6. The National Reserve; 7. Rifle Associations; and 8. Cadets.

Every citizen of European descent between the ages of 17 and 60 is liable to render personal service in time of war, and those between 17 and 25 are liable to undergo a prescribed peace training with the Active Citizen Force spread over a period of four consecutive years. The Act states, however, that only 50 per cent. of the total number liable to peace training shall actually undergo that training unless Parliament makes financial provision for the training of a greater number.

The establishment of Rifle Associations is a marked feature of the Act; citizens between the ages of 21 and 25 who are not entered for peace training with the Active Citizen Force are to be compelled to undergo training during these four years in a Rifle Association, thus ensuring that, in course of time, all citizens will at least know how to handle and use a rifle.

Provision is also made in the Act for the cadet training of boys between 13 and 17 in urban and other populous areas where facilities can conveniently be arranged.

The Union is divided into 6 military districts. To each military district have been allotted various units of different arms, to which the citizens entered for peace training in their 20th and 21st years are posted.

Under the 1922 Act the Permanent Force is relieved of all Police duties in peace time for which they were liable under the Act of 1912, and becomes a purely military force. Its strength in June, 1928, was 119 officers and 984 white and 6 native other ranks. The strength of the South African Air Force was 28 officers and 241 white and 22 native other ranks; 22 officers and nurses and 14 other ranks of the Active Citizen Force are in whole-time employment.

Production and Industry.

Other products, excluding Native Reserves, &c., 1926: barley 53,331,600 lbs.; oats, 174,426,300 lbs.; Kaffir corn, 63,839,400 lbs.; potatoes, 199,821,450 lbs.; tobacco, 15,404,821 lbs. 1927: barley, 51,585,300 lbs.; oats, 195,822,000 lbs.; Kaffir corn, 132,909,800 lbs.; potatoes, 237,901,050 lbs.; tobacco, 20,202,350 lbs.

The 1926 census (Agriculture) showed the numbers of live-stock in the Union as follows: 10,337,174 cattle; 856,040 horses; 126,909 mules; 755,280 donkeys; 103,668 ostriches; 33,858,777 sheep; 7,947,286 goats; 908,964 pigs. 1927: 10,412,466 cattle; 40,109,826 sheep; 7,565,613 goats; 848,272 pigs (horses, mules, donkeys and ostriches not enumerated).

The production of wool in 1926 was 167,921,510 lbs., and of mohair, 7,879,633 lbs. The export of ostrich feathers in 1927 was valued at 43,621l.; hides and skins at 3,786,877l. and wattle bark and extract at 1,159,652l. 1927: wool, scoured and greasy, 260,334,374 lbs.; mohair, 10,681,290 lbs.

Cotton-growing is now undertaken by many farmers, the plant being found a better drought resistant than either tobacco or maize. The 1926 yield was 24,936,775 lbs. of seed cotton. The output of sugar in 1925-26 was 239,851 tons. The area under tea is 3,177 acres, from which the yield for 1925-26 was 4,146,371 lbs. (green leaf). It is estimated that some 15,000 acres of land suitable for tea plantations are available. 1927: cotton, 11,822,612 lbs.; sugar, 242,662 tons (1926-27 season).

On March 31, 1927, the forest reserve areas comprised 2,260,574 acres demarcated, and 407,572 acres undemarcated: total, 2,668,146 acres.

Irrigation.—Technical and financial assistance is given by the State under the Union Irrigation Law of 1912, which was designed to encourage irrigation. The Government expenditure on irrigation in 1923-24, 1924-25 and 1925-26 was 906,180l., 665,870l. and 240,059l. respectively from Loan Funds and 120,904l., 137,985l. and 163,078l. respectively from revenue; total 1,027,084l., 803,855l. and 403,137l. respectively.

Manufactures.—The report on the industrial census in the Union in 1926-27 gives the value added by process of manufacture, &c., as 47,507,685l., and the value of the gross production of the industries covered at 97,878,822l. The total number of factories which made returns was 7,172. Value of land and buildings, 22,561,314l., machinery, plant, and tools, 36,573,158l., of materials used, 50,871,137l., and cost of fuel, light, and power, 3,500,435l. Average number of persons employed, 202,689 (Europeans, 80,755). Wages paid, 24,133,708l. The gross value of the output of the principal groups of industries was: food, drink, &c., 30,825,749l.; metals, engineering, &c., 21,074,176l.; chemicals, &c., 6,431,141l.; heat, light, and power, 5,411,526l.; building, &c., 9,413,303l.; clothing, textiles, &c., 3,970,325l.; books,

Mining.—The table hereunder gives the total value of the principal minerals produced in the Union to December 31, 1927. The value of gold is calculated at 4·24773*l.* per fine ounce up to 1919, when the gold premium came into effect, as from the 24th of July, and from 1925 onwards when the gold premium ceased to operate. Copper, tin, antimony, scheelite, and silver are valued on the estimated pure metal contained in shipments according to the average current prices in London. The value of other base minerals is calculated on average local prices.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

An Act of 1922 provided for the issue of a Union Coinage with denominations identical with those of British Coins, which remain legal tender, and a branch of the Royal Mint has been established at Pretoria.

Union of South Africa silver and bronze coins of 2*s.* 6*d.*, 2*s.*, 1*s.*, 6*d.*, 3*d.*, 1*d.*,  $\frac{1}{2}$ d.,  $\frac{1}{4}$ d. are being coined and are in circulation. A considerable portion of the gold output is being minted.

An Act (No. 22 of 1922) was passed legalizing the optional use of either the metric or the imperial standard weights and measures, but under a proclamation of 1923 the cwt. has been replaced by the 'cental' of 100 lbs. The following old Dutch measures are, however, still in use:—Liquid Measure: Leaguer = about 128 imperial gallons; half aum =  $15\frac{1}{2}$  imperial gallons; anker =  $7\frac{1}{2}$  imperial gallons. Capacity: Muid = 3 bushels. The customary surface measure is the Morgen, equal to 2·1165402 acres; 1,000 Cape lineal feet are equal to 1,033 British imperial feet.

PROVINCE OF THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

Constitution and Government.—The Colony of the Cape of Good Hope was originally founded by the Dutch in the year 1652. Britain took possession of it in 1795 but evacuated it in 1803. A British force again took possession in 1806 and the Colony has remained a British Possession since that date. It was formally ceded to Great Britain by the Convention of London, August 13, 1814. Letters Patent issued in 1850 declared that in the Colony there should be a Parliament which should consist of the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a House of Assembly. On the 31st May, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, thereafter forming an original province of the Union.

Cape Town is the seat of the Provincial Administration.

Administrator.—The Hon. A. P. J. Fourie. (Salary 2,500*l.*)

The Province is divided into 123 magisterial districts, and the Province proper, including Bechuanaland, but exclusive of the Transkeian territories, into 90 divisions. Each division has a Council of at least 6 members (14 in the Cape Division) elected triennially by the owners or occupiers of immovable property. The duties devolving upon Divisional Councils include the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges, control of outspans, trekkpaths and public servitudes, destruction of noxious weeds, and preservation of public health.

There are 127 Municipalities, each governed by a Mayor or Chairman and Councillors, a certain number of whom are elected annually by the ratepayers. There are also 79 Village Management Boards.

Area and Population.—The following table gives the population of the Cape of Good Hope at each census :—

Religion.—In 1921 there were 1,684,906 Christians—546,065 members of Dutch Churches, 358,827 Anglicans, 105,696 Presbyterians, 115,941 Congregationalists, 394,085 Methodists, 76,421 Lutherans, 47,293 Roman Catholics, 16,102 Baptists, and 24,476 other Christian sects. Mohammedans 24,513, Jews 21,224, Heathen 1,002,450, others 49,606.

Education.—Local school administration is conducted by school boards and school committees, the unit of administration being the school district. There are now (1927) 112 such districts, each under the control of a school board, two-thirds of whose members are elected by the ratepayers and one-third nominated by Government and local authority. Education is compulsory for children of European parentage. Grants in support of education are provided from Provincial Council revenues, primary education being free. Aided schools 1927, 4,608. There are 138,463 European pupils and 182,937 non-European. Total number of teachers 11,242 (6,284 in European schools, and 4,958 in non-European schools).

Provincial expenditure on education (excluding Higher Education, which is under control of the Central Government) in 1927-28 amounted to 3,240,918*l*.

Pauperism.—There is no system of poor-law relief.

Finance.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there is only one financial statement for the four provinces together. Particulars are given above under the Union. Since the passing of the Financial Relations Act, 1913, the Provincial revenue consists of certain revenues assigned to the Province and an amount voted by Parliament by way of subsidy. The following figures show the provincial revenue and expenditure for five years :—

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Cape of Good Hope Province and the United Kingdom for five years :—

PROVINCE OF NATAL.

Constitution and Government.—Natal was annexed to Cape Colony in 1844, placed under separate government in 1845, and under charter of July 15, 1856, erected into a separate Colony. By this charter partially representative institutions were established, and, under a Natal Act of 1893, assented to by Order in Council, June 26, 1893, the Colony obtained responsible government. The province of Zululand was annexed to Natal on December 30, 1897. The districts of Vryheid, Utrecht and part of Wakkerstroom, formerly belonging to the Transvaal, were annexed in January, 1903. On May 31, 1910, the Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa, becoming an original province of the Union.

The seat of provincial government in Natal is Pietermaritzburg.

Administrator.—The Hon. H. Gordon Watson (Jan. 1923) (2,000*l.*)

Area and Population.—The Province (including Zululand, 10,427 square miles) has an area of 35,284 square miles, with a seaboard of about 360 miles. The climate is sub-tropical on the coast and somewhat colder inland. It is well suited to Europeans. The Province is divided into 40 Magisterial Districts.

The European population has more than trebled since 1879. The returns of the total population at the last six censuses were :—

Census Year	All Races			European		Coloured

The figures for 1891 exclude Zululand; those for 1904 and 1911 include the districts of Vryheid, Utrecht, Paulpietersburg, Ngotshe, and Babanango.

Population of Durban according to the census of 1921: European 58,085 other 93,557, total 151,642; and of Pietermaritzburg: European 17,998, coloured 18,025, total 36,023. The European population of Durban in 1918 was 48,413, and of Pietermaritzburg, 18,525. The census figures for the European population of Durban in 1926 are 70,883, and of Pietermaritzburg, 19,748.

Education.—With the exception of Higher Education, which is under the control of the Union Government, Education comes under the Provincial Administration. In 1927 there were, for children of European extraction, 170 schools giving primary, 26 giving beyond primary education, in all 196 schools, which were supported either entirely or partially by Government funds. In addition there were 2 technical colleges, 1 physical culture school, 3 night continuation classes, 1 training school for teachers, and 277 farm schools. For coloured children, there were 566 native schools; 57 Asiatic schools and 22 other coloured schools, State and State-aided. The aggregate number of European pupils in regular attendance at the Government and inspected schools was 24,440 for 1927; the average daily attendance 91·8 per cent. of the number on the registers. The number of native, Asiatic, and coloured children receiving instruction in 1927 amounted to 49,947. A sum of 136,142*l.* was spent on native, Asiatic and coloured education during 1927–28 out of public funds; the corresponding figure in respect of European education was 493,114*l.* It is estimated that only a very small percentage of European children are receiving no education.

Production and Industry.—On the Coast and in Zululand there are vast plantations of sugar (output, 1927–28, 247,273 tons) and tea, while cereals of all kinds (especially maize), fruits, vegetables, the Acacia molissima, the bark of which is so much used for tanning purposes, and other crops are produced.

The Province is rich in mineral wealth, particularly coal. Other minerals are asbestos, copper ore, fireclay, gold, graphite, gypsum, iron ore, lead and silver ore, limestone and marble, manganese ore, mica, molybdenum ore, nickel ore, nitre, oil shale, and tin ore. For figures of mineral production, see p. 235.

The various factory industries of Natal in 1925-26 (census of 1926) numbered 1,093, with an annual output valued at 20,750,006*l*. They had 13,190,165*l*. invested in machinery, lands, and buildings; annually used materials worth 11,576,544*l*.; and paid 4,347,901*l*. yearly in wages to 43,166 employees.

A Whaling Industry was commenced at Durban in 1908. Down to 1927 (20 years) 16,017 whales were captured (1,094 in 1927). Two companies, with 16 boats, were operating in 1927, and 7,510 tons of oil were produced. The production (oil, fertilizers, boiled bone, etc.) was valued at 204,157*l*. The industry is regulated by the Provincial Government, as indiscriminate slaughter was driving the whales away from the South African waters.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records made for each of the Provinces; the British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between Natal Province and the United Kingdom for five years:—

PROVINCE OF THE TRANSVAAL.

Constitution and Government.—The territory was colonised by Boers from Cape Colony in 1836-37. In 1852 the independence of the Transvaal Government was recognised by Great Britain, but in 1877, in consequence of financial difficulties and troubles with the natives, and in accordance with representations and petitions from the Boers, the territory was annexed by the British Government. In 1880 the Boers rebelled, and in 1881 a Convention was signed restoring self-government, but with conditions, reservations, and limitations, and subject to the suzerainty of the British Crown. This arrangement was modified by a Convention in 1884, in which the name of the South African Republic was given to the Transvaal State; but the control over external affairs, other than engagements with the Orange Free State, was reserved to the Crown. The discovery of gold and the conditions which followed this discovery occasioned difficulties finally resulting in war. This led to the annexation of both States to the British Crown, the one on September 1, 1900, under the name of The Transvaal, and the other (May 24) as the Orange River Colony. Hostilities continued till May 31, 1902. [See STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1906, under The Transvaal.]

The administration was thereafter carried on under a Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, assisted by an Executive and a Legislative Council. On December 6, 1906, Letters Patent were issued providing for a Constitution of responsible Government in the Colony. The Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa on May 31, 1910, as an original Province of the Union.

The seat of provincial government for the Transvaal is at Pretoria.

Administrator.—The Hon. J. S. Smit. Appointed November 2, 1928 (salary, 2,500*l.*)

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 110,450 square miles, divided into 35 districts. The following table shows the population at each of the last six censuses :—

Education.—All education except that of a university and of a vocational type is under the provincial authority. The Province has been divided for the purposes of local control and management into thirty-one school districts. Instruction in Government Schools, both primary and secondary, is free. The new University of the Witwatersrand was established in Johannesburg in 1921.

The following statistics of education are for the year ending Dec. 31, 1927: 1,170 primary schools with 114,123 pupils; 40 beyond primary schools, with an enrolment of 10,934 pupils; 447 State and State-aided schools for coloured, native and Indian children, with 53,619 pupils. There are four training institutions for European teachers, with 856 students; and three for coloured teachers, with 240 students. During the year 1927, 2,859,113*l.* was expended for educational purposes.

The medium of instruction up to the fourth standard is the home language (English or Afrikaans) of the pupil, but parents may request that the other language be gradually introduced as a second medium. Above the fourth standard both languages may be used at the parents' option or as occasion allows. Bible History is taught in every school, but no doctrine or dogma peculiar to any religious denomination or sect may be taught.

Finance.—For financial arrangements, see p. 228 above.

The following figures show the provincial revenue and expenditure for six years:—

The Provincial Revenue is mainly derived from Employers' Tax, Licences, Native Pass Fees, Poll Tax, Transfer Duty and Companies' Tax.

Production and Industry.—The Province is in the main a stock-raising country, though there are considerable areas well adapted for agriculture, including the growing of tropical crops. The extent of land under cultivation in 1926 is given as 3,075,705 acres; fallow land as about 451,354 acres. The maize and tobacco crops may be regarded as the most important.

The live-stock numbered, in 1927, 2,968,182 cattle (2,985,301 in 1926); 5,183,411 sheep (4,524,527 in 1926); 858,114 goats (including 26,875 of the valuable Angora breed) (823,443 in 1926, including 26,847 Angora goats).

For mineral production, see above, p. 234. The Province has iron and brass foundries and engineering works, grain-mills, breweries, brick, tile, and pottery works, tobacco, soap, and candle factories, coach and wagon works, &c. The Transvaal gold output in 1926 was valued at 42,285,139*l.*, in 1927 at 43,055,178*l.*, and in 1928 at 44,024,058*l.*

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Transvaal Province and the United Kingdom for five years:—

	£	£	£	£	£
Imports from Transvaal	509,990	392,751	229,319	252,786	841,467

PROVINCE OF THE ORANGE FREE STATE.

The Orange River was first crossed by Europeans about the middle of the 18th century. Between 1810 and 1820, settlements were made in the southern parts of the Orange Free State, and the Great Trek greatly augmented the number of settlers during and after 1836. In 1848, Sir Harry Smith proclaimed the whole territory between the Orange and Vaal Rivers as a British Possession and established what was called the Orange River Sovereignty. Great dissatisfaction was caused by this step, as well as by the native policy of the British Government. In 1854, by the Convention of Bloemfontein, British Sovereignty was withdrawn and the independence of the country was recognised.

During the first five years of its existence the Orange Free State was much harassed by incessant raids by, and fighting with, the Basutos. These were at length conquered. The British Government then stepped in and arranged matters much to the dissatisfaction of the conquering party. By the treaty of Aliwal North, only a part of the territory of the Basutos was incorporated in the Orange Free State.

On account of the Treaty between the Orange Free State and South African Republic, the former State took a prominent part in the South African War (1899–1902), and was annexed on May 28, 1900, as the Orange River Colony. After peace was declared Crown Colony Government was established and continued until 1907, when responsible government was introduced. On May 31, 1910, the Orange River Colony was merged in the Union of South Africa as the Province of the Orange Free State.

The seat of provincial government is at Bloemfontein.

Administrator.—The Hon. C. T. Wilcocks (salary, 2,000*l.*)

There are municipalities at Bloemfontein and other centres, 61 in all; local authorities have, so far as possible, the usual local administrative powers.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 49,647 square miles; it is divided into 30 districts. The census population has varied as follows:—

Census Year	All Races			European		Coloured
	Total	Males	Females	Males	Females	Males	Females
1880 .	133,518	70,150	63,368	31,006	29,116	33,244	34,252

1926 .	—	—	—	104,392	98,593	—	—

The capital, Bloemfontein, had, in 1921, 19,867 white inhabitants, and 19,667 natives and other coloured persons; total, 39,034. The 1926 Census figures for the European population are 22,695.

Vital statistics are shown as follows:—

Year	European			Non-European <sup>1</sup>
	Births	Deaths	Marriages	Births	Deaths	Marriages

Religion.—The census of 1921 gave the following results: Dutch Churches, 207,536; Anglican Churches, 50,807; Presbyterians, 13,562; Congregationalists, 2,763; Methodists, 135,778; Lutherans, 7,931; Roman Catholics, 9,879; Jews, 4,761; Heathen, 174,697; others, 607,714.

Education.—Higher and vocational education is under the control of the Union Education Department, while primary and secondary education and the training of teachers are controlled and financed by the Provincial Administration. Under the Education Ordinance of 1920 the Province is divided into 57 School Board Districts, for each of which there is a School Board elected by the School Committees in the district. In 1927 there were 751 public schools and 98 aided private schools in the Province, with a total enrolment of 44,356 pupils. Education is free in all public schools up to the University Matriculation standard, but certain schools are allowed to charge fees and to expend the proceeds for the advantage of the schools. Attendance is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 16, but exemption may be granted in special cases or when a child has passed Standard VI and is in regular employment. Unless parents object, the two official languages—English and Afrikaans—are taught to all pupils, the home language of the pupil being the chief medium of instruction and the second language being introduced gradually during the primary school course. In all the towns and villages of the Province there are either secondary or intermediate schools preparing pupils up to the standard of the University Matriculation. The Normal College trains from 150 to 200 teachers annually.

Production and Industry.—The Province consists of undulating plains, affording excellent grazing and wide tracts for agricultural purposes. The rainfall is moderate. The country is still mainly devoted to stock-farming, although a rapidly increasing quantity of grain is being raised, especially in the Eastern Districts.

For Mineral Statistics see p. 232.

Commerce.—Since the coming into effect of the Union there are no special records of trade for each of the Provinces. The British Board of Trade statistics, however, continue to give details of trade between the United Kingdom and each Province separately. The following figures show the value of the trade between the Orange Free State Province and the United Kingdom :—

WEST AFRICA.

These Possessions are the Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria; the Gambia Colony and Protectorate; the Gold Coast Colony with Ashanti and Northern Territories; and the Sierra Leone Colony and Protectorate.

Parts of Togoland and the Cameroons are also included as mandated territories.

NIGERIA.

History and Constitution.—This territory comprises a number of areas formerly under separate administrations. Lagos, bought in August, 1861, from a native king, was placed under the Governor of Sierra Leone in 1866. In 1874 it was detached, together with the Gold Coast Colony, and formed part of the latter until January, 1886, when a separate 'Colony and Protectorate of Lagos' was constituted. Meanwhile the National African Company had established British interests in the Niger valley, and in July, 1886, the company obtained a charter under the name of the Royal Niger Company. This Company surrendered its charter to the Crown in 1899, and on January 1, 1900, its territories were formed into the two Protectorates of Northern and Southern Nigeria. The latter absorbed the 'Niger Coast Protectorate,' which was formed in May, 1893, from the 'Protectorate of the Oil Rivers,' which had been constituted in June, 1885. In February, 1906, Lagos and Southern Nigeria were united into the 'Colony and Protectorate of Southern Nigeria,' and on January 1, 1914, the latter was amalgamated with the Protectorate of Northern Nigeria to form the 'Colony and Protectorate of Nigeria,' under a Governor. Lagos is the seat of the Central Government.

The Colony of Nigeria had its boundaries defined afresh, and the Protectorate was divided into two groups of provinces, the 'Northern Provinces' and the 'Southern Provinces,' each under a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the King, and subject to the control and authority of the Governor.

The British mandated territory of Cameroon is now attached to Nigeria for administrative purposes.

The Executive Council of the Colony was made, from January 1, 1914, the Executive Council of the Protectorate also. It consists of a few of the senior officials. There is a Legislative Council, created by Order in Council in November 1922, consisting of the Governor, the members of the Executive Council, and other official members (total official membership not exceeding 30); three members elected by the ratepayers of Lagos; one member elected by the ratepayers of Calabar; four members selected respectively by the Chambers of Commerce of Lagos, Port Harcourt and Kano, and the local Chamber of Mines; two members to represent respectively Banking and Shipping interests; and eight members to represent African interests in those parts of the Colony and Southern Provinces which do not return elected representatives. This Council legislates for the Colony and the Southern Provinces of the Protectorate, laws affecting the Northern Provinces being enacted by the Governor as heretofore.

Governor of Nigeria.—Sir Graeme Thomson, G.C.M.G., K.C.B.

Chief Secretary to the Government.—Sir F. M. Baddeley, C.M.G.

Lieutenant-Governors in the Protectorate.—Major Upton Fitzgerald Ruxton, C.M.G. (Southern Provinces); and H. R. Palmer, C.M.G., C.B.E. (Northern Provinces).

There are altogether 24 provinces, including Cameroons, each under the immediate control of a Resident. In many provinces the administration is in the hands of the paramount chief and his officials.

Area and Population.—Area approximately 335,700 square miles; population, 18,765,690, including about 5,200 Europeans (Northern Provinces: 258,000 square miles, 10,232,834 population. Southern Provinces: 78,000 square miles, 8,532,856 population). In 1900 a proclamation was issued in Northern Nigeria which, without abolishing domestic slavery, declared all children born after January 1, 1900, free, and forbade the removal of domestic slaves for sale or transfer. In 1917 the Slavery Ordinance abolished the legal status of slavery throughout the Protectorate. Slave markets have been suppressed by native rulers, but cases of slave dealing are still found among the tribes east of the Niger. In recent years very many slaves have been liberated in the Northern Provinces.

Justice.—The Chief Justice is the president of the Supreme Court of Nigeria, and three other judges are stationed in Lagos and one in Calabar. Police magistrates have courts in Lagos, Ebute Metta and Calabar, and station magistrates are in charge at Port Harcourt, Ibadan, Warri, Onitsha, Enugu, Aba, Kaduna, Jos, Lokoja, Kano and Zaria. In each province is a Provincial Court consisting of the Resident and his assistants, and such justices of the peace as may be appointed by the Governor. Native courts exist in Mohammedan localities where there are chiefs and councillors, and amongst pagan tribes Judicial Councils with limited judicial powers have been established in localities where the intelligence of the natives renders such a policy possible. The number of persons summoned before the District Courts in 1927 was 16,489 of whom 13,252 were convicted; while 202 persons were convicted in the Divisional Courts.

Religion and Education.—Northern Provinces.—Mohammedanism is widely diffused, the Fulani and Hausas and other ruling tribes being of that religion, but in some parts of the territory paganism is predominant. Protestant and Catholic missions are at work, and have industrial and other schools at several stations. The principles governing the education of natives in the Egyptian Sudan are being closely followed. Secular subjects only are compulsory; the acceptance of religious teaching is optional. Primary schools have been established at the Headquarters of all Provinces, except Makurdi, and at several other large towns. In 1927 there were 84 Government schools including Katsina Training College, total average attendance being 2,566·97. The number of mission schools is 141—average attendance 2,988 01. It is estimated that there are 31,687 Mohammedan schools with 393,039 pupils.

Southern Provinces.—Elementary education is almost entirely in the hands of the various missionary societies, but all schools, whether Government assisted or non-assisted, are now under the control of the Education Department, a control effected by careful co-operation with the missionary authorities and other proprietors of schools. Government is mainly responsible for secondary education, their two principal secondary schools being King's College and Queen's College, Lagos, for boys and girls respectively. Several assisted and a few Government elementary schools possess secondary departments. In 1927 there were 49 Government schools with an enrolment and average attendance of 10,009 and 9,190 respectively; 229 assisted schools with an enrolment of 44,814 and an average attendance of 36,987; and 2,519 non-assisted schools for which the corresponding figures were 127,066 and 81,000.

Six British, three French, one American, and the Basel Missionary Societies are working in the country as well as the Salvation Army and the different African Churches.

Finance.—Revenue, expenditure, and debt of Nigeria as a whole:—

Year (ending March 31)	Revenue	Expenditure— Ordinary Recurrent	Total Expenditure	Public Debt
	£	£	£	£
1923-24 . . . . .	6,260,561	4,998,750	5,501,242	19,309,210
1924-25 . . . . .	6,944,220	5,320,027	5,768,715	19,309,210
1925-26 . . . . .	8,268,928	5,668,323	6,538,167	19,309,210
1926-27 . . . . .	7,734,429	6,259,086	7,584,692	23,559,209
1927-28 . . . . .	6,304,603	6,723,623	7,086,775	23,559,209

The expenditure for the year ending March 31, 1928, on railway construction was 768,582*l*.

The main items of revenue for the year 1927-28 were:—Customs, 3,540,767*l*.; railway, 2,454,750*l*.; direct taxes, 810,753*l*.; fees of court, 456,908*l*.; marine, 336,024*l*. The chief items of expenditure were:—Railway, 2,428,815*l*.; Public Debt, 1,327,124*l*.; Public Works, 1,835,770*l*.; Political, 467,907*l*.; Military and Police, 570,449*l*.

There is established in each native State in the Northern Provinces a Treasury which regulates the expenditure of that portion of the local revenue which is annually assigned to the native administration of each Emirate for its support and maintenance. There are also native treasuries in a few of the more advanced States in the Southern provinces.

Production and Industry.—The products are palm-oil (exports 1927, 113,240 tons) and kernels (exports 1927, 257,206 tons); cotton lint (export 1927, 99,546 cwt.), cocoa (export 1927, 39,210 tons). Mahogany is exported. Sheep and goat skins are tanned and dyed. The natives have worked iron, lead, and tin for centuries. Tin ore exported in 1927, 10,926 tons. There are also deposits of coal, silver, galena, manganese ore, lignite, and monazite (which contains thorium).

Mining rights are vested in the Government, but under an agreement made with the Royal Niger Company at the date of the revocation of the charter, that Company receives half the gross profits derived from royalties on minerals won between the main stream of the Niger on the west and a line running direct from Yola to Zinder on the east, for a period of 99 years with effect from January 1, 1900.

Commerce.—The principal ports are Lagos, Warri, Burutu, Forcados, Sapele, Koko, Akassa, Degema, Port Harcourt, Bonny, Opobo, Calabar, and Victoria. Numerous rivers and creeks form the chief routes for transport, and there are many well-made roads.

Considerable trade is carried on in the Northern Provinces. There is also a large trade by caravans which, coming from Salaga in the west, the Sahara in the north, and Lake Chad and Wadai in the east, make use of Kano as an emporium.

The trade and shipping of Nigeria are shown as follows (bullion and specie are included):—

Year	Trade		Shipping entered and cleared
	Imports	Exports	Total	British only
	£	£	Tons	Tons
1923	11,761,852	11,705,012	2,082,874	1,356,714
1924	12,921,537	15,088,077	2,193,905	1,344,099
1925	16,278,349	17,370,101	2,655,001	1,610,079
1926	13,597,480	17,339,618	3,096,115	1,787,417
1927	15,664,687	16,240,957	3,367,312	1,904,514

Imports from the British Empire, 1927, 11,913,390*l.*, and from U.S.A., 1,291,604*l.*

Communications.—The railway system comprises (1) a Western line from Lagos to Kano (704½ miles), crossing the Niger by bridge at Jebba, with branches from Minna to Baro (111 miles) and from Zaria to the Bauchi tin fields (Jos) (133 miles, light railway); (2) an Eastern line (569 miles) from Port Harcourt to Kaduna on the Western Railway, crossing the Benue by train ferry at Makurdi with a branch line connecting from Kaffanchan junction (mile 458½) with the tinfields (Jos)—62½ miles. Total capital expenditure on Nigerian railway, to end of March, 1928, 18,104,954*l.*; gross receipts, 1928, 2,435,411*l.*; working expenditure, 1,102,781*l.*; gross expenditure, 1,509,906*l.*; net profit, 925,505*l.*; passengers carried, 2,830,965; goods and minerals transported, 989,403 tons.

There is a wireless station at Lagos under the control of the Eastern Telegraph Company for ship to shore communication.

In 1927 there were 146 Post Offices in Nigeria and the British sphere of the Cameroons. The Savings Bank on Dec. 31, 1927, had 6,981 depositors, with 35,237*l.* to their credit.

A special silver coinage for West Africa was introduced in 1913, the denominations being 2s., 1s., 6d., and 3d., of the same size, weight, and fineness as corresponding coins of the United Kingdom. The new currency, with adequate reserves in London, based on gold and securities, is under the control of the West African Currency Board. A nickel coinage (penny, half-penny, and tenth of a penny) is also in use. In 1916 local currency notes were introduced (present denominations 5l., 20s., 10s., 2s., and 1s.), and in 1920 an alloy coinage of similar denominations to the silver coinage was added.

The Bank of British West Africa, Ltd., and Barclays (Dominion, Colonial and Overseas) Bank, Ltd., have branches in Nigeria.

GAMBIA.

Governor.—Sir Edward B. Denham, K.B.E., O.M.G. (2,500l., and 750l. allowances). Appointed August, 1928.

Gambia was discovered by the early Portuguese navigators, but they made no settlement. During the seventeenth century various companies of merchants obtained trading charters and established a settlement on the river, which, from 1807, was controlled from Sierra Leone; in 1843 it was made an independent Crown Colony; in 1866 it formed part of the West African Settlements, but in December, 1888, it again became a separate Crown Colony. It is administered under a Governor with an Executive and a nominated Legislative Council containing an unofficial element. With the exception of the Island of St. Mary, on which Bathurst, the capital, stands, the whole Colony is administered on the Protectorate system. Since 1901 both banks of the Gambia have been under direct British control up to the Anglo-French boundary.

Area of Colony proper, 4 square miles; population, 10,000. In the Protectorate (area, 4,130 square miles) the population in 1921 was about 200,000.

There were, in 1926, 7 elementary Government-aided schools and one Government Mahommedan school, with 1,867 pupils enrolled, and an average attendance of about 848 pupils; Government grant, proportionate to results (1927), 1,447*l*. Of the elementary schools two are Roman Catholic, three Wesleyan, and one Anglican. The Wesleyans have also 2 secondary schools with 31 boys and 22 girls, and the Roman Catholics 1 secondary school for girls with 50 pupils. In January, 1927, the Government opened a Mahommedan school at Georgetown, MacCarthy Island, there being 83 pupils at the end of the year. Total Government expenditure on education (1927), 3,727*l*.

There is a company of the West African Frontier Force of 142 men. The armed police has a strength of 142 men.

Imports from United Kingdom in 1927, 415,142*l*; exports to United Kingdom, 1927, 81,939*l*.

The tonnage of vessels entered and cleared in the foreign trade in 1927 was 1,284,664 tons, of which 821,614 were British. It is estimated that British vessels carry about 40 per cent. of the total imports, while practically all the exports are carried by foreign vessels.

Internal communication is maintained by steamers or launches. There are four post offices, but postal facilities are afforded to all river towns by means of a weekly travelling post office on the Government river mail-steamers. Postal packets and parcels dealt with in 1927, 276,023. Bathurst is connected with St. Vincent (Cape de Verde) and with Sierra Leone by cable, but there are no local railways. Bathurst is in wireless communication with Georgetown, Kuntaur and Basse in the Protectorate. The Post Office Savings Bank had 444 depositors holding deposits value 1,346*l.* in 1927. A special West African alloy currency was introduced in 1920 (see under Nigeria, p. 254). West African currency notes in circulation December 31, 1927, amounted to 166,034*l.* There is one bank in the Colony, the Bank of British West Africa.

GOLD COAST.

The Gold Coast first became known through Portuguese navigators in the fourteenth century, and English and Dutch traders and companies exploited the district in the seventeenth century, their main object being the slave traffic. The Dutch held settlements on the coast until 1871, when a convention was made transferring them to the English. The Colony stretches for 334 miles along the Gulf of Guinea, between the French Ivory Coast and Togoland. It is administered by a Governor with an Executive and a Legislative Council. Attached to it inland are Ashanti and the Northern Territories. The British mandated territory of Togoland is also attached to the Gold Coast for administrative purposes.

The area of the Colony, Ashanti, and Protectorate is about 80,000 square miles; population, census 1921, 2,078,043; Europeans, 2,165. Chief towns: Accra, 38,000; Sekondi, 10,000; Cape Coast, 15,000; Keta, 10,000; Winneba, 7,000; Saltpond, 6,500; Koforidua, 5,500. There were (in 1927) 22 Government schools, and 234 assisted schools which are under the control of various missions; average attendance of primary and secondary schools (exclusive of Northern Territories), 29,640 (in 1927); enrolled, 33,054; Government expenditure on education in 1927, 146,728*l.* (excluding Northern Territories and Achimota). There are also a large number of non-assisted primary schools supported by the various religious bodies. A University College for Secondary Education at Achimota was formally opened on Jan. 28, 1927.

The strength of the police (1926-27), 31 European officers and 1,586 other ranks. The constabulary (Northern Territories) consists of 4 officers and about 476 other ranks. Summary convictions in 1926-27, 12,106; convictions in Supreme Courts, 181.

Staple products and exports, cocoa, gold, manganese, diamonds, kola nuts, mahogany, palm kernels, copra, and palm oil; in 1926 there were 3,200 horses, 9,600 asses, 415,000 sheep and goats, and 16,000 pigs. Many of the coast inhabitants are fishermen, and there is considerable traffic in dried fish by rail into the interior.

The shipping entered and cleared in the foreign trade in 1927 was 4,896,400 tons, of which 2,835,491 tons were British. The harbour of Takovadi, opened in March 1928, is the only complete shelter for ships of over 30 ft. draught between Sierra Leone and Nigeria.

Communications.—There is a Government railway, from Sekondi on the coast to Kumasi, 168 miles, with branches Tarkwa to Prestea, 19 miles; Inchaban Junction to Inchaban, 5 miles. A new line is under construction, between Huni Valley in the Western Province, and Kade in the East Province, a distance of about 100 miles. There are now 394 miles of railway open to traffic, and 98 are under construction. Gross railway receipts, 1926-27, 1,158,833*l.*, expenditure, 1926-27, 618,909*l.* There are over 1,580 miles of main roads and 3,157 miles of secondary roads in the Gold Coast, Ashanti, and the Northern Territories. There are in the Colony 4,850 miles of telegraph trunks and 4,635 miles of telephone trunks and 214 offices, and there are telephone exchanges at Accra, Adeiso, Akuse, Aburi, Axim, Bekwai, Dodowa, Dunkwa, Ho, Keta, Kibi, Kaforidua, Kumasi, Mampong (Ashanti), Mangoase, Nsawam, Obuassi, Swedru, Saltpond, Sekondi, Suayani, Tarkwa, Tamale, Winneba. There are over 1,200 telephones now in use, and over 1,700 miles of wire in the exchange areas. The telephone trunk system connects up all the main towns in the Colony. Telegrams in 1927-8: 381,039. There is a wireless telegraph station at Accra. The number of letters, packets, &c., handled in the postal service in 1927-8 was 12,695,580. In 1927-8 the savings bank had 9,989 depositors with 83,980*l.* to their credit.

The Bank of British West Africa, Ltd. and Barclay's Bank (Dominion, Colonial and Overseas) operate in the Colony and Ashanti. For currency, see p. 251. The natives tend to melt down the silver and nickel coins for ornaments. West African currency notes in circulation at March 31, 1927, amounted to 1,515,774*l.*; March 31, 1928, 1,691,166*l.*

Ashanti was placed under British protection on August 27, 1896. Under Orders in Council of September 26, 1901, the country was definitely annexed by Great Britain, the Governor of the Gold Coast being appointed Governor of Ashanti, though only some of the laws and ordinances of the Gold Coast apply to the annexed territory. The area is 13,470 square miles and the population (census 1921) was 407,000; Europeans (1921), 400. Kumasi, the chief town, has about 20,000 inhabitants. The number of children in the Government schools was (1927) 1,069, and in the mission schools 3,210. At the Agricultural and Forestry Training Centre 46 students were in residence during 1927-28. Police force (1927-28), 236; convictions, 1927-28, 2,744, but there is little serious crime. Local receipts, 1927-28, 159,646*l.*; local expenditure (excluding railway, posts, and telegraphs), 377,863*l.* Motor vehicles in use, 843 cars and lorries. Agriculture is extending, cocoa and rubber plantations are being formed. 63,446 tons of cocoa were exported in 1927-28. Gold output (1927-28), 103,511 oz. (439,942*l.*). Average number employed in mining industry, 2,574 in 1927-28. In the western parts of the Colony are rich forests of mahogany, cedar, &c., and trees yielding fruits, oil, rubber, and gum copal. This district has been opened up by a trunk motor road from Kumasi to Pamu on the western frontier via Suayani, with the accompanying branch roads. The country is well watered, and with proper restraints it would contain inexhaustible supplies of valuable forest products. On the eastern side the forests are sparser, though timber and oil trees are common and game plentiful; the products there are chiefly maize, coco-yams, bananas, ground-nuts, and cocoa, the plantations of which are rapidly extending.

The Northern Territories lying to the north of the parallel of 8° N. lat., bounded on the west and north by the French possessions and on the east by Togoland, were placed under British protection in 1901. They are administered, under the Governor, by a Chief Commissioner and 21 Political officers. The country is divided into two provinces Northern and Southern, with headquarters at Tamale in the Southern Province. 237 miles north of Kumasi. Population (1921), 527,914; Europeans (1921), 49.

Chief towns, Tamale, 4,000; Navaro, 15,000. Area of the Protectorate, 35,000 square miles. Constabulary, 481 (476 rank and file) in August 1928. The Mohammedans have substantial mosques; there are Roman Catholic and other missions. A new scheme of Education was inaugurated on April 1, 1927, under a Superintendent of Education, with European masters on his staff. Government schools have been established at Tamale, Gambaga, Lawra, Salaga, and Wa. Pupils in 1926-27, 377. There are now Veterinary, Trade, Primary and Kindergarten schools in Tamale. There are also Mohammedan schools. There are 1,389 miles of motorable roads in dry season. Local revenue in 1927-28, 22,286*l.*; expenditure, 111,868*l.* The chief crops grown are yams, Guinea corn, millet, maize, rice, and tobacco. Livestock, 1921: cattle, 69,500; sheep and goats, 242,400; donkeys, 8,500; horses, 2,556. There are 13 quarantine stations through which foreign cattle and sheep enter the Protectorate. Gold-bearing quartz and alluvial deposits, and mica, exist.

Governor of the Gold Coast.—Sir Alexander Ransford Slater, K. C. M. G., C. B. E.

Chief Commissioner of Ashanti.—John Maxwell, C. M. G.

Chief Commissioner of Northern Territories.—Major A. H. C. Walker-Leigh, C. M. G.

SIERRA LEONE.

The Colony of Sierra Leone originated in the sale and cession, in 1788, by a native King to English settlers, of a piece of land intended as a home for natives of Africa who were waifs in London; and later it was used as a settlement for Africans rescued from slave-ships. It lies between French Guinea on the north and the Republic of Liberia on the east and south-east. Sierra Leone proper consists of a peninsula about 26 miles long, and 12 miles broad, with an area of about 260 square miles, terminating in Cape Sierra Leone. The Colony of Sierra Leone extends from the Scarcies River on the north, to the border of Liberia on the south, 180 miles. Inland it extends to a distance varying from 8 to 20 miles and includes the Yellaboi and other islands towards the north, as well as Sherbro and several smaller islands to the south, but the Isles de Los were ceded to France under the Convention of 1904. There are for the Colony and Protectorate a nominated Executive Council and a Legislative Council consisting of the Governor, twelve official members, three elected unofficial members, and not more than seven nominated unofficial members, of whom three are paramount chiefs of the Protectorate. Elected members must be 25 years of age, and hold their seats for five years. The franchise is confined to males.

Area of the Colony 4,000 square miles approximately; population (census 1921), 85,163. Europeans, 1921, numbered 1,161. The birth-rate (1927) was 22·8 per thousand, and the death-rate 29·2; infantile mortality-rate 351·4 per 1,000 registered births. Owing to the fact that many births escape registration, the birth-rate appears lower and the infantile mortality-rate higher than they really are. Chief town, Freetown, 44,142 inhabitants (1921), headquarters of H. M.'s forces in West Africa. The battalion of the West African Frontier Force has its headquarters at Wilberforce, Freetown. Freetown, the greatest seaport in West Africa, is a second-class Imperial coaling-station, with an excellent harbour.

In 1927 there were 56 primary schools, belonging to missionary societies and assisted from public funds, and 4 Government primary schools. The average attendance in these 60 schools was 5,978. The grant paid to the assisted primary schools amounted to 4,715 $\frac{1}{2}$ . There were 6 assisted secondary schools with an average attendance of 586. The grant awarded these secondary schools amounted to 817 $\frac{1}{2}$  5s. One of these (the Albert Academy) includes industrial work in its curriculum. There were also 2 assisted industrial schools with an average attendance of 68, and one (The Sir Alfred Jones' Trades School) controlled by Government with an average of 20 boys. The assisted industrial schools received grants amounting to 222 $\frac{1}{2}$  7s. 6d. Besides these there were 4 Secondary and 7 Primary unassisted schools.

The Government conducts in Freetown a Model School for primary education with an average attendance of 214, and a secondary school for boys with an average attendance of 63. Fourah Bay College which is under the management of the Church Missionary and Wesleyan Missionary Societies is affiliated to the University of Durham.

Police force at end of 1927 had an authorised strength of 316, including 6 European officers. In 1927, 44 persons were convicted in the Supreme Court, and 11 in the Circuit court.

A Government railway, a single line of 2ft. 6in. gauge, is open from Freetown to Pendembu, near the Liberian frontier, a length of 227 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles. From Bauya Junction, 64 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles from Freetown, a branch line runs to Kamabai, a distance of 104 miles. There is also a mountain section from Freetown to the official quarters at Hill Station, a distance of 5 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles. Total line open, 1927, was 339 miles, excluding sidings. Total receipts 1927, 251,477 $\frac{1}{2}$ , expenditure 188,584 $\frac{1}{2}$ . There are over 1,642 miles of telegraph and telephone, including electric-train-staff lines. In 1927, 1,882,290 postal packets were dealt with in the Colony; money order transactions amounted to 47,768 $\frac{1}{2}$ . There are 877 miles of combined telegraph and telephone wires in operation. There are 71 post offices and postal agencies. At the end of 1927 there were 6,410 depositors in the savings bank with 64,030*l.* (inclusive of interest) to their credit. The West African Silver Currency was introduced in 1913 (see under Nigeria, p. 251), and in 1920 West African Alloy Coinage was put into circulation; but British coins are still used. Currency notes of the West African Currency Board are in circulation (150,000*l.* at the end of 1926). The Bank of British West Africa and the Colonial Bank have their headquarters at Freetown.

The Protectorate.—The Protectorate was proclaimed August 21, 1896. On March 7, 1913, an Order in Council was issued providing for its administration; this was revoked and replaced by an Order in Council of January 16, 1924. The Order applies to the territories, not being portions of the Colony of Sierra Leone, lying between the sixth and tenth degrees of north latitude and the tenth and fourteenth degrees of west longitude, and beginning at the extreme southerly point of the Colony on the Anglo-Liberian boundary, as delimited under the provisions of the Anglo-Liberian Conventions, November 11, 1885, and January 21, 1911. The Protectorate extends inland about 180 miles.

The Governor and Commander-in-Chief for the time being of the Colony of Sierra Leone is also the Governor of the Protectorate. Authority is given to the Legislative Council of Sierra Leone, by ordinance, to exercise and provide for giving effect to the powers and jurisdiction acquired by the Crown.

The Protectorate has an area of 27,000 square miles, and a population, according to the census of 1921, of 1,456,148 (natives, 1,450,903). The whole territory has been divided into three Provinces, each of which is placed under a European commissioner. Circuit courts are held at the chief centres of population. There are also district commissioners' courts, chiefs' courts for purely native cases (not serious crime), and combined courts (a chief and a non-native) for small debts and trivial misdemeanours (assaults, abusive language) arising between native and non-native. The chief articles of imports are cotton goods, spirits, hardware and tobacco; the chief exports are palm kernels, kola nuts, palm oil, and ginger. A platinum-bearing area of about 40 square miles has been discovered. There were 140 mission primary schools, 63 of which received assistance from the Government. The average attendance at the assisted schools was 3,590 and the grant paid them was 2,509*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.*; 4 assisted secondary schools with an average attendance of 253, and which received grants amounting to 559*l.* 15*s.*; one industrial school with an average attendance of 44, and which received a grant of 92*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*; a Government School for the sons and nominees of chiefs at Bo, with 159 pupils at the end of 1927; a senior rural school at Njala with 112 pupils, and 8 smaller Government Rural Schools, with a total of 242 pupils; 20 apprentices were in training at the Agricultural College at Njala.

Governor.—Brig. Gen. Sir J. A. Byrne, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., C.B.

Colonial Secretary.—M. A. Young.

ANGLO-EGYPTIAN SUDAN.

Government.

The rule of Egypt in the Sudan, after having gradually extended during the course of 60 years, was interrupted in 1882 by the revolt of the Mahdi, who, with his successor, the Khalifa, held the country from 1885 for about 13 years under a desolating tyranny. In 1896 an Anglo-Egyptian army commenced operations for the recovery of the lost provinces, and on September 2, 1898, the overthrow of the Khalifa was completed. In November, 1899, he was killed by the Egyptian forces near Gedid.

A convention between the British and Egyptian Governments, signed at Cairo, January 19, 1899, provides for the administration of the territory south of the 22nd parallel of latitude by a Governor-General, appointed by Egypt with the assent of Great Britain, and declares the general principles in accordance with which the administration shall be carried on. The British and Egyptian flags shall be used together; laws shall be made by proclamation; no duties shall be levied on imports from Egypt, and duties on imports from other countries, via the Red Sea, shall not exceed those levied in Egypt; the import and export of slaves is prohibited, and special attention shall be paid to the Brussels Act of 1890 respecting the import and export of arms, ammunition, and spirits.

The Sudan has been divided into fifteen Provinces under Governors. Administration is carried out through British District Commissioners in charge of one or more districts into which the provinces are subdivided, these units being supervised by District officials. An increasing number of natives of the country are being employed in administrative posts.

In 1910 a Governor-General's Council was created to assist the Governor-General in the discharge of his executive and legislative powers. All ordinances, laws and regulations are now made by the Governor-General in Council.

Area and Population.

Extending southwards from the frontier of Egypt to Uganda and the Belgian Congo (approximately N. lat. 5°), a distance of about 1,650 miles, and stretching from the Red Sea to the confines of Wadai in Central Africa, the subject territory has an area of 1,008,100 square miles. The population in 1928 was estimated at 6,469,041. The Gambela Enclave, situated within the boundaries of Abyssinia, is leased by the Sudan Government from the Abyssinian Government as a Trading Post. The Entrea-Sudan frontier and the frontier with French Equatorial Africa have been delimited and demarcated, as also has the greater part of the frontier with Abyssinia (see under Abyssinia). The chief towns are: Khartoum, population 31,965, the capital; Omdurman (the old Dervish capital), population 79,238; Khartoum North and Rural District, population 92,982; Wadi Halfa, Merowé, El Damer, Athara, Port Sudan, Suakin, Kassala, El Dueim, Kosti, El Obeid, Nahud, Wad Medani, Singa, and El Fasher.

Education.

The schools under the Central Authority are classified as follows:— (1) The elementary vernacular schools (Kuttab), 80 in number (January, 1928), situated in all parts of the country, and with a total number of about 7,897 pupils. Instruction is given to boys from 7 to 12 years of age. (2) The primary schools, of which there are now 11—at Khartoum, Omdurman, Wad Medani, Athara, El Obeid, Suakin, Halfa, Rufaa, Berber, El Dueim and Port Sudan. The number of boys in attendance is 1,315. After completing their primary course, boys can proceed to the upper school at the Gordon College, or they may be employed as clerks or translators in Government Offices. The school at Gordon College is attended by 444 pupils, some of whom take a course in engineering and surveying, while the rest are trained to be teachers in primary schools or translators. There is also in the Gordon College buildings a training college attended by 11 students, who undergo a five years' course, after which they are drafted out as Kadis in district courts. The industrial workshops, of which there are three, at Khartoum, Omdurman and Athara, are attended by 336 boy apprentices. There is a training college for girls in Omdurman attended by 30 students, and 17 other girls' schools, attended by 1,023 girls altogether. Affiliated to the Gordon College are the Wellcome Tropical Research Laboratories, where investigations are carried on in connection with diseases and with the economic products of the country. In addition to the above the Central authority aids 485 native schools (Khalwas) attended in 1928 by 15,000 boys.

Justice.

The Courts of Justice as well as the Registry of Lands, the Department of Government Lands, and the offices which deal with the legal business of the Government, are administered by the Legal Secretary, who has a permanent seat ex-officio on the Governor-General's Council.

The High Court of Justice for the trial of civil suits comprises the Court of Appeal and Courts of original jurisdiction. Judges of the High Court sitting singly have general original jurisdiction. The Court of Appeal is constituted by any three or more Judges of the High Court sitting together.

The general superintendence of the High Court is vested in the Chief Justice. In addition to the Chief Justice there are four Judges of the High Court. The High Court sits at Khartum, but Judges from time to time go on circuit.

Subordinate to the High Court in every province is the Province Court. This comprises a Province Judge, except in Khartum Province, and District Judges of three grades. Appeals from decisions of a District Judge lie to the Province Judge, except in Khartum Province, where such appeals lie to the High Court. Appeals from decisions of a Province Judge lie to the High Court.

In Provinces where there is neither a High Court Judge nor a specially appointed Province Judge the Governor acts as Province Judge, and in any District where there is no specially appointed District Judge, the district commissioners and assistant district commissioners act as District Judges. There are six specially appointed British District Judges, and five specially appointed District Judges of the second grade possessing Egyptian or other legal qualifications and experience.

The Mohammedan Law Courts administer the Moslem religious law in cases between Mohammedans relating to succession on death, marriage, divorce, and family relations generally, and also Mohammedan charitable endowments.

In some districts there are native courts presided over by sheikhs, chiefs, or village elders. This system is being developed and extended.

Criminal justice is administered either by single magistrates, or courts of three magistrates. Judges of the High Court, and District Judges of the first and second grades, governors of provinces, district and assistant district commissioners, and some subordinate administrative officials are magistrates; there are also native notables appointed as magistrates to sit as members of courts. Decisions of courts require confirmation either by the Governor of the province or by the Governor-General, both of whom have extensive powers of revision.

The Sudan penal code is an adaptation of the Indian penal code.

Defence.

Egyptian troops were evacuated in 1924, and a new Sudan Defence Force, owing allegiance to the Governor-General, has been created.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure of the Sudan are as follows (£E1 = £10s. 6d.):—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£E	£E		£E	£E
1923 . .	3,766,133	3,902,460	1926 . .	5,857,989	5,482,388
1924 . .	4,298,856	3,453,273	1927 . .	5,929,945	5,550,489

The main sources of revenue in 1927 were: Land Tax (£E123,033); Animal Tax (£E152,793); Royalties (£E163,032); Customs (£E579,758); Railways and Steamers (£E2,180,753); Posts and Telegraphs (£E146,855).

These figures do not include the revenue and expenditure of Local Provincial Services, which amounted in 1923, to £E234,338 and £E197,626; 1924, to £E239,735 and £E197,687; 1925, to £E239,937 and £E203,168; 1926, to £E208,168 and £E192,422; 1927, to £E157,174 and £E143,673.

Production and Commerce.

The Sudan is the chief source of the world's supply of gum arabic and ivory. Exports of gum in 1927 amounted to 21,239 tons, valued at £E680,887. Egyptian cotton has been well established, and increasing quantities, which compare favourably with corresponding varieties grown in Egypt, are being produced annually. In 1927 the area of the Gezira irrigation scheme (put into operation in 1925) was increased to 105,639 acres and produced a crop of 337,717 cantars of 315 lbs. seed cotton, an average of 3.29 cantars per acre. In addition, increasing quantities of high-grade, long-staple American cotton are produced in the Northern Provinces of Berber and Dongola under irrigation, and as a rain crop in the Kassala, Fung, Blue Nile and White Nile, Kordofan, Upper Nile, Nuba Mountains, Mongalla and Bahr el Ghazal Provinces. The total area under cotton in 1927 is recorded as 216,544 acres, and the crop of 1926-27 amounted to 28,370 tons of lint and 54,940 tons of cotton seed. The cotton crop in 1927-28 is estimated at 110,000 bales (averaging 478 lbs.).

Other products of the Sudan include sesamé, senna leaves and pods, ground-nuts, dates, hides and skins, salt and gold. The principal grain crops are dura (great millet), the staple food of the people in the Sudan and used as cattle and poultry food outside the Sudan, and dukhn (bulrush millet). Average annual yield of dura in the principal dura growing areas (Blue Nile, The Fung, White Nile and Kassala Provinces) for the years 1919-25, 197,000 tons. Large quantities of ivory are exported, and the cattle and sheep trade of the Sudan is capable of great development. For some years Egypt has depended to a great extent on the Sudan for her meat supply.

In 1927 there were in the Sudan approximately 21,000 horses; 348,000 asses; 1,000 mules; 1,501,200 cattle; 2,201,000 sheep; 2,018,100 goats; and 401,000 camels. Pigs are kept by the Nubas only—about 5,000.

The forests which line the Blue Nile River banks, rich in fibres and tanning material, extend to the frontier of Abyssinia. On the White Nile they contain valuable trees—the ebony tree, the gum acacia, the bamboo, the rubber creeper, whilst the sudd area in the upper reaches is composed of an inexhaustible quantity of papyrus. The finest gum forests are in Kordofan, and the best rubber in the Bahr el Ghazal.

Gold is being successfully exploited in the Sudan, a mine being worked at Gabait in the Red Sea Province. Natural salt fields on the Red Sea coast near Port Sudan supply the whole needs of the country, and considerable quantities are exported annually to Abyssinia. The output of these salt fields is capable of great expansion.

Internal Communications.

There is a railway from Wadi Halfa to Khartum with connections to the Red Sea at Port Sudan, to Kareima in Dongola Province, and Sennar and El Obeid; there is also a line, 215 miles long, from Kassala (near Eritrea) to Haiya, on the Atbara-Port Sudan line. The total length of line open for traffic is approximately 1,802 miles. There is also a section of line 135 miles long being constructed from Kassala to Gûaref. There is a motor transport service throughout the year between Refaj and Aba (Belgian Congo) a distance of 125 miles, and another during the summer months only between Tonga and Talodi, a distance of 99 miles. The gauge is 3ft. 6in.

All navigable arms of the Nile and its tributaries between Assuan (Egypt) and Refaj are served by a fleet of Government steamers.

There is telegraphic communication with Egypt, Erythrea, and Abyssinia, and also wireless communication with Gambela in Western Abyssinia and submarine cable communications with the Hedjaz. There are 17 wireless stations, 4,967 miles of telegraph and telephone routes, and 12,130 miles of wire. There are 80 stationary Post and Telegraph Offices and 18 travelling Post Offices. In 1927, 18,919,416 postal packets were dealt with, 256,321 parcels and 789,769 telegrams. There were 1,048 telephone subscribers.

BRITISH MANDATED TERRITORIES IN AFRICA (TANGANYIKA, SOUTH-WEST AFRICA, CAMEROONS, AND TOGOLAND).

TANGANYIKA TERRITORY (LATE GERMAN EAST AFRICA).

Government.—German East Africa was conquered in 1918, and was subsequently divided between the British and Belgians. In March 1921 the district of Ujiji and part of Bukoba, formerly administered by the Belgians, were handed over to British jurisdiction. It is administered under mandates approved by the League of Nations. The mandates lay down conditions directed against slavery, forced labour (except for essential public works and services), abuses in connection with the arms traffic, the trade in spirits, usury, and security of labour. The interests of natives are safeguarded.

Under an Order in Council, dated July 22, 1920, the Territory is administered by a Governor, who is assisted by an Executive Council, all of whose members are nominated. A Legislative Council has been constituted as from Oct. 1, 1926, consisting of 13 official members and not more than 10 non-official members. Rights in or in relation to any public lands vest in the Governor, but the Secretary of State for the Colonies may appoint, if he sees fit, another trustee or trustees to exercise such right. A Native Affairs Department was established in 1926.

Area and Population.—The Territory extends from the Umba River on the north to the Rovuma River on the south, the coast-line being about 500 miles in length, and includes the adjacent islands. The northern boundary runs approximately north-west to Lake Victoria at the intersection of the first parallel of southern latitude with the eastern shore (Mohuru Point). The boundary on the west follows the Kagera River (the eastern frontier of Ruanda), thence the eastern boundary of Urundi to Lake Tanganyika. The western boundary then follows the middle of Lake Tanganyika to its southern end at Kasanga (formerly Bismarckburg), whence it goes south-east to the northern end of Lake Nyasa. Rather less than half-way down the lake the boundary turns east and joins the Rovuma River, whose course it follows to the sea. The total area is about 374,000 square miles, which includes about 20,000 square miles of water. Dar-es-Salaam is the capital, population, 25,000.

The native population consists mostly of tribes of mixed Bantu race, and was enumerated (April 1921) at 4,107,000. Asiatics numbered 14,991 (Indians 9,411, Goans 798, Arabs 4,782), and Europeans 2,447. In 1927 the European population was estimated at 5,300 and the native population at 4,319,000. According to German law every native born after 1905 is free, but a mild serfdom was continued under German rule. Legislation for the abolition of slavery was enacted in 1922.

Education.—There were in 1927, 91 Government schools, 1,043 Roman Catholic schools and 1,314 Protestant schools, with a total roll of 137,666 pupils. The expenditure on education in 1927-28 was 66,677*l*. There are 3 schools for the children of Dutch settlers in the Arusha District and a school for young European children has been established in Dar-es-Salaam.

There is a monthly paper published by the Government in Swahili.

Finance.—The revenue in 1927-28 was 1,904,107*l*.; expenditure 1,707,196*l*. The chief items of revenue were licences, taxes, etc., 860,452*l*.; customs, 636,580*l*.; fees of court or office, 135,189*l*.; railways (net revenue), 50,279*l*.; posts and telegraphs, 66,301*l*. The chief items of expenditure were: public works, 186,806*l*.; provincial administration, 312,189*l*.; medical and sanitation, 199,346*l*.; military, 132,433*l*. Estimates 1928-29: revenue, 1,842,490*l*.; expenditure, 1,832,828*l*.

Loans have been received from the Imperial Government in the years 1920-21 to 1925-26, amounting to 3,135,446*l*. for capital improvements and developments and have been expended upon railway works, 1,256,022*l*.; other works, 803,916*l*.; restoration of war damage, 177,909*l*. and to meet deficits upon recurrent account, 897,599*l*. Interest at 5 per cent. and sinking fund at 1 per cent. is being paid on the loan for railway and other works, while the balance is temporarily free of interest, but repayment is to be considered in 1933. A further loan of 2,070,000*l*. was raised in the home market in June, 1928, under the East African Guaranteed Loan Bill. Railway works, 1,736,000*l*.; ports and harbours, 100,000*l*.; other works, 234,000*l*. The loan bears interest at 4½ per cent. No payment of sinking fund for redemption need be made for a period of three years from date of flotation.

Defence.—Two battalions of the King's African Rifles are stationed in the Territory. The police force consisted (1927) of 2,360 all ranks.

Production and Industry.—The total area under forest other than savannah forest is approximately 4,240 square miles of which 94.5 per cent. is Government forest reserves, 4.2 per cent. awaits reservation, and 1.3 per cent. is valuable forest in private ownership. These forests contain some good merchantable timbers in large quantity, among which Pencil Cedar, Yellow-Wood and Mvule are the most important. In addition, valuable species of hard woods occur as single trees or in groups widely scattered throughout large areas of savannah forest. Ebony is plentiful near the coast, and the creeks and river mouths support extensive mangrove woods valuable as a source of tanning bark and poles. The possible output of the Territory's forests far exceeds the present local consumption. The approximate production of timber and fuel wood in 1927 was 8,281,700 cubic feet.

There are extensive plantations of sisal fibre and coffee as well as cotton (output in the 1927-28 season, 6½ million lbs.), ground-nuts, coconuts and millets. Cultivation of tobacco and tea by Europeans is now beginning, and coffee cultivation by Europeans is increasing.

In 1927 there were 4,705,625 cattle and 4,778,540 sheep and goats in the territory.

The value of minerals produced in 1927 was: diamonds, 101,480*l*.; gold,

In 1927, 464 steamers (exclusive of coastal boats) of 1,932,219 tons, and 4,552 dhows of 106,264 tons, entered and cleared the various coast ports from places beyond the Territory.

The chief seaports are Dar-es-Salaam, Tanga, Bagamoyo, Pangani, Kilwa, Lindi, and Mikindani.

Communications.—Light motor traffic is now possible over 8,168 miles of road during the dry season.

There are two railways of metre gauge in the territory. The Tanga Railway from Tanga to Moshi (219 miles), with a branch line to Sanya Junction to Sanya River (21 miles) towards Arusha. The Kenya and Uganda Railways connect with this railway at Kahe Junction. The Central Railway from Dar-es-Salaam to Kigoma (772 miles), with a branch line from Tabora to Mwanza (235 miles). Also a 60 c.m. tram line from Mingoyo near Lindi to Ndanda (57 miles). This is worked by hand during certain periods of the year only. There are steamers on Lakes Victoria, Nyasa and Tanganyika.

Dar-es-Salaam is in telegraphic communication with many inland centres and with the adjoining territories Nyasaland, Kenya and Uganda. Cable communication exists between Dar-es-Salaam and Zanzibar and communication with the Belgian Congo is effected by Wireless between Kigoma and Albertville. A Wireless Station with a range of 450 miles spark transmission and 1,000 miles continuous wave transmission was erected at Dar-es-Salaam in 1927. There are 106 Post Offices and Postal Agencies, 84 of which are Telegraph Offices. Telegraph Money Order and Savings Bank business are conducted at 20 Head Offices, and Postal Order and ordinary Money Order business at 33 Sub Offices. Telephone Exchanges are established and Trunk Telephone communication is in operation between 22 centres.

East African currency is in use consisting of a silver shilling, the equivalent of 100 cents; a 50 cent silver piece; copper and bronze 10 cent, 5 cent, and 1 cent pieces. There are currency notes in denominations ranging from 5 to 1000 shillings. Four banks, the chief of which is the Standard Bank of South Africa, have branches in the country.

SOUTH-WEST AFRICA.

Situation and Physical Features.—This country is bounded on the north by Portuguese West Africa, on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, on the south and southern portion of the eastern boundary by the Cape Province of the Union, and on the remainder of the eastern boundary by the Bechuanaland Protectorate. On the western coast, a strip varying from 60 to 100 miles in width and extending from the Orange River in the south to the Ugab River, which borders on what is known as the Kaokoveld, consists of barren desert, and this is also the case in that portion of the Great Kalahari depression which is included in the country on its eastern boundary. The eastern portion is, however, not barren, being good grazing land.

The Kunene River and the Okavango, which form portions of the northern border of the country, and the Orange River in the south, are the only permanently running streams. But there is a system of great sandy dry river beds throughout the country, in which water can generally be obtained by sinking shallow wells; these are the Kuiseb, Swakop, Omaruru and Ugab on the west, the Fish River in the south, the Nosob and the Elephant Rivers in the south-east, and a series of what are known as Omuramba in the north-east, with numerous smaller stream beds. In the Grootfontein area, which geologists describe as a "karst" region, there are large supplies of underground water, but except for a few springs, mostly hot, there is no surface water throughout the country.

Government and Administration.—The country was annexed by Germany in 1884, but was surrendered to the Forces of the Union of South Africa on July 9, 1915, at Khorab. It is now administered by the Union under a Mandate from the League of Nations, dated December 17, 1920. The laws of the Union, subject to local modifications, if required, may be applied to the country and are gradually being introduced.

The Administration is conducted from Windhoek, and the country is divided into 17 Districts controlled by Magistrates. In addition there is a Native Commissioner at Windhoek who has charge of all Native Affairs in the Territory. Under him are officers at the larger labour centres and Superintendents of Reserves in the Districts where there are large Native Reserves. The officer in charge of Native Affairs in Ovamboland keeps in touch with the Ovambos living there. There is also an officer stationed at Kuring Kuru on the Okavango River, who keeps close touch with the natives living along the North-Eastern border of the territory.

Windhoek, the capital, is situated in the centre of the territory, and with its surrounding district contains a population of 4,602 Europeans (1926 Census) and 10,489 (estimated) Natives.

The administration has been vested by the Union Parliament in the Governor-General of the Union, who has delegated his powers to an Administrator with full authority to legislate. On June 8, 1925, a bill was introduced into the Union Parliament to confer a Constitution on South-West Africa, providing for an Executive Committee, an Advisory Council, and a Legislative Assembly.

Administrator.—A. J. Werth (April 1926).

The chief executive officer for the country is the Secretary for South-West Africa, H. P. Smit.

Area and Population.—The total area of the country excluding Caprivi Zipfel (now administered by Bechuanaland Protectorate) is 311,820 square miles; that of Walvis Bay, administered by S.W.A., 374.05 square miles, and that of Caprivi Zipfel 10,573.5 square miles.

The European population according to the figures of the 1926 Census amounts to 24,115. The Native population is estimated at 234,790. As large areas of the country, particularly along the coast and in the north, are uncivilised, it has been impossible to procure precise figures. In particular it has been difficult to estimate the numbers of the Bushmen, who still exist in considerable numbers in the north-eastern portion of the country.

The principal native races are the Ovambos, Hereros, Bergdamaras or Klipkaffirs, Hottentots and Bushmen.

The Ovambos are a Bantu race and follow agriculture. They still possess to its full extent tribal organisation.

The Hereros are a pastoral people who formerly owned enormous herds of cattle. The Germans oppressed them, their tribal organisation completely disappeared and they were scattered throughout the country on farms and in the different towns, where they formed the ordinary source of labour. The Herero makes an excellent herd. Since the British occupation of the country Reserves have been set apart for them and they have considerably increased in numbers and in animal wealth.

The Bergdamaras are, it is believed, also of Bantu origin, though some authorities hold that they belong rather to the Hottentot race whose language they now speak. They are an inferior tribe and were alternately the slaves of the Hereros and the Hottentots in pre-European days, as the former or the latter were in the ascendant.

The Hottentots, so called, consist of two distinct sections; one, whose remnants are found in the central portions of the country, being of pure native extraction, the source of which is but little understood; the other is composed of tribes resulting from an admixture of European blood in the Cape with the Hottentot races residing there a couple of centuries ago, which, after conflict with their European neighbours, sought refuge across the Orange River.

The Bushmen are the oldest inhabitants of South-West Africa and are found in considerable numbers in its eastern portion from Lat. 26° to the Northern boundary.

In the centre of the country just south of the Windhoek district is the Bastard Gebiet occupied by a semi-independent race known as the Bastards, whose origin is much the same as the second class of Hottentots mentioned above, except that the admixture of European blood is much greater, and their ordinary language is Cape Dutch. These people control their own affairs to a very large extent and are governed by a Raad (Council) which is partly hereditary and partly elected. The Administration is represented by a Magistrate who assists them with advice and takes cognisance of serious crimes. They number about 5,000.

Education.—European.—There are (1927) 50 Government schools with 3,058 pupils, and 38 registered private schools with 1,041 pupils. Of the children in Government schools 1,084 are accommodated in hostels which are conducted by the Administration in conjunction with 21 of the Government schools. The general policy has hitherto been to bring the country children into these hostels and so obviate the necessity of single-teacher country schools. In consequence of the expenditure involved, however, this policy is now being modified, and wherever possible Government farm schools and aided private farm schools are being established. There are 20 Government farm schools and 18 aided private farm schools.

Native.—The education of the Natives is under the direct supervision of the various Missions. There are (1928) 55 Government-aided mission schools with 3,246 pupils, and 12 registered mission schools not yet aided. In 1922 a Training School for Native Teachers, subsidised by the Government, was opened with 18 students. A second Training School for Native Teachers, subsidised by the Government, was opened with 23 students in 1924.

Finance.—In 1927-28 the revenue amounted to 691,190*l.* and the expenditure to 963,935*l.* (including 269,607*l.* loan expenditure). The Estimates for 1928-29 are: revenue 748,000*l.*, expenditure 1,194,111*l.* (including 399,350*l.* loan expenditure).

The principal source of revenue is the tax on diamonds, which is 66 per cent. of the gross proceeds less 70 per cent. of the working costs.

For the purposes of Customs and Excise revenue the territory is included in the South African Customs Union, and a lump sum based on the customs and excise duties on goods consumed in the territory is paid over to the Administration. The total annual revenue from this source is now approximately 160,000*l.*

Production and Industry.—South-West Africa is essentially a stock-raising country, the absence of water rendering agriculture, except in the Northern and North-eastern portions, almost impossible. Generally speaking the southern half of the Territory is suited for the raising of small stock, while the central and northern portions are better fitted for cattle. It is estimated that in 1925 there were about 572,239 head of cattle, 2,094,878 head of small stock, 15,030 horses, 39,406 donkeys and 2,124 mules.

The staple product is diamonds, which are found along the coast from the Orange River to Conception Bay. The fields are alluvial and the deposits shallow. The stones are small but of a very good quality. Other minerals worked are copper, rich deposits of which exist at Tsumeb and in the neighbourhood, vanadium, marble and tin. Gold and silver are known to exist but in too small quantities to work remuneratively.

Commerce:—Imports and exports for 6 years:—

Year	Imports.	Exports.	Year.	Imports.	Exports.
	£	£		£	£
1922	1,147,637	1,247,229	1925	2,189,851	2,828,222
1923	1,301,804	2,672,904	1926	2,507,625	3,292,986
1924	1,777,164	2,851,473	1927	2,490,816	3,475,661

The principal exports are diamonds, the exports in 1925, 515,090 carats, valued at 1,887,209*l.*, and in 1926, 683,024 carats, valued at 1,863,860*l.* In the latter year 54,535 tons of copper were exported.

Imports from overseas, 1926, 1,066,668*l.*; Union of South Africa, 1,843,924*l.* Exports overseas, 2,649,875*l.*; Union of S. A., 639,933*l.*

The bulk of the direct imports into the country are landed at Walvis Bay, which is now administered as a portion of South-West Africa, and the Government proposes to develop this port as the main harbour.

Communications.—The railway line between De Aar Junction and Prieska has been extended through Upington across the Orange River and joined up with the line from Kalkfontein south to Windhoek.

The whole of the railway system, from De Aar in the Union to the border and within the border, is controlled by the S. A. Railways and Harbours Department through the System Manager in Windhoek.

The total length of the line inside South-West Africa is 1,361 miles of 3ft. 6in. gauge, and 409 miles of 2ft. gauge. There are also 98 miles of private line, most of which have been constructed for the service of the diamond fields south of Luderitz.

At the 31st March, 1928, there were 102 Post Offices and 329 Private Bag Services distributed by rail or road transport. The number of articles posted was 3,712,904 and 5,393,856 were received.

On 31st March, 1928, there were 3,923 miles of trunk lines, 2,560 miles of telegraphs, 1,099 miles of super-imposed telegraphs and telephones, 629 miles of rural telephones and 979 miles of farm telephone lines; 85 telegraph offices, 37 telephone exchanges, and 1,100 telephone subscribers.

A Post Office Savings Bank was established in 1916. The number of accounts open at 31st March, 1928, was 4,843, with a credit of 167,311*l.*

At Walvis Bay there is a Long Range C. W. Coastal Wireless Station.

BRITISH CAMEROONS.

The Cameroons, lying between British Nigeria and the French Congo, extends from the coast north-eastwards to the southern shore of Lake Chad. It was captured from the Germans in February, 1916, and is now divided between the British and French under a Declaration signed at London July 10, 1919. The British portion is a strip, area about 84,236 square miles and population estimated at 700,050, stretching from the sea along the Nigerian frontier to Lake Chad. Bantu negroes live near the coast, Sudan negroes inland. The country is administered under a mandate which contains provisions directed against slavery, forced labour (except for essential public services) and abuses of the traffic in arms and spirituous liquors. The northern part is attached to the Provinces of Bornu and Yola in Nigeria, and the southern part known as the Cameroons Province, to the Southern Provinces of Nigeria. There are Government schools at Victoria.

The soil in the coast region is fertile. In Victoria, experiments are being made towards the cultivation of cloves, vanilla, ginger, pepper, and other products; there is an active trade in ivory and palm-oil; hardwood and ebony are abundant, and gold and iron have been found.

There are graduated direct taxes for the native population. Europeans are not subject to direct taxation. The revenue and expenditure are incorporated in the accounts for Nigeria. Government revenue for 1926-27, 90,224*l.*; expenditure, 126,306*l.*

Imports into the British Cameroons in 1927, 318,457*l.*; exports, 303,747*l.* Chief exports: palm kernels, palm oil, cocoa, coffee. Chief imports: textiles, spirits, timber, salt, iron wares, flour, kerosene, fish, rice, tobacco, cigarettes, motor spirit, coopers' stores, hardware, and colonial produce. In 1927 there entered Victoria 186 vessels having a total tonnage of 284,247.

The mark was in use until July 1, 1922, on which date British currency, similar to that in use in Nigeria, was substituted for it.

Administrator of British Zone.—The Governor of Nigeria.

TOGOLAND.

Togoland, between the Gold Coast Colony on the west and French Dahomey on the east, was surrendered unconditionally by the Germans to British and French forces in August, 1914. On September 30th, 1920, the country was divided between France and Britain in accordance with the Franco-British declaration of July 10th, 1919. The boundary between the two spheres extends from the north-west corner in a general direction south-east and south, terminating not far from the port of Lome, but so that no part of the British sphere reaches the coast. (See map in the YEAR Book for 1920.) The area allotted to Great Britain is approximately 12,600 square miles, and for administrative purposes it is attached to adjacent provinces of the Gold Coast Colony and Northern Territories. The population, according to the 1921 census, is 188,265 (including 20 non-Africans, of whom 15 are Europeans).

In the British mandated area there is one Government Junior Trade School (at Yendi) with 114 pupils. The Ewe Mission has 45 schools with 1,842 pupils, average daily attendance 1,758, and the Roman Catholic Mission has 7 schools with 631 pupils, average daily attendance 549.

The revenue and expenditure of the area are now included in the figures for the Gold Coast. Expenditure still greatly exceeds revenue.

Separate figures for imports and exports are no longer available, being included in the general total for the Gold Coast.

The principal imports are cotton goods, salt, and tobacco. Principal exports are palm oil, palm kernels, cocoa, kola nuts, and raw cotton.

Administrator of British Area.—The Governor of the Gold Coast.

BERMUDA.

A Colony, with representative government, consisting of a group of 360 small islands (about 20 inhabited), 580 miles east of North Carolina, and 677 miles from New York, noted for its climate and scenery; favourite winter resort for Americans, who number some 30,000 annually.

The Spaniards visited the islands in 1515, but they had previously been discovered (the exact date is unknown) by Juan de Bermudez, after whom they were named. No settlement was made, and they were uninhabited until a party of colonists under Sir George Somers was wrecked there in 1609. A company was formed for the 'Plantation of the Somers Islands,' as they were called at first, and in 1684 the Crown took over the Government.

Governor.—Lieut. General Sir Louis Jean Bols, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., D.S.O. (3,400*l.* + 600*l.* for entertainment allowance), assisted by an Executive Council of 7 members (four official) appointed by the Crown, a Legislative Council of 9 members (three official), also appointed by the Crown, and an elected House of Assembly of 36 members; 1,523 electors.

Area, 19·3 square miles (12,360 acres, 2,759 under cultivation). Civil population at census 1921, 20,127 (7,006 white); 13,021 belong to Church of England (census 1921). Estimated civil population, 1927, 30,814 (15,833 white). In 1927 the birth-rate was 26·2 and the death-rate 12·2 per 1,000; there were 183 marriages. In 1927 there was an excess of immigration over emigration of 359. Chief town, Hamilton; population, 3,000. Bermuda is an important naval base on the North America and West Indies Station, with dockyard, victualling establishment, &c. Police force, 1927, 60.

Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 13, and Government assistance is given by the payment of grants, and, where necessary, school fees, but there are no Government schools. The aided schools must reach a certain standard of efficiency, and submit to Government inspection and control. In 1927, 32 aided primary schools, with 3,550 pupils, and 4 secondary schools, received in Government grants 11,109*l.* There are 2 garrison schools and 1 naval school; about 15 other primary schools receiving no Government grant.

The registered shipping consisted (1927) of 13 steam vessels of 26,421 tons net, 1 motor ship of 19,086 tons, and 20 sailing vessels of 3,378 tons net, and two motor boats of 93 tons net; total net tonnage, 48,978. In 1927 the total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared was 3,041,350 tons, of which 2,466,895 were British.

There are 220 miles of telephone wire under the control of the military, and 15 of telegraph cable. There is also a private telephone company, with over 1,600 miles of wire. Cables connect the islands with Halifax, Nova Scotia, Turks Island, and Jamaica. There were (1927) 19 post offices in the colony; the number of letters and post cards dealt with in the year 1927 was 2,704,576; newspapers, book packets and circulars, 667,788; parcels, 83,662. The post office revenue was 36,280*l.*, and expenditure, 15,377*l.* Savings bank deposits on December 31, 1927, were 85,635*l.* to the credit of 4,169 depositors.

There are two banks in the Island, the Bank of Bermuda, Ltd., and the Bank of N. T. Butterfield and Son, Ltd., both local. Bills of exchange issued by the Treasury Chest Office in the Colony form the basis of exchange with the outside world.

The currency, weights, and measures are British. The British 1*l.* and 10*s.* notes are legal tender. The Bermuda Government is also authorised to issue 1*l.* and 10*s.* notes up to an amount not exceeding 40,000*l.* A considerable quantity of American paper is also in circulation, being largely used for remittances to the United States.

CANADA.

(DOMINION OF CANADA.)

Constitution and Government.

The territories which now constitute the Dominion of Canada came under British power at various times, by settlement, conquest, or cession. Nova Scotia was temporarily occupied in 1628 by settlement at Port Royal, was ceded back to France in 1632, and was finally ceded by France in 1713, by the Treaty of Utrecht; the Hudson's Bay Company's charter, conferring rights over all the territory draining into Hudson Bay, was granted in 1670; Canada, with all its dependencies, including New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, was formally ceded to Great Britain by France in 1763; Vancouver Island was acknowledged to be British by the Oregon Boundary Treaty of 1846, and British Columbia was established as a separate colony in 1858. As originally constituted, the Dominion was composed of the provinces of Canada—Upper and Lower Canada, now Ontario and Quebec—Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick. They were united under the provisions of an Act of the Imperial Parliament known as 'The British North America Act, 1867,' which came into operation on July 1, 1867, by royal proclamation. The Act provides that the Constitution of the Dominion shall be 'similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom'; that the executive authority shall be vested in the Sovereign of Great Britain and Ireland, and carried on in his name by a Governor-General and Privy Council; and that the legislative power shall be exercised by a Parliament of two Houses, called the 'Senate' and the 'House of Commons.' The present position of Canada in the British Commonwealth of Nations was defined at the Imperial Conference of 1926: 'The self-governing Dominions are autonomous Communities within the British Empire, equal in status, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown.' The Dominion has its own representatives in foreign countries, and was elected a member of the Council of the League of Nations in 1927. Provision was made in the Act for the admission of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, the North-West Territories, and Newfoundland into the Dominion; Newfoundland alone has not availed itself of such provision. In 1869 Rupert's Land, or the North-west Territories, were purchased from the Hudson's Bay Company; the province of Manitoba was erected from this territory, and admitted into the confederation on July 15, 1870. On July 20, 1871, the province of British Columbia was admitted, and Prince Edward Island on July 1, 1873. The provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were formed from the provisional districts of Alberta, Athabaska, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan, and admitted on September 1, 1905.

The members of the Senate are nominated for life, by summons of the Governor-General under the Great Seal of Canada. By the Amendment of the British North America Act, 1867 (May, 1915), which came into effect in 1917, the Senate consists of 96 senators—namely, 24 from Ontario, 24 from Quebec, 10 from Nova Scotia, 10 from New Brunswick, 4 from Prince Edward Island, 6 from Manitoba, 6 from British Columbia, 6 from Alberta, and 6 from Saskatchewan. The total number may not exceed 104. Each senator must be 30 years of age, a born or naturalised British subject, and must reside in, and be possessed of property, real or personal, to the value of 4,000 dollars, within the province for which he is appointed. The House of Commons is elected by the people, for five years, unless sooner dissolved, the province of Quebec always having 65 members (one for each 36,283 persons at the 1921 census), and the other provinces proportionally, according to their populations at each decennial census. The sixteenth Parliament, elected on Sept. 14, 1926, comprised 245 members, in accordance with the Representation Act of 1924 which, as the result of the census of 1921, fixed the representation as follows: 82 for Ontario, 65 for Quebec, 14 for Nova Scotia, 11 for New Brunswick, 17 for Manitoba, 14 for British Columbia, 4 for Prince Edward Island, 21 for Saskatchewan, 16 for Alberta, and 1 for the Yukon Territory. Voting is by ballot. Women have the vote and are eligible for election to the Dominion Parliament.

State of the Parties in Parliament, elected on Sept. 14, 1926: Liberals, 118; Conservatives, 91; Liberal-Progressives, 11; United Farmers of Alberta, 11; Progressives, 9; Labour, 3; and Independent, 2.

The Speaker in the House of Commons has a salary of 6,000 dollars per annum, the Deputy Speaker an allowance of 1,500 dollars, and each member an allowance of 4,000 dollars for the session, subject to deductions for non-attendance.

The Speaker and members of the Senate have the same sessional indemnity as the Speaker and members of the House of Commons, with no extra allowances.

Governor-General.—The Right Hon. Viscount Willingdon, G.C.S.I., G.C.M.G., G.C.I.E., G.B.E. Appointed August 19, 1926. Salary, 50,000 dollars per annum.

He is assisted in his functions, under the provisions of the Act of 1867, by a Privy Council composed of Cabinet Ministers and other persons.

The Ministry consists of the following (sworn in on Sept. 25, 1926):

Prime Minister, Secretary of State for External Affairs, President of the Privy Council.—Right Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, C.M.G.

Minister of Finance and Receiver General.—Hon. James A. Robb.

Minister of National Defence.—Hon. Col. J. L. Ralston, K.C., C.M.G., D.S.O.

Postmaster-General.—Hon. Peter J. Veniot, LL.D.

Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and Minister of Public Health.—Hon. James H. King, M.D.

Minister of Justice and Attorney-General.—Hon. Ernest Lapointe, K.C.

Minister of National Revenue.—Hon. W. D. Euler.

Minister of Marine and Fisheries.—Hon. Pierre J. A. Cardin.

Secretary of State.—Hon. Fernand Rinfret.

Minister of Railways and Canals.—Hon. Charles A. Dunning.

Minister of the Interior, Superintendent-General of Indian Affairs, Minister of Mines.—Hon. Charles Stewart.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. William R. Motherwell.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. John C. Elliott, K.C., D.C.L.

Minister of Trade and Commerce.—Hon. James Malcolm.

Solicitor General.—Hon. Lucien Cannon, K.C.

Minister of Immigration and Colonization.—Hon. Robert Forke.

Minister of Labour.—Hon. Peter Herman.

Minister without Portfolio.—Hon. Raoul Dandurand (Senator).

Each minister with portfolio has a salary of 10,000 dollars a year, and the Prime Minister 15,000 dollars, in addition to the 4,000 dollars sessional allowance. The Leader of the Opposition receives a salary of 10,000 dollars, in addition to the sessional allowance.

There is a Department of External Affairs, which has charge of all diplomatic and inter-Dominion correspondence passing between Ottawa and Downing Street, and between Ottawa and the sister Dominions and Colonies. It is also the medium of communication between the Dominion Government and the foreign Ministers or Consuls in Canada. An arrangement has been concluded between the British and Canadian Governments to provide more complete representation at Washington of Canadian interests than has hitherto existed. Accordingly, it has been agreed that his Majesty, on the advice of his Canadian Ministers, shall appoint a Minister Plenipotentiary, who will have charge of Canadian affairs, and will be at all times the ordinary channel of communication with the United States Government in matters of purely Canadian concern, acting upon instructions from and reporting direct to the Canadian Government. In the absence of the Ambassador, the Canadian Minister will take charge of the whole Embassy, and of the representation of Imperial as well as Canadian interests. The United States, reciprocally, have appointed a Minister Plenipotentiary at Ottawa. The Government of Canada has also appointed a Minister to France and a Minister to Japan.

High Commissioner for the Dominion of Canada in Great Britain.—Hon. P. C. Larkin. (Appointed Feb. 10, 1922.) } Canadian Building, Trafalgar
Permanent Secretary.—Lucien T. Pacaud. } Square, London, S. W. 1.
British High Commissioner to Canada.—Sir William Henry Clark, K.C.S.I., C.M.G. (appointed April 25, 1928).
Canadian Minister in the United States.—The Hon. Charles Vincent Massey. (Appointed November 26, 1926.)
United States Minister to Canada.—The Hon. William Phillips.
Canadian Minister Plenipotentiary to France.—Hon. Philippe Roy (appointed August, 1928).
French Minister to Canada.—M. Jean Knight.
Canadian Minister Plenipotentiary at Tokio.—Hon. William Marler.
Canadian Representative at Geneva.—W. A. Riddell.

PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT.

The nine provinces have each a separate parliament and administration, with a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Governor-General in Council at the head of the executive. They have full powers to regulate their own local affairs and dispose of their revenues, provided only they do not interfere with the action and policy of the central administration. Among the subjects assigned exclusively to the provincial legislature are : the amendment of the provincial constitution, except as regards the office of the Lieutenant-Governor ; direct taxation for revenue purposes ; borrowing ; management and sale of crown lands ; provincial hospitals, reformatories, &c. ; shop, saloon, tavern, auctioneer, and other licences for local or provincial purposes ; local works and undertakings, except lines of ships, railways, canals, telegraphs, &c., extending beyond the province or connecting with other provinces, and excepting also such works as the Dominion Parliament declares are for the general good ; marriages ; administration of justice within the province ; education. Quebec has two Chambers and the other Provinces one Chamber. The North-West Territories and the Yukon Territory are governed by Commissioners assisted by Councils.

Area and Population.

The following is the population of the area now included in the Dominion :—

Year	Population	Year	Population
1806-7 (est.)	433,000	1881	4,324,810
1825	860,000	1891	4,833,239
1851-2	2,383,500	1901	5,371,315
1860-1	3,183,000	1911	7,206,643
1871	3,689,257	1921	8,788,483

The estimated population in 1928 was 9,658,000.

The census population of the Prairie Provinces as at June 1, 1926, was as follows: Manitoba, 639,056; Saskatchewan, 820,738; Alberta, 607,584; Total, 2,067,378. Total rural, 1,313,681; Total urban, 753,697.

The following are the areas of the provinces, etc., with the population at recent censuses:—

<sup>2</sup> By Federal Act passed during the session of 1912, the boundaries of the provinces of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba were extended at the expense of the North-West Territories. Ontario was enlarged by 146,400 square miles, Quebec by 351,780, and Manitoba by 178,100.

Of the total population in 1921, 6,832,747 were Canadian born, 1,065,454 British born, and 890,282 foreign born, 374,024 of the latter being U.S. born.

For figures for the population in 1921 according to origin see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1928, p. 278.

Education.

By the British North America Act the Provincial Governments have control in educational matters. In all provinces except Quebec the number of private schools is small, so that elementary and secondary education in Canada is almost entirely State-controlled. In Quebec primary education is only partly State-controlled. Roman Catholic secondary education is given by independent institutions, mainly consisting of State-subsidised classical colleges for boys and convents for girls. Except for a few independent schools, Protestant education, primary and secondary, is State-controlled. Primary schools—i.e. elementary schools, and in all provinces, except Ontario, continuation schools other than regular secondary schools—are free, and the same is true of secondary education in most provinces. In Quebec (except in certain municipalities) a fee is collected for primary education for every child of school age without reference to school attendance. In the same province Catholic and Protestant schools are under one Department of Public Instruction and are supported by a common system of taxation, but are administered independently. In Alberta, Ontario, and Saskatchewan minority elementary schools, whether Protestant or Catholic, are called Separate Schools, and are under the same provincial administration as majority schools. Secondary education in these three provinces is non-sectarian.

There are 6 State-controlled universities in Canada, and 17 independent of provincial control, making 23 in all, with 4,263 professors, lecturers, etc., and 42,546 students in 1926-27. The 83 colleges in Canada had 19,678 students registered in 1926-27.

In 1927 there were in Canada 1,421 periodical publications, classified as follows: Dailies, 111; tri-weeklies, 8; weeklies, 901; semi-weeklies, 26; monthlies, 315; semi-monthlies, 27; miscellaneous, 33.

Justice and Crime.

There is a Supreme Court in Ottawa, having appellate, civil and criminal jurisdiction in and throughout Canada. There is an exchequer court, which is also a colonial court of admiralty, with powers as provided in the Imperial 'Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890.' There is a Superior Court in each province; county courts, with limited jurisdiction, in most of the provinces; all the judges in these courts being appointed by the Governor-General. Police magistrates and justices of the peace are appointed by the Provincial Governments.

In 1927 total convictions for indictable offences were 18,835; total convictions for all offences amounted to 220,210.

Defence.

'The National Defence Act, 1922,' which came into force January 1, 1923, provides for a Department of National Defence presided over by the Minister of National Defence.

Militia.—Canada is organised in 11 military districts, each under a Commander and his District Staff.

The militia of Canada is classified as active and reserve, and the active is sub-divided into permanent and non-permanent forces. The permanent force consists of 15 units of all arms of the service, with an authorised establishment limited to 10,000, but at present the establishment is less than 8,700. The non-permanent active militia is made up of cavalry, artillery, machine gun, signalling, infantry and other corps. The total establishment of the Canadian non-permanent militia totals 19,414 officers and 114,846 other ranks, organised as follows :—

	Regi- ments	Batteries		Bat- talions	Com- panies	Troops	Detach- ments
		Field	Medium and Heavy
Cavalry . . . . .	35	—	—	—	—	—	—
Artillery . . . . .	—	63	23	—	—	—	—

Army Service Corps . . . . .	—	—	—	—	12	—	—
Officers Training Corps . . . . .	—	—	—	—	—	—	23
Other administrative services . . . . .	—	—	—	—	—	—	46
Total . . . . .	35	63	23	122	63	14	109

The reserve militia consists of such units as are named by the Governor in Council and of all able bodied citizens between the ages of 18 and 60, with certain exemptions.

The reserve of the active militia consists of (1) reserve units of city and rural corps, (2) reserve depots, (3) reserve of officers.

The above organisations are supplemented by numerous cadet corps and rifle associations. The Royal Military College at Kingston, Ontario, provides both a military and a general education for about 200 cadets. The course extends over four years. Each year there are available for graduates a number of commissions in the Canadian permanent force and in the British army. R.M.C. graduates are given one year's seniority in the British or Indian armies because their course is longer than that given at Woolwich or Sandhurst.

The estimated expenditure for the militia for the year ending March 31, 1929, was 11,035,800 dollars.

Navy.—The Royal Canadian Navy was established in 1910. It now comprises 550 officers and men of the permanent force (R.C.N.), 500 of the Royal Canadian Naval Reserve and 1,000 of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve. The only vessels at present maintained in commission are the destroyer Champlain and the mine-sweeping trawlers Festubert and Ypres, based on Halifax, N.S. : the destroyer Vancouver and mine-sweeping trawlers Armentières and Thiepval, based on Esquimalt, B.C. Two modern destroyers of 1,320 tons have been ordered to replace the Champlain and Vancouver. There are several small craft, some armed, used for fisheries protection and patrol duty on the eastern and western coasts and on the Great Lakes, but these are attached to the Department of Marine and Fisheries or to the Customs Department, and do not normally form part of the naval forces. H.M.C. dockyards are at Halifax and Esquimalt, having been taken over from the Imperial Government in 1910. Naval depots are maintained at both bases, and are used as training headquarters for the personnel of the R.C.N. and R.C.N.V.R. A training school to accommodate 100 boys and youths is established at Halifax.

The appropriations for naval services for 1928-29 amounted to 2,725,000 dollars.

Aeronautics.—In 1919 the Government created a Board for the control of aeronautics. Under the National Defence Act, 1922, the powers of the Air Board are vested in the Minister of National Defence and the Air Board ceases to exist.

Air Stations have been established at Vancouver, B.C., with a sub-base at Prince Rupert, B.C., High River, Alberta, Winnipeg, Man., Lac du Bonnet, Man., Norway House, Man., Pas, Man., Camp Borden, Ont., the main training base, Dartmouth, N.S., and Ottawa, Ont., the main technical and stores dépôt. Units of the force are stationed at Ottawa (headquarters), Vancouver, High River and Winnipeg.

The repair shops of the Canadian Air Force are at Camp Borden, which is also the principal training base of the Canadian Air Force. The work at the other stations is chiefly in connection with forest fire protection and survey work, reconnaissance and exploration work, transportation of survey parties and Government officials in the remoter parts of the country, photographic work in connection with surveys, fisheries protection patrols, and other similar duties.

The Air Force is organised in 1 wing, comprising headquarters, depot, and 1 operation squadron, 1 flying training squadron, 4 operation sections, 1 technical depot, and 1 photographic section. The establishment is limited to 202 officers and 803 airmen. The strength of the permanent service of the Royal Canadian Air Force was, on August 31, 1928, 140 officers and 537 airmen. The estimated expenditure on the Air Services for 1928-29 was 5,042,731 dollars.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police.—The Royal Canadian Mounted Police is an armed force organised in 10 divisions under a Commissioner; on September 30, 1927, its strength was 52 officers and 952 men.

The duties of the Police are to enforce Dominion Statutes, to assist the other Departments of the Dominion Government, and to enforce the observance of law in the Yukon, in the Northwest Territories and in Indian Reserves and National Parks; when special arrangements are made between the Dominion and Provincial Governments, they assist in the enforcement of Provincial statutes and the criminal law.

Production and Industry.

Agriculture.—Canada is largely agricultural, and among her natural resources arable lands stand unrivalled. Present information permits only a rough estimate of their actual extent, but it is believed that about 381 million acres are physically suitable for agriculture. Grain growing, dairy farming, fruit farming, ranching and fur farming, are all carried on successfully. The following table shows the estimated agricultural wealth and production for 1927:—

Live-stock.—In parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta stock-raising is still carried on as a primary industry, but the live-stock production of the Dominion at large is mainly a subsidiary of mixed farming. The following table shows the numbers of live stock by provinces in 1926 and 1927 (June):—

Fruit Farming.—Many portions of Canada are admirably adapted for fruit farming, the most renowned being the Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia, the St. John Valley district of New Brunswick, the Niagara Peninsula of Ontario and the Okanagan and other interior valleys of British Columbia. Of orchard fruits apples are most important, and in number of trees and quantity of production greatly exceed all others combined, although peaches, pears, plums, cherries and small fruits are grown in abundance. Extensive vineyards are a prominent feature of the Niagara Peninsula, and the grape production is mainly from this area. The value of fruit production by provinces in 1927 was (in dollars): British Columbia, 7,116,675; Ontario, 6,619,930; Nova Scotia, 2,878,565; Quebec, 729,525; and New Brunswick, 261,300; total, 17,605,995 dollars. The production of apples in 1926 was (in barrels): Nova Scotia 925,000, Ontario 673,500, British Columbia 1,079,500, Quebec 104,600, New Brunswick 28,000; total, 1,810,600 (total 1926, 2,954,370 barrels). The commercial crop of apples in 1927 is estimated at 2,810,600 barrels, valued at 10,411,085 dollars.

Miscellaneous.—The wool-clip of Canada for 1928 was estimated at 19,611,430 lb., valued at 5,099,000 dollars. The production in 1927 of tobacco, which is practically confined to Ontario and Quebec, was estimated at 43,916,000 lb. from 44,028 acres. The total production of eggs (for 1927), 253,277,227 dozens, valued at 80,110,010 dollars, and the 1928 value of maple products 5,584,588 dollars.

Forestry.—The total area of land covered by forests is officially estimated at 1,227,000 square miles. Of this less than 40 per cent. is covered with commercial timber. The most important timber areas are in Northern Ontario, Quebec, and British Columbia.

The forest products (wood and wood products, unmanufactured) exported to the United Kingdom in 1927-28 amounted in value to 8,627,016 dollars, out of a total export value of 99,370,516 dollars. In 1927-28 the value of manufactured wood and paper exports was 184,034,133 dollars. The greater part of the export goes to the United States, which took more than 86 per cent. of the exportable surplus in 1927-28. The Crown forests belong to the Provincial Governments, except in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, and the Railway Belt (forty miles wide) in British Columbia, where they belong to the Dominion. Transfer of national resources by the Dominion to Manitoba and Alberta is under negotiation.

Fisheries.—In addition to an immense salt-water fishing area Canada has 140,000 square miles of fresh water abundantly stocked with many species of excellent food fishes.

The fisheries of the Atlantic coast take cod, haddock, hake, pollack, and halibut. The most extensive lobster fishery known is carried on along the eastern shore of Canada, while excellent oyster beds exist in many parts of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The salmon fishery is the predominant one on the Pacific coast, but an important halibut fishery is also carried on. The inland lake fisheries yield whitefish, trout, pickerel, pike, sturgeon, and fresh-water herring. In the calendar year 1927 the capital invested in vessels, gear, canneries, etc. (including working capital and stocks on hand) was 56,214,274 dollars. The total value of the produce of the fisheries of Canada in 1926 was 56,860,633 dollars, and 49,460,600 dollars in 1927. The principal kinds of fish marketed in 1927 were: salmon, 15,065,063 dollars; halibut, 4,282,794 dollars; lobsters, 5,426,176 dollars; codfish, 4,881,980 dollars; herrings, 3,358,098 dollars; haddock, 1,483,844 dollars; sardines, 1,046,575 dollars; whitefish, 2,192,738 dollars; trout, 1,397,294 dollars; pickerel, 1,347,589 dollars; pilchards, 1,338,867 dollars; smelts, 1,117,330 dollars. The exports in 1927-28 were valued at 34,546,646 dollars (dry-salted codfish, 4,555,545 dollars; canned lobsters, 3,319,623 dollars; fresh lobsters, 1,347,865 dollars; canned salmon, 9,151,062 dollars). The number of persons employed in 1927 was 80,120, including those in shore work and canneries. The number of factories and canneries in operation in 1927 was 776.

Mining.—Nova Scotia, British Columbia, Quebec, N. and W. Ontario, Alberta, and Yukon Territory are the chief mining districts. The total value of the mineral produce in 1927 was 247,356,695 dollars, and in 1926 240,437,123 dollars. The principal metals and minerals produced in 1926 and 1927 were as follows:—

Estimated gross value of manufactures in 1928 was 3,500,000,000 dollars.

Water-power.—Water-power resources of Canada have been placed at 20,197,000 h.p. on the basis of 80 per cent. installed efficiency and for conditions of ordinary minimum river flow. The turbine installation at December 31, 1928, was 5,328,000 h.p.

The Fur Trade.—In 1926-27 (year ended June 30), 4,289,233 pelts valued at 18,833,977 dollars, were taken. Exports in 1927-28 were valued at 24,315,244 dollars, imports at 16,658,821 dollars. Exports to the United States amounted to 14,335,751 dollars; to the United Kingdom, 9,185,200 dollars. Fur auctions are now held on a large scale at Montreal and Winnipeg. The more important animals raised on fur farms are fox, muskrat, beaver, mink, marten, coyote, karakul sheep, and skunk. The value of animals and pelts sold from the farms during the year 1926 was 3,494,785 dollars. There were in 1926, 2,523 fox farms and 185 other fur farms in Canada.

Commerce.

The customs tariff of Canada is protective, but there is a preferential tariff in favour of the United Kingdom and of the Dominions (except Australia) and of a number of the Crown Colonies. Commercial Treaties conceding most-favoured-foreign-nation rates of duty are in force with over twenty countries.

Exports and imports entered for home consumption in the Dominion (merchandise only):—

Shipping and Navigation.

The registered shipping on December 31, 1926, including vessels for inland navigation, consisted of 4,842 steamers and 3,351 other vessels; total, 8,193; total net tonnage, 1,348,935. The sea-going and coasting vessels that entered and cleared during the year ending March 31, 1927, were as follows :—

Vessels	Entered.		Cleared.
	No.	Tons.	No.	Tons.

Total . . . . .	92,222	43,124,919	90,814	42,617,467

During the fiscal year 1927, the vessels entered and cleared at Canadian ports on inland waters between Canada and the United States were : Canadian, 17,269 of 16,766,453 tons; United States, 43,233 of 14,415,437 tons.

During the fiscal year 1927, 341 vessels, with a tonnage of 32,801 tons, were built in Canadian shipyards.

Internal Communications.

Canada has a system of canal, river, and lake navigation over 2,700 miles in length, and vessels from the lake ports reach the Atlantic without breaking bulk. Up to March 31, 1928, 203,885,938 dollars had been spent on canals for construction and enlargement alone (capital expenditure). In 1927, 36,162 vessels, of 20,837,062 tons, passed through the Canadian canals, carrying 210,884 passengers and 17,488,311 tons of freight, chiefly grain, lumber, iron ore and coal.

On January 11, 1909, a treaty was signed at Washington between the United Kingdom and the United States relating to the use of the boundary waters between Canada and the United States. The treaty provides for the establishment and maintenance of an international joint commission, consisting of three representatives appointed by the King on the recommendation of the Dominion, and three appointed by the President of the United States. This commission, subject to the conditions of the treaty, has jurisdiction in all cases involving the use or obstruction or diversion of the boundary waters. Precedence is given by the treaty to uses of the waters in the following order, viz., (1) for domestic and sanitary purposes, (2) for navigation, (3) for power and irrigation.

The total single track mileage of steam railways in Canada on December 31, 1927, was 40,572. The total mileage, including second track, yard track and sidings was 54,717.

The lines built or acquired by the Canadian Government are now consolidated in one system, known as the Canadian National Railways, covering about one-half of the single track mileage, including two transcontinental lines with termini in Canada at Halifax, Vancouver and Prince Rupert, and the Grand Trunk with termini at Portland, Maine, U.S.A., and Chicago.

The mileage in private ownership is mainly that of the Canadian Pacific Railway, 14,027 in 1927. The main line of this road from Vancouver, B.C., to St John, New Brunswick, is 3,367 miles.

Statistics of the Canadian steam railways for 1927: passengers, 41.8 millions; freight, 126 million short tons; gross receipts, 499,064,280 dollars; net receipts, 91,417,927 dollars; capital liability, 407,646,280 dollars.

Electric railways in 1927, 60, mileage 1,652; passengers during the year, 781,398,194; tons of freight carried, 3,269,028. The gross earnings in 1927 reached an aggregate of 53,506,401 dollars. Operating expenses amounted to 37,616,568 dollars. Paid-up capital, 222,552,717 dollars.

On March 31, 1927, there were 12,440 post offices. Net revenue, 29,878,697 dollars; expenditure, 31,007,698 dollars. At the end of the fiscal year 1927 there were 3,838 rural mail delivery routes, on which were erected 204,693 boxes.

Money order offices on March 31, 1927, 5,797; orders issued (1925-26), 15,760,994, value 188,219,777 dollars. The Ocean Mail subsidies and steamship subventions paid by the Government amounted to 844,591 dollars in the fiscal year 1928.

There were 52,731 miles (10,737 being Government) of telegraph lines in Canada in 1927, and 323,539 miles of wire (including 14,173 miles of Government lines), with 4,885 offices; 3,806,214 miles of telephone wire on December 31, 1926, and 1,201,008 telephones (12.79 per 100 population).

Wireless Telegraphy.—On March 31, 1928, there were 723 coast and land wireless stations, 312 ship wireless stations, 92 broadcasting stations, and 268,420 private receiving stations for the reception of broadcast programmes.

The ship and shore wireless traffic for the twelve months ended March 31, 1928, amounted to 404,144 messages and 7,695,757 words.

Wireless "beam" stations are operated at Montreal for direct communication with Great Britain and Australia, and a station at Louisburg, N.S., provides a long distance service to ships.

Money and Credit.

The Bank Acts of Canada impose stringent conditions as to capital, notes in circulation, limit of dividend, returns to the Dominion Government, and other points, on all chartered banks. On December 31, 1927, there were 11 incorporated banks making returns to the Government, with 3,870 branches. The following are some particulars (in dollars) of the banks for 1927, the figures being an average of the twelve monthly returns: capital paid up, 121,666,774; notes in circulation, 172,100,763; total on deposit, 2,415,132,261; liabilities to the public, 2,758,324,713; assets, 3,029,680,616; percentage of liabilities to assets, 91.04.

In addition to the capital there was in 1927 the sum of 130,320,897 dollars of rest or reserve funds belonging to the banks.

Bank debits in the clearing house centre of Canada for 1927 amounted to 36,093,503,098 dollars, against 30 358,034,018 dollars in 1926. Of the transactions of 1927, Montreal had nearly 33 per cent., Toronto 29 per cent., Winnipeg 11 per cent., Ottawa 5.3 per cent., and Vancouver 4.4 per cent.

Government post-office savings-banks have been in operation in Canada since 1868; there are also Government savings-banks, under the Finance Department, in the Maritime Provinces. The post-office savings-banks had on Sept. 30, 1928, 22,358,383 dollars, and the Government savings-banks, 7,405,867 dollars on deposit.

The deposits in special savings-banks amounted on Aug. 31, 1928, to 71,688,788 dollars.

Currency, Weights, and Measures.

The denominations of money in the currency of Canada are dollars, cents and mills. The cent is one-hundredth part of a dollar, and the mill one-tenth part of a cent. A five-cent nickel coin has been issued. The standard of fineness for gold coins is nine-tenths fine, and British and United States gold coins are legal tender. The privilege of issuing notes is restricted to the Dominion Government and the chartered banks. The legal equivalent of the British sovereign is 4.86 $\frac{2}{3}$  dollars.

The Dominion Government issues Dominion notes, which are legal tender, in denominations of $1, $2, $5 and certain other larger denominations used chiefly in clearing-house transactions between banks. They may be issued in any amount. Prior to the war, the security behind Dominion notes consisted of 25 per cent. gold for the first fifty million dollars of such notes and dollar for dollar in gold for amounts in excess of fifty million. They were redeemable in gold. The war necessitated the suspension of redemption in gold, and by special legislation the Government was given power to issue Dominion notes to the banks upon the pledge of satisfactory securities and interest at not less than 5 per cent. per annum was charged the banks. At the same time banknotes were made legal tender, and an issue of twenty-six million dollars of Dominion notes without security as formerly prescribed by law, largely to implement railway guarantees, was legalised. Redemption in gold was resumed on July 1, 1925.

Dominion notes in circulation on Aug. 31, 1927, amounted to 196,838,206 dollars.

The Ottawa Branch of the Royal Mint was established in pursuance of The Ottawa Mint Act, 1901, and an annual sum not exceeding 75,000 dollars is payable to the Imperial Treasury for the purpose of defraying the salaries of officials and other expenses of the Mint, the fees and all sums received being retained by Canada. The Mint issues gold, silver and copper coins for circulation in Canada, and sovereigns and half-sovereigns coined will be legal tender in every country under the British flag. Coinage for Newfoundland was struck at the Mint in 1917 and 1918.

In 1927 coin was struck at the Ottawa Mint to the value of 264,281 dollars nickel, 35,539 dollars bronze, and silver 117,024 dollars. No gold was struck. Coin issued: bronze, 37,500 dollars; nickel, 249,000 dollars; silver, 574,000 dollars.

The legal weights and measures are the Imperial yard, pound avoirdupois, gallon, and bushel; but the hundredweight is declared to be 100 pounds and the ton 2,000 pounds avoirdupois, as in the United States.

CANADIAN PROVINCES.

ALBERTA.

Constitution and Government.—The Constitution of Alberta is contained in the British North America Act of 1867, and amending Acts; also in the Alberta Act of 1905, passed by the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, creating the province. In the British North America Act, provision was made for the admission of the new provinces from time to time, including the then North-West Territories, of which the present province of Alberta formed a large portion. Upon the granting of autonomy to the North-West Territories, Alberta and Saskatchewan were erected into provinces, and all the provisions of the British North America Act, except those with respect to schools, lands, and the public domain, were made to apply to Alberta as they apply to the older provinces of Canada. The province is represented by 6 members in the Senate and 16 in the House of Commons of Canada.

The executive is vested nominally in the Lieutenant-Governor, who is appointed by the federal government, but actually in the Executive Council or the Cabinet of the Legislature. Legislative power is vested in the Assembly in the name of the king.

Members of the Legislative Assembly are elected by the direct vote of the people. Woman suffrage has been established in the province.

There are 60 members in the Legislature (1927)—43 United Farmers of Alberta, 7 Liberals, 6 Labour, 4 Conservatives.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour Dr. W. Egbert.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier and Provincial Secretary.—Hon. John E. Brownlee.

Attorney-General.—Hon. J. F. Lymburn.

Minister of Agriculture and Public Health.—Hon. Geo. Hoadley.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. O. L. McPherson.

Minister of Railways and Telephones.—Hon. Verner W. Smith.

Minister of Education.—Hon. Perren E. Baker.

Minister of Municipal Affairs and Provincial Treasurer.—Hon. Richard Gavin Reid.

Minister Without Portfolio.—Hon. Mrs. Irene Parlbly.

Agent General in London.—Herbert Greenfield, 1, Charing Cross, S.W.1.

Local Government.—Municipal Districts, formerly known as Local Improvement Districts, comprise the area within the limits of nine townships, i.e. 18 miles square (324 square miles), or as near to this as natural features will allow. Each Municipal District is a body corporate and governed in most cases by an elected council of six members, the chairman of whom is called the Reeve. The councillors are elected by a vote of all persons who are assessed for property within the Municipal District, together with the vote of the wife, husband, son, daughter, father or mother of such assessed persons, provided these relatives reside on the land of the assessed person.

Towns operate under the Town Act, 1927, except one which carries on under special charter. Villages are erected by Order of the Minister of Municipal Affairs, and are governed by the Village Act. The town council consists of a Mayor and six councillors elected by those whose names appear on the last revised assessment roll. These must be twenty-one years of age, and assessed for property of the value of one hundred dollars and upwards. The village council consists of three members elected annually, the Chairman being Mayor of the village.

There are six cities in Alberta, namely: Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge, Wetaskiwin, Red Deer and Medicine Hat. These cities operate under special charters granted by the North-West Territorial Assembly, and later confirmed by the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Alberta. The governing body consists of a Mayor and a council of from six to ten members, according to the size of the city.

Area and Population.—The area of the province is 255,285 square miles, 252,925 sq. miles being land area and 2,360 sq. miles water area. The population (1926), 607,584; in 1921, 588,454; in 1916, 496,525; in 1906, 184,412, and in 1901, 73,022. In 1921 the rural population numbered 365,550 (54,489 in 1901), and the urban 222,904 (18,533 in 1901). There were 8,745 Indians in 1921, or 1.49 per cent. of the total population. Population of the principal cities (1926):—Calgary, 65,513; Edmonton, 65,163; Lethbridge, 10,893; Medicine Hat, 9,536; Red Deer, 2,006; Wetaskiwin, 1,884.

The vital statistics for 5 years are given as follows:—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1923 . . .	15,153	4,417	4,843	10,310
1924 . . .	14,344	4,077	4,661	9,583
1925 . . .	14,564	4,271	4,449	10,115
1926 . . .	14,455	4,498	5,156	9,299
1927 . . .	14,417	4,644	4,780	9,367

Education.—Schools of all grades are included under the term of public school. The same boards of trustees control the schools from the kindergarten to entrance to the university. All schools are supported by taxes levied by the local board, supplemented by Government grants, which are distributed to encourage elementary, secondary, and technical education and agricultural training. In 1926-27 there were 3,442 school districts, 64 being consolidated schools and 9 being rural high schools, with 154,380 pupils. There were also at private schools 2,281, and at business colleges 2,250 pupils. There are Normal schools at Calgary and Camrose for the training of teachers. The attendance during 1926-27 was 862. The University of Alberta, organised in 1907, had, in 1927-28, 1,354 students.

Justice and Crime.—Judicial power of the province is vested in the Supreme Court, consisting of two divisions, the appellate and trial divisions. The judges are appointed by the Dominion Government, and hold office for life unless impeached by Parliament. There are also minor Courts of Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction. The district courts have full jurisdiction over all matters up to 600 dollars. By the Small Debts Act of 1918 Justices have jurisdiction over matters up to 50 dollars. There are also Juvenile Courts having power to try boys and girls under 16 years of age.

The system of procedure in civil and criminal cases conforms as nearly as possible to the English system.

Finance.—The revenue of the province is derived from the following sources :—(1) Dominion subsidies ; (2) School lands ; and (3) Provincial sources.

	1923	1924	1925	1926	1927
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
Revenue . . .	10,419,146	10,506,627	11,531,026	11,012,128	12,263,400
Expenditure . .	10,990,830	11,127,468	11,343,006	11,804,327	12,479,380

The gross bonded debt of the province March 31, 1928, amounted to 90,899,816 dollars. Of this amount 32,290,440 dollars represent assets which are self-supporting. There are other revenue producing but not self-sustaining assets amounting to over 7,500,000 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Alberta is pre-eminently an agricultural province. Within the surveyed area of the province, which comprises about 85,000,000 acres, there are about 60,000,000 acres which may be classed as lands capable of agricultural development. Up to the present, however, little more than one-sixth of this area has been brought under cultivation.

For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock, see under Canada above.

Grain elevators (1927-28), 1,219, with a capacity of 46,290,000 bushels.

A coal survey of Alberta by the Geological Survey of Canada places the coal area at 16,588 square miles containing 90,000 million tons, 80,000 million being lignite. The output in 1927 was 6,929,366 tons, valued at 10,905,326 dollars. Natural gas is found abundantly in numerous localities. In 1927, 12,933,801 cubic feet, valued at 3,589,485 dollars, was produced. High grade gasoline is profitably extracted from the gas in Turner Valley. In 1927, 321,154 barrels of crude petroleum were produced, valued at 1,189,007 dollars. Large deposits of bituminous sand containing on an average 15 to 18 per cent. bitumen are situated in the McMurray district in northern Alberta. Value of total mineral production in 1927, 29,375,040 dollars.

Alberta has 12,072,960 acres of forest reserves.

The lakes of the province abound in whitefish, pickerel, pike and trout, but the industry is not developed to any great extent. Value of fish marketed, 1926, 749,076 dollars.

Manufacturing in the province: Flour, oatmeal, cement, and linseed oil mills, pork and beef packing houses, clay, brass and iron, glass, wood biscuit and macaroni factories, large railway repair shops and oil refineries.

Statistics of manufactures for 1926: number of industrial establishments, 749; capital, 72,468,286 dollars; number of employees, 10,233; salaries and wages, 12,808,554 dollars; cost of materials, 49,826,532 dollars; value of products, 83,425,631 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The principal exports of the province consist of grain, live-stock, meat and meat products, wool, fish, butter, eggs, mining and timber products.

Length of railway lines 5,061 miles in 1926. Alberta's modern telephone system is owned and operated by the Provincial Government except in the cities of Banff and Edmonton. Automatic exchanges are operated at Calgary, Lethbridge, and Medicine Hat. 192,884 miles of wire serve 277 exchanges and 299 toll stations. There are 58,814 rural and urban subscribers, and first-class long distance service is available to all points in the Province and to every other Province in the Dominion and every State in the United States as well as to Mexico, Cuba and many points in Europe.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Constitution and Government.—British Columbia (then known as New Caledonia) and Vancouver Island originally formed part of the Hudson's Bay Company's concession. In 1849 Vancouver, and in 1858 British Columbia, were constituted Crown Colonies, and in 1866 the two Colonies were united. On July 20th, 1871, British Columbia entered the Canadian Confederation, and is represented by 6 members in the Senate, and 14 in the House of Commons of Canada.

The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and Legislative Assembly of 48 members on the system of executive administration known as a "responsible government." The Assembly is elected for five years, every adult, male or female (British subjects), having resided six months in the Province, duly registered, being entitled to vote.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour Robert R. Bruce (1926).

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier and Minister of Railways.—Hon. S. F. Tolmie, P.C.

Provincial Secretary and Commissioner of Fisheries.—Hon. S. L. Howe.

Attorney-General.—Hon. R. H. Pooley, K.C.

Minister of Lands.—Hon. F. P. Burden.

Minister of Finance and Minister of Industries.—Hon. W. C. Shelly.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. William Atkinson.

Minister of Mines and Minister of Labour.—Hon. W. A. McKenzie.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. N. S. Loughheed.

Minister of Education.—Hon. J. Hinchliffe.

President of the Council.—Hon. R. W. Bruhn.

Area and Population.—British Columbia, Canada's Maritime Province on the Pacific Ocean, has an area, according to the census of 1921, of 355,855 square miles, of which 353,416 square miles are land area, and 2,439 square miles water area, but exclusive of territorial seas. It lies between latitudes 49 degrees and 60 degrees north.

The subdivisions of the Province are as follows: Kootenays, east and west, 26,346 square miles; Yale, 10,462; Lillooet, 16,100; Vancouver and Westminster, 7,066; Cariboo, 148,594; Skeena, 123,896; Vancouver Island and Comox, 20,952.

The last census (1921) places the population at 524,582; in 1911 the population was 392,480; and in 1901 it was 178,657. Census Bureau estimate (1928), 583,000.

Some of the principal cities and towns are: Victoria (the capital), population, (1921), 38,727; Vancouver, 117,217; New Westminster, 14,495; Nanaimo, 9,088; North Vancouver, 7,652; Nelson, 5,230; Prince Rupert, 6,893.

The movement of the population for five years was as follows:—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1923	10,777	3,856	4,906	5,871
1924	11,252	3,945	4,823	6,429
1925	11,604	4,132	4,812	6,792
1926	9,906	4,413	5,426	4,480
1927	9,982	4,718	5,736	4,246

Education.—A complete system of free and non-sectarian education was established by Act in 1872. Attendance is compulsory from the age of seven to fifteen. The central control is vested in the Council of Public Instruction, composed of the members of the Executive Council.

There were 78 high schools, with 13,412 enrolled pupils and 419 teachers in 1927. The number of elementary schools was 1,008, with 3,062 teachers and 91,155 pupils. The Provincial University was founded by Act in 1908. It began operations as a teaching institution in 1914, and in 1927-28 there were 1,741 students, with 195 more at Victoria College. There are 2 normal schools, with 335 students in attendance in 1926-27.

Finance.—Revenue and expenditure:—

Statistics of manufactures for 1926 (exclusive of construction and custom and repairs industries): Industrial establishments, 1,495; capital, $29,008,375 dollars; employees, 47,462; wages and salaries, $4,865,756 dollars; cost of materials, $37,846,624 dollars; gross value of products, $249,619,714 dollars.

The total available water power of the Province has been estimated at over five million H.P., of which 550,000 are developed.

Commerce.—In 1926–27 the imports amounted to $4,936,551 dollars, and the exports to $172,075,161 dollars. Exports consist of minerals (chiefly gold, silver, lead, copper, zinc and coal), grain, sea products (chiefly salmon, halibut, herrings, whale products and oil), lumber, furs, skins, fruit, etc.

The catch of whales off the coast of British Columbia totalled 306 in 1927 (261 in 1926).

Communications and Shipping.—The Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National lines are at present the principal railways in the Province. The C.P.R. has three main lines, the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, the Kettle Valley Railway, and several branches connecting with United States railway systems, also steamboat connections on the inland lakes, besides a large fleet of ocean-going and coasting steamers. The Canadian National has two main lines, diverging in Yellowhead Pass, Mount Robson Park, one with ocean terminus at Prince Rupert and the other at Vancouver, besides steamship lines. The Pacific Great Eastern Ry., owned and operated by the Province, runs north and south through the heart of the country. The railway mileage in 1927 was 5,144. Telephone mileage, Dec. 31, 1926, 274,400.

In the fiscal year of 1926–27, 9,350 sea-going vessels entered inwards, 9,510 sea-going vessels cleared outwards; and 37,587 coastwise vessels entered and 37,628 cleared.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

Constitution and Government.—New Brunswick was discovered by Jacques Cartier in 1534. It was acquired by the English under the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713, and was settled by the English as early as 1761. In 1784 it was separated from Nova Scotia. The Government is at present vested in a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 48 members elected for five years. Franchise—any male or female British subject of full age, after six months' residence. Last election, August, 1925:—Liberals 12, Conservatives 35, Independents 1. The province is represented by 10 members of the Senate and 11 in the Canadian House of Commons.

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. W. F. Todd.

The members of the Ministry are as follows (1925):—

Premier and Attorney-General.—Hon. J. B. M. Baxter.

Provincial Secretary.—Hon. A. J. Leger.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. Lewis Smith.

Minister of Public Health and Labour.—Hon. Dr. H. I. Taylor.

President of Executive Council.—Hon. L. P. D. Tilley.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. D. A. Stewart.

Minister of Lands and Mines.—Hon. C. D. Richards.

Minister without Portfolio.—Hon. E. A. Reilly.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 27,985 square miles, of which 27,911 square miles are land area. There are 7½ million acres of Crown lands, principally lumber lands. The population in 1921 was 387,876; in 1911, 351,889. The rural population in 1921 was 265,648. Population of the principal cities (1921):—St. John, 47,166; Moncton, 17,488; Fredericton (capital), 8,114.

Education.—Education is free and undenominational. There are three Universities. The University of New Brunswick, at Fredericton, founded in 1800, had 168 students in 1922; the Mount Allison University at Sackville had 265 students; and the University of St. Joseph's College at Memramcook had 53 undergraduates in 1923. There were (1927) 80,690 pupils and 2,533 teachers in the 2,311 public schools. Total expenditure on public schools in 1926-27, 3,071,315 dollars.

Finance.—The finance for recent years is shown as follows (years ended October 31):—

Year	Ordinary Revenue	Ordinary Expenditure	Year	Ordinary Revenue	Ordinary Expenditure
	Dollars	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1922	3,117,445	3,046,869	1925	2,687,611	4,154,780
1923	3,445,878	3,708,071	1926	4,382,655	4,145,820
1924	3,838,084	3,827,960	1927	4,933,029	4,917,237

Funded debt, October 31, 1927, 36,554,409 dollars.

Production and Industry.—New Brunswick is productive in agriculture, manufacture, mining, fishing, and forest products. The total area under field crops in 1927 was 889,276 acres. For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock see under Canada, pp. 284, 285.

The Government owns over 10,600 square miles of forests and a similar area is owned privately. In 1926 the total timber cut in New Brunswick from both Crown and Private Lands, including sawn lumber, lath, shingles, railway ties, pulpwood, etc., was in excess of 780 million feet, board measure. Of this amount sawn lumber formed 405 million feet and pulpwood was equivalent to 239 million feet. The total value of forest products, including sawn lumber, lath, shingles, pulp and paper, etc., and also pulpwood exported totals over 30,000,000 dollars. The capital invested in sawmills, pulp mills, logging and driving equipment, etc., is placed at 42,000,000 dollars, and wages amount to over 7,500,000 dollars annually.

A considerable variety of minerals is known to exist in the Province, such as iron, copper, antimony, lead, zinc, tungsten, manganese, bituminous coal, gypsum, oil shale, salt, diatomite. The only active mining in the year 1927 was in coal and gypsum. Quantities of good limestone exist in the southern part of the Province, and are quarried for lime, the pulp industry and as a fertilizing agent. Various granites are quarried and manufactured at St. George, and there is an active industry in pulpstones at Quarryville. Natural gas and oil are produced near Moncton. Coal output, 1927, 187,562 short tons.

In 1926 there were 910 industrial establishments, with a capital of 95,661,154 dollars, employing 17,674 wage-earners; salaries and wages, 14,609,754 dollars; cost of materials, 44,074,961 dollars; value of products, 74,122,239 dollars.

The total value of fisheries in 1926 was 5,325,478 dollars, and in 1927, 4,406,602 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The exports of the Province in 1926-27 amounted to 100,973,185 dollars; the imports for consumption to 28,279,709 dollars.

The Province had 1,935 miles of steam railway operating in 1926, as compared with 1,503 miles in 1907. In 1926 there were 46,349 miles of telephone wire and 30,239 telephones.

NOVA SCOTIA.

The first permanent settlement was made by the French early in the seventeenth century, and the province was called Acadia until finally ceded to the British by the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713.

Constitution and Government.—Under the "British North America Act" of 1867 the Legislature of Nova Scotia may exclusively make laws in relation to local matters, including direct taxation within the Province, and the administration of justice. The Legislature of Nova Scotia consists of a Lieutenant-Governor, appointed and paid by the Federal Government, and holding office for five years; and a House of Assembly, chosen by popular vote every five years. The province is represented in the Dominion Senate by 10 members, and in the House of Commons by 14.

The franchise and eligibility to the Legislature are granted to every person, whether male or female, if of full age (21 years), a British subject, and a resident for one year in the place where the person votes, and if not by law otherwise disqualified, or in receipt of aid as a pauper.

Lieutenant-Governor.—His Honour The Hon. James C. Tory (1925).

The Members of the Ministry are as follows (appointed 1925):—

Premier, Provincial Secretary and Treasurer.—Hon. E. N. Rhodes, P.C.
K.C.

Minister of Public Works and Mines.—Col. G. S. Harrington, K.C.

Attorney-General.—Hon. W. L. Hall, K.C.

Agent-General in London.—John Howard, 31 Spring Gardens, Trafalgar Square, London, S.W. 1.

Area and Population.—The area of the Province is 21,428 square miles, of which 21,068 square miles are land area, and 360 square miles water area. The population in 1921 was 523,837; in 1911, 492,338; in 1901, 459,574; and in 1891, 450,396.

Population of the principal cities and towns (1921):—Halifax, 58,372; Sydney, 22,545; Glace Bay, 17,007; Dartmouth, 7,899; Amherst, 9,998; New Glasgow, 8,974; Sydney Mines, 8,327; Truro, 7,562; Yarmouth, 7,093.

The vital statistics for three years are as follows:—

—	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of births
1924-25	11,801	2,999	6,583	5,218
1925-26	11,400	2,922	6,045	5,355
1926-27	11,134	2,861	6,259	4,875

Religion.—The denominations according to the Census of 1921 were:—Roman Catholics, 160,802; Presbyterians, 109,860; Baptists, 86,833; Anglicans, 85,604; Methodists, 59,065; and Congregationalists, 2,372.

There are also various other sects with small numbers of adherents.

Education.—Education in Nova Scotia is free, compulsory, and undenominational. Besides the elementary schools, high schools and academies, there are in Halifax a Maritime Provinces school for the blind and one for the deaf. A large Provincial Agricultural College is established at Truro; also a Normal School for the training of teachers. The Provincial Technical College grants degrees in civil, mining, chemical and electrical engineering. It also conducts correspondence courses in numerous subjects. Besides this central institution there are, working under it, coal mining schools near all the collieries, and engineering and technical schools of various kinds in the industrial centres.

The total expenditure on education in 1927 was 3,605,401 dollars. The Province has 9 universities and colleges; 3,113 schools, with 3,305 teachers and 112,556 pupils.

Justice and Crime.—Justice in Nova Scotia is administered by the following courts: Courts for the collection of small debts; county courts; inferior courts in criminal cases; courts of superior jurisdiction; divorce court, probate courts. The supreme court of appeal is composed of a chief justice and six judges. There are also courts for the revision of assessment rolls and voters lists, and a court for juvenile delinquents.

In 1926-27, 2,087 persons were imprisoned for various crimes and misdemeanours, and 204 delinquent and neglected children were committed to reformatory institutions.

Finance.—In Nova Scotia there is no general direct Government taxation. The revenue is raised from the Dominion subsidy; royalty on coal and other minerals; succession duty; special taxes on banks, incorporated companies, partnerships, automobiles and theatres, marriage licences, and statutory fees.

Revenue, expenditure, and debt for five years:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Debt
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
1923	5,317,335	5,208,210	27,134,506
1924	5,461,383	5,577,872	31,159,640
1925	4,467,484	5,969,544	36,000,928
1926	5,744,574	6,327,042	35,253,323
1927	6,517,072	6,566,145	41,708,457

Production and Industry.—Nova Scotia is largely an agricultural Province. Fruit-growing is specially profitable, and apples are the most important fruit grown; in 1927 the output was about 900,000 barrels. Nova Scotia is admirably adapted for dairying. Owing to the cool, moist climate, fodder may be raised easily, and the pastures are excellent. For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock, see under Canada above.

Principal Minerals are (Sept. 30, 1927): coal, 7,220,859 tons; coke, 399,000 tons; pig iron, 284,906 tons; steel ingots, 320,466 tons; tar, 6,255,699 gallons; gold, 2,307 ozs.

The known coal fields embrace 1,000 square miles. The gold districts cover about 10,250 square miles. The estimated value of the principal mineral productions in 1926 was:—Coal, 33,200,000 dollars; steel, iron, coke and by-products, 11,324,400 dollars; gypsum, limestone, gold, etc., 2,050,000 dollars; clay production, 684,000 dollars.

The estimated forest area of Nova Scotia is over 12,000 square miles. The principal trees are spruce, fir, hemlock, pine, birch, oak and maple. The estimated value of the forest products in 1926 reached the sum of 14,500,000 dollars.

The fisheries of the Province are, next to British Columbia, the most extensive in Canada. In 1926 12,785,188 dollars were invested in this industry, and about 20,000 men were employed. Cod, lobsters, mackerel, herring, and haddock are the principal fish. Total market value of fish caught in 1927, 9,500,000 dollars.

The number of industrial establishments was (in 1925) 1,184, with a capital invested of 117,326,491 dollars, employing 16,568 wage-earners; wages and salaries, 12,082,693 dollars; cost of materials, 37,854,196 dollars; value of products, 65,033,701 dollars.

The annual wealth of the Province in 1927 was estimated at 180,692,400 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The imports entered for consumption during 1927 were 23,479,462 dollars; the exports, 53,226,985 dollars.

The country is covered with a network of railways, 1,451 miles in extent. There are 18,000 miles of highways. Besides this, subsidised boats ply round the shores making regular calls at all the important ports.

In 1925 there were 71,368 miles of telephone wire and 39,242 telephones.

ONTARIO.

Constitution and Government.—From 1791 to 1867 Ontario was called Upper Canada. The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor, a cabinet, and one chamber with 112 members. The latter are elected for four years by a general franchise. Women have the vote and can be elected to the chamber.

Lieutenant-Governor.—The Honourable W. D. Ross.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier and President of Council.—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson.

Attorney-General.—Hon. W. H. Price, K.C.

Provincial Treasurer.—Hon. J. D. Monteith.

Secretary and Registrar.—Hon. L. Goldie.

Minister of Education.—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. J. S. Martin.

Minister of Public Works and Highways.—Hon. G. S. Henry.

Minister of Lands and Forests.—Hon. W. F. Finlayson.

Minister of Mines.—Hon. Charles McCrea.

Minister of Labour and Health.—Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. R. J. Cooke, Hon. Edward A. Dunlop, Hon. Frederick T. Syme.

Agent-General in London.—W. M. C. Noxon, 163 Strand, W.C. 2.

The state of the parties in the Provincial Legislature in 1929:—Conservatives, 77; Progressives, 12; Liberals, 18; United Farmers of Ontario, 4; Labour, 1; total 112.

Area and Population.—The greatest extent of the Province from east to west is 1,000 miles and from north to south 1,075 miles. The area is 407,262 square miles (365,880 sq. miles land area and 41,382 water). The Province is roughly divided into two sections by a line running westward from Mattawa on the Ottawa River to Georgian Bay—southern (or old) Ontario, the older settled portion, with an area of about 77,000 square miles, and northern (or new) Ontario, with an area of about 330,000 square miles, of which 146,400 square miles, the district of Patricia, was added in 1912. Estimated population of the principal cities (1928):—Toronto (capital), 569,899; Ottawa, 121,000; Hamilton, 127,447; London, 66,132.

The estimated population for 1928 was 3,229,000. The population of Toronto in 1927 (with suburbs) was estimated at 778,498. The Indian population of the Province in 1921 was 26,436.

Education.—There is a complete State system of elementary and secondary schools, supported by provincial grants, and by local taxation.

There is one provincial University—the University of Toronto, founded in 1827. The other Universities are Queen's at Kingston, Western at London, McMaster at Toronto, and Ottawa in Ottawa, which are private foundations. The first two are now undenominational and are aided by the State. The Royal Military College at Kingston is maintained by the Dominion Government. There were, in 1927–28, 7,150 elementary day schools and 431 secondary schools, attended by 725,085 pupils. There are 19,517 certificated teachers engaged in these elementary and secondary schools. The total expenditure on elementary schools in 1927 was 34,802,727 dollars, and on secondary schools approximately 13,800,000 dollars.

Finance.—The revenues of the Province are derived from the sale of Crown lands, timber, mining, liquor sales, amusement and betting taxes, succession duties and other fees, supplemented by a subsidy from the Dominion. The revenue and expenditure in recent years were as follow :—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	Dollars	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1922-23	34,110,212	49,805,439	1925-26	50,841,042	51,653,138
1923-24	40,540,923	49,009,688	1926-27	56,306,224	55,947,001

Production and Industry.—The Province is rich in agricultural and mineral resources ; it abounds in lakes and rivers, forests, water powers, and fisheries. The land under cultivation is about 14,000,000 acres, more than 1,000,000 additional acres are cleared, and 25,358,000 acres are assessed. Of the total land surface of the Province, which is 234,000,000 acres, the amount of arable land is much larger than the portion now under cultivation. Beyond the cultivated portion it is estimated that northern Ontario alone contains some 20,000,000 acres of alluvial soil, not including the vast stretches of agricultural land south and west of James Bay. The farm values for 1927 were :—Land, 906,811,000 dollars ; buildings, 506,981,000 dollars ; implements, 168,842,000 dollars ; and live-stock, 231,145,000 dollars. For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock see under Canada above.

The mineral production in 1927 included gold, 1,627,050 ozs., value 33,627,040 dollars ; silver, 9,294,032 ozs., 5,230,402 dollars ; nickel in matte exported, 15,762 short tons ; nickel, metallic, 28,529,384 lbs. ; nickel oxide, 8,856,536 lbs. ; copper in matte exported, 11,632 short tons ; copper, metallic, 21,977,157 lbs. ; pig iron (from Ontario ore only), nil ; total pig iron produced, 515,365 short tons ; platinum, 22,762 oz. ; Portland cement, 3,751,786 barrels ; crude petroleum, 4,786,210 imperial gallons ; natural gas, 6,969,000 m. cubic feet. Total value of metallic minerals in 1926, 30,950,753 dollars, and in 1927, 33,700,658 dollars. Non-metallic minerals and structural materials in 1926 were worth 25,880,409 dollars, and in 1927, 27,073,119 dollars. The total value of the mineral production of Ontario in 1927 was 30,283,447 dollars as against 35,098,706 dollars in 1926 ; 1928 (estimated), 100,000,000 dollars.

The value of Ontario's gold production in 1923 was 32,549,344 dollars.

Total area of forests 240,000 square miles ; chief timber is spruce, pine and poplar.

In 1926 Ontario had 9,457 manufacturing establishments, with a capital of 1,985,165,921 dollars, employing 232,223 wage-earners ; wages and salaries, 335,485,119 dollars ; cost of materials, 908,044,673 dollars ; value of products, 1,677,933,504 dollars.

Communications.—There were in 1927, 51,989 miles of public road with an expenditure during 1926-27 of 13,383,702 dollars. In 1925 there were 10,908 miles of steam railway in Ontario, as compared with 7,368 in 1907. There were (1925) 1,241,647 miles of telephone wires and 511,286 telephones in 1926. The Hydro-Electric Power Commissioner of Ontario has a capacity of 1,000,000 h.p., and supplies electricity to 558 municipalities.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND.

This island was discovered by Sebastian Cabot in 1497; it was first settled by the French, but was taken from them in 1758. It was annexed to Nova Scotia in 1763, and constituted a separate colony in 1769.

Constitution and Government.—Prince Edward Island entered the Confederation on July 1, 1873. The Provincial Government is administered by a Lieutenant-Governor and a Legislative Assembly of 30 members, who are elected for 4 years, half by real property holders and the remainder by universal male and female suffrage. Women can also be elected to the Assembly. State of Parties in 1923 (elected July, 1923): Conservatives, 25; Liberals, 5.

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. Frank R. Hearts.

The members of the Ministry are as follows:—

Premier and Attorney-General.—Hon. A. C. Saunders, K.C.

Provincial Secretary-Treasurer.—Hon. W. M. Lea.

Minister of Public Works.—Hon. J. P. McIntyre.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. J. Blanchard; Hon. P. Sinclair; Hon. B. W. Le Page; Hon. W. B. Buller; Hon. J. F. McNeill, M.D.

Area and Population.—The province, which is the smallest in the Dominion, lies at the mouth of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is separated from the mainland of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia by Northumberland Strait. The area of the island is 2,184 sq. miles. The total population (1921 census) was 88,615. The rural population in 1921 was 69,522 (88,304 in 1901). Population of the principal cities (1921):—Charlottetown (capital), 12,347; Summerside, 3,228.

Religion and Education.—The population of the Province at the census of 1921 was divided among the different creeds as follows:—Roman Catholic, 39,312; Presbyterian, 25,945; Methodist, 11,408; Baptist, 5,316; Anglican, 5,057. There were (1926) 471 schools, 616 teachers, 17,324 pupils. This is exclusive of 3 Roman Catholic convent schools at Tignish, Summerside and Charlottetown, with 551 pupils. There are two colleges, Prince of Wales College, head of the Provincial school system, and St. Dunstan's, a Roman Catholic institution, both in Charlottetown. Total expenditure on public education in 1926 was 454,671 dollars.

Finance.—

	1914	1921	1922	1923	1924
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
Revenue . . . . .	525,555	727,046	680,019	601,599	676,064
Expenditure . . . . .	445,596	714,546	674,021	785,628	699,160

The expenditure does not include sinking fund or highway improvement, the outlay on the latter in 1924 being about 235,000 dollars.

The total liabilities of the Province amounted on 31st December, 1924, to 1,951,663 dollars, less 775,791 dollars standing to the credit of the Province at Ottawa.

Production and Industry.—The farm land occupied in 1921 was 1,216,483 acres. Field crops in 1928 covered about 540,619 acres. The land in natural forest covers 356,996 acres, and in pasture 293,454. For particulars of agricultural production and live-stock see under Canada above.

Silver fox breeding is extensively carried on, and pelts are shipped to United States and European markets; breeding foxes are exported to all northern countries. The value of fur-bearing animals on farms in 1926 was estimated at 3,304,610 dollars.

The total value of the fisheries in 1927 was 1,367,807 dollars. Of the total, lobsters make up 855,901 dollars, smelts, cod, herring and oysters being, in the order named, the largest other items.

The fishing season of 1925 showed a considerable falling off in production as compared with the previous year, notably in lobsters. Oysters abound in Richmond Bay, where the beds extend to 15,000 acres. In 1912 the Provincial Government acquired from the Dominion Government the possession and control of the oyster areas surrounding the Province. Some 20,000 acres have been surveyed and 5,000 acres leased for replanting and development. So far (1925) the experiment has proved unsuccessful, owing to the importation of destructive pests with oysters used in replanting.

In 1926 there were 299 industrial establishments, with a capital of 2,850,010 dollars, employing 2,261 persons; salaries and wages, 690,403 dollars; cost of materials, 2,637,960 dollars; value of products, 4,069,335 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The trade of Prince Edward Island is chiefly with the other provinces of Canada and this inter-provincial trade does not appear in the trade statistics. In 1926-27 the exports to other countries amounted to 1,349,067 dollars; the imports entered for consumption to 1,180,953 dollars. In 1924 the province had 279 miles of railway. A car ferry steamer of great power is in operation, connecting the Government Railway in Prince Edward Island with the Canadian National Railway on the mainland. Daily steamship communication with the mainland was successfully maintained for the first time during the winter of 1917-18, and has since continued without interruption. In 1926 there were 5,598 miles of telephone wires and 4,562 telephones.

QUEBEC.

Quebec was formerly known as New France or Canada from 1535 to 1763 ; as the Province of Quebec from 1763 to 1790 ; as Lower Canada from 1791 to 1846 ; as Canada East from 1846 to 1867 ; and when, by the union of the four original provinces, the Confederation of the Dominion of Canada was formed, it again became known as the Province of Quebec.

Constitution and Government.—The Provincial Government is modelled on that of the Dominion organization and is in the hands of a Lieutenant-Governor and a responsible Ministry, assisted by a Legislative Council of 24 members, appointed for life by the Lieutenant-Governor, and a Legislative Assembly of 85 members elected for 5 years. Members of both Houses receive 2,500 dollars per session. Quebec is the only Canadian Province in which women are not enfranchised or eligible for election to the Legislature. Last election, May 16, 1927 : Liberals 75, Conservatives 10.

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. N. Pérodeau (appointed January, 1924).

The members of the Ministry (September, 1924) are as follows :—

Premier, Attorney-General, and Minister of Municipal Affairs—Hon. L. A. Taschereau.

Minister of Lands and Forests.—Hon. Honoré Mercier.

Provincial Treasurer.—Hon. J. Nicol, K.C.

Provincial Secretary.—Hon. Athanase David.

Minister of Agriculture.—Hon. J. E. Caron.

Minister of Colonisation, Mines and Fisheries.—Hon. J. E. Perrault.

Minister of Public Works and Labour.—Hon. A. Galipeault.

Minister of Roads.—Hon. J. L. Perron.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. E. Moreau, Hon. L. Lapierre, Hon. J. H. Dillon, and Hon. Alfred Leduc.

Agent-General in London.—Hon. L. J. Lemieux, 2 Cockspur Street, London, S.W. 1.

Agent-General in Brussels.—Vacant.

Area and Population.—The area of Quebec (as amended by the Labrador Boundary Award) is 594,434 sq. miles (583,895 sq. miles land area and 10,539 sq. miles water). Of this extent, 351,780 sq. miles represents the Territory of Ungava, annexed in 1912 under the Quebec Boundaries Extension Act. The population in 1921 was 2,361,199 (1,180,028 males and 1,181,171 females) as against 2,005,776 in 1911, or an increase of 17 per cent. Of the 1921 population 357,108 were of British and 1,889,277 of French origin. The rural population in 1921 was 1,038,128, and the urban population 1,323,071. According to religious beliefs, in 1921, 2,023,993 were Roman Catholics, 121,967 Anglicans, 73,748 Presbyterians, 41,884 Methodists, 47,766 Jews and 14,148 Protestants. Population of the principal cities (Municipal Statistics, 1926) :—Montreal, 1,300,000 ; Quebec (capital) 165,000 ; Hull, 35,233 ; Verdun, 42,247 ; Three Rivers, 35,000 ; Sherbrooke, 25,021.

Education.—The province has four Universities: McGill (Montreal, Protestant) founded in 1841, with 3,620 students in 1926-27 ; Lennoxville, also Protestant, founded in 1845, with 141 students in 1926-27; Laval (Quebec), founded in 1852, and University of Montreal (Montreal), the centre of higher education for the Catholic population of the province, with 3,090 students in Quebec in 1926-27, and 6,899 in Montreal. Quebec had, in 1926, 8,116 schools of all kinds, with 597,364 pupils and 22,868 teachers. All the schools are sectarian, i.e., are either Catholic or Protestant. The total expenditure on education was 28,816,441 dollars in 1926.

Finance.—The ordinary revenue and expenditure for 6 years:—

Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure	Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure
	Dollars	Dollars		Dollars	Dollars
1923	21,634,642	20,190,276	1926	27,206,335	26,686,189
1924	23,170,733	21,867,293	1927	30,924,997	29,078,703

The total public debt at June 30, 1927, was 58,812,951 dollars.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is the basic industry of the Province. The principal agricultural regions are as follows: the Gaspesian Peninsula, the St. Lawrence valley, the Eastern Townships, and the north of the Province, comprising the newly colonized districts of Abitibi, Temiscamingue and Lake St. John. According to the latest Federal estimates, the total area under cultivation in the Province, during 1927, was 6,877,900 acres and the value of the crops 144,278,000 dollars. The principal varieties cultivated are wheat, oats, barley, rye, peas, buckwheat, mixed grains, flaxseed, corn, potatoes, turnips, hay and clover and alfalfa.

There are about 203,590 sq. miles of forests, made up as follows: private forests, 9,795 sq. miles; wood lots under location tickets, 2,023 sq. miles; forests leased, 79,469 sq. miles; township forest reserves, 643 sq. miles; and timber lands not leased, 111,660 sq. miles. Quebec leads the Canadian Provinces in pulpwood production, having more than half of the Canadian total. In 1926, 1,672,339 tons of pulp and 1,176,733 tons of paper were produced, valued at 141,068,104 dollars.

The principal fish are cod, mackerel, lobsters, salmon, and herring.

The value of the mineral production of the province was 29,211,001 dollars in 1927. Asbestos constitutes the principal element of production, with 274,798 tons valued at 10,621,571 dollars in 1927. The important asbestos deposits of the Province are found in the region called Eastern Townships, situated 65 miles south of the city of Quebec. The asbestos of the chrysolite variety is extracted from rock in the serpentine belt. Quebec produces more than 85 per cent. of the world's asbestos. Among other minerals produced are copper, feldspar, gold, graphite, magnesite, mica, molybdenite, phosphate, silver, zinc, lead, brick, cement, granite, lime, marble and tiles. In Northern Quebec, in the Rouyn district, valuable gold deposits have been discovered within the last three years and important exploitations are now under way.

The number of fur farms in the Province in 1926 was 617, with property and buildings valued at 636,563 dollars and animals in captivity estimated at over 1,569,000 dollars. Of all the wild animals, the fox has proved the most adaptable to breeding. The total value of pelts of animals captured was over two million dollars, of these beavers rank first with a total value of 960,000 dollars. The royalties collected on pelts taken during the same year netted to the Government the sum of 107,487 dollars.

In 1926 there were 7,164 industrial establishments in the province, with a capital of 1,216,975,958 dollars; employees, 180,659; salaries and wages, 189,326,145 dollars; cost of materials, 442,927,613 dollars; value of products, 905,300,824 dollars. Among the leading industries are pulp and paper, cotton and its products, cigars and cigarettes, railway rolling stock, butter and cheese, flour and its products, boots and shoes, saw mills, electric light and power, slaughtering and meat packing, breweries and rubber goods.

Commerce and Communications.—Total imports for consumption in 1926-27 amounted to 282,195,000 dollars; total exports to 396,907,410 dollars.

Quebec had 4,844 miles of railway and 448 miles of tramway in 1926. There were 225,000 telephones and 2,429 post offices, as well as 815 telegraph companies in 1926. It is estimated that there are 36,000 miles of road in the Province, of which 8,500 are improved.

THE NORTHWEST TERRITORIES.

Constitution and Government.—The Northwest Territories comprise the Territories formerly known as Rupert's Land and the North-western Territory, except such portions thereof as form the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and the Yukon Territory, together with all British territories and possessions in North America and all islands adjacent thereto, not included within any province, except the Dominion of Newfoundland and its dependencies. The Territories were organised September 1, 1905, and as now constituted are divided into three Provisional Districts, namely, Mackenzie (527,490 sq. miles), Keewatin (228,160 sq. miles), Franklin (554,032 sq. miles): this division having come into effect on January 1, 1920.

The seat of Government is located at Ottawa. By Order in Council of March 16, 1918, the Northwest Territories are governed by the Commissioner, the Deputy Commissioner and five Councillors appointed by the Governor-General in Council. The Commissioner in Council has power to make ordinances for the Government of the Territories under instructions from the Governor-General in Council or the Minister of the Interior respecting direct taxation within the Territories in order to raise revenue, etc., establishment and tenure of territorial offices, and the appointment and payment of officers, maintenance, etc., of prisons, municipal institutions, licenses, solemnization of marriage, property and civil rights, administration of justice and generally all matters of a merely local and private nature in the Territories.

Commissioner.—William Wallace Cory, C.M.G.

Deputy Commissioner.—Roy Alexander Gibson.

Council.—Cortlandt Starnes, Charles Camsell, Hugh Howard Rowatt, Oswald Sterling Finnie, Duncan Campbell Scott.

Area and Population.—The area of the Territories is 1,309,682 sq. miles. The population (estimated) is 12,000, including 7,100 Eskimos and 3,800 Indians.

This territory, including the counties of Demerara, Essequibo, and Berbice, named from the three rivers, was first partially settled by the Dutch West India Company about 1620. The Dutch retained their hold until 1796, when it was captured by the English, and was finally ceded to Great Britain in 1814.

Constitution and Government.—The British Guiana Order in Council, 1928, providing for the Government of the Colony and for the Constitution of a Legislative Council in place of the Court of Policy and Combined Court which have been determined, came into operation on July 18, 1928. The Legislative Council consists of the Governor as President, and ten Official Members and nineteen Unofficial Members. Executive and administrative functions are exercised by the Governor and Executive Council. The law of the Colony, both civil and criminal, is based on the common and statute law of England, except that the English law of personal property applies to both movable and immovable property, with certain exceptions, and the Roman-Dutch legitimatisation per subsequens matrimonium is preserved. There is absolute equality of males and females before the law as regards divorce, property, succession and all other matters. Appeals lie to the Full Court of the Supreme Court and to the West Indian Court of Appeal, and from each of these Courts to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

HONDURAS, BRITISH.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Major Sir J. A. Burdon, K.B.E., C.M.G. (2,000*l*.), assisted by an Executive Council of seven members, and a Legislative Council consisting of six official and seven unofficial members.

British Honduras is a Crown Colony on the Caribbean Sea, south of Yucatan, and 700 miles west from Jamaica. Its early settlement was probably effected by woodcutters from Jamaica about 1638, and from that date to 1798, in spite of opposition from the Spaniards, settlers held their own and prospered. In 1786 the Home Government appointed a Superintendent, and in 1862 the settlement was declared a Colony, subordinate to Jamaica. It became an independent colony in 1884.

Area and Population.—Area, 8,598 sq. miles. Population, census 1921, 45,817 (22,564 males, and 22,753 females). Estimated population at December 31, 1927: 49,249 persons (24,336 males, 24,913 females). The birth-rate per 1,000 (1927) was 36.42, and the death-rate 22.92. In 1927 there were 414 marriages. Primary schools (1927), 73; children enrolled, 7,527; average attendance, 5,623; Government grant (expended), 13,478*l*. There are 5 schools with secondary departments, and altogether about 630 pupils. They are under denominational management and none receive aid from Government. The total school roll, including private schools, was 8,341, and attendance 6,589. The police force contains (July 1926) 2 officers, 137 non-commissioned officers and men. Chief town: Belize; population, census of 1921: 12,661 (5,896 males, and 6,765 females).

NEWFOUNDLAND AND LABRADOR.

Newfoundland was discovered by John Cabot in 1497. It was soon frequented by the Portuguese, Spanish and French for its fisheries. Guy, Calvert and others made unsuccessful attempts to colonise the island, but in the 17th century English colonists established themselves there. A French station also existed on the island, and there were constant disputes as to fishing rights. Although exclusive British sovereignty was ceded in 1713 by the Treaty of Utrecht, these disputes were not finally settled till 1904.

The coast is rugged, especially on the south-west, where the coast range reaches an elevation of nearly 2,000 feet. The hills attain their summit within a few miles of the salt water, and then spread out into an undulating country, consisting largely of barrens and marshes, and intersected by numerous rivers and lakes. On the borders of the lakes and water-courses good land is generally found, and in some cases, as about the Exploits, the Gander and the Humber, it is heavily timbered.

Constitution and Government.—The Governor is assisted by an Executive Council (not exceeding 10 members), a Legislative Council (not exceeding 24 members), and an elected House of Assembly consisting of 40 representatives. Members of the Legislative Council receive 250 dollars per session; members of the Legislative Assembly receive 1,000 dollars per session. For electoral purposes the whole colony is divided into 37 districts or constituencies. Women were enfranchised by an Act of the Legislature passed in 1925.

After the general election of October, 1928, the Government supporters in the House of Assembly numbered 28, the opposition 12.

Governor and Commander-in-Chief.—Sir John Middleton, K.B.E., C.M.G., appointed August, 1928; salary 15,000 dollars, with travelling allowance of 2,500 dollars.

The Ministry (November, 1928) is as follows:—

Prime Minister and Minister of Justice.—Hon. Sir R. A. Squires, K.C.M.G., K.C.

Colonial Secretary.—Hon. A. Barnes, B.Sc., Ph.D.

Minister of Finance and Customs.—Hon. P. J. Cashin.

Minister of Posts and Telegraphs.—Hon. W. W. Halfyard.

Ministers without Portfolios.—Hon. Sir W. F. Coaker, K.B.E., Hon. Dr. A. Campbell, Hon. F. G. Bradley, Hon. Dr. H. M. Mosdell, Hon. P. J. Lewis, Hon. T. K. Cook.

Not in the Cabinet :

Minister of Marine and Fisheries.—H. B. C. Lake, Esq.

Minister of Public Works.—R. Hibbs, Esq.

Minister of Agriculture and Mines.—J. F. Downey.

The ministers with departments receive salaries of 4,000 dollars each.

The office of High Commissioner for Newfoundland in London was abolished in November, 1928.

Area and Population.—Area, 42,734 square miles. Population in 1927, 263,182 (133,137 males and 130,045 females). Dependent on Newfoundland is Labrador, the most easterly part of the American continent. The boundary between the said Dependency and the Province of Quebec, which had, for many years, been in dispute, was defined by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in March 1927, as being, in effect, the watershed of the rivers flowing into the Atlantic Ocean, the coastal boundaries being from Blanc Sablon, on the South, to Cape Chidley, on the North. As a result of this decision an estimated area of some 110,000 sq. miles, formerly in dispute, was confirmed as under the jurisdiction of Newfoundland. The population of Labrador in 1927 was 4,054. Of the total Newfoundland population in 1921, 65,448 were engaged in the fisheries, 3,227 were farmers, 4,862 mechanics, and 1,117 miners. Capital, St. John's, 40,059 inhabitants (1926); other towns (1921), Harbour Grace, 3,825; Bonavista, 4,052; Carbonear, 3,320; Twillingate, 3,217, and Grand Falls, 3,769. The birth rate in 1927 was 25·94, and the death rate (1927), 14·11 per 1,000. Immigrants (1927), 13,687; emigrants (1927), 15,765.

Religion and Education.—Of the total population in 1921, 84,665 belonged to the Church of England, 86,576 were Roman Catholics, 74,205 Methodists, 1,876 Presbyterians, 13,023 Salvation Army, 2,638 other denominations. The number of schools of all kinds (1926) was 1,139: Church of England, 386; Roman Catholic, 326; Methodist, 387; and other denominations, 79. The attendance in 1926 was: Church of England, 18,550; Roman Catholic, 19,709; Methodist, 17,135, and others, 3,694; total, 59,088: total expenditure, including Government grants, fees, &c., 977,590 dollars.

Revenue and Expenditure in three years ended June 30 (1 dollar = 4s. 1½d.):—

	1924-25	1925-26	1926-27
	Dollars.	Dollars.	Dollars.
Revenue	9,783,188	9,752,521	8,932,436
Expenditure.	9,436,185	9,365,167	10,633,409

Of the Revenue for 1926-27, 7,321,512 dollars were from Customs. Public debt (June 30, 1927), 72,017,932 dollars.

Production, &c.—The chief agricultural products in 1921 were: hay (2,198,051 dollars), potatoes (1,912,681 dollars), cabbage (448,021 dollars), turnips (208,700 dollars), and oats (9,804 dollars); the total value of all crops harvested being 4,824,090 dollars. In 1921 (census figures) there were in Newfoundland 16,340 horses, 27,721 cattle, 86,732 sheep, and 14,573 swine. Some fine pine forests exist to the north, and large saw mills have been established. The mineral resources of Newfoundland are considerable. Large beds of iron ore have been found on Bell Island in Conception Bay, on the east coast, and other rich deposits have been discovered on the west coast. The total deposits are estimated at about 3,600 million tons. Copper ore and pyrites are worked. Coal is found near St. George's Bay on the west coast, and in the Grand Lake district. In the eastern part of the island gold-bearing quartz rock and extensive deposits of silver and lead ore have been found. Extensive paper and pulp mills have been erected at Grand Falls, Bishop's Falls, Corner Brook, Lomond in Bonne Bay, and Alexander Bay.

Imports and Exports, including bullion and specie, for five years:—

Years ended June	1922-23	1923-24	1924-25	1925-26	1926-27

Exports . . .	4,807,800	4,831,378	4,853,948	5,512,202	30,839,859

The chief imports and exports in 1926-27 were:—

Imports (1926-27)	Dollars	Exports (1926-27)	Dollars
Textiles . . .	1,685,132	Dried cod . . .	12,057,414
Flour . . .	2,937,236	Pulp and paper . . .	12,574,466

Tea . . .	565,416	Seal skins . . .	258,690
Molasses . . .	198,137	Lobsters (tinned) . . .	280

Of the imports (1926-27) the value of 4,527,533 dollars came from the United Kingdom; 11,635,110 from Canada; 8,553,567 from the United States. Of the exports the value of 6,273,344 dollars went to the United Kingdom; 2,087,496 to Canada; 9,420,038 to United States; 2,664,398 to Portugal; 2,799,587 to Spain; 1,346,653 to Italy; 2,620,813 to Brazil.

Shipping.—Total tonnage of vessels entered and cleared in 1926-27, 2,883,690 tons, of which 1,884,398 tons were British. Vessels registered December 31, 1927, 2,754 sailing vessels of 118,942 tons, 84 steam vessels of 30,814 tons, and 96 motor vessels of 3,658 tons; total, 2,934 vessels of 152,514 tons.

Fishing is the principal occupation of the population. The principal fish are cod, salmon, halibut, lobster, caplin, and seal: the value of the fishing products is about four millions sterling annually.

By the Anglo-French Convention of 1904, France renounced her exclusive fishing rights under the treaty of Utrecht, but retained the right to fish in territorial waters from St. John's Cape northwards to Cape Ray for all sorts of fish, including bait and crustacea. An award of The Hague court in 1910 secured the right of Great Britain to make fishing regulations without the consent of the United States, subject to any limitations imposed by treaty. It also confirmed Great Britain's contention that the whole extent of a bay from headland to headland is comprised within territorial waters.

There were engaged in the Bank cod fishery during 1927, 740 men, and 41 Newfoundland sailing vessels, aggregating 3,106 net tons. The catch in 1927 totalled 99,663 quintals of dry fish, valued at $47,135 dollars. The output of the cod-fishery is estimated at 1,589,841 quintals of dry fish, valued at 12,057,414 dollars. There were about 12,931 small sailing vessels, boats (including motor boats), &c., utilised, and 27,500 men employed in this fishery. In 1927, the exports of codfish, including the Labrador fishery, amounted to 1,557,753 quintals. The catch of lobsters was 1,556,677 in 1919; 2,331,295 in 1920; 2,422,080 in 1921; 1,519,614 in 1922; 1,008,747 in 1923; 967,823 in 1924. Close season from 1924 to 1928.

During 1928, 227,022 seals were caught; 12 vessels and 2,200 men were engaged in the seal fishery. In 1926 the catch was 180,459 seals.

Communications, &c.—Railways open 1926: 905 miles of Government line with a gauge of 3ft. 6in., and 47 miles of private line. Communication between various points on the coast and between the island and the continent is maintained by a fleet of 11 first-class steamers, each of which connects with some central point on the railway. There were in 1926 (including 83 Labrador stations) 900 post offices, 184 of which were telegraph offices; there were 43 telegraph offices which were not post offices. There were about 300 telephone stations, most of them being in post and telegraph offices. Letters and cards sent in 1926, 6,250,000; newspapers, books, &c., 1,170 tons; parcels, 366,939. The postal and telegraph revenue, 1927, was 524,717 dollars, and the expenditure, 1,181,904 dollars. Telegraph line open (1927), 5,200 miles of wire; about 2,000 miles of telephone wire.

In December, 1927, the Newfoundland Savings Bank held 2,038,323 dollars standing to the credit of 3,986 depositors; this is in addition to the amounts held by the Savings Departments of the four banks doing business in St. John's.

The legal coin of the colony is the gold dollar, equivalent to 4s. 1½d. of British money.

Dominica contains a Carib settlement with a population of about 400, the majority being of mixed Negro blood, but about 100 apparently pure Caribs.

Administrator.—E. C. Eliot.

TRINIDAD.

Trinidad, which lies immediately north of the mouth of the Orinoco, and includes Tobago administratively, was discovered by Columbus in 1498 and colonised by the Spaniards in the 16th century. About the period of the Revolution a large number of French families settled in the island, where the French element is still preponderant. In 1797, Great Britain being at war with Spain, Trinidad was occupied by the British, and ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Amiens in 1802.

Governor.—Sir Horace Archer Byatt, K.C.M.G. (5,500*l.*, and allowances 375*l.*). There is an Executive Council consisting of the Governor, as President, the Colonial Secretary, Attorney-General, and Treasurer and such other persons, not being ex-officio members, as may from time to time be appointed; there is also a Legislative Council with the Governor as President, twelve official and thirteen unofficial members. Of the unofficial members six are nominated and seven are elected. Women over thirty years of age have the franchise.

Colonial Secretary.—Hon. W. E. Jackson C.M.G.

Area: Trinidad, 1,862 square miles; Tobago 114. Population: census 1921, 365,913 (186,802 males and 179,111 females). Estimated population, end of 1927, 391,705. Capital, Trinidad, Port of Spain, 65,016. The white population is chiefly composed of English, French, Spanish and Portuguese. The large majority of the inhabitants are natives of the West Indies, of African descent, the balance being made up of East Indians, estimated at 127,326, and a small number of Chinese. English is spoken generally throughout the Colony. Births, 1927, 11,851; deaths, 7,291; marriages, 1,933.

Education.—At the close of 1927 there were 288 Elementary and Intermediate schools in the Colony, 47 being Government and 242 Assisted Schools. There were 253 schools in Trinidad and 36 in Tobago. Of the 241 Assisted Schools 94 were Roman Catholic, 55 Church of England, 68 Canadian Presbyterian Mission, 12 Wesleyan, 11 Moravian and 1 Baptist. There were 2 Government and 3 Assisted Intermediate Schools. The following Colleges afford facilities for the higher education of boys: the Queen's Royal College and its affiliated institutions, the St. Mary's College in Port-of-Spain, and the Naparima College in San Fernando. The St. Joseph's Convent and the Bishop's High School in Port-of-Spain and the Naparima Girls' High School in San Fernando, which are also affiliated to the Queen's Royal College, provide similar education for girls. The number of pupils on the roll at December 31, 1927, was: Queen's Royal College 247, St. Mary's College 386, Naparima College 120, St. Joseph's Convent School 406, Bishop's High School 115, the Naparima Girls' High School 86, and the Bishop's High School, Tobago, 48. The affiliated institutions work under the same curriculum as the Queen's Royal College, and receive a Government grant-in-aid.

Police force, 885 all ranks (December 31, 1927). In 1927 the number of summary convictions was 22,477.

Shipping: The number of vessels entered and cleared during the year 1927 was 4,252, with a tonnage of 5,582,850. There were 2,124 arrivals of 2,777,310 tons, and 2,124 departures of 2,755,540 tons, of which 43·68 per cent. was British.

Of the total area of 1,264,891 acres (Trinidad, 1,191,678 acres, and Tobago, 73,213 acres), about 690,649 acres have been alienated. About 313,222 acres were under cultivation (1926). Asphalt: The pitch lake is situated in the Ward of La Brea, comprising 114 acres, was first leased as a whole in 1888 for 21 years, and in accordance with the terms of the lease, it was renewed for a further period of 21 years from February 1, 1909, to January 31, 1930. On February 19, 1926, a fresh demise of the pitch lake comprising 109 acres was made to the Trinidad Lake Asphalt, Limited, for 21 years from February 1, 1930. The quantity of asphalt produced during 1927 was 242,131 tons. The quantity of asphalt exported was 186,369 tons of the value of 464,475*l.*, and yielding a revenue of 90,668*l.* The development of the oilfields continues in a satisfactory manner, and the Colony is now the second largest producer of petroleum within the Empire. The number of companies operating at the close of 1927 was 14. During 1927, 188,316,240 imperial gallons of crude oil were extracted. Four refineries are at work in the Colony and all grades of petroleum products from petrol to road oil are produced, while two or three small topping plants produce petrol, distillate and residual oils.

There are 1,716 miles of main and local roads. Railway: 123 miles of 4 ft. 8½ in. gauge; 118 miles of telegraph and 146 miles (wire) telephone (1926). Cable: Communication by cable with the United Kingdom, Europe, North America, and other parts of the world is maintained by the Pacific Cable Board and the West India and Panama Telegraph Company.

The Pacific Cable Board system has no wireless station in Trinidad, but three wireless stations are maintained by the Trinidad Government, namely, stations at Port-of-Spain, North Post, and Tobago. The North Post Station dealt exclusively with ship and Tobago traffic, while communication with British Guiana, St. Martin, Venezuela and Paramaribo is carried out by Port-of-Spain.

Number of post offices, 116; of telegraph offices, 44. There are four private banks. British currency and United States gold are legal tender. There is no Colonial coinage, but Government 1 and 2 dollar notes (4*s.* 2*d.* and 8*s.* 4*d.*), and 1,000 dollar notes (208*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*) are issued. Government savings-banks are established in 34 districts with a Head Office in Port-of-Spain, the amount of deposits at the end of 1927 being 418,140*l.*, and the total number of depositors, 81,677.

In TOBAGO the culture of rubber, cotton and tobacco has been introduced. The cacao industry is receiving increasing attention, and very considerable areas are being planted in coconuts.

AUSTRALASIA AND OCEANIA.

THE British Territories in Australasia comprise the Commonwealth of Australia; the Australian Dependencies of Papua and Norfolk Island, the Dominion of New Zealand and adjacent islands, and the Crown Colony of Fiji. The British possessions in Oceania include the Solomon and Tonga Islands, and many other groups of islands and islets scattered over the Pacific. There are also the mandatory territories of New Guinea, Western Samoa, and Nauru.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.

The Commonwealth of Australia, consisting of the six colonies (now denominated Original States) of New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania, was proclaimed on January 1, 1901.

On September 1, 1906, the administration of Papua was transferred to the Commonwealth (see Papua).

Legislative power is vested in a Federal Parliament, consisting of the King, represented by a Governor-General, a Senate, and a House of Representatives. There must be a session of Parliament at least once every year. The Senate consists of 36 Senators (at least six for each of the Original States voting as one electorate) chosen for six years. In general, the Senate is renewed to the extent of one-half every three years, but in case of prolonged disagreement with the House of Representatives, it may be dissolved, and an entirely new Senate elected. The House of Representatives consists, as nearly as may be, of twice as many members as there are Senators, the numbers chosen in the several States being in proportion to population (excluding aborigines) as shown by the latest statistics, but not less than five for any original State. Number in 1926, 76. The Northern Territory by virtue of an Act passed in 1922 elects a member who is not entitled to vote, but may take part in any debate in the House. The House of Representatives continues for three years from the date of its first meeting, unless sooner dissolved. Every Senator or Member of the House of Representatives must be a natural-born subject of the King, or have been for five years a naturalised subject under a law of the United Kingdom or of a State of the Commonwealth. He or she must be of full age, must possess electoral qualification, and have resided for three years within the Commonwealth. The franchise for both Chambers is the same and is based on universal adult (male and female) suffrage.

The legislative powers of the Federal Parliament embrace commerce, shipping, &c.; finance, banking, currency, &c.; defence; external affairs; postal, telegraph, and like services; census and statistics; weights and measures; copyright; railways; conciliation and arbitration in industrial disputes extending beyond the limits of any one State; and other matters. The Senate may not originate or amend money bills; and disagreement with the House of Representatives may result in dissolution, or, in the last resort, a joint sitting of the two Houses. No religion may be established.

The Federal Parliament is a government of limited and enumerated powers, the several State Parliaments retaining the residuary power of government over their respective territories. If a State law is inconsistent with a Commonwealth law, the latter prevails.

At the election for the Lower House held on November 17, 1928, the following parties were returned: Labour, 31; Nationalist, 29; Country Party, 13; Independent, 2; total, 75.

The Executive power, vested in the King, is exercised by the Governor-General, assisted by an Executive Council of twelve responsible Ministers of State. These Ministers are, or must become within three months, members of the Federal Parliament; they are paid salaries and allowances not exceeding, in all, 25,300*l.* a year. The Executive Government of the Commonwealth (formed February 9, 1923) is constituted as follows:—

Governor-General.—His Excellency the Rt. Hon. John Lawrence Baron Stenhouse, P.C., G.C.M.G., D.S.O., Commander-in-Chief of the Commonwealth of Australia and its Dependencies (salary, £10,000). Oct., 1925.

Prime Minister, Minister for External Affairs and Territorial Questions.—Right Hon. S. M. Bruce, P.C., C.H., M.C.

Treasurer.—Hon. Dr. E. C. G. Page.

Vice-President of the Executive Council.—Senator the Rt. Hon. Sir G. F. Pearce, P.O., K.C.V.O.

Attorney-General and Minister for Industry.—Hon. J. G. Latham, C.M.G., K.C.

Assistant Minister for Industry.—Senator the Hon. J. E. Ogden.

Postmaster-General and Minister for Works and Railways.—Hon. W. G. Gibson.

Minister for Health and Minister in Charge of Repatriation.—Hon. Sir N. R. Howse, V.C., K.C.B., K.C.M.G.

Minister for Home Affairs.—Hon. C. L. A. Abbott.

Minister for Defence.—Senator the Hon. Sir T. W. Glasgow, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D.

Minister for Trade and Customs.—Hon. H. S. Gullett.

Minister for Markets and Transport.—Hon. T. Paterson.

Honorary Minister.—Senator the Hon. A. J. McLachlan.

High Commissioner for Commonwealth in London.—Major-General Hon. Sir G. de L. Ryrie, K.C.M.G., C.B., V.D. (Appointed March 22, 1927.)

Official Secretary for the Commonwealth in London.—T. Trumble, C.M.G., C.B.E., Australia House, Strand.

Commonwealth Trade Representative in France.—C. H. Voss, 6 Rue Halévy, Paris.

Official Secretary for the Commonwealth in America.—D. McK. Dow, "Cunard Building," 25 Broadway, New York City.

The Constitution provides for a Federal Judicature and an Inter-State Commission on Trade and Commerce, and for the admission or creation of new States. The Inter-State Commission was brought into existence in 1913 and the Commissioners were appointed for a term of seven years. At the expiration of this period no fresh appointments were made. In 1911 the Commonwealth acquired from the State of New South Wales the Yass-Canberra site for the Federal Capital, with an area of 912 square miles. Building operations were begun in 1923 and Parliament was opened at Canberra on 9th May, 1927, by H.R.H. the Duke of York. A further area of 28 square miles at Jervis Bay was acquired in 1917 for purposes of a Naval College, with the right to construct a railway from the Capital thereto.

Proposed laws for the alteration of the Constitution must be submitted to the electors, and they can be enacted only if approved by a majority of the States and also a majority of all the electors voting.

Finance.

Actual revenue and expenditure for 1923-24 to 1926-27 are given in the following table. Under the 'Surplus Revenue Act, 1910,' the amount payable by the Commonwealth to each State is a sum equivalent to 25 shillings per head of the population as estimated by the Commonwealth Statistician at 31st December in each year. Tasmania received, in addition, a total sum of 900,000*l.* in ten annual instalments, starting from 1912-13. This was exhausted in 1921-22, and a special grant of 85,000*l.* was made, a similar sum being appropriated for each year to date. Commencing with 1925-26 this grant will be diminished by 17,000*l.* per annum until it is extinguished. A special payment of 212,793*l.* was made to Western Australia in 1926-27, and 378,000*l.* to Tasmania.

In 1927 the States Grants Act abolished the per capita payments as from 30th June, 1927. Subject to ratification by a Commonwealth Referendum, the Commonwealth will take over all State Debts existing on 30th June, 1927, and will pay 7,584,912*l.* a year for 58 years towards the interest charges thereon, and will make substantial contributions towards a sinking fund to extinguish existing debts in 58 years and future debts in 53 years. The Commonwealth Government will arrange all future borrowing for both Commonwealth and States through a Loan council consisting of representatives of Commonwealth and State Governments.

The aggregate public debt of the several Australian States on June 30, 1927, was 679,223,572*l.*

The Commonwealth public debt on June 30th, 1928, was 494,129,100*l.*, including 293,420,000*l.* owing in respect of war loans.

Pensions and Maternity Allowances.

The Invalid and Old Age Pension Acts provide for the payment of invalid and old age pensions at such rates as the Commissioner deciding the question deems sufficient, but so that the amount shall not exceed 52*l.* a year, nor the pensioner's whole income (including the pension) exceed 84*l*. a year. Old age pensions are granted upon application to persons who are at least 65 years of age and have lived in Australia or Australian territory at least 20 years. Invalid pensions are granted to persons who have lived at least 5 years in Australia, have there become incapacitated, and have no other sufficient means of support. On October 9, 1912, a Maternity Act was passed providing for the payment of an allowance of 5*l*. in respect of every child born (alive or dead) in Australia. The mother must be a native of the Commonwealth or intend to settle permanently therein. No payment is made in the case of an aboriginal or an Asiatic. The disbursements for old age and invalid pensions and maternity allowances are shown under Finance above. The numbers of pensioners in the Commonwealth on June 30, 1927, were:—Old age, 133,234; invalid, 52,399; total, 185,633. War pensioners at June 30, 1927, numbered 259,821. To June 30, 1927, the total number of claims for the maternity allowance was 1,952,640.

Justice.

The judicial power of the Commonwealth is vested in a Federal Supreme Court (the High Court of Australia), consisting of a Chief Justice and six Justices, appointed by the Governor-General in Council. The High Court has original jurisdiction in all matters arising under treaties, between States of the Commonwealth, or affecting representatives of other countries, as well as in other matters as empowered by the Parliament. It may also hear and determine appeals from judgments of its own Justices exercising original jurisdiction, and from judgments of any other Federal Court, or of the Supreme Court of any State, subject to certain rights of final appeal to the King in Council. The Commonwealth Court of Conciliation and Arbitration consists of a Chief Judge and three other Judges.

Defence.

ARMY.

The principle of the defence policy of Australia is the universal compulsory training of a Citizen Army. Permanent troops are maintained only in such numbers as are necessary to administer and instruct the Citizen Forces. The administrative organisation consists of a central administration and 6 districts, corresponding to the 6 States. The Military Board, under the presidency of the Minister of Defence, has responsibility for control and administration. The Council of Defence, under the presidency of the Prime Minister, deals with policy and insures its continuity, and co-ordinates the requirements of the sea, air and land. The Citizen Force is organised in 2 cavalry divisions and 5 infantry divisions. Each cavalry division comprises 3 cavalry brigades and divisional troops. Each cavalry brigade comprises 3 regiments. The divisional troops are comprised of 5 field artillery batteries, 2 engineer squadrons, 8 train companies, 6 field ambulances, 2 sanitary sections and 6 veterinary sections.

Each of the first 4 infantry divisions is composed of 3 infantry brigades each of 4 battalions and divisional troops, which include for each division: 9 field artillery batteries, 4 engineer companies, 3 signal companies, 4 train companies, 3 field ambulances, 1 sanitary section and 1 veterinary section. The 5th division comprises 3 mixed brigades. The garrison troops of the permanent and citizen forces are organised in 6 district bases. The garrison artillery of permanent troops consists of 10 garrison and 1 field batteries. The garrison artillery of citizen forces consists of 12 batteries, and there are 6 fortress companies.

As a result of the International Conference held at Washington in 1921

Citizen Force training is restricted to youths of 18, 19, and 20, and Senior Cadet training to boys of 17 only.

An arsenal has been established, which will be more in the form of a munition supply branch aiming at insuring the supply of war needs through Australian trade rather than that Government-owned factories shall be designed on a scale necessary for the purpose. Properly situated mobilisation stores are being provided.

Military education is provided at the Royal Military College, Duntroon, from which cadets may obtain permanent commissions.

Rifle clubs receive a subsidy and a free grant of ammunition.

In 1928 the strength of the permanent force was 243 officers and 1,339 other ranks, and of the citizen forces, 45,273.

NAVY.

Sydney is a first-class naval station, and the headquarters of the British fleet in Australasia. Since 1913 the Commonwealth has accepted the obligation of fleet-building, with maintenance of its own vessels.

The 1928-29 naval estimates provided for a total expenditure of 1,965,600*l*. Under these estimates the naval forces of Australia were shown as follows: Permanent naval forces (sea-going) 4,877, including cadets and boys under training; Royal Australian Naval Reserve, 6,100; Royal Australian Naval Volunteer Reserve, 230; Royal Australian Fleet Reserve, 450; total, 11,707.

The policy of the Commonwealth is to make Australia self-defending. Having accepted the position that a fuller Imperial partnership is necessary for the future security of the Empire, and that a definite place in the Pacific has been allotted to Australia the Government agreed in 1911 to furnish an Australian Fleet Unit, called the 'Royal Australian Navy.' The ships and vessels of the Royal Australian Navy at present include the 10,000 ton cruisers Australia and Canberra, completed in 1928; the older cruisers Adelaide (5,560 tons) and Brisbane (5,400 tons); the aircraft tender Albatross (6,000 tons, with accommodation for 9 seaplanes); the flotilla leader Anzac (1917); 11 destroyers, of which 5 were built 1918-19, and 6 1910-15; three sloops (1,250 tons), the depot ship Platypus, the surveying vessel Moresby, and some auxiliaries.

AIR FORCES.

There is a Royal Australian Air Force, administered by the Air Board, consisting of two Air Force Members and a finance member. To this force is entrusted the air defence of Australia, the training of personnel for co-operation with the naval and military forces, and the refresher training of pilots engaging in Civil Aviation. The present establishment of the force includes the following units:—(a) Headquarters, Royal Australian Air Force, with representation at the Air Ministry in London; (b) a Flying Training School, (c) a stores depôt, (d) one station containing two composite squadrons and one flight, and (e) an experimental Section. The Minister is represented by a representative Air Council, which includes officers of the Navy, Army, and Air Force, and the Controller of Civil Aviation. The permanent establishment of the Air Force as at the 1st January, 1928, was 125 officers and 777 airmen. The sum of 490,000*l*. was available for expenditure in 1927-28 for the Air Force and Civil Aviation.

Production.

Up to the year 1926, 796,870,037 acres, representing 41·86 per cent. of the total area of Australia, were either unoccupied or occupied by the Crown; only 6·04 per cent. had been actually alienated (114,948,154 acres); 3·22 per cent. (61,380,397 acres) was in process of alienation; and 48·88 per cent. (930,533,652 acres) was held under the various forms of leases and licences.

The area under crops (distinguishing the principal crops) in Australia and the yield in 1926-27 were as follows:—

The total area under all crops in 1926-27 was 17,772,499 acres. The total value of agricultural production in the same year was 98,295,000*l.* Of Australia's total forest area of 24,500,000 acres, 12,137,659 acres have been permanently dedicated for timber. Wheat acreage 1926-27, 11,687,919; yield, 610,761,886 bushels. The total sugar crop of 1926-27 was 415,876 tons, and the estimate for 1927-28 is 516,963 tons.

At or about the end of 1926 there were in Australia 2,122,516 horses, 11,963,278 cattle, 104,267,101 sheep, and 989,009 pigs. At the end of 1927 there were 98,864,805 sheep.

The production of wool in 1926-27 amounted to 924,410,553 lb., and the exports to 712,350,208 lb. greasy, valued at 53,411,147*l.*, and 57,736,693 lb. scoured and tops, valued at 6,643,213*l.* The production in 1927-28 was provisionally estimated at 865,000,000 lb., and for 1928-29 the clip is estimated at 815,000,000 lb.; pulled wool, 35,000,000 lb.; exported on skins, 50,000,000 lb.; total available for export, 900,000,000 lb. The butter produced in the year 1926-27 amounted to 252,531,059 lb.; cheese, 26,679,197 lb.; bacon and hams, 73,634,888 lb.

The value of goods imported represents the amount on which duty is payable or would be payable if the duty were ad valorem. The value of goods exported is the value in the principal markets of the Commonwealth in the usual and ordinary commercial acceptance of the term.

The Customs Tariff Act of 1921-28 provides for preference to goods produced in and shipped from the United Kingdom to Australia, and for reciprocal tariff agreements with other countries. A reciprocal customs tariff which had been in operation between Australia and the Union of South Africa since 1906, was repealed by Customs Tariff 1926. The repeal came into force on 1st July, 1926. On September 1, 1922, a reciprocal tariff agreement came into operation between Australia and New Zealand, and in 1924 an agreement was made with Canada, and is now in operation.

The Customs Tariff (Papua and New Guinea Preference) 1926 came into force on April 1st, 1926, and provides that imports of certain goods specified in the schedule to the Act, and being the produce of the Territory from which they were imported, shall be free of duty.

NEW SOUTH WALES.

Constitution and Government.

New South Wales became a British Possession in 1788; a partially elective Legislative Council was established in 1843, and responsible government in 1856. New South Wales federated with the other Australian States to form the Commonwealth of Australia in 1901. The legislative power of the State is vested in a Parliament of two Houses, the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council consists of not less than twenty-one members (97 in September, 1928), appointed by the Crown for life. Members travel free on the State railways and tramways. The President receives an annual salary of 1,200*l.*, and the Chairman of Committees, 700*l.* The Legislative Assembly has 90 members, each elected to represent one electoral district. Postal voting is permissible. Every man or woman, being a natural born or naturalised British subject above 21 years of age, having resided six months in the Commonwealth, three months in the State, and one month in the electorate, is qualified to be enrolled as an elector, and enrolment is compulsory. Members of the Legislative Assembly are paid an annual salary at the rate (since 1925) of 875*l.* per annum, and they are allowed to travel free on Government railways and tramways in the State. The leader of the Opposition receives an additional allowance of 250*l.* per annum. The duration of a Parliament is not more than three years. The Women's Legal Status Act, 1918, gives women the same political rights as men.

The Legislative Assembly, elected in October, 1927, consists of the following Parties: Labour, 42; Nationalists, 35; Country Party, 13.

The executive is in the hands of a Governor, appointed by the Imperial Government.

Governor.—His Excellency Admiral Sir Dudley Rawson Stratford De Chair, K.C.B., M.V.O. (from February 28, 1924).

Lieut.-Governor.—The Honourable Sir William Portus Cullen, K.C.M.G., LL.D.

In the exercise of the executive the Governor is advised by a Cabinet consisting of the following members (February, 1929):—

Premier, Colonial Treasurer, and Colonial Secretary.—Hon. T. R. Bavin, K.C., M.L.A.

Minister for Mines and Minister for Forests.—The Hon. F. A. Chaffey, M.L.A.

Attorney-General and Vice-President of the Executive Council.—The Hon. F. S. Boyce, K.C., M.L.C.

Minister for Education.—The Hon. D. H. Drummond, M.L.A.

Minister for Public Works and Minister for Railways.—The Hon. E. A. Buttenshaw, M.L.A.

Secretary for Lands.—The Hon. R. T. Ball, M.L.A.

Minister for Agriculture.—The Hon. H. V. C. Thorby, M.L.A.

Minister for Local Government and Assistant Colonial Secretary.—Lieut.-Colonel The Hon. M. F. Bruce, D.S.O., M.L.A.

Minister for Public Health.—The Hon. R. Arthur, M.D., M.L.A.

Minister for Justice.—The Hon. J. R. Lee, M.L.A.

Minister for Labour and Industry.—The Hon. E. H. Farrar, M.L.C.

Assistant Treasurer.—The Hon. B. S. B. Stevens, M.L.A.

Honorary Minister.—The Hon. J. Ryan, M.L.C.

Agent-General in London.—The Hon. Sir George Warburton Fuller, K.C.M.G. (appointed 1928); Australia House, Strand, London, W.C. 2

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

A system of Local Government extends over the whole of the State, except the Western Land Division, where, however, seven municipalities are incorporated. There are 181 boroughs and municipal districts under the title of municipalities, and in addition 136 corporate bodies called shires. The central Government of the State affords financial assistance to the municipalities and shires in the form of endowment or of grants for special purposes, e.g. road-making. The total Government Assistance in 1926 was for Municipalities 247,492*l.*, and for Shires 1,113,095*l.*

Area and Population.

The area of New South Wales, inclusive of Lord Howe Island, but exclusive of the Federal Capital Territory (912 sq. miles at Canberra and 28 at Jervis Bay), is 309,432 square miles.

The population (including aboriginals) at six consecutive censuses was:—

Year	Males	Females	Total	Pop. per square mile	Average increase percent. per annum.
1871	275,551	228,430	503,981	1·61	3·69
1881	411,149	340,319	751,468	2·41	4·08
1891	612,562	519,672	1,132,234	3·64	4·18
1901	712,456	646,677	1,359,133	4·38	1·84
1911 <sup>1</sup>	858,850	789,896	1,648,746	5·32	1·95

The population at March 31, 1928, was: males, 1,232,135; females, 1,183,376; total, 2,415,511.

For population according to race and also for foreigners (both as in the 1921 census), see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1928, p. 357.

For occupational census returns in 1921, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1925, p. 359.

At the end of 1927 the population of Sydney, including suburbs and shipping, was 1,101,190. The chief country municipalities, with their populations, were as follow:—Newcastle and suburbs, 102,550; Broken Hill, 23,430; Auburn, 18,530; Bankstown, 18,850; Granville, 17,530; Parramatta, 16,760; Lithgow, 16,480; Cessnock, 14,340; Lidcombe, 14,310; Maitland, E. & W., 13,080; Holroyd, 13,040; Goulburn, 12,140; Katoomba, 10,120; Bathurst, 9,060; Lismore, 9,380; Wagga Wagga, 8,790; Albury, 8,750; Orange, 8,160; Wollongong, 8,000; Kurri Kurri, 7,205; Fairfield, 7,220; Tamworth, 7,260; Grafton and South Grafton, 6,410; Liverpool, 5,980; Armidale, 5,850; Dubbo, 5,560; Dundas, 5,100; Forbes, 4,720; Glen Innes, 4,580; Inverell, 4,560; Cowra, 4,390; Parkes, 5,400; Windsor, 4,200; Queanbeyan, 4,340.

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years :

1923	17,507	54,112	2,698	21,051	33,061

Religion.

There is no established church in New South Wales, and freedom of worship is accorded to all. An Act abolishing State aid to religion was passed in 1862.

The following table shows the statistics of the religious denominations in New South Wales at the census of 1921 :—

Education.

The State maintains a system of national education, and instruction is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14 years. In all State schools education is free. There is a large number of private schools subject to State inspection.

There were at the end of 1927, 3,142 Government schools, classified as follows:—High schools 30; public primary schools 1,969; provisional schools 585; half-time schools 53; travelling schools 1; evening continuation schools 55; correspondence schools 1; subsidised schools 445; industrial and reformatory schools 3; total 3,142 schools. During December quarter, 1927, there were 352,310 children enrolled, and an average attendance of 283,615, with 11,550 teachers. The pupils receiving Kindergarten instruction at Government schools numbered 13,186. In 1927 the expenditure on Public Instruction (exclusive of technical education) was 4,470,634*l*.

At the end of 1927 there were 719 private schools (with 86,084 pupils and 4,558 teachers), of which 491 were Roman Catholic Denominational Schools, having 2,972 teachers and 69,488 scholars. The Church of England Denominational Schools numbered 61 with 588 teachers and 6,094 scholars; other denominational schools 22, teachers 236, pupils 2,673. The undenominational private schools numbered 139, the teachers 762, and scholars 7,829.

The University of Sydney, founded in 1850, has 2,401 individual students (including 655 women) with 237 professors, lecturers and demonstrators. There are 4 denominational colleges, Church of England, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, and Methodist, and a college for women (unsectarian), affiliated to the University. The Technical College, with branch schools, had a total enrolment of 28,764 in 1926.

Widows' Pensions and Family Allowances.

For particulars of old age and invalidity pensions see under Australia. The numbers current in New South Wales on June 30, 1928, were: old age, 53,275 (Males, 22,899; Females, 30,376); invalidity and accident, 22,743 (Males, 9,980; Females, 12,763).

The Widows Pensions Act of New South Wales, 1925, provides for pensions to widows with dependent children. The maximum pension is 1*l*. per week with 10*s*. for each child under 14 years. The amount of each pension is ascertained by deducting from the maximum annual amount 1*l*. for each 1*l*. by which the widow's net income exceeds 78*l*. Pensions became payable on March 10, 1926. On July 1, 1928, pensions were being paid to 6,038 widows with 16,095 children, the amount paid during the year was 608,809*l*.

The Family Endowment Act, 1927-28, provides for the payment of endowment in respect of each dependent child under 14 years of age in cases where the 'family income' for the twelve months preceding the date of claim is less than the appropriate living wage (fixed by the Industrial Commission to cover the maintenance of a man and his wife) plus 13*l*. for each child in the family. The Endowment, at the rate of 5*s*. per week, is payable to the mothers. A residence qualification of two years in New South Wales is prescribed in respect of the mothers and of the children except when a child is under 2 years and was born in the State. In the first endowment year ended July 22, 1928, claims were lodged in respect of 50,000 families. It is estimated that 38,000 of these claims will be successful, the average rate of endowment per claim being 35*l*. per annum, equivalent to the endowment of 2·7 children per family. State relief is also given to neglected and destitute children.

Justice and Crime.

In New South Wales legal processes may be grouped within the Lower or Magistrates Courts, or the Higher Courts presided over by Judges. There is also an appellate jurisdiction. Prisoners charged with capital crimes must be tried before the Supreme Court.

Children's Courts have been established with the object of removing children as far as possible from the atmosphere of a public court. Fair Rents Courts were established in 1916, their function being the determination of the fair rental of small dwellings and retail shops. There are also a number of tribunals exercising special jurisdiction, e.g. the Industrial Commission, the Workers' Compensation Commission.

In 1927 there were 107,657 convictions before magistrates at Courts of Petty Sessions and Children's Courts, and 744 distinct persons were convicted at the Higher Courts. On June 30, 1927, there were 1,431 convicted prisoners in gaol.

Finance

The following are statistics of net revenue<sup>1</sup> for years ended June 30.

Year ended June 30	From Taxation	Land Revenue	From Business Undertakings	From Miscellaneous Sources <sup>2</sup>	Total Net Revenue

1928	12,204,343	2,270,322	27,735,540	5,781,297	47,991,372

The total revenue for 1928-29 is estimated at 48,231,000*l.*

From 1910 to 1927 the State received from the Commonwealth an annual payment at the rate of 25*s.* per head of population. This arrangement has been replaced by our agreement between the States and the Commonwealth which provides for the transfer to the Commonwealth of the debts of the States, annual contributions by the Commonwealth towards the payment of interest on such debts, the establishment of sinking funds in respect of these debts and new loans, and joint borrowing and management of loans through an Australian Loan Council. The provisions (except in respect of the transfer of debts) have been brought into operation temporarily pending a referendum for an amendment of the final constitution to give effect to the permanent operation of the agreement.

The following table shows the net expenditure exclusive of expenditure from loans (cf. note at the head of the last table):—

Year ended June 30	Railways and Tramways (including Interest on Capital)	Water Supply and Sewerage (including Interest on Capital)	Public Instruction (excluding Endowments)	Other Interest on Public Debt, and Special Deposits	Other Services	Total Net Expenditure from Revenue
	£	£	£	£	£	£
1924	19,485,748	1,841,883	4,000,324	2,239,895	9,784,074	37,251,419

1928	23,083,968	2,458,105	4,846,461	3,774,872	12,739,373	46,562,763

The total expenditure for 1928-29 is estimated at 48,036,000*l*.

The amount of the Funded Debt on June 30, 1928, was 245,247,907*l*. (exclusive of Closer Settlement Debentures, &c., 2,223,050*l*.), with mean rate of interest 4·9 per cent. Of this amount about 88 per cent. has been spent on reproductive works. There is a general sinking fund as well as sinking funds in respect of specific loans. The estimated sinking fund payments in respect of New South Wales debt during 1928-29 amount to 1,381,000*l*. The moneys have been applied in purchasing or paying off stock, debentures, &c., or in temporary investment in approved securities. The credit balances amounted to 525,626*l*. at June 30, 1928.

Production and Industry.

I. LAND SETTLEMENT.

The total area of land alienated or in process of alienation from the Crown on June 30, 1927, was 65,579,262 acres, exclusive of Federal Capital Territory. The total area of land neither alienated nor in process of alienation was 182,457,288 acres.

II. AGRICULTURE.

In 1926-27 there were 4,597,296 acres under crops (including 1,585 acres double cropped).

The area under cultivation in New South Wales during four years and the principal crops produced were as follows :—

Year ended June 30	1924		1925		1926		1927

The area sown for wheat during the season 1927-28 was 3,998,760 acres, of which 2,438,170 acres were for grain, 329,000 were reaped for 338,050 tons of hay, while 604,400 acres failed and 627,190 acres were fed off. The total yield of wheat grain was 26,927,100 bushels.

In 1927 the area planted with cane-sugar was 18,309 acres, production, 280,254 tons; grapes, total area, 14,281 acres, wines, 1,625,507 gallons; table fruit, 4,689 tons, and dried fruits, 50,170 tons.

The principal fruit-culture of the State is that of the orange. There were in June, 1927, 31,707 acres under citrus fruit, with a production of 2,273,529 bushels; the area under other fruit exclusive of bananas was 38,758 acres. During 1926-27 the production of bananas was 84,543 cases from an area of 1,846 acres.

At June 30, 1927, the State had 55,930,000 sheep,<sup>1</sup> 2,818,653 cattle, 623,392 horses, and 332,921 swine. The production of wool as in the grease was in the year ended June 30, 1927, 499,320,000 lbs. In the same year the production of butter was 96,551,738 lbs.; cheese, 6,735,960 lbs.; bacon and ham, 24,608,065 lbs. Preliminary figures for the year ended June 30, 1928, are wool, 448,800,000 lbs.; butter, 101,500,000 lbs.

There were 134,200 persons engaged permanently in rural holdings during the year ended June 30, 1927.

The estimated forest area is 11,000,000 acres. The total area of State forests amounts to 5,277,739 acres, and 1,595,726 acres have been set apart tentatively as timber reserves. The revenue from royalties, licences, &c., amounted in the year ended June 30, 1926 to 224,207*l.*, and in 1927 to 224,943*l.* There were 501 saw-mills, the employees numbering 5,391, and the value of plant and machinery was 1,053,222*l.*, and land and buildings 853,206*l.* The estimated value of production from Forestry in 1926-27 was 1,862,000*l.*

<sup>1</sup> The number of sheep on January 1, 1928, was 48,920,000.

III. MINES AND MINERALS.

The aggregate value of all minerals won in N.S.W. to the end of 1927 was 417,599,080*l.* The following table gives details for the year 1927 :—

Mineral	Quantity 1927	Value 1927	Total value to end of 1927
Gold . . . . .	18,082 oz.	76,595	63,581,454

VICTORIA.

Constitution and Government.

Victoria, formerly a portion of New South Wales, was, in 1851, proclaimed a separate colony, with a partially elective Legislative Council, and in 1855 responsible self-government was conferred. The legislative authority is vested in a Parliament of two Chambers. The Upper House consists of 34 members, elected for six years, and the Lower of 65, elected for three years (unless sooner dissolved). Members of the Council must be in possession of an estate of the net annual value of 50*l.* for one year prior to their election; and electors must be in the possession or occupancy of property of the rateable value of 10*l.* per annum if derived from freehold, or of 15*l.* if derived from leasehold or the occupation of rented property. No electoral property qualification is required for graduates of British or Colonial universities, matriculated students of the Melbourne University, ministers of religion of any denomination, certificated teachers, lawyers, medical practitioners, and officers of the army and navy active and retired. One-half of the members of the Legislative Council retire every three years. The members of the Legislative Assembly require no property qualification, and are elected by universal male and (since 1908) female suffrage, and no person may vote in more than one district, nor twice in the same district. Clergymen of any religious denomination are not allowed to hold seats in either the Legislative Council or the Legislative Assembly.

Members of the Legislative Assembly are entitled to reimbursement for expenses at the rate of 500*l.* per annum, and members of the Legislative Council at the rate of 200*l.* per annum. Members of both Houses have free passes over all the railways.

Governor.—Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Arthur H. T. Somers, D.S.O., M.C., K.C.M.G.

Lieutenant Governor.—Hon. Sir William H. Irvine, K.C.M.G.

In the exercise of the executive the Governor is assisted by a Cabinet of responsible ministers.

The Ministry (November, 1928) is as follows:—

Premier and Treasurer.—Hon. Sir W. W. McPherson, K.B.E., M.L.A.

Minister of Railways, Minister-in-Charge of Electrical Undertakings, and Minister of Labour.—Hon. F. Groves, M.L.A.

Minister of Public Instruction.—Hon. H. I. Cohen, K.C., M.L.C.

Commissioner of Crown Lands and Survey, and Minister of Water Supply.—Hon. H. Angus, M.L.A.

Chief Secretary and Minister of Public Health.—Hon. S. S. Argyle, M.R.C.S., M.L.A.

Attorney-General and Solicitor-General.—Hon. I. Macfarlan, M.L.A.
Commissioner of Public Works and Minister of Mines.—Hon. A. E. Chandler, M.L.C.

Minister of Forests, Minister of Agriculture, Minister of Markets and Immigration.—Hon. J. W. Pennington, C.B.E., M.L.A.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. R. G. Menzies, M.L.C., Hon. M. Saltoun, M.L.C., Hon. E. Morley, M.L.A., and Hon. R. M. Outhbertson, M.L.A.

The number of salaried ministers is limited to eight, and their total salaries to 10,000*l*. At least four of the Ministers must be members of either the Legislative Council or the Assembly, but not more than two shall be members of the Council, nor more than six be members of the Assembly.

State of the parties in the Legislative Assembly (October, 1928): Nationalists, 19; Liberals, 2; Independent Liberals, 2; Country Party, 10; Country Progressive Party, 4; Labour, 28. Total, 65.

Agent-General for Victoria in Great Britain.—A. H. Wright (acting).
 Offices: Melbourne Place, The Strand, W.C. 2.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

For purposes of local administration the State is divided into urban and rural municipalities. The former, called cities, towns, and boroughs, ought not to be of a greater area than nine square miles, and in being constituted must contain at least 500 householders, and rateable property capable of yielding 300*l*. upon a rate of one shilling in the £. The latter, called shires, are portions of country, of undefined extent, containing rateable property capable of yielding a revenue of 1,500*l*. on a rate of one shilling in the £. In 1927 there were 56 urban and 139 rural municipalities, only 650 square miles in the State not being included within their limits.

Area and Population.

The State has an area of 87,884 square miles, or 56,245,760 acres, about  $\frac{1}{4}$  part of the whole area of Australia. The State is divided into 37 counties, varying in area from 920 to 5,933 square miles.

The growth of the population, as shown by census returns, is exhibited in the following table:—

Date of Enumeration	Males	Females	Total	Annual rate of Increase per cent.
March 29, 1857 . . .	264,334	146,432	410,766	—
April 7, 1861 . . .	328,651	211,671	540,322	7·88
April 2, 1871 . . .	401,050	330,478	731,528	3·07
April 3, 1881 . . .	452,083	410,263	862,346	1·65
April 5, 1891 . . .	598,414	541,991	1,140,405	2·83
March 31, 1901 . . .	603,883	597,458	1,201,341	0·48
April 2, 1911 . . .	655,694	660,053	1,315,747	0·91
April 4, 1921 . . .	754,724	776,556	1,531,280	1·54

The estimated population at December 31, 1927, was 1,741,390 (867,409 males, 873,981 females); and on June 30, 1928, was 1,749,439.

The average density of the population is 19 persons to the square mile, or one person to every 33 acres.

The population in 1901 included 7,349 Chinese and 652 aborigines; in 1911, 5,601 Chinese and 643 aborigines; and in 1921, 4,179 Chinese and 586 aborigines.

At the date of the census of 1921, the Australian-born numbered 1,330,136, or 87 per cent. of the population; natives of New Zealand, 11,210; of British Isles, 161,117; of Germany, 3,693; of other countries, 20,171; 1,111 were born at sea and the birthplaces of 3,842 were unspecified.

For occupational census, 1921, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1925, p. 369.

Inclusive of the suburbs the estimated population on December 31, 1927, of Melbourne was 975,160, or more than half of that of the State; Ballarat, 41,910; Geelong, 42,300; Bendigo, 33,910; Warrnambool, 8,070; Mor-dialloc, 9,110; Castlemaine, 7,170; Carrum, 7,000; Wonthaggi, 6,900; Mildura, 6,000; Hamilton, 5,280; and Ararat, 5,100.

The following are the births, deaths, and marriages in the State for five years :—

Year	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Marriages	Surplus of Births
1923	35,876	1,714	17,219	13,126	18,657
1924	36,139	1,660	16,503	13,296	19,636
1925	35,922	1,543	15,836	13,370	20,086
1926	35,362	1,595	16,355	13,405	19,007
1927	35,074	1,556	16,773	13,608	18,301

The recorded immigration into and emigration from the State of Victoria by sea were as follow in recent years :—

Year	Immigration (by sea)	Emigration (by sea)	Year	Immigration (by sea)	Emigration (by sea)
1922	81,903	66,355	1925	77,487	64,376
1923	87,248	69,986	1926	88,026	73,799
1924	88,467	72,458	1927	90,338	77,079

Of the immigrants in 1927, 40,819 were females, and of the emigrants 35,643 were females.

Religion.

There is no State Church in Victoria, and no State assistance has been given to religion since 1875. At the date of the census of 1921 77 per cent. of the population were Protestants, 21 per cent. were Roman Catholics, and a half per cent. were Jews. The following were the enumerated numbers of each of the principal religions in 1921:—Episcopalians 620,445 (including 'Protestant,' so stated, 18,636); Presbyterians, 257,072; Methodists, 183,829; other Protestants, 100,097; Roman Catholics, 322,565; Jews, 7,677; Buddhists, Confucians, &c., 1,367; others (including unspecified), 88,228.

Education.

Educational establishments in Victoria are of four kinds, viz., the University, established under a special Act and opened in 1855, with its four affiliated colleges, State schools (primary and secondary), technical schools or colleges, and registered schools.

Affiliated to the University are four colleges—Trinity, Ormond, Queen's and Newman—in connection with the Church of England, Presbyterian, Methodist and Roman Catholic Churches respectively; also the School of Mines at Ballarat. In 1927 the students who matriculated numbered 664, the direct graduates numbered 426, and there were 2,783 students attending lectures.

Public instruction is strictly secular; it is compulsory for children between the ages of 6 and 14, and is free. In 1926 there were 2,529 State schools with 7,131 teachers, a total enrolment of 255,779 scholars, and an average attendance of 174,444, or 68 per cent. of the numbers on the roll. Amongst persons aged 15 years and upwards at the census of 1921, about 98 per cent. were able to read and write. In 1926-27 the total cost of public instruction, including grants to the University, was 3,254,575*l.*—all paid by the State. Secondary education is for the most part under the control either of private persons or proprietary bodies, usually connected with some religious denomination. There were, in 1927, 493 registered schools in Victoria, with 2,220 teachers, and a net enrolment of 65,180 scholars. A large proportion of these were in connection with the Roman Catholic denomination, the members of which do not as a rule avail themselves of the free education afforded by the State.

Under the auspices of the Education Department are 29 technical schools, 25 junior technical schools, 34 high schools (including agricultural high schools), 48 higher elementary schools, and 10 schools of domestic arts. In 1926-27 there were 781 teachers attached to the technical schools, irrespective of agricultural and horticultural colleges, the gross enrolment of pupils at senior technical schools being 15,095. The attendance at junior technical schools numbered 6,843 in 1926-27.

Pensions, &c.

On July 1, 1909, the Federal Old Age Pensions Act came into operation, and the State pensioners were taken over by the Federal authorities. The number in Victoria on June 30, 1928, was 40,642. Pensions are also granted to invalids, 16,398 being on the register on June 30, 1928. The amount paid in old age and invalid pensions during 1927-28 was 2,813,840*l.*

An Act was passed by the Federal Parliament in October, 1912, providing for the payment, on application, of 5*l.* to the mother of every child born in the Commonwealth, no additional sum to be paid for twins. During the year ended June 30, 1928, the allowance was granted to 34,840 mothers in the State of Victoria.

Justice and Crime.

There is a Supreme Court with a Chief Justice and six puisne judges. There are courts of general and petty sessions, county courts, courts of insolvency, courts of mines, and courts of licensing.

The following are the criminal statistics for 1927:—Arrested, 19,507; summarily convicted, 13,181; committed for trial, 747; and sentenced, 458.

There are 7 gaols and 5 reformatory prisons in Victoria, besides 2 police gaols. At the end of 1927 there were confined in these prisons and police gaols 916 males and 29 females.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure of the State in the years shown were :—

Year ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure	Year ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1923	21,634,677	21,611,309	1926	25,269,756	25,550,583
1924	23,075,968	23,050,968	1927	27,128,700	27,744,903
1925	24,304,887	24,170,483	1928	26,566,864	26,730,217

In 1927-28 the principal items of revenue were from State taxes, which amounted to 4,749,235*l.*, and from railways, 12,974,965*l.*; among the principal heads of expenditure were 10,469,883*l.* on the railways, 803,148*l.* on public works, and 2,528,169*l.* on education.

The amount raised by taxation (exclusive of taxes collected by Commonwealth) as shown in the above table, viz. 4,749,235*l.*, was equivalent to a proportion of 2*l.* 14*s.* 4*d.* per head of population.

Victoria has a debt, incurred in the construction of public works, which amounted, on June 30, 1928, to 158,183,470*l.* (inclusive of temporary Treasury bills). Of this debt 73,419,566*l.* was borrowed for the construction of railways; 20,750,027*l.* for waterworks; 3,336,134*l.* for State school buildings, &c.; 23,268,953*l.* for discharged soldiers' settlement; 8,068,251*l.* for closer settlement; 8,582,742*l.* for country roads; 13,004,238*l.* for electricity supply; and 4,801,772*l.* for other public works and purposes.

The estimated total value of the rateable property of the State in 1927 amounted to about 636,746,560*l.*, and the annual value was 34,000,862*l.*

Production and Industry.

I. AGRICULTURE.

Of the total area of Victoria about 34,446,194 acres at the end of 1926 were either alienated or in process of alienation. Of the remainder about 4,655,023 acres are at present suitable for agriculture; 6,605,581 acres for pastoral purposes; 100,873 acres are held under perpetual lease; 69,044 acres are held under other leases; State forests, timber, water, and other reserves, 5,770,192 acres; auriferous land, 506,938 acres; roads, 1,794,218 acres; and unsold land in towns, &c., 2,297,697 acres.

The total number of holdings in 1926-27 was 77,180.

The following table shows the areas under the principal crops and the produce of each for five years :—

The total quantity of gold raised from 1851 to 1927 is estimated at 71,264,613 oz. (fine), of an aggregate value of 802,712,124*l.* The estimated number of miners at work on the gold-fields in 1927 was 1,126. About 2,492 persons were employed in coal-mining. Total mineral production, 1927, 1,877,000*l.*, compared with 1,782,206*l.* in 1926.

III. MANUFACTURES.

The total number of manufactories, works, &c., in 1926-27, was 7,690, of which 1,012 used steam or gas engines and 5,141 electric power; the aggregate horse-power used was 414,992; the number of hands employed was 161,639; and the lands, buildings, machinery and plant were valued at 63,850,005*l*. The value of materials used was 69,816,935*l*., and of articles produced or work done, 127,397,951*l*. The wages paid amounted to 31,822,589*l*. The manufactures are almost entirely for home consumption.

Commerce and Communications.

The commerce of Victoria, exclusive of inter-State trade, is included in the statement of the commerce of the Commonwealth of Australia.

The total value of the imports and exports of Victoria, excluding inter-State trade, in six years, was:—

Years	Total Imports (Oversea)	Total Exports (Oversea)	Years	Total Imports (Oversea)	Total Exports (Oversea)
	£	£		£	£
1922-23	46,729,100	33,768,701	1925-26	50,327,055	33,107,576

QUEENSLAND.

Constitution and Government.

Queensland, formerly a portion of New South Wales, was formed into a separate colony in 1859, and responsible government was conferred. The power of making laws and imposing taxes is vested in a Parliament of one House—the Legislative Assembly, which comprises 72 members, returned from 72 electoral districts for three years, elected by ballot. Members of the Assembly are entitled to payment of 750*l.* per annum, with travelling expenses, and an allowance for stationery and postage. At the General Election of May, 1926, there were 478,097 persons registered as qualified to vote under the 'Electors Act Amendment Act of 1914.' This provides for male and female adult franchise, a twelve months' continuous residence in the State being the only proviso.

Prior to 1922 there was also a Legislative Council, but this has been abolished.

The Legislative Assembly, elected in May, 1926, is composed of the following parties: Ministerialists (Labour), 44; Country Party, 28.

Governor of Queensland.—Lt.-Gen. Sir T. H. J. C. Goodwin, K.C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., F.R.C.S. (appointed February, 1927.) (Salary, 3,000*l.*)

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. W. Lennon. (Salary, 1,000*l.*)

The Executive Council of Ministers consists (1928) of the following members:—

Premier, Chief Secretary, Treasurer, and Vice-President of the Executive Council.—Hon. W. McCormack.

Home Secretary.—Hon. J. Stopford.

Secretary for Public Lands.—Hon. T. Dunstan.

Secretary for Mines.—Hon. A. J. Jones.

Secretary for Railways.—Hon. J. Larcombe.

Secretary for Public Instruction.—Hon. T. Wilson.

Attorney-General.—Hon. John Mullan.

Secretary for Agriculture and Stock.—Hon. W. F. Smith.

Secretary for Public Works.—Hon. M. J. Kirwan.

Minister for Labour and Industry.—Hon. D. A. Gledson.

Each Minister has a salary of 1,250*l.*; the Vice-President of the Executive Council receives 300*l.* in addition.

Agent-General for Queensland in Great Britain.—John Huxham. (Salary, 1,500*l.*) Office.—409 Strand, London. Secretary, L. H. Pike.

Provision is made for Local Government by the subdivision of the State into areas denominated respectively cities, towns and shires. These are under the management of aldermen and councillors, who are elected by the Parliamentary electors and are charged with the control of all matters of a parochial nature, more especially the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges within their allotted areas. Shires for the most part consist of purely rural districts.

The number and area of these subdivisions, together with the receipts and expenditure for the year 1927, were :—

	No.	Area in square miles	Receipts	Expenditure	Rateable Values.
City of Brisbane	1	385	2,636,217	2,675,538	22,267,094
Other Cities	10	203	613,706	682,075	6,521,964
Towns	17	255	165,155	160,506	1,941,711
Shires	124	669,051	1,421,198	1,472,398	48,974,308
Totals	152	669,894	4,836,276	4,990,517	79,705,077

In addition, the various Local Authorities control public utilities—water supply, electric light, small railways and tramways (including Rockhampton and Brisbane Street Tramways).

Area and Population.

Queensland comprises the whole north-eastern portion of the Australian continent, including the adjacent islands in the Pacific Ocean and in the Gulf of Carpentaria. Estimated area 670,500 English square miles, with a seaboard of 2,250 miles. In 1825 a branch penal settlement was made at Moreton Bay; in 1842 free settlers were admitted to the country, and during the next twenty years great progress was apparent.

The increase in the population at different periods since 1846 has been as follows :—

Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum	Years	Population	Equivalent increase per cent. per annum
1846	2,257	—	1871	120,104	6·74	1901	498,129	2·78
1856	18,544	72·16	1876	173,288	8·85	1911	606,818	2·16
1861	30,059	17·06	1881	213,625	4·64	1921	755,972	2·43
1864	61,487	34·83	1886	322,858	10·24
1868	99,901	15·63	1891	393,718	4·39

At the census of April, 1921, the population consisted of 398,969 males, and 357,003 females. The estimated population on June 30, 1928, was 911,737 (482,862 males, 428,875 females). In 1921 there were 3,502 male and 80 female Chinese; 873 male and 142 female 'Polynesians'; 1,036 male and 43 female Japanese; 2,080 persons of other Asiatic, &c., races. The total number of aboriginals according to the census June 30, 1927, was 13,623 full-bloods, and 4,210 half-castes.

For occupational census, 1921, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK, 1928, p. 374.

Of the total population, 1921, 592,295 persons (exclusive of aboriginals) were born in Australia; 128,082 in the British Isles; 148,163 in Europe; 6,741 in Asia; 740 in Africa; 1,764 in America; 1,015 in Polynesia.

The following table shows the births, deaths, and marriages for five years:—

Years	Total Births	Illegitimate	Deaths	Marriages	Excess of Births
1923	19,982	1,053	7,893	5,814	12,089
1924	19,708	1,025	7,327	6,234	12,381
1925	20,283	1,035	7,545	6,471	12,738
1926	19,765	994	8,215	6,428	11,550
1927	19,830	1,041	8,079	6,278	11,751

The immigration and emigration, including arrivals and departures by sea and by rail across the border:—Immigration, 1927, 70,424; 1926, 87,624. Emigration, 1927, 65,196; 1926, 78,166.

Brisbane, the capital, with an area of 385 square miles, had in 1927 a population of 295,430. The population of the chief towns at the same date was: Rockhampton, 30,000; Townsville, 30,200; Maryborough, 12,000; Gympie, 9,570; Ipswich, 28,000; Toowoomba, 24,500; Charters Towers, 9,009; Bundaberg, 11,000; Mt. Morgan, 5,000; Cairns, 9,500; Warwick, 7,000.

Religion.

There is no State Church. Previous to 1861 valuable grants of land had been made to the principal religious denominations, which they still retain. The following were the numbers in 1921:—Church of England, 309,786; Church of Rome, 172,662; Presbyterian, 91,610; Methodist, 77,566; Lutheran, 17,891; Baptist, 14,735; other Christian sects, 44,132; Hebrew, 1,008; other non-Christians, 3,264; no religion, 3,926; unspecified, &c., 19,397.

Education.

Primary secular education is free and compulsory. According to the marriage statistics, 99.98 per cent. of persons married during 1927 were able to read and write. The Public Expenditure on account of education, science and art, for the year 1927-28 was 1,718,138*l*. During the year 1927 there were 1,738 State schools (including 13 high schools and 140 provisional schools, also 12 'Rural Schools,' one Farm Home and 3 Aboriginal schools) in operation, with 4,296 teachers, and an average daily attendance of 110,632 pupils. Secondary education is provided for by 10 grammar schools, 6 for boys and 4 for girls, with, in 1927, 99 teachers and an average attendance of 1,729 pupils; 13 'High Schools' with (1927) 102 teachers and 1,947 scholars. There were besides (1927) 183 private schools, with 1,108 teachers, and an average daily attendance of 23,276 pupils. The Government grants annually a considerable number of scholarships (1,885 in 1927-28), tenable for two and a half years, to the various grammar schools. There were 17 technical schools in 1927 with 14,927 enrolled students. The Queensland University (established in 1911) in Brisbane had, at the end of 1927, 14 professors, 18 lecturers, and 28 other members of staff, with 532 students on the roll.

Justice and Crime.

Justice is administered by Supreme Courts, Magistrates' Courts, and Courts of Petty Sessions. In these last Justices of the Peace sit, presided over in the more important centres by Police magistrates. The Supreme Court consists of a Chief Justice and six puisne judges. The total number of persons convicted of serious offences by the Superior Courts in 1926-27 was 269, and the summary convictions at petty sessions in the same year numbered 26,815 (including cases of bail estreated). Including penal establishments, there were, at the end of 1927, 7 prisons, with 397 male and 9 female prisoners. The total police force, including native troopers, averages about 1,271 men.

Pauperism, Pensions, etc.

Charitable institutions and hospitals are maintained by public subscription, supplemented by State endowment; benevolent asylums, an institution for the blind, deaf, and dumb, refuges and homes are also maintained by the Government or receive State assistance. Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are payable by the Commonwealth. The number of Old Age Pensioners in the State at June 30, 1928, was 18,185, and of Invalid Pensioners, 7,843. The number of War Pensioners at the same date was 27,138 (including dependants). Maternity allowance was paid to 19,790 mothers during 1927-28.

Finance.

The following table shows the net revenue and expenditure of Queensland during five years ending June 30 :—

Production and Industry.

Of the total area of the State, 17,946,517 acres (1927) have been alienated: in process of alienation, under deferred payment system, are 6,412,359, leaving 404,761,124 acres still the property of the Crown, or about 94·32 per cent. of the total area. The receipts from the sale of land up to the end of 1927 amounted to 11,070,837*l.*

A large proportion of the area is leased in squatting runs for pastoral purposes, amounting to 196,024,320 acres in 1927, besides 78,340,205 acres in grazing farms and homesteads, and 30,101,040 acres under occupation licence. Perpetual Leases, 4,108,543 acres; Prickly Pear Leases, 7,358,480. The live-stock in 1927 numbered 548,333 horses, 5,225,804 cattle, 16,642,385 sheep, and 191,947 pigs. The total area under cultivation in 1927 was 1,295,992 acres, and of this 1,066,612 acres were under crops, and 229,380 acres lying fallow-idle, etc., also 546,575 acres laid down with permanent artificial pasture. The wool production, expressed as greasy, was in 1921, 132,579,733 lbs.; 1922, 134,971,150 lbs.; 1923, 121,913,075 lbs.; 1924-5, 140,862,541 lbs., valued at 15,553,572*l.*; 1925-6, 146,985,689 lbs., valued at 10,993,305*l.*; 1926-7, 119,847,967 lbs., valued at 9,423,046*l.*

A considerable area consists of natural forest, eucalyptus, pine and cedar being the timbers mostly in demand, although a considerable quantity of more ornamental woods are utilised by cabinet makers. The amount of wood cut in the various saw mills in 1926-7 was (in superficial feet):—pine, 66,450,901; cedar, 202,702; hardwood, 41,110,272; other, mostly cabinet timber, 14,546,630; number of railway sleepers, 621,930; total value, 2,387,939*l.* Forest reservations total 5,216,724 acres (1927).

The quantity actually cut for all purposes is nearly double these quantities.

The crops, &c., in two years were as follows:—

There are several coal mines in the State, the produce of which amounted to 1,099,040 tons in 1927, valued at 987,465 $\frac{1}{2}$ . Gold-fields were discovered in 1858; and from the commencement of gold mining to the end of 1927 the production amounted to 20,103,885 fine ounces, of the value of 85,395,820 $\frac{1}{2}$ . In 1927, 37,979 ozs. of gold were produced, valued at 161,321 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; 84,118 ozs. of silver, valued at 9,813 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; copper, 3,741 tons, valued at 218,842 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; total value of all minerals, 1,645,991 $\frac{1}{2}$ .

To the end of 1927 the aggregate value of all mining amounted to 147,196,224 $\frac{1}{2}$ . The gross value of Queensland production during 1926-27 amounted to 54,418,413 $\frac{1}{2}$ , which includes Agriculture, 12,181,917 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Dairying, Poultry and Bee-keeping, 5,456,336 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Pastoral, 15,927,429 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Mining, 1,787,527 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; Forestry, Fisheries and miscellaneous primary production, 2,556,454 $\frac{1}{2}$ ; manufacturing, 16,508,750 $\frac{1}{2}$ .

In the western portion of the State water is comparatively easily found by sinking artesian bores. Up to June 30, 1928, 4,498 bores were recorded as having been sunk. Total depth bored, 753.6 miles. The continuous yield of water is estimated at 309,498,703 gallons per diem; 1,372 bores are flowing and supplies are pumped from 1,888 others.

Commerce and Shipping.

The commerce of Queensland, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the Statement of the Commerce of the Commonwealth of Australia.

The total value of the overseas imports and exports of Queensland in recent years is given in the following table:—

	£	£		£	£
1922-23	10,783,541	15,782,072	1925-26	13,772,847	26,884,918

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

Constitution and Government.

South Australia was formed into a British Province by Letters Patent of February, 1836, and a partially elective Legislative Council was established in 1851. The present Constitution bears date October 24, 1856. It vests the legislative power in a Parliament elected by the people. The Parliament consists of a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly. The former is composed of twenty members. Every three years half the members retire, and their places are supplied by new members elected from each of the five districts into which the State is divided for this purpose. The executive has no power to dissolve this body. The qualifications of an elector to the Legislative Council are, to be twenty-one years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject of His Majesty, and have been on the electoral roll six months, besides having a freehold of 50*l.* value, or a leasehold of 20*l.* annual value, or occupying a dwelling-house the rent of which is not less than 17*l.* per annum, or a registered proprietor of a Crown lease with improvements to the value of at least 50*l.*, the property of the elector; head teacher of a college or school residing on premises; postmaster or postmistress residing in the building; railway stationmaster resident in premises; member of police force in charge of a station; officiating minister of religion. By the Constitution Amendment Act, 1894, the franchise was extended to women, who voted for the first time at the General Election of April 25, 1896. There were 134,237 registered electors in 1927. The qualification for a member of Council is merely that he be thirty years of age, a natural born or naturalised subject, and a resident in the State for three years. Each member of the Council and also of the House of Assembly receives 400*l.* per annum and a free pass over Government railways. The salary of members was increased from 200*l.* per annum on December 1, 1921.

The House of Assembly consists of 46 members elected for 3 years, representing 19 electoral districts. The qualifications for an elector are that of having been on the electoral roll for 6 months, and of having arrived at 21 years of age; and the qualifications for a member are the same. There were 312,124 registered electors in 1927. Judges and ministers of religion are ineligible for election as members. The election of members of both houses takes place by ballot.

The House of Assembly, elected on April 8, 1927, consists of the following parties: Liberals, 26; Labour, 17; Country Party, 3.

The executive is vested in a Governor appointed by the Crown and an Executive Council, consisting of 6 responsible Ministers and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Governor of South Australia.—Brigadier-General the Hon. Sir Alexander G. A. Hore-Ruthven, V.C., K.C.M.G., May, 1928. (Salary, 5,000*l.* per annum.)

The Chief Justice (Hon. Sir George J. R. Murray, K.C.M.G., 2,500*l.*), being also Lieutenant-Governor, acts during the absence of the Governor.

The departments of the Public Service are controlled by the following Ministers (appointed April 4, 1927):—

Premier, Treasurer, and Minister of Railways.—Hon. R. L. Butler, M.P.

Chief Secretary, Minister of Mines and Minister of Marine.—Hon. H. Tassie, M.L.C.

Attorney-General and Minister of Industry.—Hon. H. Homburg, M.P.

Commissioner of Crown Lands and Minister of Local Government.—Hon. G. F. Jenkins, M.P.

Commissioner of Public Works and Minister of Education.—Hon. M. McIntosh, M.P.

Minister of Agriculture, Minister of Immigration, Minister of Repatriation, and Minister of Irrigation.—Hon. T. Cowan, M.L.C.

The provision for the payment of Ministers was increased from 5,000*l.* to 7,750*l.* to date from December 1, 1921. They are jointly and individually responsible to the Legislature for all their official acts, as in the United Kingdom.

Agent-General for South Australia in London.—Hon. Sir Henry N. Barwell, K.C.M.G., Australia House, Strand, London, W.C. 2.

Area.

The total area of South Australia is 380,070 square miles. The settled part of the State is divided into counties, hundreds, municipalities, and district councils, the last being the most general, as they cover most of the settled districts. There are 49 counties proclaimed, covering 54,179,840 acres. This area covers the settled portion of the State, 138,485,603 acres being in occupation. Outside this area there are three extensive pastoral districts—the western, northern, and north-eastern, covering 189,064,960 acres, 93,048,528 being under pastoral leases, with a population of less than 5,000. There are 39 municipalities and 157 district councils.

Population.

Population (exclusive of aboriginals):—

3,400 miles of railway in the State, including the Transcontinental Railway which has been built from Port Augusta in South Australia to Kalgoorlie in Western Australia, and which, in connection with various State lines, completes a through rail connection between Brisbane, on the east coast, and Fremantle on the west coast. Of the Transcontinental line, which is of 4ft. 8½ in. gauge, 600 miles are within the borders of South Australia.

There are several good harbours, and the river Murray (navigable for 2,000 miles) is used for conveying the produce grown on the irrigation settlements along its banks. In the city and suburbs are 140 miles of electric tramways.

Banks.

There are 10 banking associations in addition to the Commonwealth Government Bank. In 1928 their deposits were 26,263,964*l*.

The Savings Bank is managed by a board of trustees appointed by the Government, and has 40 branches and 350 agencies. On June 30, 1928, there were 468,361 depositors, with a total balance of 22,576,629*l*. The Commonwealth Savings Bank (not included above) had 64,015 depositors and 2,364,973*l*. deposits at the same date. Penny Savings Banks, agencies at schools, depositors, 56,024, deposits, 83,160*l*.

The total banking deposits, 51,205,566*l*., averaged nearly 90*l*. per head. About 90 per cent. of the population have savings bank accounts.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

Constitution and Government.

In 1791 Vancouver, in the Discovery, took formal possession of the country about King George Sound. In 1826 the Government of New South Wales sent 20 convicts and a detachment of soldiers to King George Sound and formed a settlement then called Fredericks Town. In 1827 Captain James (afterwards Sir James) Stirling surveyed the coast from King George Sound to the Swan River, and in May, 1829, Captain (afterwards Sir Charles) Fremantle, took possession of the territory. In June, 1829, Captain Stirling founded the Swan River Settlement, now the Commonwealth State of Western Australia, and the towns of Perth and Fremantle, and was appointed Lieutenant-Governor.

Large grants of land were made to the early settlers, and agricultural and pastoral occupations were pursued by a small population with varying success, until, in 1850, the State was in a languishing condition, and the inhabitants' petition that it might be made a penal settlement was acceded to. Between 1850 and 1868, when transportation ceased, 9,718 convicts were sent out. The Imperial convict establishment was transferred to the Colonial Government on March 31, 1886.

In 1870 partially representative government was instituted, and in 1890 the administration was vested in the Governor, a Legislative Council, and a Legislative Assembly. The Legislative Council was, in the first instance, nominated by the Governor, but it was provided that in the event of the population of the Colony reaching 60,000, it should be elective. In 1893 this limit of population being reached, as set forth in a proclamation dated July 18, of that year, the Colonial Parliament passed an Act (57 Vict. No. 14) amending the constitution.

By the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1899, further amended by the Constitution Acts Amendment Act, 1911, it is provided that the Legislative Council shall consist of 30 members representing 10 electoral provinces and holding their seats for six years. Members must be 30 years of age, resident in the State for two years, and either be natural-born British subjects or naturalized for 5 years and resident in the State for 5 years. Every elector must have resided in the State for 6 months, and must possess within the province freehold estate of the clear value of £50, or be a householder occupying a dwelling-house of the clear annual value of £17, or holder of a lease of the value of £17 per annum, or the holder of a lease or licence from the Crown of the annual rental of £10, or have his name on the electoral list of a Municipality or Roads Board in respect of property in the province of the annual rateable value of £17. The Legislative Assembly consists of 50 members, each representing one electorate, and elected for 3 years. Members must be 21 years of age, be either natural-born subjects of the Crown and have resided in Western Australia for twelve months, or naturalized for 5 years and have resided therein for 2 years. Electors must be 21 years of age, natural-born or naturalized subjects of the Crown, and must have resided in the State for 6 months, and must be resident in the district for at least one month when making their claims. Members of and electors for both Houses may be of either sex. Enrolment for the Legislative Assembly is compulsory. No person can be registered as a voter in more than one district or more than once in each Province for which he holds a sufficient qualification. Members of the Legislature are paid 600*l.* a year, and travel free on all Government railways. The entire management and control of the unalienated lands of the Crown in Western Australia is vested in the Legislature of the State.

State of political parties (1928):—Legislative Council: Labour Party, 5; United Party, 10; Country Party, 6; National Labour, 4; Others, 5. Legislative Assembly: Labour Party, 27; United Party, 16; Country Party, 7.

Governor.—H. E. Col. Sir William Robert Campion, K.C.M.G., D.S.O. (1924).

Lieutenant-Governor.—Hon. Sir Robert Furse McMillan, Kt. (June, 1921).

The salary provided for the Governor is 4,000*l.* per annum. He is assisted in his functions by a cabinet of responsible ministers, as follows:—

Premier, Treasurer, and Minister for Forests.—Hon. Philip Collier, M.L.A.

Minister for Railways, Justice, and Police.—Hon. John C. Willcock, M.L.A.

Minister for Public Works, Water Supply, Labour and Trading Concerns.—Hon. Alexander McCallum, M.L.A.

Agent-General in London.—Hon. William C. Angwin.

Offices.—Savoy House, Strand.

Area and Population.

Western Australia includes all that portion of the continent situated to the westward of 129° E. longitude, together with the adjacent islands. The total estimated area of the State is 975,920 English square miles, or 624,588,800 acres. It is divided into 38 magisterial districts.

The enumerated population in the various census years was as follows:—

Years	Males	Females	Total
1848	2,818	1,804	4,622
1859	9,522	5,315	14,837
1870	15,375	9,410	24,785
1881	17,062	12,646	29,708
1891	29,807	19,975	49,782
1901	112,875	71,249	184,124
1911	161,565	120,549	282,114
1921	177,278	155,454	332,732

There were enumerated, in 1921, 1,956 half-caste aborigines. The number of full-blooded aborigines is not known, but for the year 1927-28 their total number was estimated at 25,034.

Of the total population in 1921, 248,866 were returned as born in Australia, of whom 142,947 were recorded as natives of Western Australia. The number of married persons was 121,635 (61,899 males and 59,736 females); widowers, 4,528; widows, 8,526; divorced, 316 males and 294 females; unmarried, 108,792 males and 85,843 females. The conjugal condition of the remaining 2,798 persons was not stated. The number of males under 21 was 72,346, and of females 70,455. The population on December 31, 1927, was estimated to be: males, 211,628; females, 180,664; total, 392,292; and on June 30, 1928: males, 216,530; females, 183,518; total, 400,048.

Perth, the capital, had an estimated population on December 31, 1927, within the 10-mile radius area of the Metropolitan district, of 191,791. This, however, includes the chief port of the State, Fremantle, with its suburbs, the population of which, 1927, was estimated at 31,983. The other principal municipalities, with population in 1927, are:—Kalgoorlie, 5,200; Boulder, 5,884; Albany, 3,980; Bunbury, 5,570; Claremont, 6,800; Collie, 3,700; Geraldton, 4,400; Midland Junction, 5,100; Northam, 5,000.

The movement of population for the State in 5 years is given as follows:—

Years	Marriages	Births	Deaths	Immigrants	Emigrants
1923	2,376	7,854	2,930	33,835	28,552
1924	2,596	8,301	3,263	35,195	29,924
1925	2,746	8,185	3,315	32,920	29,781
1926	2,844	8,301	3,350	30,732	29,120
1927	3,107	8,481	3,393	25,275	26,818

Illegitimate births :—1923, 286 ; 1924, 327 ; 1925, 335 ; 1926, 325 ; 1927, 331.

Religion.

The religious division of the population was as follows at the census of 1921 :—Church of England, 153,229 ; Methodists, 39,108 ; Presbyterians, 28,377 ; Congregationalists, 6,557 ; Baptists, 5,541 ; other Protestants, 14,618 ; Roman Catholics, 64,488 ; Catholics (Undefined), 2,048 ; other Christians, 2,930 ; Hebrews, 1,919 ; Mohammedans, 826 ; Buddhists, 1,177 ; other non-Christians, 654 ; indefinite, 1,478 ; no religion, 1,774 ; not stated, 8,008.

Education.

Of the total white population of 15 years and upwards in 1921, 3.97 per cent. were stated to be unable to read. Primary education is compulsory.

The following table gives particulars of schools and pupils for three years :—

—	No. of Schools	No. of Scholars enrolled	A. v. Attendance during year	Cost per Head of a. v. Attendance
Government Schools				£ s. d.
June 30, 1925	810	51,647	45,357	10 2 2½

Convictions in superior courts . .	110	87	99	92	79

The total number of persons committed to prison in the year ended June 30, 1928, was 1,435; the number of commitments totalled 2,630—viz.: adult males, 2,458, adult females, 172.

All the above figures are exclusive of aboriginal crime.

Pauperism and Old Age Pensions.

There are two charitable institutions, one situated at Claremont, and one at Fremantle, both supported by public funds, with 713 inmates on December 31, 1927. Twenty-five Government hospitals, a Government sanatorium for consumptive patients, 3 hospitals for the insane, and 2 depôts for diseased natives at Port Hedland and Derby, are maintained by public funds, whilst 3 public and 47 other assisted hospitals exist, in addition to numerous private hospitals situated in Perth and other centres of population. Nine Protestant and 4 Roman Catholic orphanage industrial schools are supported partly by private subscriptions and partly out of public money. There are also 10 native and half-caste institutions, including 3 Government native settlements. Government receiving depôt for all State children who are afterwards sent to the various Institutions. On June 30, 1928, a total of 850 adults and 2,806 children, total, 3,656 persons in the State received monetary assistance from the public funds for widows and others.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are now paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in Western Australia at June 30, 1928, was: Old Age, 7,713; Invalid, 2,866; War Pensioners, 27,495.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure of Western Australia in six years, ended June 30, are given as follows:—

Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure	Years ended June 30	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1923 . . .	7,307,492	7,612,856	1926 . . .	8,808,166	8,907,309
1924 . . .	7,805,594	8,094,758	1927 . . .	9,750,333	9,722,588
1925 . . .	8,381,446	8,439,844	1928 . . .	9,807,949	9,834,415

Two-fifths of the public income is derived from railways and tramways (4,154,736*l.* for the year ended June 30, 1928), and the rest mainly from various forms of taxation (1,296,358*l.*), lands, timber, and mining (611,180*l.*), water supply, etc. (528,715*l.*), other business and trading concerns (738,431*l.*), surplus returned to the State of the Commonwealth Revenue derived from Customs, Excise, Post Office and other receipts, Disabilities Grant and interest on transferred properties (809,061*l.*) and Royal Mint and other receipts (1,669,528). Western Australia had a net public debt of 67,528,626*l.* on June 30, 1928, the annual charge for which was 3,178,985*l.* The amount of accrued sinking fund on March 31, 1928, was 8,899,138*l.*

For Defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Production and Industry.

Up to June 30, 1928, of the entire acreage of the State, 12,788,968 acres had been alienated; on that date 20,533,255 acres were in process of alienation: the area alienated and in process of alienation thus amounting to 33,322,223 acres. At the same date there were in force leases comprising an area of 237,428,424 acres, of which 233,400,825 acres were pastoral, and 1,676,497 acres were timber, while 52,770 acres were under mining leases, and 31,516 acres were Miners' Homestead leases.

The chief crops for two recent years were as follows:—

Crops	1926-27	1927-28	1926-27	1927-28
	Acres	Acres	Bushels	Bushels
Wheat . . . .	2,971,187	2,998,423	30,021,616	35,187,195
Oats . . . .	234,826	235,469	2,716,439	2,922,865
Barley . . . .	18,826	12,138	128,186	126,839
			Tons	Tons
Hay . . . .	358,487	353,936	423,836	413,017

			Gallons Wine	Gallons Wine
Vines . . . .	5,2741	5,131	281,951	408,717

1 Of this acreage, only 1,294 acres were productive for wine-making. In 1927-28 the figure was 1,179 acres.

The estimated acreages sown with wheat, oats and barley for the season 1928-29, both for grain and hay, are respectively 3,554,399, 561,408, and 16,126 acres.

The total forest area is 6,707,000 acres; the area of timbered country, 20,400,000 acres; the number of superficial feet cut was (1926-27) 229,195,066 (including jarrah, 200,682,768 superficial feet.).

The live-stock at the end of 1927 consisted of 165,021 horses; 846,735 cattle; 8,447,480 sheep; 59,810 pigs; 21,798 goats; 4,837 camels; and 10,334 mules and donkeys.

The wool clip in 1927 was 59,846,414 lb.; the exports 61,244,681 lb. (excluding 4,847,721 lb. on skins), valued at 4,962,916l.

Gold was first obtained in Western Australia in 1886. The sensational gold finds at Coolgardie and Kalgoorlie in 1892 and 1893 gave an impetus to Western Australian gold mining, which, in a few years' time, placed this State at the head of all the Australian Colonies as regards gold output. The aggregate output to the end of 1926 was 37,116,862 fine oz., valued (according to prices realised) at 160,252,012l. There were in the State, in 1927, 386 leases of gold mines; men employed in the mines, 3,973, viz., 1,901 above and 2,072 underground; output of gold, 408,353 fine oz., value 1,734,571l.

The total value of the mineral output of the State in 1926 was 2,371,864l., and in 1927, 2,202,437l. Principal minerals in 1927 were coal, 501,505 tons, value 407,967l.; gold, 408,353 ozs., value 1,734,571; silver, 49,895 ozs., value 5,829l.

There were, on June 30, 1927, a total of 1,216 industrial establishments in the State, employing either machinery or at least four hands. The total number of persons employed by them was 20,417. as against 22,140 in 1926. The gross output of these establishments for the year ended June 30, 1927, was computed at 15,671,660l. The total estimated value of Western Australian production during 1926 was 29,816,060l., distributed as follows: agricultural, 11,803,584l.; pastoral, 5,378,815l.; dairy, poultry, and bee-farming, 1,643,863l.; forestry and fisheries, 2,673,801l.; mining, 2,466,581l.; manufacturing, 5,849,916l.

Commerce and Communications.

The external commerce of Western Australia, exclusive of inter-State trade, is comprised in the statement of the commerce of Australia given under the heading of the Commonwealth.

The total value of the imports and exports, including inter-State trade, in 5 years is shown in the subjoined statement :—

June	1923-24	1924-25	1925-26	1926-27	1927-28
	£	£	£	£	£
Imports . . .	14,344,145	16,074,035	16,462,572	18,376,063	18,287,876
Exports . . .	14,123,289	14,664,548	14,581,657	15,151,959	18,240,775

The most important of the exports for 1927-28 were wheat (6,994,528*l.*) and flour (1,008,168*l.*), wool (4,962,916*l.*), gold specie (595,494*l.*), timber (1,265,321*l.*), pearl shell (166,065*l.*), pearls (20,067*l.*), hides and skins (553,144*l.*), sandal-wood (147,426*l.*), fresh fruit (191,915*l.*).

There were on the West Australian register on December 31, 1927, 54 steamers of 15,070 tons, and 339 sailing vessels of 12,222 tons; total, 393 vessels of 27,292 tons. Tonnage inwards and outwards, 1926-27, from and to ports outside the State, 7,560,521.

For the year ending June 30, 1928, the State had 3,977 miles of State Government railway, and 450 miles of Commonwealth line, the latter being the western portion of the Trans-Australian line (Kalgoorlie-Port Augusta), which links the State Railway System to those of the other States of the Commonwealth.

Money and Credit.

A branch mint was opened at Perth in 1899. The issues of Imperial coin to the end of June 1927 were: gold, 100,186,718*l.*; silver, 15,600*l.*; bronze, 2,000*l.* The issue in 1926-27 was: gold, 1,439,516*l.*; silver and bronze, nil.

There are nine banks in Western Australia besides the State Government Savings Bank and the Commonwealth Bank of Australia and Savings Bank. The total paid-up capital of the cheque paying banks in the quarter ended June 30, 1928, was 34,863,376*l.*, of which 4,000,000*l.* is profit transferred to Capital Account by the Commonwealth Bank; deposits, 16,459,935*l.*; total average liabilities, 18,223,851*l.*; total assets, 22,185,245*l.*

State Government Savings Bank.—The amount due to depositors on June 30, 1928, inclusive of interest, was 7,606,116*l.*, whilst in addition an amount of 89,820*l.* was due under the head 'Schools Savings Bank.'

Branches of the Commonwealth Savings Bank were opened in this State at the beginning of 1913. On June 30, 1928, 2,949,438*l.* stood to the credit of 89,461 depositors.

TASMANIA.

Constitution and Government.

Abel Jans Tasman discovered Van Diemen's Land (Tasmania) on November 24, 1642. The island became a British settlement in 1803 as a dependency of New South Wales; in 1825 its connection with New South Wales was terminated; in 1851 a partially elective Legislative Council was established, and in 1856 responsible government came into operation. On January 1, 1901, Tasmania was federated with the other Australian States into the Commonwealth of Australia.

Parliament consists of a Legislative Council and a House of Assembly. The Council has 18 members, elected on a property qualification of 10*l*. freehold or 30*l*. a year leasehold. Certain professional men and all 'returned soldiers' are also electors. Members sit for 6 years, and retire in rotation. There is no power to dissolve the Council. The House of Assembly has 30 members, elected for 3 years by adults with six months' residence in the State. Members of both Houses are paid 300*l*. a year. Women received the right to vote in 1903. Proportional representation was adopted in 1907, the method being the single transferable vote in 6-member constituencies. By-elections are superseded (from 1919) by a recount of the votes at the preceding General Election. At the election in 1925 for the House of Assembly 16 Labour and 14 Nationalist members were returned.

Governor.—Sir James O'Grady, K.C.M.G. (Oct., 1924). Salary, 3,000*l*.

Chief Justice.—Hon. Sir H. Nicholls, K.C.M.G.

The Governor is aided in the exercise of the executive by a Cabinet (June, 1928) of responsible ministers, as follows :—

Premier and Treasurer.—Hon. J. C. McPhee.

Chief Secretary and Minister of Railways and Mines.—Hon. C. E. W. James.

Attorney General and Minister of Education.—Hon. H. S. Baker.

Minister of Lands and Works and Agriculture.—Hon. Sir Walter Lee.

Ministers without Portfolio.—Hon. Edward Hobbs, Hon. A. L. Wardlaw, M.L.C., Hon. C. W. Grant.

Each of the ministers has a salary of 950*l*. per annum. The Premier has an additional 200*l*. a year. A minister must have a seat in one of the two Houses.

Agent-General in London.—Lt.-Col. R. E. Snowden, Australia House, Strand, London, W.C. 2.

Official Secretary.—H. W. Ely.

Area and Population.

Area, with Macquarie (170 square miles), 26,215 square miles or about 16,778,000 acres, of which 15,571,500 acres form the area of Tasmania Proper, the rest constituting that of a number of small islands, in two main groups, the north-east and north-west.

The population has increased as follows (census returns about April 1) :—

In 1921 there were 107,743 males and 106,037 females. The average density is 8·15 persons to a square mile. Of the total population in 1921,

5.96 per cent. were natives of the British Isles, 0.44 per cent. natives of other European countries, and 92.44 per cent. natives of the Commonwealth and New Zealand. There were 371 Hindus, 234 Chinese, and 106 other coloured Asiatics. The pure aboriginal is extinct.

The births, deaths, and marriages for five years were as follows:—

Year	Births	Marriages	Deaths	Excess of Births
1923	5,657	1,592	2,137	3,520
1924	5,383	1,529	2,123	3,260

Population of the capital, Hobart, and suburbs (March 31, 1928), 52,600, of Launceston and suburbs, 28,400.

Religion.

In 1921, belonging to the Church of England, 112,222; Roman Catholics, 33,106; Catholics (undefined), 2,359; Methodists, 27,171; Presbyterians, 14,796; Baptists, 5,832; Congregationalists, 4,543.

Education.

Primary education is free and secular, and compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14. Nine-tenths of the primary teaching is at State schools. Secondary education is about equally divided between the new State High Schools and the older endowed schools. The 5 State High Schools in 1926 had an average attendance of 1,060. There are 4 Technical Schools, and 3 junior Technical Schools, with a total enrolment of 1,450.

The University of Tasmania, established 1890, had 280 students taking courses for degrees in 1926. University expenditure in 1926 (exclusive of capital expenditure) was about 18,500*l*. In 1926, 11 Tutorial Classes were provided by the University at different centres for the Workers' Educational Association.

Justice and Crime.

There are a Supreme Court, courts of petty sessions and general sessions, the latter presided over by a stipendiary magistrate, assisted by justices of the peace. The Supreme Court is both a court of first instance and a Court of Appeal in all jurisdiction, civil and criminal. The State is also divided into four districts with local civil courts presided over by Commissioners who are also police magistrates, and petty sessions have all the powers of two justices of the peace. Petty offences and a limited number of civil claims are dealt with, in petty sessions and in general sessions by justices of the peace. During the year 1926, 7,200 persons were summarily convicted, and 99 persons were committed for trial. The total police force on June 30, 1927, was 240. There was 1 gaol, with 78 male inmates, at the end of June, 1927.

Old Age Pensions.

Old Age and Invalidity Pensions are paid by the Commonwealth Government. The number of pensioners in Tasmania on June 30, 1927, was: Old Age, 6,903; Invalid, 2,242; War, 11,133.

Revenue and Expenditure.

The revenue is derived chiefly from taxation (income, land, death duties and taxation of betting), and from the rental and sale of Crown lands. The customs and excise duties are in the hands of the Commonwealth, and an amount equal to 25s. per head of population is returned to the State, together with an additional special grant.

The public debt of Tasmania amounted, June 30, 1928, to 24,872,785*l.*, of which 29 per cent. has been spent on railways, 14 per cent. on hydro-electric works, and 24 per cent. on roads and bridges.

State taxation amounted to 5*l.* 5*s.* 1*d.* per head, of which income tax provides 2*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.* (including tax on lottery prizes formerly collected by the Commonwealth Government), land tax 9*s.* 3*d.* death duties 9*s.* 3*d.* Land and income taxes and death duties are also collected by the Commonwealth, averaging 2*l.* 5*s.* 0*d.* per head, and customs and excise of 7*l.* 2*s.* 7*d.* in 1926-27 per head.

Defence.

For defence, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Production and Industry.

The total area of Tasmania is 16,778,000 acres, including 1,206,500 acres islands and lakes. Unalienated land, chiefly rugged mountain country, much of it mineral-bearing, amounts to about 10,500,000 acres. Of this unalienated land about 2,700,000 acres are leased.

The net value in 1926-27 of agricultural and pastoral products was 4,815,000*l.*, of manufactures, 3,593,000*l.* (output less raw material, fuel, etc.), and of mining products, 1927, 1,301,000*l.*

Manufactures.—The two important manufactures for export are metal extraction and fruit-preserving. The electrolytic-zinc works at Risdon near Hobart are now using large quantities of ore imported from Broken Hill, and also considerable quantities of Tasmanian West Coast ores. The output in 1926-27 was 43,289 tons of zinc, valued at 1,230,525/., with 136 tons of cadmium and other by-products. Other manufactures that have an output beyond local requirements are wool and confectionery. The carbide works at North-West Bay are able to supply the needs of all Australia.

Commerce, Shipping, &c.

Principal imports, 1926-27: Food, drink and tobacco, 2,552,130/.; drapery, clothing and textiles, 1,694,207/.; metals and metal manufactures, 1,812,128/.; ores and concentrates, 729,326/.. Total imports, 9,406,273/.. Principal exports, 1926-27: Butter and cheese, 136,060/.; fruit, fresh, 1,145,197/.; fruit, dried, preserved or pulped, 432,140/.; hops, 184,554/.; jams and jellies, 462,500/.; oats and chaff, 164,501/.; peas, 138,158/.; potatoes, 621,988/.; wool, 877,329/.; hides and skins, 371,109/.; zinc bars and blocks, 1,402,825/.; timber, 496,565/.. Total exports, 9,437,371/..

Direct oversea imports and exports are about 19 per cent. and 30 per cent. respectively of total imports and exports.

In 1926-27, Hobart did 56 per cent. of the total trade, Launceston 30 per cent., Burnie and Devonport each about 6 per cent.

The registered shipping in 1927 consisted of 120 sailing vessels of 6,516 tons, and 58 steamers of 8,599 tons. Total, 178 vessels, 13,115 tons.

For shipping, railways, posts and telegraphs, see under Commonwealth of Australia.

Savings Banks.

The number of depositors in Savings Banks, including the Commonwealth Savings Bank, 1927, was 139,944, and the amount on deposit 5,073,545/.

THE NORTHERN TERRITORY OF AUSTRALIA.

Government.

The Northern Territory, after forming part of New South Wales, was annexed in 1863 to South Australia, and in 1901 entered the Commonwealth as a corporate part of South Australia. The Commonwealth Constitution Act of 1900 made provision for the surrender to the Commonwealth of any territory by any State, and under this provision an agreement was entered into on December 7, 1907, for the transfer of the Northern Territory to the Commonwealth, and it formally passed under the control of the Commonwealth Government on January 1, 1911.

On the 1st March, 1927, the Northern Territory was divided for administrative purposes into two Territories, North Australia and Central Australia, the dividing line between the two Territories being the twentieth parallel of south latitude. Each Territory is under a Government Resident, with headquarters at Darwin and Alice Springs respectively. This division was effected under the authority of the Northern Australia Act, 1926, which also provides for the appointment of a North Australia Commission, the powers of which extend to matters relating to the development of North Australia, and also to the administration of Crown Lands throughout North Australia and Central Australia. The Act further provides for the appointment of Advisory Councils for North Australia and Central Australia, each Council to consist of the Government Resident and four members (two to be elected by the people of the Territory, and two to be appointed by the Minister of State for Home and Territories). It is the function of each Council to advise the Government Resident in relation to any matter affecting the Territory under his control, including advice as to the making of new Ordinances or the repeal or amendment of existing Ordinances (other than Ordinances relating to the administration of Crown Lands), but not including any matter relating to the powers of the Commission or any matter under the control of the Commission.

North Australia Commission.—J. Horsburgh (Chairman), G. A. Hobler, and W. R. Easton.

Government Resident (North Australia).—R. H. Weddell.

Government Resident (Central Australia).—J. C. Curwood.

Area and Population.

The Northern Territory (North Australia and Central Australia) is bounded by the 26th parallel of south latitude, and the 129th and 138th degrees of east longitude. Its area is 523,620 square miles (North Australia, 287,220 square miles; Central Australia, 236,400 square miles). The area alienated on June 30, 1927, amounted to 746 square miles absolutely; 269,066 square miles were held under leases and licences; and the remainder, 253,808 square miles, was unoccupied. The coast line is about 1,040 miles in length. The Territory possesses many fine rivers and several good harbours, the principal being Port Darwin. The greater part of the interior consists of a tableland rising gradually from the coast to a height of about 1,700 feet. On this tableland there are large areas of excellent pasturage. The southern part of the territory is generally sandy with a small rainfall, but it can be watered by means of sub-artesian bores. The climate is tropical, but varies considerably over the whole Territory. The proximity of the sea in the north keeps it fairly equable in the coastal region, but further south the climate is of a continental type, showing a great variation between the hottest and coldest months.

The population, excluding aborigines, has varied as follows :—

Year	Europeans	Others	Totals
1881	670	2,781	3,451
1901	1,055	3,756	4,811
1911 (Census)	1,418	1,892	3,310
1921 (Census)	2,459	1,408	3,867
1926 (30th June)	2,345	1,040	3,385
1927 (30th June)	2,713	1,057	3,770

Of the 1921 Census total 1,046 were females. Chinese in the Territory numbered 722. The aborigines are estimated to number about 20,000.

Finance.

The revenue and expenditure for 6 years were as follows :—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1921-22	71,239	289,062	1924-25	81,812	339,209
1922-23	55,952	288,084	1925-26	97,298	382,268
1923-24	59,371	303,133	1926-27	122,062	481,512

The chief sources of revenue for the year ending June 30, 1927, were Customs and Excise, 7,035% ; Railways, 62,202% ; North Australia Commission, 7,390% ; and Postal revenue, 9,848%. The chief items of expenditure (excluding interest, loans, &c.) were administrative staff, 71,733% ; North Australia Commission, 12,571% ; and railways, 57,580%. The public debt, including Port Augusta-Oodnadatta Railway Loans, on June 30, 1927, was 3,564,445%.

Production and Industry.

The soils of the Territory differ greatly, but most products suitable to the tropical and semi-tropical zones can be grown successfully. At present, however, agriculture is insignificant. In most parts the natural grasses are extremely rich in nutriment, and provide food for cattle, horses, sheep, and other stock. The numbers of stock on December 31, 1925, were :—Cattle, 863,597 ; horses, 42,801 ; goats, 22,318 ; pigs, 343 ; sheep, 6,407 ; camels, 410 ; mules, 413.

The Territory is rich in mineral resources, though these are very little developed. The value of the minerals produced in the year ending June 30, 1927, was 22,222%. Tin ore, mica, and gold are the principal minerals.

Commerce.

The overseas imports and exports are given as follows :—

Year	Imports	Exports	Year	Imports	Exports
	£	£		£	£
1921-22	12,115	5,036	1924-25	20,636	41,944
1922-23	12,804	14,627	1925-26	84,168	35,992
1923-24	14,482	8,000	1926-27	30,814	29,786

TERRITORIES OF THE AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH: TERRITORY OF PAPUA (BRITISH NEW GUINEA).

Papua is the south-eastern part of the island of New Guinea, with the islands of the d'Entrecasteaux and Louisiade groups and all islands between 8° and 12° S. latitude, and 141° and 155° E. longitude. Area 90,540 square miles, of which about 87,786 are on the mainland of New Guinea, and 2,754 on the islands above mentioned. On June 30, 1928, the population was as follows:—European, 1,428; Papuans (estimated), 275,000. (For the part of New Guinea lately possessed by Germany and now administered by Australia, see below).

To prevent that portion of the island of New Guinea not claimed by Holland from passing into the hands of a foreign power, the Government of Queensland annexed it in 1883. This step was not sanctioned by the Imperial Government, but on November 6, 1884, a British Protectorate was proclaimed over the Southern portion of the Eastern half of New Guinea, and in 1887 Queensland, New South Wales and Victoria undertook to defray the cost of administration, and the territory was annexed to the Crown the following year. The Federal Government took over the control in 1901; the political transfer was completed by the Papua Act of the Federal Parliament in November, 1905, and on September 1, 1906, a proclamation was issued by the Governor-General of Australia declaring that British New Guinea was to be known henceforth as the Territory of Papua. There is an executive council composed of 8 official members and 1 non-official member, and a legislative council composed of the executive councillors and 5 non-official members, 4 being nominated by the Lieutenant-Governor and appointed by the Governor-General of Australia, and the fifth being nominated by the Lieutenant-Governor of Papua as representing the interests of the Christian Missions of the Territory.

Lieut. Governor and Judge.—Sir J. H. P. Murray, K.C.M.G.

Government Secretary.—Herbert William Champion.

Tribes have in large areas settled down to peaceful habits. Five missionary bodies are at work; many hundreds of natives are being taught by these bodies. 186,966 acres of land have been leased, chiefly by planters, the principal cultures being coconuts (49,244 acres at June 30, 1928), rubber (8,212 acres), sisal hemp (3,000 acres). On June 30, 1928, there were 61,870 acres of plantations. A preferential tariff is granted by the Commonwealth on certain raw material from Papua, and a bonus for 10 years on other products imported into Australia. Freehold alienation is prohibited, but leases may be obtained at low rentals for long terms. Indigenous sago is plentiful in the western portion of the Territory, and there are considerable numbers of native-owned coconut trees. A regulation, which is strictly enforced, requires that each native shall plant coconut trees or other economic trees or plants if his land is suitable, or the natives may, in lieu of paying a tax in money, establish communal plantations under the direction of European instructors.

There are four ports of entry—Port Moresby, Samarai, Woodlark Island and Daru.

There are 8 magisterial districts, each in charge of a resident magistrate. There are also 20 assistant resident magistrates, and 9 patrol officers. There is a Central Court at Port Moresby, but it holds sittings wherever and whenever necessary. For native government some simple regulations have been passed. There were (1928) 1,106 village policemen; armed constabulary, 284 (exclusive of Europeans who are officers of armed constabulary).

Throughout the Territory there are numerous schools belonging to the various Christian missions; the attendance of native children is compulsory if English is taught. There is a tax not exceeding 10s. per head on indentured native labourers, and not exceeding 20s. per head on other natives. After expenses of collection are paid the balance is devoted, first, to native education, and, secondly, to other purposes having for their object the direct benefit of the natives. The education is chiefly undertaken by the missions aided by grants from the taxation fund. 3,155% was spent on education in 1927-8. The expenses of the plantation instructors to develop native agriculture are borne by the Education Fund, 2,026%, being expended in 1927-28.

A Government Anthropologist is supported from this fund with a view to assisting the Government to understand the native point of view. A Family Bonus is paid to native mothers of four or more children under 16 years of age at the rate of 5s. for four and 1s. for each child over the four. In 1927-28, 5,232% was spent from the fund on medical work among the natives, besides 988% on native hospital buildings.

Revenue is mainly from customs duties. An annual subsidy of 50,000% is given by the Australian Government.

Gold, silver and osmiridium are the only minerals exported. There are 9 proclaimed mineral fields, seven of which are gold fields, and 2 copper. Mining is one of the most important industries. Gold is obtained in the Louisiade Islands, on the mainland, and on Woodlark Island. A large area near Port Moresby with promising copper deposits has been proclaimed a mineral field, and was being vigorously developed. A railway from the field to the coast was constructed and smelters erected. The whole field was abandoned in 1927 owing to the low price of copper, but the machinery remains in the hope of a rise in the price of copper sufficient to justify a renewal of operations. Indications of petroleum have been found over an area of 1,000 sq. miles, and boring by the Anglo-Persian Oil Company is still proceeding on behalf of the Australian Government. Prospecting Licences have also been issued to a number of private companies, three of which have commenced boring. Copper ore exports in 1927-28, 16 tons, valued at 208%. In 1927-28 the gold output was valued at 7,240%. The trade is principally with Queensland and New South Wales. The chief imports are food-stuffs, tobacco, drapery and hardware; exports 1927-28, copra (9,824 tons, 194,019%); gold (2,172½ ozs., 6,364%); osmiridium (36½ ozs., 550%); rubber (811 tons, 102,158%). Number of horses (1927-28), 826; cattle, 6,144; mules, 145.

A steamer trades between Sydney and Port Moresby every month, and small coastal vessels run at frequent intervals between the various inter-territorial ports. Ocean-going shipping entered and cleared 1927-28, British, 168,147 tons; foreign, 58,637 tons. There are wireless telegraph stations at Port Moresby, Samarai, Popo, and Oriomo.

There are branches of the Bank of New South Wales at Port Moresby and Samarai. The currency and its legal tender are the same as in the Commonwealth of Australia.

NEW ZEALAND.

New Zealand was first discovered in 1642 by Tasman, and the coast was explored by Captain Cook in 1769, and in subsequent years. It became a resort for whalers and traders, chiefly from Australia. In 1840 the native chiefs ceded the sovereignty to the British Crown and the islands became a British Colony.

The aborigines, called Maoris, are a branch of the Polynesian race; they are divided into about twenty clans, analogous to those of the Scottish Highlands. Between 1845 and 1848, and again between 1860 and 1870, about half of these clans were in revolt against British rule, but peace was permanently established in 1871.

Government and Constitution.

By Order in Council, the designation of the Colony of New Zealand was changed to the Dominion of New Zealand, on and from September 26, 1907. The present form of government was established by Statute 15 & 16 Vict., cap. 72, passed in 1852. The Colony was divided into six provinces, now nine. By an Act of the Colonial Legislature, 39 Vict., No. xxi., passed in 1875, the provincial system of government was abolished, and the powers previously exercised by superintendents and provincial officers were exercised by the Governor (Governor-General from June 1917), or by local boards. The legislative power is vested in the Governor-General and a 'General Assembly' consisting of two Chambers—a Legislative Council and a House of Representatives. The Governor-General has the power of assenting to or withholding consent from bills, or he may reserve them for His Majesty's pleasure. He summons, prorogues, and dissolves the Parliament. He can send drafts of bills to either House for consideration, but in case of appropriations of public money must first recommend the House of Representatives to make provision accordingly before any appropriations can become law. He can return bills for amendment to either House.

The Legislative Council consists of forty members, who are paid at the rate of 315*l.* per annum. Members hold their seats for seven years only, unless reappointed.

The House of Representatives consists of eighty members, including four Maoris, elected by the people for three years. They are paid at the rate of 450*l.* per annum. Every man or woman registered as an elector is eligible as a member of the House of Representatives. For European representation every adult person (of either sex), if resident one year in the Dominion and three months in an electoral district, is required to be registered an elector for such Electoral District. No person may be registered on more than one electoral roll. Every adult Maori resident in any of the four Maori electoral districts can vote, provided he (or she) be not registered on any European roll. Registration is not required in Native districts.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

For purposes of local government New Zealand is divided into counties and boroughs. The counties are subdivided into ridings. County councils are empowered to constitute road districts on petition being made. Besides the road districts, which are very numerous, there are town, drainage, electric supply, water supply, river, tramway, local railway, hospital, and harbour districts.

The ratepayers in the road districts of a county are qualified as electors for the purposes of the county council, and the members of each road board are elected by the ratepayers of the district.

Area and Population.

There are two principal islands, the North and South Islands, besides Stewart Island, and small outlying islands, including (since 1901) the Cook and some other islands in the Pacific Ocean. The group is 1,000 miles long, and 180 miles across at the broadest part; coast line 3,000 miles. New Zealand is about 1,200 miles east of Australia. Area, excluding annexed islands, 103,568 square miles. North Island, 44,131 square miles, South Island 58,120, Stewart Island 662 square miles, Chatham Islands 372 square miles, outlying islands 284 square miles. Acreage 66,390,262 acres, exclusive of the Cook and other islands (179,200 acres), and up to March, 1928, 21,350,363 acres had been alienated, and 14,763,080 acres reserved and set apart by the State for special purposes. The area of Native lands at March 31, 1928, was 5,265,233 acres. The estimated population June 30, 1928, was 1,389,076, exclusive of Maoris, 65,004, and residents of Cook and other annexed Islands, 14,814, of the Tokelau Islands, 1,033, and of Western Samoa (mandated territory), 42,949. Census population, exclusive of aborigines and dependencies:—

Education.

The University of New Zealand consists of the Otago University at Dunedin, with 93 professors and lecturers; the Canterbury University College at Christchurch, with 51 professors and lecturers; the Auckland University College, with 48 professors and lecturers; and the Victoria University College at Wellington, with 33 professors and lecturers: students on registers of the four constituent colleges (1927), 4,878. The University colleges are all endowed with lands. The Canterbury Agricultural College is a recognised school of agriculture.

At the end of 1927 there were 43 incorporated or endowed secondary schools, with 587 (excluding part-time) teachers and 14,190 pupils (excluding 411 in lower departments). There are also 79 District High Schools with 161 teachers and 3,443 scholars in the secondary division. Two Junior High Schools with 138 pupils and 21 Technical High and Technical Day Schools with 5,703 pupils. Of private secondary schools there were 40 registered, with 2,932 pupils. Twelve secondary schools for Maoris had 524 pupils.

For primary schools there is an Education Department (which also exercises certain functions in regard to both university and secondary schools). There are 9 Local Education Boards. At the end of 1927 there were 2,601 public primary schools, 6,797 teachers (including 567 probationers), 223,388 scholars on the rolls; average attendance (1927), 194,540. Education is compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14. The instruction given at the public schools is secular only, and for the ordinary standard course entirely free.

There are 7 schools of mines; 4 normal schools; 5 central schools of art; 13 industrial schools; a school for the deaf; an institute for the blind (at Auckland); a special school for mentally backward boys at Otekaikē, Otago; and a similar school for girls at Richmond, Nelson. There were also, at the end of 1927, 305 registered primary private schools, with 27,358 pupils.

There were 134 Native village schools, with 297 teachers and 6,620 scholars, including 832 Europeans. Total net expenditure by the State on Native schools in 1927-28 was 87,804*l*. Total expenditure out of public funds in 1927-28 upon education of all kinds 3,769,969*l*.

Justice and Crime.

There are ten supreme court judges, and thirty stipendiary magistrates. There are numerous magistrates' courts and justices of the peace.

In 1927 there were 45,930 summary convictions, and 1,739 sentences in supreme courts, including 1,264 cases sent up from lower courts for sentence. At the end of 1927 the gaols and Borstal institutions contained 1,549 prisoners.

Pauperism, Pensions, etc.

The Dominion is divided into districts, with elective boards for the administration of the public hospitals and charitable relief. The Government subsidises bequests and voluntary contributions at the rate of 20*s*. in the pound; and contributions by local authorities, according to a sliding scale, ranging from 14*s*. in the pound to 26*s*. in the pound, and averaging throughout the Dominion 20*s*. in the pound. The apportionments are made according to the value of rateable property within the district. The total expenditure on Charitable Aid during the year ended March 31, 1927, was 205,648*l*.

During 1927 the benevolent and orphan asylums accommodated 11,270 inmates; and 4,014 children were wholly or partly maintained by the State in industrial schools and other institutions in 1927.

An Act, passed in 1898 and amended on several occasions since, provided for old-age pensions. Every person, not an alien or an Asiatic, who fulfils certain conditions is entitled to a pension of 45*l.* 10*s.* a year, reducible by 1*l.* for every 1*l.* by which income exceeds 52*l.* The joint annual income of a married couple in receipt of pensions must not exceed 143*l.* (including pensions). Pensions are also granted to widows, to miners incapacitated as a result of miners' phthisis, to veterans of the Maori war, and to certain classes of blind persons. In addition are those pensions granted in respect of the recent war.

A system of family allowances at the rate of 2*s.* per week for each child after the second, in cases where income excluding family allowance is under 4*l.* per week, came into force on April 1, 1927.

Prior to 1925–26 the figures shown for railways were the actual receipts taken. For 1925–26 and subsequent years they relate only to amounts transferred from Working Railways Account to cover interest on railway capital liability. Similarly the figures for railway expenditure are the actual payments prior to 1925–26, but for subsequent years relate only to loss on branch lines and isolated sections.

The number of income-tax payers in 1926–27 was 48,899, and of land-tax payers 51,506. The postal and telegraph receipts in 1927–28 were 3,329,511*l.* As in the case of railways, these are now (from April 1, 1928) paid into a separate account.

The following expenditure table of the Consolidated Fund is exclusive of sums paid to the Public Works Fund :—

Year ended March 31	Public Debt Charges	Railways	Education	Post and Telegraph	Constabulary and Defence	Total (including others)

Estimates 1928-29: Revenue, 23,868,250*l.*; expenditure, 23,608,104*l.*

The total expenditure out of the Public Works Fund from 1870 to March 31, 1928, was 104,451,722*l.*, including charges and expenses for raising loans.

The average taxation per head of the population in 1927-28 was 1*l.* 17*s.* 7*d.*

The public debt at March 31, 1928, was: debentures and stock, 251,896,252*l.*; of which indebtedness on account of the war of 1914-19 represented 71,970,636*l.* Most of the rest of the debt represents reproductive expenditure or investments.

Defence.

The military forces of New Zealand comprise the Permanent Force, the Territorial Force, the Reserve, the Cadets and the Nursing Service. All male inhabitants of New Zealand, who are British subjects and have resided therein for 6 months, are liable for training as senior cadets from 14 to 18 years of age. Between 18 and 19 they pass into the general training section, and are posted to the Territorial Force or pass to the Reserve. Senior cadets do 30 drills of 1½ hours, 6 half-day parades, and a prescribed rifle course. The Territorial Force do 6 days training in camp, 6 half-day parades, 12 drills, and a prescribed rifle course. The strength of the Permanent Force in March, 1928, was 107 officers and 399 other ranks, and of the Territorial Force (limited by law to 30,000), 1,069 officers and 20,140 other ranks. The senior cadets numbered 34,464.

The New Zealand military forces are under a general officer commanding, who has at his disposal a general headquarters divided into the general staff and administrative services and departments. He is responsible to the Ministry of Defence. New Zealand is organised into 3 military commands, the Northern, Central, and Southern, each command being under an officer commanding.

The forces are organised so as to form a complete infantry division and a mounted division on mobilization, and comprise :—

	Brigades	Regi- ments	Bat- talions	Squadrons	Batteries	Depôt companies
Infantry . . .	3	12	34	—	—	—

	9	21	34	33	21	12

The Air Force consists of 17 machines. The personnel is 145, including 21 permanent officers and men.

The Naval Defence Act, 1920, provided for the establishment of a New Zealand Naval Force, to be raised and maintained by voluntary enlistment only, enlistment being for a prescribed period not less than two years. In time of war the Naval Force (including vessels acquired for defence purposes) is at the disposal of the British Government. The Naval force consists of training ship Philomet (ex-cruiser of 2,500 tons), the cruisers Dunedin and Diomedes, loaned free of charge (other than maintenance) by the Imperial Government, and the sloops Laburnum and Veronica. In addition there are the oil-tank vessel Nucula, the trawler Wakakura and the tug Toia. The establishment of a New Zealand Royal Naval Reserve is also provided for under the Act. The total of the Naval Vote for the financial year 1928-29 was 449,011*l.* net.

Production and Industry.

I. AGRICULTURE.

Two-thirds of the surface of New Zealand is suitable for agriculture and grazing. About 12,500,000 acres are still under forest. The total area under cultivation (including 16,680,348 acres in sown grasses and 124,003 in fallow) in 1927 was 18,880,436 acres. The area of Crown lands (other than reserves) leased under various tenures at March 31, 1928, was 18,014,185 acres, and 3,112,892 acres were available for future disposal.

The largest freehold estates are held in the South Island. The extent of occupied holdings of or over one acre in 1927 (exclusive of holdings within borough boundaries) was as follows:—

Sizes of Holdings	Number of Holdings	Acres	Sizes of Holdings	Number of Holdings	Acres
1 to 10 acres	15,208	72,381	5,001 to 10,000 acres	562	3,870,706

Commerce.

In 1927 the imports duty-free amounted to 18,788,797*l.*; subject to duty, 25,994,149*l.*; total 44,782,946*l.*

1927	44,782,946	47,571,233	925,121	48,496,354

The value of imports is taken as the current domestic value in the country exporting same, plus a uniform addition of ten per cent. for freight, &c. For exports the 'free-on-board in New Zealand' value is given; but, as regards the main items, the Collector of Customs examines carefully the amounts stated and compares them with current price lists, to prevent any over-estimate. Beginning with 1914 the country of origin of imports is obtained, as well as country of shipment. The country of shipment is obtained in cases of exports, but this may or may not be the country of ultimate destination. Very little cargo in transitu passes through New Zealand.

The principal imports and exports in 1927 are given as follows:—

Attached to New Zealand are the following islands:

Auckland Islands, 50° 32' S., 166° 13' E., 200 miles S. of Stewart Island. Area of largest about 280 square miles. Uninhabited. The New Zealand Government maintains a dépôt of provisions and clothing for the use of shipwrecked mariners on the largest island of the group.

Chatham Islands, 43° 50' S., 177° W., 536 miles E. of New Zealand. Area 375 square miles; population (April, 1926) 562 (268 Europeans and 294 Maoris and Morioris).

The Cook and other South Pacific Islands were annexed to New Zealand in June, 1901. They lie between 8° and 23° S. lat., 157° and 170° W. long. The names of the islands with their populations (1926) are as follows:—

Cook Islands—	Population		Population
Rarotonga . . .	3,936	Palmerston Is. . .	97
Mangaia . . .	1,249	Penrhyn (Tongareva) . .	395

Mitiaro . . .	238	Suwarrow . . .	—
Hervey Islands . .	23	Niue (Savage Is.) . .	3,795
		Total . . .	13,877

Total area of the Cook and other islands about 280 square miles.

Rarotonga is 20 miles in circumference; Atiu, 20 miles; Aitutaki, 21 miles; Niue (or Savage Island), 40 miles. Laws for the Cook Islands have been made since 1890 by a general Legislature, and are administered by an Executive Council, of which the Arikis, or native chiefs, are members. At Rarotonga and Niue there are (New Zealand) Resident Commissioners, whose approval is required for all enactments. The customs tariff of New Zealand is enforced. In 1915 an Act was passed by the New Zealand Parliament consolidating the laws relating to the Islands, and providing for the appointment of a member of the Executive Council of New Zealand as Minister of the Cook Islands. The Minister is charged with the administration of the Islands. The Act provides for the constitution of Island Councils, lower and higher Courts of Justice, and native land court, as well as for the establishment of public schools, &c. In 1927 the numbers of births, marriages, and deaths were respectively 424, 144, and 347. Education: there are 30 schools in the group, with roll number of 2,738 scholars. Revenue, financial year 1927-28, 25,053*l.*; expenditure, 23,924*l.* The trade for 1927 was:—Imports, 130,612*l.*, including 98,669*l.* from New Zealand and 18,274*l.* from United States; exports 152,707*l.*, including 113,396*l.* to New Zealand, 29,195*l.* to United States of America. Chief exports, 1927:—Bananas, 25,975*l.*; oranges, 57,059*l.*; tomatoes, 19,319*l.*; copra, 40,279*l.*; pearl shell, 3,660*l.*; fungus, 2,319*l.*; hats, 935*l.*, and fancy baskets, 1,445*l.* A wireless station is maintained at Rarotonga, with sub-stations at Aitutaki, Atiu, Mangaia and Niue.

Kermadec Islands, 38° S., 178° 30' W., 600 miles N.N.E. of New Zealand. Area 15 square miles. Now uninhabited. The largest of the group is Raoul or Sunday Island, 20 miles in circuit; Macaulay Island is 3 miles in circuit.

Ross Dependency.—The coasts of the Ross Sea, with the adjacent islands and territories, between 160° East longitude and 150° West longitude, and south of the 60th degree of latitude, were proclaimed a British Settlement and placed under the jurisdiction of the Governor-General of New Zealand by Order-in-Council of 30th July, 1923.

Union Islands (Tokelau).—These Islands, formerly part of the Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony, have been transferred to the jurisdiction of New Zealand, February 11, 1926, and are administered by the Administrator of Western Samoa. They lie between 8° 30' and 11° S. lat., and 171° and 172° W. long. (population 1926, 1,033), and comprise five clusters of islets, the principal of which are Fakaofo or Bowditch, Nukunono or Duke of Clarence, Atafu or Duke of York; area of group, 7 square miles.

Small uninhabited outlying islands within the boundaries of New Zealand are: Campbell Island, the Three Kings Islands, the Antipodes Islands, the Bounty Islands, and the Snares Islands.

FIJI.

Constitution and Government

The Fiji Islands were discovered by Tasman in 1643 and visited by Captain Cook in 1769. The sovereignty was ceded to Great Britain on October 10, 1874. The government is administered by a Governor appointed by the Crown, assisted by an Executive Council consisting of 8 members. Laws are passed by the Legislative Council, of which the Governor is president. It comprises twelve nominated members (including one Indian member), seven members elected by persons of European descent, and two nominated Fijian members.

Governor of Fiji and High Commissioner for the Western Pacific.—Sir Eyre Hutson, K.C.M.G. (appointed, 1925). Salary 3,000*l.* as Governor of Fiji, and 1,200*l.* as High Commissioner for the Western Pacific.

For the purposes of native government the colony is divided into 19 provinces, in 6 of which a superior native chief exercises, under the title of Roko Tui, a form of rule which recognises to a large degree the principles of native administration by which the people formerly governed themselves. In thirteen of the provinces there are European commissioners; 186 native officials are employed in subordinate administrative capacities. There are also 30 native stipendiary magistrates associated with 17 District Commissioners in the administration of justice. A European commissioner, who is generally Government medical officer, resides in Rotuma. In several cases the District Medical Officer is also the District Commissioner. There is a constabulary consisting of Fijians and Indians, with European officers, and a Defence Force (Europeans, half-castes, and Fijians). Strength of police force, 1927, 221.

Area and Population.

Fiji comprises a group of about 250 islands (about 80 inhabited) lying between 15° and 22° south latitudes and 177° east and 178° west longitude. The largest is Viti Levu, area 4,053 square miles; next is Vanna Levu, area 2,130 square miles. The island of Rotuma, between 12° and 15° of south latitude, and 175° and 180° east longitude, was added to the colony in 1880. Total area, including Rotuma, 7,083 square miles.

At the 31st December, 1927, the population of the Colony, including Rotuma, was estimated at 173,836; Europeans, 4,480 (2,479 males, 2,001 females); Fijians, 90,263 (46,612 males, 43,651 females); Indians, 69,463 (41,757 males, 27,706 females); Chinese, 1,106 (1,023 males, 83 females); half-castes, 3,120 (1,620 males, 1,500 females); others, 5,404 (3,434 males, 1,970 females).

Among Europeans the birth-rate in 1927 was 24·78 per 1000, and deaths 9·60; among Fijians, birth-rate, 32·53, death-rate, 22·98; among Indians, birth-rate, 27·72, death-rate, 9·42; others, birth-rate, 26·59, death-rate, 21·19; marriages, 6·37 of the total population.

Suva, the capital, is on the south coast of Viti Levu: European population (census of April 24, 1921), 1,443, suburbs, 298, total, 1,741.

Religion and Instruction.

Attending at Methodist native churches in 1927, 80,991; Roman Catholic Mission, 13,561. The Methodist Mission comprises 20 European missionaries, 20 European mission sisters, 110 native ministers, 193 catechists, 757 teachers, and 3,851 local preachers, 4,422 class leaders, with 702 churches, and 339 other preaching places. The Roman Catholic Mission has 30 European ministers and 287 native teachers, 50 European sisters, 78 churches and chapels, 3 native training institutions.

In 1927 there were two Government Grammar schools for European children at Suva, one for boys and one for girls, with a total roll number of 260. In Levuka there is a Government school for both boys and girls, at which 156 were on the roll in 1927: and another at Rarawai with a roll number of 45. Besides these the Roman Catholic Mission has three schools for Europeans. The Queen Victoria School (a Government school), and six Provincial Schools (supported by Government), are boarding schools for Fijian boys. There were 555 pupils in 1927. There is one Government Indian school with a roll number in 1927 of 51. The Government paid grants-in-aid in 1927 to 30 assisted primary schools and 25 assisted vernacular schools, with 4,578 pupils. Expenditure on education in 1927 was 34,027*l*.

Shipping and Communications.

During 1927 the number of merchant vessels entered at the ports of entry was 165 steamers of 637,820 tons, and 11 sailing vessels of 3,656 tons. Total tonnage entered and cleared in 1927, 1,278,757 (British 918,107).

There is a private small-gauge railway of 120 miles from Tavua to Sigatoka.

There is telegraphic communication between Suva and Levuka, 54 miles, of which 11½ miles is by submarine cable, and an overland telephone from Suva to Lautoka, 125 miles. Wireless telegraph stations have been erected at Suva, Labasa, Waiyevo (Taveuni) and Savusavu. There is direct cable communication with Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

The Government Savings Bank had, at the end of 1927, 5,986 depositors, whose deposits amounted to 153,869*l.* The headquarters are at the General Post Office, Suva, and there are fifteen branches throughout the Colony.

The Bank of New South Wales has three branches and the Bank of New Zealand has two in the Colony. The currency in circulation consists of Government notes and English coins of pre-war fineness. The currency notes in circulation on December 31, 1927, amounted to 366,583*l.* The gold reserve in the note guarantee fund amounted to 73,481*l.*, and the securities forming the investment portion of the fund to 312,046*l.*

Money, weights, and measures are the same as in the United Kingdom.

PACIFIC ISLANDS.

TONGA.

(FRIENDLY ISLANDS.)

The Tonga or Friendly Islands continued up to 1899 to be a neutral region in accordance with the Declaration of Berlin, April 6, 1886. By the Anglo-German Agreement of November 14, 1899, subsequently accepted by the United States, the Tonga Islands were left practically under the Protectorate of Great Britain, and a Protectorate was proclaimed on May 18, 1900. British and foreign nationals are subject to the jurisdiction of the Tongan courts only for offences against Tongan laws relating to customs, taxes, quarantine and local police, not recognised as offences against British law. In other respects they are subject to the jurisdiction of the Court of the High Commissioner. In 1905 the financial administration came under the supervision of the British Agent and Consul in Tonga.

Queen.—Salote, succeeded on the death of her father, George II, on April 12, 1918.

There is a Legislative Assembly which meets annually, composed of seven nobles elected by their peers, seven elected representatives of the people, and the Ministers of the Crown, numbering nine, or twenty-three members in all. The elections are held triennially.

The kingdom consists of 3 groups of islands, called respectively Tongatabu, Haapai (which are low-lying groups of coral formation), and Vavau (which is high and mountainous), together with the outlying islands of Niuatobutabu, Taofahi, and Niuafoou, and lies between 15° and 25° 30' south, and 173° and 177° west, its western boundary being the eastern boundary of Fiji. There are two active volcanoes in the group, on the Islands of Tofua and Kao. The main group was discovered by Tasman in 1643. The climate is mild and healthy, malaria being unknown. The temperature during seven months of the year, from May to November, rarely exceeds 84° F. in the shade, and seldom, even in the hottest part of summer, exceeds 90° F. Total area, approximately 385 square miles; Capital, Nukualofa; population, estimated at the end of 1926, 25,918 Tongans, 530 Europeans, 235 half-castes, and 365 other Pacific islanders. The natives are Christian, there being about 16,000 adherents of the Wesleyan Free Church of Tonga, 4,000 of the Free Church, and 3,000 Roman Catholics. The native Tongans enjoy free education, free medical attendance and dental treatment. At the end of 1926 there were 109 public primary schools, with 4,946 pupils on the roll. At Tonga College there were 8 teachers, 3 Europeans, and 5 Tongans, and 170 students on December 31, 1927. The revenue amounted in 1926-27 to 72,562*l.*, and the expenditure to 83,518*l.* Native produce consists almost entirely of copra; the export in 1927 amounted to 11,252 tons, valued at 225,844*l.*, most of which was shipped to the U.K., Continental and American ports. Total imports, 1927, 157,783*l.*; total exports, 235,391*l.* The imports include drapery, flour, biscuits, fish, hardware, timber, sugar, meats; and the exports copra. The trade is with Great Britain, New Zealand, Australia and the United States of America. Steamer communication with the outside world consists of one vessel of the Union Company's Fleet which maintains a four-weekly service with New Zealand, via Fiji and Samoa, in addition to which steam and sailing vessels visit the group for shipments of copra. There is a wireless station at Nukualofa which keeps up telegraphic communication through Samoa or Fiji, and a sub-station at Vavan, which communicates only with Nukualofa. There is a telephone system in Nukualofa.

Since May 1, 1905, British coin is legal tender and there is a Government note issue. The weights and measures are the same as in Great Britain. Accounts are kept in pounds, shillings, and pence.

High Commissioner and Consul-General for the Western Pacific.—Sir Eyre Hutson, K.C.M.G.

Agent and Consul.—J. S. Neill.

The High Commissioner of the Western Pacific, assisted by deputies, has jurisdiction, in accordance with an Order in Council of 1893, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the Pacific Islanders' Protection Acts of 1872 and 1875, and to settle disputes between British subjects living in these islands. The jurisdiction of the High Commissioner extends over all the Western Pacific not within the limits of Fiji, Queensland, or New South Wales, or the jurisdiction of any civilised Power, and includes the Southern Solomon Islands, and the various small groups in Melanesia.

In the sections devoted to New South Wales and New Zealand mention is made of various annexed Pacific Islands. The following summary (omitting islands described elsewhere) gives the names and positions of islands which are unattached:—

Ducie Island, 24° 40' S. lat., 124° 48' W. long.

Pitcairn Island, 25° 5' S., 130° 5' W.; area 2 sq. m.; pop. in 1914, 140 (35 adult males, 39 adult females, 66 children). The affairs of the island are conducted by a Council of 7 members, with a President, who acts also as Chief Magistrate, and a Vice-President, who is also Government Secretary, subject to the control of the High Commissioner for the Western Pacific. In religion the islanders (descendants of the mutineers of the Bounty) are 'Seventh Day Adventists.' The products of the island are sweet potatoes, beans, sugar cane, yams, taro, melons, pumpkins, oranges, bananas, pineapples, and arrowroot, which is prepared in limited quantities with antiquated appliances. Excellent coffee also grows. The island is well stocked with goats and poultry.

Phoenix Group between 2° 30' and 4° 30' S. lat., and 171° and 174° 30' W. long. Eight islands: Mary, Enderbury, Phoenix, Birney, Gardner, McKean, Hull, Sydney; area of group, 16 sq. m., pop. 52.

Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony. The islands in this group were proclaimed as Protectorates in 1892 and annexed (at the request of the native Governments) as Gilbert and Ellice Islands Colony, on November 10, 1915. The Colony includes several groups of islands. (1) The Ellice Islands, between 5° 30' and 11° 20' S. lat., and 176° and 180° E. long. (population June 30, 1926, 3,582). The principal islands are Funafuti, Nukufetau, Vaitupu, Nui (or Netherland), Nintao (or Lynx or Speiden), Nanumaga (or Hudson), Nanumea (or St. Augustine), Nukulaelae (or Mitchell); Nukakita; area of group, 14 sq. m. (2) Fanning Island, 3° 50' N., 159° W.; area 15 sq. m.; Washington Island, 4° 40' N., 160° 20' W., area 6 sq. m., population of the two islands, June 30, 1926, 491, including 41 Europeans; and Ocean Island (population June 30, 1926, 2,386, including 96 Europeans and 397 Asiatics). The last-named island is the Colony headquarters. It is situated 0° 52' S., and 169° 35' E., is six miles in circumference, and was annexed by Great Britain in 1901. The island is exceedingly rich in high-grade phosphate, which is worked by the British Phosphate Commission, who purchased the rights of the Pacific Phosphate Company in 1921. A wireless station on the island maintains telegraphic communication via Fiji and Australia. (3) Christmas Island, situated roughly 2° N. lat., and 157° W. long., discovered by Cook in 1777, annexed by Great Britain in 1888, and included in the Colony in November, 1919, is the largest atoll in the Pacific, being over 100 miles in circumference. It is leased to the Central Pacific Coconut Plantations, Ltd., for a term of 87 years from January 1, 1914. Population 1922, European, 4, Tahitians, 28. (4) The Gilbert Islands on the equator (population 1926, 23,410). The principal islands are Butaritari, Makin, Tarawa, Abaiang, Marakei, Maiana, Abemama, Kuria, Aranuka, Nonouti, Tabiteuea, Beru, Nukunau, Onotoa, Tamana, and Arorae. Area, 166 sq. m.; population at 1921 census: 264 Europeans, 29,285 Pacific Island natives, and 348 Asiatics; total, 29,897 (including 14,205 females). Education is provided by the Government. Revenue of the Colony for the year ended June 30, 1927, 52,925*l.*, of which the principal items were: Customs, 20,591*l.*; native taxes, &c., 6,175*l.*; licences, &c., 13,024*l.*; royalty on phosphates, 6,464*l.*; interest on investments, 1,845*l.*; fees of court, etc., 1,812*l.*; post office and telegraphs, 1,230*l.*; miscellaneous, 1,034*l.*; Imperial grant, 750*l.* The expenditure for the same period amounted to 44,869*l.* Principal crops: pandanus fruit and coconuts. The trade in 1926-27 amounted to 113,453*l.* (incomplete figures) for imports, and 395,728*l.* for exports (phosphate, 258,775 tons, 355,815*l.*; copra, 2,544 tons, 39,341*l.*). The Colony is administered by the High Commissioner through a Resident Commissioner, whose headquarters are at Ocean Island.

Resident Commissioner—A. F. Grimble.

British Solomon Islands, about 8° S. and 160° W., are Guadalcanar, Malaita, Ysabel, San Cristoval, New Georgia, Choiseul, Shortland, Mono (or Treasury), Vella Lavella, Ronongo, Gizo, Rendova, Russell, Florida, Rennell, and numerous small islands (the Lord Howe Group or Ontong Java, the Santa Cruz Islands, Tucopia and Mitre Islands, and the Duff, or Wilson Group, are also included in the Solomon Islands Protectorate). Area 11,000 sq. miles: European population (1922), 493; native population, about 150,000, Non-Europeans 90, of whom 63 are Asiatics. They are under British Protection. Education is entirely in the hands of missions. Revenue, for the year ended March 31, 1928, 75,664*l.*; expenditure, 73,993*l.* Coconuts, rubber, sweet potatoes, pine-apples, bananas are grown. The value of imports in 1927-28 was 261,741*l.*; and of exports, 386,546*l.* (mainly copra, 21,784 tons, 348,793*l.*; trocas shell, 299 tons, 12,653*l.*; ivory nuts, 1,321 tons, 12,999*l.*; timber logs, 224,619 square ft., 1,650*l.*). Vessels entered, 1927-28, 67,207 tons (53,993 British); cleared, 61,844 tons (British 54,065 tons). A paper currency was issued in 1917-18. Little gold is in circulation, and only 4,600*l.* Protectorate paper money. The chief medium of exchange is Commonwealth bank notes. There is a Resident Commissioner, whose headquarters are at Tulagi, a small island off the south coast of Florida. A nominated Advisory Council assists in the administration. (For part of the Solomon Islands lately owned by Germany and now administered by Australia, see section on late German New Guinea below.)

Resident Commissioner.—R. R. Kane, M.C.

Starbuck Island, 5° 30' S. lat., 155° W. long.; area 1 sq. m., uninhabited. Malden Island, 4° S. lat., 155° W. long.; area 35 sq. m., contains a considerable deposit of guano. Jarvis Island, on the equator, 159° W., area 1½ sq. m., pop. 30. Palmyra, 6° N., 162° 30' W., area 1½ sq. m. Baker Islands, on the equator.

These islands are mostly of coral formation; most of them grow coconut trees, and some of them are valuable for their guano.

The New Hebrides Group lies roughly 500 miles west of Fiji and 250 miles N.E. of New Caledonia. Estimated area 5,700 square miles. The group is under joint administration of English and French officials, as provided for by Anglo-French Convention of February 1906, ratified October 1906, and a Protocol signed at London on August 6, 1914, and ratified on March 18, 1922. The interests of British, French, and natives, respectively, are guaranteed; the conditions of land-holding in the Islands fixed; and the regulation of the recruitment of native labour provided for. Within the Islands Great Britain is represented by a High Commissioner, who delegates his powers to a Resident Commissioner stationed in the group.

The larger islands of the group are Espiritu Santo, Malekula, Epi, Ambrym, Efate or Sandwich, Erromanga, Tanna and Aneityum. There are three active volcanoes, on Tanna, Ambrym and Lopevi, respectively. Earthquake shocks are of common occurrence. The native population of the group is about 55-60,000. On Malekula, Santo and Pentecost cannibalism is still practised. White population 1927: British 200, French 720. Foreigners, including Asiatics, who have opted for British regime 40, and for French regime 4,608. With the latter are included some 4,500 Tonkinese coolies under indenture to the French. There are numerous Presbyterian and Catholic mission native schools; one French Government school and two Catholic mission schools for whites. Public revenue, 1927: British service, 620*l.*; condominium service, 3,037,711 francs; public expenditure: British service, 12,688*l.*; condominium service, 2,220,479 francs.

Area under cultivation: British, 8,685 acres; French, 35,500 acres. British acreage under cultivation is composed principally of coconuts and a few hundred acres under cotton. French acreage under cultivation includes coconuts, about 20,000 acres; cocoa, 8,000 acres; cotton, 5,500 acres; coffee, 2,000 acres.

Bananas, sugarcane, oranges and all tropical fruits grow well. A small saw-mill has been established on Efate. Kauri pine is found on Aneityum, but is no longer worked. There are several British and French trading companies operating in the group. Settlers and speculating companies have acquired large areas of land within the islands, the ownership of which is generally disputed, and which in consequence remains undeveloped pending adjudication by the mixed tribunal. Imports, condominium, 1927: value in French currency, 38,184,562 francs; value in British currency, 307,939*l.* Exports, condominium: value in French currency, 49,855,472 francs; value in British currency, 398,028*l.* The trade is mostly with Australia, New Caledonia and France. Principal imports are: Provisions and foodstuffs, clothing, metal-work and furniture; exports: Copra (10,204 tons in 1927, value 204,090*l.*); coffee (123 tons, 4,842*l.*); cocoa (21,344 tons, 140,697L.); cotton, in seed (880 tons, 880L., ginned, 501 tons, 40,170L.); trochas (86 tons, 4,299L.); maize (118 tons, 949L.); sandalwood (23 tons, 384L.); wool (5 tons, 601L.); miscellaneous, 1,116L. Import of arms, ammunition, wines and spirits is prohibited except under special permit. There is frequent communication between New Caledonia and Australia; a five-weekly mail service being maintained by the Burns, Philip Line and a four-weekly service by Messageries Maritimes, while a two-monthly service is also maintained by the last-named company with France and the New Hebrides via Tahiti and Panama. The shipping entered and cleared from the Port of Vila during 1927 was 125 vessels; 94,487 tons entered; 94,487 tons cleared.

MANDATED TERRITORIES IN THE PACIFIC: NEW GUINEA, WESTERN SAMOA, AND NAURU ISLAND.

TERRITORY OF NEW GUINEA.

(LATE GERMAN NEW GUINEA.)

GERMAN NEW GUINEA was the name given to all those territories held by Germany in the Western Pacific which were governed from Rabaul, the capital of these Possessions. It included: Kaiser Wilhelm's Land, Bismarck Archipelago, the German Solomon Islands, Nauru, the Caroline Islands, the Marshall Islands, and the Marianne or Ladrone Islands (excepting the Island of Guam). These Possessions were occupied by an Australian Force on September 12, 1914. The islands north of the Equator, namely, the Marshall, Caroline, Pelew, and Ladrone (Marianne) Islands, are now administered by Japan as mandatory. Those south of the Equator, namely, the Bismarck Archipelago, those of the Solomon Islands formerly owned by Germany, and (late) German New Guinea, are assigned to Australia, German Samoa to New Zealand, and Nauru, a small islet just south of the Equator, to the British Empire.

NEW GUINEA.—The mandate from the League of Nations is dated December 17, 1920, and on May 9, 1921, the Australian Government established its civil administration in the Territory. The laws of the Commonwealth, subject to local modifications as necessary, may be applied to the mandated territories. The military training of the natives, except for local police purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established.

The non-indigenous population at the last census, April 4, 1921, was 3,173, of which the British numbered 715, Chinese 1,402, Dutch 215, German 579, Japanese 87, and United States of America 60. The number of persons engaged in agricultural pursuits was 460, and those practising religion professionally numbered 256.

The administrator of the Territory of New Guinea is Brigadier-General E. A. Wisdom, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D. The seat of Administration is at Rabaul.

1. North Eastern New Guinea. This territory, the northern section of south-east New Guinea, lies between 2° 15' and 8° south latitude, and 141° 30' and 148° east longitude. The area, including Manam, Karkar, Long, Bagabag, Schouten, Kairiru, (D'Urville), and some smaller islands, is 68,500 square miles. The native population in 1927 for areas explored was, counted and estimated, 237,179, but so little is known of the interior that any figures are very conjectural. It was declared a German Protectorate in 1884, and was under the control and development of the New Guinea Company from 1885 to 1899. The principal station on the mainland is at Madang. The coast-line is very little broken, and there are few good harbours. There are high ranges running parallel with the coast plain, which is from 20 to 100 miles wide and broken with steep spurs in some places extending to the actual coast-line. The ranges in the interior have been little explored, and some of their summits are known to exceed 12,000 feet. The principal rivers are the Sepik, which is navigable for over 250 miles, the Ramu or Ottillie, and the Markham. The climate is hot and the rainfall large. There are two missionary societies at work; these missions are also planters and traders. Inter-island trade is carried on by small steamships and motor-schooners. There is a three-weekly service from Australia to Madang.

The total area under cultivation in the territory in 1927 was 186,006 acres. The greater part of this area was planted with coconuts (about 34,800 acres). Rubber and cocoa are also grown. Tropical fruits grow very abundantly. The staple articles of food of the natives are yams, taro, sago, and bananas. There is very little land used for pasture. The land is rich in mineral wealth, but no minerals are worked on account of the difficulty of transporting mining machinery. Native labour is used to work the plantations, and the natives are recruited either from the adjacent villages or from other parts of the Possessions. There are some 6,635 native labourers so recruited for plantation purposes. The total indentured labour in the territory on June 30, 1927, was 27,002.

The chief towns are: Madang and district (non-indigenous population, 272); Morobe and district (non-indigenous population, 139); Aitape and district (non-indigenous population, 103).

2. Bismarck Archipelago.—In November, 1884, a German Protectorate was declared over the New Britain Archipelago and several adjacent groups of islands, and in May, 1885, they were renamed the Bismarck Archipelago. The Archipelago lies between  $141^{\circ} 30'$  and  $156^{\circ}$  east longitude, and the Equator and  $8^{\circ}$  south latitude. The chief islands are New Britain, area 10,000 square miles; New Ireland, area 3,000 square miles; Lavongai (late New Hanover, 530 square miles; Duke of York Islands, area 22 square miles; the Admiralty Islands (principal island, Manus), area 600 square miles. The other groups included in this Archipelago are Mussau Islands, Gardner Islands, Nuguria, Nissan Island, the Vitu Islands, Umboi Islands, Hermit Islands, Ninigo Group, Kaniet and Sae Islands. In these various groups there are upwards of 100 small islands. The native population of the Archipelago in 1927 of areas patrolled was 134,252.

New Britain, the largest island of this group, is a long island of crescent shape lying east and west. It has a mean breadth of 50 miles and a length of 300 miles. The island is practically undeveloped except for the Gazelle Peninsula in the north, four plantations on the northern coast, and six plantations on the southern coast, west of Henry Reid Bay. A Government station, named Gasmata (non-indigenous population 16), has been established about midway along the southern coast. Talasea (non-indigenous population 34) is situated on the north coast. The interior of the island is little known. The native population within explored areas in 1927 was 81,859. A mountain chain traverses the entire length of the island, and in the centre consists of several irregular ranges. There are several active volcanoes. The highest known peak is the Father, about 7,500 feet high, which is an active volcano. The island has very fine harbours. The only one visited by oversea shipping is Simpson Harbour, in Blanche Bay. The principal settlement is around the shores of this bay. The chief crop is coconuts. There are two missionary societies at work. The chief town is Rabaul (non-indigenous population, 1,350), which is the seat of the Government. The old capital was at Kokopo (non-indigenous population, 369), which is situated 14 miles south-east of Rabaul. At Rabaul there is an anchorage for all ships and a fine jetty has been built. Rabaul is well laid out and has a fine public garden. New Britain and the adjacent islands, including Duke of York Island, have an area of 14,600 square miles.

New Ireland, the second in size and importance of the Bismarck Archipelago, is situated north of New Britain, from which it is separated by St. George's Channel. The chief town is Kavieng (non-indigenous population, 356), at the north-west extremity of the island. The only other town is Namatanai (non-indigenous population, about 148), on the south-east coast. The island has a long range of mountains running through it. It is of older formation than New Britain, and does not show any signs of recent volcanic activity. The principal harbour is Nusa, on the north coast of which Kavieng, the seat of the local administration, is situated. The interior of the island, with the exception of the extreme southern end, is fairly well known. The native population in 1927 was 38,603, including adjacent islands. The soil is fertile and the climate similar to that of New Britain. The chief industry is coconut growing. There are numerous plantations around the coast near Kavieng. New Ireland and adjacent islands, including New Hanover, Tabar, Litui, Tanga, Feni, Mussau and Emirau Groups have an area of 3,800 square miles.

The Admiralty Islands are the most important of the small groups. The chief island is Manus, sometimes called Great Admiralty Island. The chief town is Lorengan (population, including district, about 40) on the north-east coast. The native population of the group in 1927 was 13,800. Coconuts are the chief article of cultivation, and there are valuable pearl and other shell fisheries.

3. Solomon Islands.—The portion of the Solomon Islands within the area of the territory of New Guinea consists of the Islands of Bougainville Buka, and adjacent islands, including Nuguria, Nissan, Kilinailau, Tauu (Mortlock), and Nukumanu (Tasman) Islands. Bougainville has an area of 3,500 square miles, and a native population in 1927 of 46,109, and Buka an area of 300 square miles, and a native population, including adjacent islands, 1927, 9,519. Choiseul, Isabel or Mahaga, and various smaller islands to the east of Bougainville were transferred to Great Britain in 1899. The islands are very mountainous. Of the several volcanic cones, Bagano (in the Crown Prince range) is the only active volcano. The highest mountain is the dormant volcano Mount Balbi (in the Emperor range), 10,170 feet high situated in the centre of the island. The principal harbour is Kieta, situated on the east coast of Bougainville, where there is a Government station. Other good harbours are: Rawa and Tinputz on the north-east coast of Bougainville. There is a good harbour on the west side of Buka, named Carola Hafen. Missionary work amongst the natives is carried on by the Marist Brothers of the Roman Catholic Mission. As the plantations are new there is comparatively little export trade. The natives grow bananas, coconuts, taro, and sweet potatoes. The non-indigenous population is 148.

TERRITORY OF WESTERN SAMOA.

The former German Samoan Islands, now the Territory of Western Samoa, include Savaii and Upolu, the largest of the Samoan or Navigators' Islands. Samoa is a group of islands in the Western Pacific, lying in 13½ deg. to 14 deg. S. lat., and 168 deg. to 173 deg. W. long. The islands are some 130 miles N. of Tonga and between 400 and 500 miles N.E. of Fiji. The group consists of nine islands, in addition to rocks and islets. They are all, with the exception of Rose Island, of volcanic formation, and are, for the most part, surrounded with coral reefs. The four largest islands are Savaii, Upolu, Tutuila and Tau, in the Manu'a Group. By the Anglo-German Agreement of November 14, 1899, ratified by the United States in January, 1900, Great Britain renounced all rights over the islands in favour of Germany as regards Savaii, Upolu, Apolima and Manono, and in favour of the United States as regards Tutuila and other islands.

On August 29, 1914, the British occupied German Samoa. By the Treaty of Peace, 1919, Germany surrendered her possessions abroad, and Samoa is assigned under a mandate dated December 17, 1920, from the League of Nations to His Majesty the King in right of his Dominion of New Zealand, which has been empowered to govern Western Samoa. The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established.

The civil administration was inaugurated on May 1, 1920. There is a Legislative Council, consisting of not less than four nor more than six official members, and unofficial members (not exceeding in number the official members)—of whom three are elected members. The Administrator is entitled to preside over every meeting of the Council. No person is qualified for appointment to the Legislative Council unless he is either a natural-born British subject or was born in Samoa and is of European descent. There is a Native Council which advises the Administrator in native affairs.

Savaii has an area of about 660 square miles; Upolu has an area of between 550 and 600 square miles. Both islands are mountainous, fertile, and well watered. Several adjacent islets, exceedingly fertile, were included in the German dependency. The port of Apia is in Upolu. The inhabitants of the islands are Polynesians, professing Christianity (Protestants, Catholics, and Mormons). Population of Western Samoa, as recorded at December 31, 1927, was:—Europeans and half-castes, 2,564; Samoan natives, 39,215; Chinese labourers under contract, 939; other islanders, 147; total, 42,865. There are four Government schools, and also schools conducted by various Missions—the number of scholars recorded being over 11,000. There are 60 miles of good roads. The chief products are copra and cacao. A fruit export trade, principally bananas, has been commenced between Samoa and New Zealand. The cultivation of cotton and other products is being undertaken experimentally, whilst rubber tapping (1,700 acres planted) has now been recommenced. The revenue collected in Western Samoa for the year ended March 31, 1928, was 126,038*l.*; the ordinary expenditure was 143,421*l.* Imports for 1927, 304,369*l.* (from United Kingdom, 62,895*l.*, New Zealand, 88,889*l.*, Australia, 68,700*l.*, Canada, 8,006*l.*, U.S.A., 51,345*l.*); exports, 335,978*l.* (to United Kingdom, 144,145*l.*, New Zealand, 15,912*l.*, Australia, 3,200*l.*, U.S.A., 31,327*l.*, Germany, 70,322*l.*). The exports are mainly copra (11,655 tons, 242,672*l.* in 1927) and cacao beans (792 tons, 43,216*l.* in 1927). In 1927, 59 vessels (91,417 tons, of which 56 vessels of 80,462 tons were British) entered at and cleared from the port of Apia.

There is regular steam communication from New Zealand, and the products of the territory are transported to overseas markets by steam and oil vessels which call at Apia every few weeks. A high power wireless station is erected at Apia.

The German currency has been replaced by sterling in the form of Samoan Treasury notes issued under the authority of the New Zealand Government. A branch of the Bank of New Zealand was opened at Apia in April, 1915.

The Minister of External Affairs for New Zealand is in charge of Samoa and other late German Islands assigned to New Zealand.

NAURU ISLAND.

The island lies 26 miles south of the Equator, in longitude 166 degrees east, about 400 miles from the nearest Marshall Islands. Area, 5,396 acres. It is a circular atoll of approximately 12 miles in circumference, surrounded by a reef. There is no anchorage adjacent to the island. There is an extensive plateau bearing phosphate of a high grade, the mining rights of which are vested in the British Phosphate Commission subject to the rights of the native landowners. It is chiefly on the fertile section of land between the sandy beach and the plateau that the natives have established themselves, and from which they obtain the necessary food for themselves and families. With the exception of a small fringe round a shallow lagoon, about one mile inland, the plateau which contains the phosphate deposits is not utilized for the purposes of native villages.

The island was annexed by Germany in October, 1888, and surrendered to the Australian forces in 1914. It is administered under a mandate conferred on the British Empire and approved by the League of Nations and dated December 17, 1920. The military training of the natives, except for local police or defence purposes, is prohibited, and no naval or military base or any fortifications may be established. Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand agreed in July, 1919, that Australia should appoint the first Administrator for a term of five years, and thereafter the administrator was to be appointed as the three Governments should decide. The administrator has all the powers of government, administrative, legislative and judicial. The expenses of administration are met out of local revenue.

Population, April 1, 1928: 131 Europeans, 1,051 Chinese, 11 Caroline and Marshall islanders, 9 Gilbert and Ellice islanders, 1,297 Nauruans; total, 2,499.

Education.—Attendance at school both for European and Native children is compulsory until children reach the age of 16 years; then, until they reach the age of 17 years, they are required to attend at specified periods for technical training in the case of boys and home craft training in the case of girls.

Finance.—The revenue and expenditure of the island have been as follows:—

Year	Revenue	Expenditure	Year	Revenue	Expenditure
	£	£		£	£
1922	11,181	11,423	1925	15,174	15,256
1923	11,837	10,265	1926	16,424	13,963
1924	18,899	13,580	1927	17,041	17,242

Excess of assets over liabilities as at December 31, 1927, 14,158*l*.

Import duties are imposed on beer, spirits, wines, and tobacco, and a 10% ad valorem duty on practically all other goods except food supplies which are admitted free. By a concession obtained in 1905 from the German Government, the Phosphate Commission (now designated the British Phosphate Commission) receives exemption for all materials and plant used for the exploitation of phosphates, as well as for provisions required for its employees. An export duty of 10*s*. per ton is charged on copra. A Capitation Tax of 2*l*. for Europeans, 1*l*. for Chinese, 15*s*. for natives is collected from all physically fit adult males under the age of 60 years. A Royalty of 7½*d*. per ton is paid for every ton of phosphate shipped, of which 4*d*. per ton is paid to the native landowner, 1½*d*. per ton is paid to the Administrator to be used solely for the benefit of the Nauruan people, and 2*d*. per ton is held by the Administrator in trust for the benefit of the landowner or his assigns, to whom the interest will be paid after the principal has been invested for a period of 20 years. The British Phosphate Company also contributes 1,000*l*. per annum towards the cost of the Nauruan Police.

Commerce.—The export trade of the island consists, with the exception of a small quantity of copra, almost entirely of phosphate, shipped to Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and other countries. Phosphate exported (tons): 1924, 280,990; 1925, 224,260; 1926, 274,935; 1927, 318,185; copra exported (tons): 1924, 383; 1925, 170; 1926, 117; 1927, 263.

The imports consist almost entirely of food supplies, and machinery for the British Phosphate Commission, for use in connection with their works. Value of imports: 1924, 100,253*l*.; 1925, 63,575*l*.; 1926, 104,117*l*.; 1927, 82,649*l*.

Shipping.—Practically the whole of the shipping coming to the island consists of steamers under charter to the British Phosphate Commission. Numbers of vessels entered and cleared: in 1924, 63 of 276,446 gross tons; 1925, 53 of 239,088 gross tons; 1926, 64 of 294,448 gross tons; 1927, 75 of 321,126 gross tons.

Wireless Station.—The outstanding feature of Nauru, apart from the phosphate works, is the Wireless Station, erected by the German Government to link up the island with their other Pacific possessions and Tsingtau. It was opened in December 1913, and though partially dismantled shortly after the outbreak of war, was soon restored, and has been in use ever since.

PART THE SECOND

THE UNITED STATES

UNITED STATES.

(UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.)

Constitution and Government.

THE Declaration of Independence of the thirteen States of which the American Union then consisted was adopted by Congress July 4, 1776. On November 30, 1782, Great Britain acknowledged the independence of the United States, and on September 3, 1783, the treaty of peace was concluded.

The form of government of the United States is based on the Constitution of Sept. 17, 1787, to which ten amendments were added Dec. 15, 1791; an eleventh amendment, Jan. 8, 1793; a twelfth amendment, Sept. 25, 1804; a thirteenth amendment, Dec. 18, 1865 (slavery abolished); a fourteenth amendment, July 28, 1868; a fifteenth amendment, March 30, 1870 (equal rights for white and coloured citizens); a sixteenth amendment, February 25, 1913 (income tax authorised); a seventeenth amendment, May 31, 1913; an eighteenth amendment, January 29, 1919 (liquor prohibition amendment); and a nineteenth amendment, August 26, 1920 (woman suffrage).

By the Constitution, the government of the nation is entrusted to three separate authorities, the Executive, the Legislative, and the Judicial. The executive power is vested in a President, who holds his office during the term of four years, and is elected, together with a Vice-President chosen for the same term, in the mode prescribed as follows:—‘Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of electors, equal to the whole number of senators and representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress: but no senator or representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, shall be appointed an elector.’ The practice is that in every State the electors allotted to the State are chosen by direct vote of the citizens on a general ticket, on the system known in France as scrutin de liste. The Constitution enacts that ‘the Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors, and the day on which they shall give their votes, which day shall be the same throughout the United States’; and further, that ‘no person except a natural-born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of thirty-five years, and been fourteen years a resident within the United States.’

The quadrennial election is held every fourth (leap) year. Electors are chosen in the several States on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November; the electors meet and, in accordance with an amendment to the Statutes adopted by the 70th Congress, give their votes at their respective State capitals on the first Wednesday in January next following their appointment; and the votes of the electors of all the States are opened and counted in the presence of both Houses of Congress on the second Wednesday in February. The presidential term begins on March 4, in the year following leap years.

The President is commander-in-chief of the army and navy, and of the militia in the service of the Union. The Vice-President is ex-officio President of the Senate; and in the case of the death or resignation of the President, he becomes the President for the remainder of the term.

President of the United States.—Herbert Clark Hoover, of California, born in Iowa, 1874; graduated mining engineer, Leland Stanford Jr. University, 1895; engaged in mine developments in America, Australia, and China; Chairman (in London) of the American War Relief Committee, 1914–1915; Administrator of Food Relief for Belgium, 1915–1917; American Food Administrator, 1917–1919; Secretary of Commerce, 1921–1928; Commander of the French Legion of Honour. Present term of office began on March 4, 1929.

Since the adoption of the Constitution the offices of President and Vice-President have been occupied as follows:—

By a law which came into force Jan. 19, 1886, in case of removal, death, resignation, or inability of both the President and Vice-President, the Secretary of State, and after him, in the order of the establishment of their departments, other members of the Cabinet, shall act as President until the disability of the President is removed or a President shall be elected. On the death of a Vice-President the duties of the office shall fall to the President pro tempore of the Senate, who receives the salary of the Vice-President.

The administrative business of the nation is conducted by ten chief officers, or heads of departments, who form what is called the 'Cabinet.' They are chosen by the President, but must be confirmed by the Senate. Each of them presides over a separate department, and acts under the immediate authority of the President. They are, in the order prescribed by law for their succession to the Presidency, in case both the President and the Vice-President die or become unable to take office:—

1. Secretary of State.—Henry L. Stimson, of New York, born in New York, 1867; graduated Yale University, 1888, and Harvard Law School, 1890; U.S. District Attorney, New York City, 1906-1909; Secretary of War, 1911-1913; Special Commissioner to Nicaragua, 1927; Governor-General of Philippine Islands, 1927-1929. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

2. Secretary of the Treasury.—Andrew William Mellon, of Pennsylvania, born in Pennsylvania, 1852; educated at the University of Pittsburg; prominent in the development of coal, coke, and iron industries, and in banking. Appointed by President Harding, March 4, 1921; re-appointed, March 4, 1925. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

3. Secretary of War.—James W. Good, of Iowa, born in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, 1866; graduated Coe College, Iowa, 1889, and University of Michigan, 1892. Lawyer; member of Congress, 1909-1923. Present appointment, March, 4 1929.

4. Attorney-General.—William De Witt Mitchell, of Minnesota, born in Minnesota, 1874; graduated University of Minnesota, 1895. Lawyer. Judge Advocate 2nd Army Corps, 1898-1899; Col. 6th Minnesota Regiment, 1918. Solicitor-General of the United States, 1925-1927. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

5. Postmaster-General.—Walter F. Brown, of Ohio, born in Ohio, 1869; graduated Harvard University, 1892. Lawyer; Chairman Republican Committee of Ohio. Assistant Secretary of Commerce, 1927-1929. Present appointment March 4, 1929.

6. Secretary of the Navy.—Charles Francis Adams, of Massachusetts; born in Massachusetts, 1866; graduated Harvard University, 1888; lawyer and amateur yachtsman. Treasurer of Harvard University, 1899-1929. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

7. Secretary of the Interior.—Ray Lyman Wilbur, of California, born in Iowa, 1875; graduated Leland Stanford University, 1896, and Cooper College of Medicine, 1899. Professor, Leland Stanford University and President since 1916. Chief of Conservation Division, U.S. Food Administration, 1917-1918. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

8. Secretary of Agriculture.—Arthur M. Hyde, of Missouri, born in Missouri, 1877; graduated University of Michigan, 1899. Mayor of Princeton, Mo.; Governor of Missouri, 1921-1925. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

9. Secretary of Commerce.—Robert P. Lamont, of Illinois, born in Michigan, 1867; graduated University of Michigan, 1891. Engineer, President American Steel Foundries, 1912-1929. Chief of division, ordnance department, U.S.A., 1917-1918. Present appointment, March 4, 1929.

10. Secretary of Labour.—James John Davis, of Illinois, born in Wales, 1878; prominent officer in Labour organisations. Present appointment, March 4, 1921.

Each of the above ministers has an annual salary of 15,000 dollars, and holds office during the pleasure of the President.

The whole legislative power is vested by the Constitution in a Congress, consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives. The Senate consists of two members from each State, chosen by popular vote for six years. Senators must be not less than thirty years of age; must have been citizens of the United States for nine years; and be residents in the States for which they are chosen. Besides its legislative functions, the Senate is entrusted with the power of ratifying or rejecting all treaties made by the President with foreign Powers, a two-thirds majority of senators present being required for ratification. The Senate is also invested with the power of confirming or rejecting all appointments to office made by the President; and its members constitute a High Court of Impeachment. The judgment in the latter case extends only to removal from office and disqualification. The House of Representatives has the sole power of impeachment.

The House of Representatives is composed of members elected every second year by the vote of citizens who, according to the laws of their respective States, are qualified to vote for members of the State legislature. By amendments of the Constitution, disqualification on the ground of race, colour, or sex, is forbidden. Accordingly the electorate consists practically of all citizens of both sexes over 21 years of age. But the franchise is not universal. There are requirements of residence varying in the several States as to length from three months to two years; differing requirements as to registration; in some States the payment of taxes is necessary to qualify for the suffrage; in others the ability to read—in Massachusetts the ability to read English. In some Southern States they are required to give a reasonable explanation of what they read. Some of the Western States admit to the franchise unnaturalised persons who have formally declared their intention to become citizens. Several of the Southern States have adopted methods—which differ from one another—too complicated for explanation here, with the frankly avowed purpose of excluding the negroes from the franchise and yet avoiding the constitutional consequences of discriminating 'on account of race, colour, or previous condition of servitude.' Untaxed Indians are excluded from the franchise, in most States convicts, in some States duellists and fraudulent voters. Women by the 19th amendment to the Federal Constitution, passed in 1920, have the vote and eligibility for both the Federal and the State Legislatures on the same terms as men.

The number of members of the House of Representatives to which each State is entitled is determined by the census taken every ten years. By the Apportionment Act consequent on the census of 1910 the number of representatives was 433, but in 1912, with the admission of Arizona and New Mexico, it became 435, distributed as follows :—

Alabama . . . 10	Maryland . . . 6	Oregon . . . 3
Arizona . . . 1	Massachusetts . . 16	Pennsylvania . . 36
Arkansas . . . 7	Michigan . . . 13	Rhode Island . . 3

On the basis of the census of 1910 there is one representative to every 210,415 inhabitants. According to the census of 1920 the number of members of Congress has been fixed at 460, but no new apportionment has been made by Congress since 1912.

According to the terms of the Constitution, representatives must not be less than twenty-five years of age, must have been citizens of the United States for seven years, and be residents in the States from which they are chosen. In addition to the representatives from the States, the House admits a 'delegate' from each organised Territory, who has the right to speak on any subject and to make motions, but not to vote. The delegates are elected in the same manner as the representatives.

Each of the two Houses of Congress is made by the Constitution the 'judge of the elections, returns, and qualifications of its own members'; and each of the Houses may, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member.

The Congress of the United States has the power to propose alterations in the Constitution, by the 5th article of the same. The article orders that the Congress, whenever two-thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to the Constitution, or, on the application of the Legislatures of two-thirds of all the States, shall call a convention for proposing the amendments, which in either case shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or other mode of ratification may be proposed by Congress.

The salary of a senator, representative, or delegate in Congress is 10,000 dollars per annum, with an allowance, based on distance, for travelling expenses. The salary of the Speaker of the House of Representatives is 12,000 dollars per annum.

No senator or representative can, during the time for which he is elected, be appointed to any civil office under authority of the United States which shall have been created or the emoluments of which shall have been increased during such time; and no person holding any office under the United States can be a member of either House during his continuance in office. No religious test is required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States, or in any State.

The period usually termed 'a Congress' in legislative language continues for two years; as, for example, from noon, March 4, 1929, until noon, March 4, 1931, at which latter time the term of the representatives to the 71st Congress will expire, and the term of the new House of Representatives will begin. The term of one-third of the Senators expires at the same time.

The 71st Congress (1929-31), elected November, 1928, is constituted as follows: Senate, 54 Republicans, 39 Democrats, 1 Farmer Labour, 1 vacant, and 1 not sworn; House of Representatives, 268 Republicans, 165 Democrats, 1 Farmer Labour, 1 vacant.

The National Government has authority in matters of general taxation, treaties and other dealings with foreign powers, army, navy, and (to a certain extent) militia, commerce, foreign and inter-State, postal service, coinage, weights and measures, and the trial and punishment of crime against the United States.

Slavery was abolished throughout the whole of the United States by the thirteenth Amendment of the Constitution, passed December 18, 1865. The vast change in the political and social organisation of the Republic made by this new fundamental law was completed by the fourteenth and fifteenth Amendments of the Constitution, passed in 1868 and 1870, which gave to the former slaves all the rights and privileges of citizenship.

STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

The Union comprises 13 original States, 7 States which were admitted without having been previously organised as Territories, and 28 States which had been Territories—48 States in all. Each State has its own constitution, which must be republican in form, and each constitution derives its authority, not from Congress, but from the people of the State. Admission of States into the Union is granted by special Acts of Congress, either (1) in the form of 'enabling Acts,' providing for the drafting and ratification of a State constitution by the people, in which case the Territory becomes a State as soon as the conditions are fulfilled, or (2) accepting a constitution already framed, and at once granting admission.

Each State is provided with a Legislature of two Houses, a Governor, and other executive officials, and a judicial system. Both Houses of the Legislature are elective, but the Senators (having larger electoral districts) are less numerous than the members of the House of Representatives, while in some States their terms are longer and, in a few, the Senate is only partially renewed at each election. Members of both Houses are paid at the same rate, which varies from 150 to 1,500 dollars per session, or from 1 to 8 dollars per day during session. The duties of the two Houses are similar, but in many States money bills must be introduced first in the House of Representatives. The Senate has to sit as a court for the trial of officials impeached by the other House, and, besides, has often the power to confirm or reject appointments made by the Governor. In most of the States the sessions are biennial, the Governor having power to summon an extraordinary session, but not to dissolve or adjourn. State Legislatures are competent to deal with all matters not reserved for the Federal Government by the Federal constitution, or falling within restrictions imposed by the State constitutions. Among their powers are the determination of the qualifications for the right of suffrage, and the control of all elections to public office, including elections of members of Congress and electors of President and Vice-President; the criminal law, both in its enactment and in its execution, with unimportant exceptions, and the administration of prisons; the civil law, including all matters pertaining to the possession and transfer of, and succession to, property; marriage and divorce, and all other civil relations; the chartering and control of all manufacturing, trading, transportation, and other corporations, subject only to the right of Congress to regulate commerce passing from one State to another; the regulation of labour; education; charities; licensing, including regulation of the liquor traffic; fisheries, and game laws. The revenues of the States are derived chiefly from a direct tax upon property, in some cases both real and personal, in others on land and buildings only. The prohibition upon Congress to levy direct taxes save in proportion to population, contained originally in the national constitution, left this source of revenue to the States exclusively until 1913, when an amendment was adopted authorising the imposition of an income tax by Congress.

The Governor is chosen by direct vote of the people over the whole State. His term of office varies in the several States from 1 year to 4 years and his salary from 3,000 to 18,000 dollars. His duty is to see to the faithful administration of the law, and he has command of the military forces of the State. His power of appointment to State offices is usually unimportant. He may recommend measures, but does not present bills to the legislature. In some States he presents estimates. In all but two of the States the Governor has a veto upon legislation, which may, however, be overridden by the two Houses, in some States by a simple majority, in others by a three-fifths or two-thirds majority.

The officials by whom the administration of State affairs is carried on (secretaries, treasurers, members of boards of commissioners, &c.) are usually chosen by the people at the General State elections for terms similar to those for which governors hold office, the party in power appointing its own adherents.

In the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska there is a local legislature, the form of which has been prescribed by the National Government. These bodies have powers similar to those of the States, but any of their acts may be modified or annulled by Congress. The Governor of a Territory is appointed for 4 years by the President to whom he makes an annual report. The President appoints also the Territorial secretaries and other officials, together with the Territorial judges. Porto Rico, although not designated as a 'territory' in the technical sense, is self-governing. Its government is organised on a system almost identical with that of the territories. The Philippine Islands are governed by a civil Governor and elected Upper and Lower Legislative Chambers.

The District of Columbia is the seat of the United States Government, provided by the State of Maryland for the purposes of government in 1791. It is co-extensive with the city of Washington, and embraces an area of 62 square miles. The district has no municipal legislative body, and its citizens have no right to vote either in national or municipal concerns. By an Act of Congress of 1878, its municipal government is administered by three commissioners, appointed by the President.

The unit of local government in the North, especially in the New England States, is the rural township, governed directly by the voters who assemble annually or oftener if necessary, and legislate in local affairs, levy taxes, make appropriations, and appoint and instruct the local officials (selectmen, clerk, school-committee, &c.). Where cities exist the township government is superseded by the city government. Townships are grouped to form counties, each with its commissioners and other paid officials who have charge of public buildings, lay out highways, grant licences, and estimate and apportion the taxation necessary for county purposes. In the South the counties are themselves the units, though subdivided for educational or other special purposes. Their officials have in general additional functions, as the care of the poor and the superintendence of schools. In the Middle and North-Western States the two systems of local government are mixed. In the West all the public land is already divided into townships six miles square.

The total population in 1920 comprised 53,900,431 males, and 51,810,189 females. Of this total, 54,304,603, or 51.4 per cent., were urban, and 51,406,017, or 48.6 per cent. were rural.

For occupational census, 1920, and for country of birth of the foreign-born white population in 1920 census, see STATESMAN'S YEAR BOOK for 1923, p. 441.

The total area of Indian reservations in the United States, exclusive of Alaska, was on June 30, 1928, 108,260 square miles (in 1900, 121,665 square miles), with an Indian population of 355,901 (in 1900, 270,544).

II. MOVEMENT OF POPULATION.

The registration area for births was established in 1915, and the birth rates are computed from returns for certain areas for which the registration of births is accepted by the Bureau of the Census as approximately complete. In 1926 these areas included Arizona, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming, District of Columbia, Virgin Islands. The estimated population of this area was 89,988,000, or 76·8 per cent. of the total estimated population of the United States, and the number of births (exclusive of still-births) returned was 1,856,068, or 20·6 per 1,000 population.

Death rates are computed from returns for States and cities which were admitted to the registration area for deaths on the basis of approximately complete registration. In 1926 these areas included Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming, District of Columbia, Territory of Hawaii, Virgin Islands, and 25 cities in non-registration States. The estimated population for the registration area (exclusive of Hawaii) was 105,167,000, or 89·8 per cent. of the total estimated population of Continental United States; and the number of deaths returned from this area was 1,285,927, corresponding to a death rate of 12·2 per 1,000 population.

The number of marriages in 1927 was 1,200,694 against 1,202,574 in 1926. There were 192,037 divorces, against 180,853 in 1926.

Total number of immigrants admitted in year ending June 30, 1928, was 307,255 against 335,175 in 1927.

The total number of alien immigrants from 1820 to 1928 (June 30) arriving for permanent residence was 37,215,935. In the following statement, immigrants from Canada and Mexico are included in the total :—

Year ending June 30	British Isles	Germany	Sweden, Norway, and Denmark	Austria and Hungary	Italy	Russia and Finland	France	Total Immigrants

<sup>1</sup> Including Irish Free State.

Of the total number in 1928, 165,977 were males, and 141,278 were females.

Total alien arrivals in 1928 (June 30) was 500,631; total alien departures, 274,356, leaving surplus of 226,275.

The total number of immigrants from China between 1820 and 1927 was 372,890; the total number from Japan, from 1861, the earliest year of record, was 273,485. In 1924, the number of Chinese admitted, from all countries, was 4,670; in 1925 1,721; in 1926, 1,375; and in 1927, 1,051. In 1924 there were 8,481 Japanese admitted; in 1925, 682; in 1926, 598; and in 1927, 660.

Instruction.

Each State of the Union has a system of free public schools established by law. The work of these is supplemented by private and parochial schools. In 1880 the percentage of illiterates in the population above ten years of age was 17 per cent., in 1890 13·8 per cent., in 1900 10·7 per cent., in 1910 7·7 per cent., in 1920 6 per cent. The following statistics are for 1920.

Since the admission of the State of Ohio in 1803, the United States Government, upon the organization of all new States excepting a few in which no lands of the public domain were available, has set aside for the benefit of the public schools therein from one to four 'sections' (square miles) of land in each township of six miles square. The proceeds of the sale of this land make the principal part of the permanent school funds of such States. The income of permanent school funds and unsold school lands constitutes about 2·7 per cent. of the revenue receipts of the schools of the country. Taxation and appropriation yield about 92·1 per cent. of the total revenue receipts, and other sources yield about 5·2 per cent. In 1926 the amount expended on public schools of elementary and secondary grades was 2,026,308,190 dollars. In 1926 the 913 universities, colleges, and professional schools had an income of 407,400,056 dollars from productive funds, from fees, and from United States Government, State, and Municipal appropriations, and from all other sources.

In 1927 there were in the United States 2,332 daily newspapers, 12,920 weeklies, 487 semi-weeklies, 3,709 monthlies, 409 semi-monthlies, and 837 other periodicals; total, 20,694. The total number of periodicals was in 1920, 21,012; in 1900, 20,806; and in 1870, 5,871.

Justice and Crime.

The judicial system, like the executive and legislative systems, is dual. The Federal or National Government maintains courts for the trial of crimes against the United States and of civil suits which are brought by the Government or its officers, or which arise under the Constitution, treaties and laws of the United States. These laws relate to such subjects, among others, as Admiralty, Patents, Taxation, Banking and Bankruptcy. The Federal Courts also have jurisdiction of cases between citizens of the different States and between citizens of a State and foreign States, citizens or subjects. In this class of cases, as well as in cases arising under the Constitution, treaties and laws of the United States, the amount in controversy must exceed 3,000 dollars, besides interest and costs. The State Courts have jurisdiction over all civil and criminal cases arising under State laws; the decisions of the Courts of last resort of the States as to the validity of treaties or of laws of the United States, or on various questions arising under the Constitution, are subject to review by the Supreme Court of the United States. The State Courts also have jurisdiction of proceedings in probate and divorce.

In the separate States the lowest courts are usually those of Justices of the Peace, but in many towns and cities of fairly substantial population, there are inferior courts called by various names and presided over by Magistrates with power to commit for trial in criminal matters and to hear and determine misdemeanours for violation of the municipal ordinances. The inferior court frequently have jurisdiction to try civil cases involving usually not more than 500 dollars, and also to hear, determine and sentence for certain petty offences which are not heinous.

The highest court in each State is usually called the Supreme or Appellate Court with a Chief Justice and Associate Justices and, in some States, commissioners who hear and determine cases under assignment of the Chief Justice and the Associate Justices. The Chief Justice and Associate Justices are usually elected by the people, but sometimes are appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the State Senate.

or other advisory body; they usually hold office for a term of years, but in some instances for life or during good behaviour. Their salaries range from 5,000 to 22,500 dollars.

The Judges of the Courts of the United States, which include the District Courts, the Court of Claims, the United States Customs Court, the Court of Customs Appeals, the Circuit Courts of Appeals, and the Supreme Court of the United States, hold office during good behaviour. They may, however, retire with full pay at the age of 70 years, if they so desire, and if they have served a period of ten years.

The United States District Courts are the lowest of the Federal Courts, being the courts of original jurisdiction. There are 94 of these, each State and territory forming one or more districts. These Courts appoint Commissioners, who have the power of Examining Magistrates, but may not finally adjudge and determine, except in the Territory of Alaska, where they have jurisdiction equivalent to that of the Justices of the Peace and Probate Courts of the counties of the States. The United States District Courts try all criminal cases arising under the Laws of the United States, as indicated above, including capital offences.

The Supreme Court consists of the Chief Justice and 8 Associate Justices, appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The United States is divided into 9 circuits, to each of which the Chief Justice or an Associate Justice is assigned. In each circuit there is a Circuit Court of Appeals. Cases from inferior courts are taken to the Circuit Courts of Appeals by appeal or to the Supreme Court either on appeal or writ of certiorari. That Court has also original jurisdiction in cases affecting foreign Ministers and those between the different States. The salary of the Chief Justice is 20,500 dollars, and that of each of the Associate Justices 20,000 dollars.

The Court of Claims has jurisdiction of suits based on claims against the Government founded on the Constitution and laws of the United States or arising out of contracts entered into with the Government and not sounding in tort. The United States Customs Court (formerly the Board of General Appraisers) has jurisdiction in customs cases. The Court of Customs Appeals passes upon appeals from decisions of the United States Customs Court involving questions as to the classification of merchandise under tariff Acts and the rates of duty to which various articles are liable.

The District of Columbia, in which the seat of the National Government is located, has a Juvenile Court, a Municipal Court, a Police Court, a Supreme Court with a general jurisdiction which includes that of a United States District Court, and a Court of Appeals.

Most of the more important territorial and insular possessions of the United States, except the Philippines, have two systems of Courts, one corresponding to the Courts of the States to adjudicate cases arising under laws enacted by the territorial or insular legislatures, and the other, the United States Courts, to pass on cases involving Federal Law. The Philippine Islands have no Federal District Court.

Finance.

The following table gives what the Treasury terms 'Ordinary receipts and expenditures.' 'Ordinary receipts' include receipts from customs, internal revenue, direct tax, public lands, and 'Miscellaneous,' but do not include receipts from loans, premiums, or Treasury notes, or revenues of Post-Office Department. 'Ordinary expenses' include disbursements for War, Navy, Indians, pensions, payments for interest, and 'Miscellaneous,' but do not include payments for premiums, principal of public debt, or disbursements for postal service paid from revenues thereof.

On June 10, 1921, the President approved an Act to provide a National Budget System and an independent Audit of Government Accounts. This provided for an annual budget system for the first time in the history of the United States.

The Department believes that the foregoing figures represent more than 95 per cent. of all foreign issues, both public and private.

STATE FINANCE.

The revenues required for the administration of the separate States are derived from direct taxation, chiefly in the form of a tax on property real and personal; and the greater part of such revenue is collected and expended by the local authorities, county, township, or school district.

For details see the separate States.

Defence.

I. ARMY.

The Army of the United States, as authorised under the Act of Congress of June 4, 1920, consists of the Regular Army, the National Guard while in the service of the United States, and the Organised Reserves, including the Officers' Reserve Corps and the Enlisted Reserve Corps.

Original or first enlistments in the Regular Army are for one or three years at the option of the soldier, but all re-enlistments are for three-year periods. Enlisted men are classified in seven grades. The pay of the lowest grade, or private, is 21 dollars per month (about 4 shillings a day at normal exchange rates), and that of the highest grade, or master sergeant, is 126 dollars per month. In addition enlisted men receive an increase of 5 per cent. of their base pay for each 4 years of service in the army, the total increase not to exceed 25 per cent. Certain enlisted men also receive additional pay as specialists, the maximum addition under this head being 30 dollars per month.

The strength of the Regular Army, as authorised by Congress for the year 1929, was 12,159 officers and 125,000 enlisted men exclusive of Philippine Scouts for whom the appropriations allow of 6,445. The authorised number of warrant officers is 1,108.

The actual strength at the end of June 1928 was 134,505 all ranks.

The war organisation and establishments of the Regular Army on mobilisation are as follows:—

Army Corps . . .	83,384	Infantry Brigade . .	6,810
Infantry Division . .	19,767	Artillery Brigade . .	3,390
Cavalry Division . .	9,762

For plans of mobilisation, war and demobilisation the United States is divided into 3 Army areas, which for administration and training are subdivided into 9 Corps areas.

At the end of June, 1928, the United States Army troops stationed abroad were as follows:—

Philippines . . .	11,278	Alaska . . . .	308
Panama . . . .	8,561

The Officers' Reserve Corps consists of officers of all grades, including general officers, organised into sections corresponding to the various branches of the Regular Army. In the higher grades it is at present composed principally of men who served as officers during the World War, and on June 30, 1928, had a strength of 114,824. These officers may be called for training not exceeding 15 days each year, and with their own consent may be ordered to active service at any time and for any period, provided that the appropriations for the purpose are not exceeded.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps, maintained for the purpose of keeping up the strength of the Officers' Reserve Corps, is organised into units at civil educational establishments. It is divided into a Senior Division, formed mainly at the universities, and a Junior Division, formed mainly at the secondary schools. On June 30, 1928, 112,349 students were enrolled in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, of whom 72,371 were enrolled in senior units and 39,978 in junior units. Students of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps before being commissioned in the Officers' Reserve Corps must complete the four years' military training prescribed, which includes one summer training camp of a period of six weeks each.

The Enlisted Reserve Corps consists of men voluntarily enlisted therein who have qualifications making them eligible for enlistment in the Regular Army. On June 30, 1928, the Enlisted Reserve Corps had a strength of 5,464. Provided the appropriations for the purpose are not exceeded, enlisted reservists may be called up for training not exceeding fifteen days each year, and with their own consent may be ordered to active service at any time and for any period.

The National Guard, or organised militia, is maintained by the several States and Territories (including the Hawaiian Islands and Porto Rico) with the aid of grants from the Federal Government. It is organised into the same arms of the service as the Regular Army, and is supplied by the Federal Government with uniforms, arms, and equipment of the same type as issued to the Regular Army. Service in the National Guard is purely voluntary. When Congress shall have authorised the use of the armed land forces of the United States for any purpose requiring the use of troops in excess of those of the Regular Army, the President may draft into the military service of the United States any or all members of the National Guard, to serve for the period of the war or emergency. In certain emergencies the President may also call forth the National Guard, for service within the continental limits of the United States, without reference to Congress. The strength of the National Guard as presented by law is 435,000, but is limited at present to 188,000. The actual strength on June 30, 1928, was 181,122. Enlistment is for three years, with re-enlistments for one year or three years. Minimum training required includes 48 drill periods yearly, each of not less than one and one-half hours' duration, in addition to fifteen days' training in encampments or manoeuvres. Pay is provided for the 15 days' training in encampments at the same rate as for the Regular Army, while each drill period is considered approximately equal to a day's service for pay purposes.

Citizens' military training camps are operated during the summer months, at which thousands of young men acquire military training each year, without cost to themselves. Four courses are provided, the highest of which has as its object the training of non-commissioned officers and specialists of the Regular Army, National Guard, and Organised Reserves with a view to qualifying them for service as officers in the Officers' Reserve Corps. Civilians attending the highest course must have had prior military training equal to that obtainable in the three lower courses.

The President is Commander-in-Chief of both the Army and the Navy. The Secretary of War controls the Army with the aid of two Assistant Secretaries and a Chief of Staff. The former have supervision of the procurement of all military supplies, and are charged with the mobilisation of industrial establishments for wartime needs, while the latter is entrusted with the general supervision of the Army.

Although the infantry during the war were chiefly armed with a modified Enfield rifle, the Springfield rifle, of American design, remains the standard small arm. The approved calibres of mobile artillery are as follows :—

for the light . . . .	75 mm. gun and 105 mm. howitzer for the medium . . . .	4·7 inch gun and 155 mm. howitzer for the heavy . . . .	155 mm. gun and 8 inch howitzer.

The 155 mm. howitzer is now issued in lieu of the 105 mm. howitzer for the light mobile artillery, pending the development and production of a satisfactory 105 mm. howitzer. The most powerful mobile gun is a 14-inch gun on railway carriage. The most powerful gun is a 16-inch gun on barbette carriage.

In the Budget for 1928-29, 311,400,987 dollars were voted for the army including 25,875,041 dollars for the air corps.

II. NAVY.

As provided under the terms of the Washington Treaty of August 17, 1923, the United States has now 18 capital ships. The replacement tonnage for the battleship class is to be the same as for the British Navy, viz. 525,000 tons. As authorised by Congress, the Navy Department is now completing important alterations on the last two of the eight oldest battleships. These alterations consist of, first, the installation of additional protection against submarine attack; second, the installation of anti-aircraft deck protection; third, the substitution of tripod masts for the cage type; and various other improvements of less importance. While increased elevation of turret guns of these eight battleships, and also the five battleships next in age, is highly recommended in U.S. official naval circles, no legislation on the matter is pending before Congress. The construction of eight 10,000-ton cruisers is in progress, and it is proposed to build in 1929-31 15 more of this type and an aircraft carrier. The Secretary's annual reports stress that there is a deficiency in fast cruisers, submarines and aircraft. The aircraft carriers, Saratoga and Lexington, commenced as battle cruisers, and the conversion of which was permitted by the terms of the Washington Agreement, have now been completed. They are the largest aircraft carriers in the world.

The Air Service is an integral part of the Fleet. For the fiscal year 1927-28 a sum of 20,100,000 dollars is devoted to it. This sum is exclusive of personnel and certain establishment charges. In addition, authority was given to enter into certain contracts which will involve the expenditure of 9,480,000 dollars in future years.

The gross naval expenditures have recently been as follows: 1926-27, 319,917,575 dollars; 1927-28, 331,271,227 dollars. During these two years the amounts for new construction have been respectively 33,275,000 dollars and 28,815,000 dollars. For the fiscal year 1928-29 the naval appropriation is 322,869,430 dollars, which provides for continuing the construction of the eight light cruisers Pensacola, Salt Lake City, Augusta, Chester, Chicago, Houston, Northampton, and another unnamed; modernising the battleships Nevada and Oklahoma; and advancing work on the submarines V5 and V6.

The total number of enlisted men and marines, according to the current appropriation, was 105,500. Officers number 7,873. Reserves amount to 4,256 officers and 18,179 men.

The American Navy is administered by the Secretary of the Navy, as the head of the executive departments, known as the Department of the Navy. The Secretary has an Advisory Council, the most important Naval member of which is the Chief of Operations, who is charged by law with the operations of the Fleet and with the preparations and readiness of plans for its use in war. The other members of the Council are the Assistant Secretary of the Navy; the Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, handling principally the officer and enlisted personnel of the Navy and the Chiefs of the following bureaux: Construction and Repair; Engineering; Aeronautics (constituted 1921-22); Supplies and Accounts; Yards and Docks; Ordnance; and Medicine and Surgery; also the Commandant of the Marine Corps and the Judge Advocate-General. The Chief of Operations is also President of the Naval General Board, which is an advisory body of senior officers, and is consulted on important questions of policy, including the number and types of ships that should constitute the Fleet.

The Government navy yards and construction and repairing establishments are at Portsmouth, N.H.; Boston, Mass.; Brooklyn, N.Y.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Washington, D.C.; Norfolk, Va.; Charleston, S.C.; Mare Island, Cal.; Puget Sound, Wash.; and Pearl Harbour, Hawaii; and naval stations are at Newport, R.I.; New London, Conn.; Key West, Fla.; Pensacola, Fla.; New Orleans, La.; San Diego, Cal.; Guantanamo, Cuba; Tutuila, Samoa; Cavite, P.I.; Guam; St. Thomas, W.I.; Balboa, C.Z. The naval training stations are at Hampton Roads, Va.; San Diego, Cal.; Newport, R.I.; and Great Lakes, Ill. A 20-year development programme for navy yards and naval bases has been approved by the Secretary, but no considerable appropriations have been granted to further the programme.

The Atlantic and Pacific Fleets have been united in a single command as the 'United States Fleet.'

The following is a classified statement of the strength of the United States Navy on September 1, 1926, 1927, and 1928. The whole Fleet is separated into the First Line and Second Line, the latter comprising the older ships which have little fighting value. In the following summary, vessels unserviceable for war purposes, gunboats, yachts, tngs, training-ships, &c., are not included :—

	Effective September 1.

Other vessels of the United States navy may be summarised. There are 4 mine-layers; 6 modern river gunboats; about 50 small 'eagle' patrol vessels, and 27 submarine-chaser patrol vessels; 13 old gunboats and yachts rated as patrol vessels; 8 tenders for destroyers, 2 for aircraft, and 8 for submarines; 3 repair ships; 5 colliers and 19 oilers; and a large number of miscellaneous auxiliaries, mine-sweepers and tugs.

The main strength of the destroyer flotillas lies in the first-line boats, of which there are 148 35-knot boats, many of them reaching 1,215 tons, and carrying 4 4-in. guns, 1 3-in. anti-aircraft, and 4 21-in. triple torpedo-tubes; 95 earlier 35-knot boats (1917-20), and 14 more fitted for mine-laying; and 19 29-30-knot boats (1912-17). No destroyers are now building for the United States, but the construction of 4 flotilla leaders of 1,800 tons has been sanctioned.

The first-line submarine flotilla comprises 50 of the S class, 800-993 tons, 7 fleet submarines built, and 2 building or completing—a total of 59. There are also 65 second-line submarines. Funds have been voted for 3 more fleet submarines.

Production and Industry.

I. AGRICULTURE.

Public lands, unappropriated and unreserved, as reported by the United States General Land Office, on July 1, 1927, totalled 193,737,588 acres. They were situated in the following States:

States	Acres	States	Acres	States	Acres
Arizona . . .	16,961,100	Minnesota . . .	278,740	Oregon . . .	13,176,034

In 1925 there were 6,371,640 farms, of which 3,868,332 were operated by owners, 40,700 by managers, and 2,462,608 by tenants.

The farm population on January 1, 1928, was estimated at 27,699,000, a decrease of 193,000 over January 1, 1927, while the latter was a decrease of 649,000 over that of 1926.

The estimated gross value at farm of all crops and animal products was, in 1923 and 1924, 16,672,000,000 dollars; in 1925, 16,817,000,000 dollars; and in 1926 (preliminary estimate), 16,566,000,000 dollars.

The areas and produce of the principal cereal crops for three years are shown in the subjoined tables.

The area on which tame hay was grown in 1928 was 57,775,000 acres; the crop weighed 93,031,000 tons, and was valued at 1,148,283,000 dollars. The area on which wild hay was grown in 1928 was 13,144,000 acres; the crop weighed 12,922,000 tons, and was valued at 95,076,000 dollars.

The output of cane sugar in 1924-25 amounted to 176,965,428 pounds; 1925-26, 278,762,828 pounds; 1926-27, 94,331,748 pounds and for 1927-28 (estimated), 155,680,000 pounds. All these figures are for Louisiana only. The beet sugar production in 1924-25 was 2,180,000,000 pounds; 1925-26, 1,826,000,000 pounds; 1926-27, 1,794,000,000 pounds; and for 1927-28 (estimated), 2,186,000,000 pounds.

Cotton acreage and production (excluding 'linters'), for the last six years were:—

Years	Acres harvested	Bales (500 lbs. gross)	Years	Acres harvested	Bales (500 lbs. gross)
1923	37,123,000	10,139,671	1926	47,087,000	17,977,000

The cotton production in 1928 was grown in the following States (in bales, 500 lbs. gross): Texas, 5,150,000; Mississippi, 1,470,000; Alabama, 1,090,000; Georgia, 1,020,000; Oklahoma, 1,180,000; Arkansas, 1,215,000; North Carolina, 840,000; South Carolina, 725,000; Louisiana, 686,000; Tennessee, 420,000; Missouri, 146,000; Arizona, 134,000; California, 155,000; Virginia, 44,000; Florida, 20,000; all other, 9,000.

In 1928 there were under tobacco 1,912,100 acres, which yielded 1,378,501,000 lbs. of tobacco. The chief tobacco-growing States were North Carolina, 730,000 acres, yielding 475,230,000 lbs.; Kentucky, 399,700 acres, yielding 306,000,000 lbs.; Virginia, 186,000 acres, yielding 111,600,000 lbs.; South Carolina, 148,000 acres, yielding 82,800,000 lbs.; Tennessee, 112,400 acres, yielding 88,459,000 lbs.; Georgia, 112,400 acres, yielding 84,387,000 lbs.; Pennsylvania, 37,000 acres, yielding 49,580,000 lbs.; Wisconsin, 37,000 acres, yielding 49,025,000 lbs.; Connecticut, 25,000 acres, yielding 29,750,000 lbs.; Maryland, 31,000 acres, yielding 21,700,000 lbs.; Ohio, 41,800 acres, yielding 38,440,000 lbs.; Massachusetts, 7,600 acres, yielding 9,462,000 lbs.; Florida, 12,000 acres, yielding 9,221,000 lbs.; Indiana, 13,700 acres, yielding 11,234,000 lbs.; West Virginia, 6,800 acres, yielding 5,100,000 lbs.; Missouri, 4,000 acres, yielding 4,400,000 lbs.; New York, 800 acres yielding 1,020,000 lbs.; Louisiana,

1,000 acres, yielding 405,000 lbs. For 1928, the estimated production was 1,373,501,000 lbs. from 1,912,100 acres.

The following table exhibits the number of farm animals in 1910 (April 15), 1920 (January 1), 1927 and 1929 (January 1).

Live Stock	1910 (Census)	1920 (Census)	1927 (Estimate)	1929 (Estimate)
Horses . . .	19,823,113	19,767,161	15,145,000	14,029,000
Mules . . .	4,209,769	5,432,391	5,679,000	5,447,000
Cattle of all kinds	61,803,866	66,652,556	56,872,000	55,751,000
Sheep . . .	52,447,861	35,033,516	41,846,000	47,171,000
Swine . . .	58,185,676	59,346,409	54,408,000	54,956,000

The value of farm animals in the United States on January 1, 1928, was:—Cows and heifers 2 years old and over, kept for milk, 1,699,526,000 dollars; all cattle and calves, 3,014,086,000 dollars; total value of all farm animals, 5,596,922,000 dollars.

In 1927, 1,501,998,000 lbs. of butter, 406,686,000 lbs. of cheese, and 1,855,722,000 lbs. of condensed and evaporated milk were produced.

In 1901 the estimated production of wool was 302,502,328 pounds; in 1924, 279,375,000 pounds; in 1925, 292,362,000 pounds; in 1926, 310,576,000 pounds; in 1927, 328,137,000 pounds; and in 1928, 296,114,000 pounds exclusive of pulled wool, for which figures are not yet available.

The preliminary census reports for 1925 show that the value of canned vegetables was 282,891,245 dollars; of canned fruits, 102,638,209 dollars; of dried fruits, 72,118,775 dollars. The total value of canned fruit and vegetable products, in 1925, was 606,939,718 dollars.

II. FORESTS AND FORESTRY.

The United States forests cover 469,500,000 acres, or about one-fifth of the whole country. The classification is as follows:—Virgin timber, 138,100,000 acres; second growth of saw timber size, 113,800,000 acres; second growth of cordwood size or smaller, 136,400,000 acres; non-producing and idle land, 81,200,000 acres. Forests publicly owned, i.e., by Federal, State, and other political divisions, represent 22 per cent. of the total forest land.

The net area of the 151 national forests—i.e., those owned by the Federal Government—on July 1, 1928, was 159,480,856 acres.

The receipts from the National Forests for the last three fiscal years were as follows:—

Fiscal Year	Timber	Grazing	Special Uses, &c.	All Sources
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
1926	3,866,685	1,421,589	362,387	5,150,661
1927	3,253,242	1,580,952	283,411	5,168,605
1928	3,325,079	1,713,730	402,625	5,441,434

It is estimated that 1,080,000,000 cubic feet of timber is destroyed annually by fire in the forests of the United States, while 1,300,000,000 cubic feet is destroyed by insects, disease, and windfall.

III. MINING.

The following are the statistics of the metallic products of the United States in 1926 and 1927 (long tons, 2,240 lbs.; short tons, 2,000 lbs.). The values are: For iron, at point of production; for nickel and platinum, the values at New York City; for copper, lead and zinc, the values are those of sales; for quicksilver, the value at New York.

The approximate total value of the mineral products in 1926 was 6,212,700,000 dollars; in 1927, 5,520,000,000 dollars.

Of the 1927 production of petroleum (901,129,000 barrels), 897,343,000 barrels represented oil transported from producing centres, 2,154,000 barrels, oil used as fuel at producing centres, and 1,632,000 barrels, the net gain in stocks at wells. Of the total, 788,794,000 barrels or 88 per cent. was classified as light oil. Number of producing wells December 31, 1927, 323,300, a gain of 4,700 over 1926. About 10,000 wells were abandoned in 1927. Refinery consumption in 1927 totalled 823,835,000 barrels, of which 778,729,000 barrels were domestic crude and 50,106,000 barrels were foreign crude petroleum. Production of motor fuel in 1927 was 14,080,058,000 gallons or 834,049,000 barrels.

The precious metals in 1926 were mined mainly in California, Colorado, Alaska, South Dakota, and Arizona for gold, and Utah, Montana, Idaho, Arizona, Nevada, and Colorado for silver. The production of gold and silver in the United States from 1792 to 1926 was as follows:—

Year	Gold		Silver
	Quantity	Value	Quantity	Value
	Ozs. troy	Dollars	Ozs. troy	Dollars
1792-1847 . . .	1,186,977	24,537,000	309,560	404,500
1848-1872 . . .	58,279,781	1,204,750,000	118,568,200	157,749,900

Total . . .	212,556,465	4,343,332,100	2,936,300,611	2,384,132,939

Production of gold in the United States in 1927 was 2,197,125 ounces, valued at 45,418,600 dollars; of silver, 60,434,441 ounces, valued at 34,266,328 dollars on the basis of 56·7 cents per ounce, the average New York price of bar silver.

Precious stones are found in considerable varieties in the United States, including sapphires (in Montana), turquoise, tourmaline, garnets, beryl, agates, amethyst, ruby, topaz, &c.

IV. MANUFACTURES.

The following table shows the condition of manufacturing industries in the United States as reported at each census from 1900 to 1927. The censuses of 1921 and later years cover establishments with products valued at 5,000 dollars or more, whereas at prior censuses the corresponding limit was 500 dollars. The omission of data for establishments having products valued at 500 dollars or more, but less than 5,000 dollars, affects very slightly the totals except for number of establishments, as establishments of this class in 1921 (53,999) while representing 21·6 per cent. of the total number of establishments, only reported six-tenths of one per cent. of the total number of wage earners and three-tenths of one per cent. of the total value of products.

In the statistics shown below, data for establishments engaged in automobile repairing for 1914 to 1919 and for coffee roasting and spice grinding for 1914 to 1923 have been omitted, as no data have been collected for these industries at subsequent dates. Figures for 1927 exclude establishments for the killing and dressing of poultry previously included.

For comparison of broad types of manufacturing, the industries covered by the census of manufactures have been divided into 16 general groups. The following table presents statistics for these groups :—

Summary for 16 General Groups of Industries

<sup>1</sup> Group totals for 1923 now differ in some instances from figures previously furnished, due to the fact that a few industries have been reclassified and included in different groups.

The following table shows the relative importance of industries with products valued at 1,000,000,000 dollars or over in 1925:—

Industry	Number of establishments	Wage earners, average number	Wages	Cost of materials	Value of products
			Expressed in thousands of dollars
Motor vehicles (not including motor cycles)	297	197,728	341,210	2,108,192	3,198,123

In certain textile industries the average number of active spindles and looms in the years 1923 to 1927, was as follows: <sup>1</sup>

Year	Spindles in operation			Looms in operation
	Cotton	Woolen	Worsted	Woolen and Worsted	Carpet and Rugs
1923	34,681,000	1,965,637	2,210,034	68,919	7,553
1924	31,136,000	1,832,715	1,807,810	55,568	7,037

1926	33,352,000	1,662,008	1,818,845	49,129	6,662
1927	32,531,000	1,669,813	1,756,707	47,127	6,484

<sup>1</sup> Based on monthly returns from about 97 per cent. of the manufacturers.

The value of the output of certain textile industries in 1923 and 1925 was:—

Nature of products	1923	1925

The production of tin plates and terne plates was in 1920, 1,445,545 gross tons; in 1925, 1,657,795 gross tons; in 1926, 1,782,306 gross tons; and in 1927, 1,673,591 gross tons.

In 1925 there were 310 blast furnaces in active plants with a daily capacity of 136,086 tons; and in 1923, 368 (in active establishments), with a daily capacity of 141,555 tons. In 1923 the output of pig-iron was 40,162,855 gross tons, value 984,983,493 dollars; and in 1925, 36,495,562 tons, value 744,733,899 dollars. Active Bessemer, or modified Bessemer steel plants in 1925 had 102 converters; and in 1923, 105; with total daily capacity of 55,289 gross tons of ingots or direct steel castings, double turn, in 1925; and 57,723 tons in 1923. Active open-hearth steel plants in 1925 had 1,141 basic and acid furnaces; and in 1923, 1,135; daily capacity of steel, in 1925, 144,699 gross tons; and in 1923, 131,658 tons. The crucible steel furnaces in active steel plants in 1925 were 70 of 390 gross tons daily capacity, on double turn; and in 1923, 100 of 649 tons; and the electric steel furnaces numbered 178 of 4,383 tons in 1925, and 156 of 3,217 tons in 1923.

The total value of products of the steel works and rolling mills in 1923 was 3,154,325,000 dollars; and in 1925, 2,946,068,000 dollars. The values of the principal products, excluding the values of amounts consumed in the same works, were as follows:—

In the United States the values are fixed not according to average prices, but according to invoices or shipping papers, which the importers and exporters have to produce. For imports the invoices are signed by an American Consul; for exports the shipping papers are signed by the exporter or agents at the port of shipment. The quantities and values are determined by declarations.

The 'most favoured nation' treatment in commerce between Great Britain and the United States was agreed to for 4 years by the treaty of 1815, was extended for 10 years by the treaty of 1818, and indefinitely (subject to 12 months' notice) by that of 1827.

Shipping and Navigation.

About 41 per cent. of the total cargo tonnage of waterborne foreign commerce of the United States was carried in American bottoms in 1927. The shipping registered under the United States was classed as follows on June 30, 1928:—Sailing vessels (exclusive of canal boats and barges), 1,939 of 915,149 tons; steam vessels, 6,619 of 13,614,071 tons; gas vessels, 11,651 of 732,608 tons; total (including canal boats and barges), 25,385 vessels of 16,683,061 tons.

Of vessels registered as engaged in the foreign trade and the whale fisheries, the aggregate was, in 1928, 6,940,393 tons, showing a decrease of 376,666 tons as compared with 1927; while of vessels engaged in the coasting trade and the cod and mackerel fisheries the total in 1928 was 9,742,668 tons, or 272,226 tons less than in the preceding year.

The shipping was distributed thus (June 30, 1928):—

Internal Communications.

On January 1, 1928, the road mileage, including State Highway Systems, was 8,000,190, of which 550,064 miles were surfaced roads, and 627,259 graded and drained.

Railway history in the United States commenced in the year 1828. According to Poor's Railway Manual, the extent of railways in operation in 1830 was 23 miles; it rose to 52,922 miles in 1870; to 167,191 miles in 1890. According to the Interstate Commerce Commission's corresponding mileage, it was (year ended on June 30) in 1900, 198,964; in 1910, 249,992; in 1920, 263,821; in 1921, 262,544; in 1922, 261,984; in 1923, 262,482; in 1924, 262,158; in 1925, 261,871; in 1926, 261,562; and in 1927, 262,091. The ordinary gauge is 4 ft. 8½ in.

Loading of revenue freight cars in 1923 totalled 51,576,731 cars, 59,075 less than in 1927.

The following table, based on the figures of the Interstate Commerce Commission, shows some railway statistics for 5 years:—

	1923	1924	1925	1926	1927

The total capital (stock and funded debt) outstanding on December 31, 1927, was 21,848,948,000 dollars; the total amount of dividends declared, 567,281,000 dollars; interest accrued on funded debt, 583,452,000 dollars. Equipment in service on Dec. 31, 1927, was as follows: locomotives, including electric, 65,348; freight cars, 2,378,800; passenger train cars, 55,749.

The telegraphs of the United States are largely in the hands of the Western Union Telegraph Company, which had (December 31, 1927) 251,756 miles of pole line and cable, 1,783,140 miles of wire, and 24,765 offices. The receipts of the company in 1927 were 134,460,816 dollars; expenses 119,828,218 dollars; net income 15,132,598 dollars.

A very large proportion of the telephone business also is controlled by one company. The statistics of this corporation, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and its associated operating companies which together form the 'Bell Telephone System,' are shown in the following table for January 1 of each year:—

On July 1, 1928, there were 49,944 post offices. The total expenditure of the Postal Service during the year 1927-1928 was 725,699,765 dollars; total receipts, 693,633,921 dollars; excess of expenditures over revenues, 32,065,844 dollars; losses by fire, burglary, bad debts, &c., 55,251 dollars, making the total deficiency in postal revenues 32,121,095 dollars.

Money orders issued during 1927-28 were as follows: domestic, 196,287,479, amounting to 1,630,156,857 dollars; international, 3,842,996, amounting to 71,620,297; total, 200,130,475, amounting to 1,701,677,154 dollars.

For the year ending June 30, 1928, mails were transported by rail on a length of 226,965 miles. The total number of employees in the railway mail service was 20,854. During the year there were 17,999,203,148 distributions and redistributions of pieces of mail, exclusive of registered mail, by railway postal clerks.

On June 30, 1928, the postal savings deposits amounted to 152,143,349 dollars, an increase of 4,784,095 dollars as compared with the previous year.

Currency and Credit.

The monetary system has been monometallic since 1873, gold being the standard. There are a number of different types of currency in circulation, the issuance of which are governed by various laws. Gold coin, gold certificates, silver dollars, Treasury notes of 1890, and United States notes are legal tender to any amount. Subsidiary silver coins are legal tender to an amount of Ten Dollars in one payment.

Gold certificates and silver certificates are always backed dollar for dollar by gold or silver, respectively, held in the Treasury. They are receivable for all public dues and may be held by banks as lawful reserve. Treasury notes of 1890 are redeemable in either gold coin or silver dollars. They are being cancelled when received by the Treasury of the United States and are being replaced by silver certificates. United States notes are legal tender for all debts, public and private, except duties on imports and interest on public debt. Federal Reserve Notes, though not legal tender, are receivable by the government for all public dues and are receivable on all accounts by all Federal Reserve Banks, National Banks, and other member banks of the Federal Reserve System. They are redeemable in gold coin at the Treasury, and in gold or lawful money at any Federal Reserve Bank. National bank notes and Federal Reserve Bank notes are also not legal tender but are receivable for all public dues except duties on imports, and may be used by the Government in all payments except interest on a public debt. They are redeemable in lawful money at the Treasury and at the various banks of issue.

The following statement shows the stock of United States money, including paper currency in circulation in foreign countries and the amount held by the Cuban agencies of the Federal reserve banks, on October 3, 1923:—

<sup>1</sup> Does not include gold bullion or foreign coin other than that held by the Treasury Federal reserve banks, and Federal reserve agents. Gold held by Federal reserve banks under earmark for foreign account is excluded, and gold held abroad for Federal reserve banks is included.

<sup>4</sup> The amount of money held in trust against gold and silver certificates and Treasury notes of 1890, which is equal to the total amount of these certificates and notes outstanding (1,888,991 dollars), must be deducted from this total before combining it with money outside of the Treasury to arrive at the stock of money in the United States.

The coinage of the United States mints in six calendar years was as follows, in thousands of dollars:—

Banking.

The banking system of the United States includes: (1) National banks supervised by the Federal Government, under the National Bank Act of 1863 and subsequent amendments; (2) State banks and trust companies organised under the banking laws of the various States; (3) Federal Reserve banks operating under the general supervision of the Federal Reserve Board as provided in the Federal Reserve Act of December 23, 1913; and (4) banks for extending agricultural credits operating under supervision of the Federal Farm Loan Board.

National banks, numbering 7,691 on June 30, 1928, are required to have a minimum capital of 25,000 dollars. Under certain limitations they are permitted to establish branches within the cities in which they are located. They are authorised to issue circulating notes not in excess of paid-in capital, secured by United States bonds of certain issues deposited with the Treasurer of the United States. The effective limit upon the note circulation of National banks is the amount of bonds eligible as security. On June 30, 1928, less than 675,000,000 dollars of such bonds were outstanding and nearly 666,000,000 dollars of these were on deposit with the Treasurer to secure circulation. National banks on June 30, 1928, reported resources and liabilities as follows:—

For state banking institutions, numbering 18,265 on June 30, 1928, minimum capital and other requirements imposed by state banking codes vary from state to state. In the aggregate these institutions reported for June 30, 1928, loans of 24,500,000,000 dollars, investments of 10,600,000,000 dollars, deposits of 33,500,000,000 dollars, and rediscounts and bills payable of 721,000,000 dollars.

There is no central bank in the United States. The Federal reserve system, established by Act of December 23, 1913, comprises the Federal Reserve Board of eight members sitting in Washington, and 12 Federal Reserve banks located one in each of the Federal Reserve districts into which the country is divided. Of the Board members, six are appointed for ten-year terms by the President, who designates one to serve as Governor and one as Vice-Governor of the Board. The Secretary of the Treasury and Controller of the Currency are members ex-officio and the Secretary of the Treasury serves ex-officio as Chairman of the Board. This Board prescribes administrative regulations and exercises general supervisory powers. In each Federal Reserve district the capital of the reserve bank is subscribed by member banks of the district in proportion to their capital and surplus. Member banks include all National banks, except in Hawaii and Alaska, since these banks are required by law to join the system, and such eligible state banks and trust companies as elect to accept the conditions of membership. On June 30, 1928, the number of state members was 1,244. Total resources of member banks—national and state—amounted on this date to 45,092,000,000 dollars, being equal approximately to two-thirds of the resources of all banks in the country. Member banks are required to deposit their reserves in the reserve banks and only deposit credits in the reserve banks count as legal reserve for the member banks. The reserve banks are authorized to issue Federal Reserve notes secured by gold or eligible paper, with a minimum gold reserve of 40 per cent.; to discount eligible paper for member banks; to fix the rate of discount on advances to member banks subject to review and determination of the Federal Reserve Board; to engage in certain open market operations, principally to buy and sell U.S. securities and bankers' acceptances; to function as collection agencies and clearing houses for member banks; and to act as fiscal agents of the United States Government. These banks make no loans to individuals and carry no deposits, except for other banks and for governments. On October 3, 1928, the capital funds and total resources of these banks were as follows:

District	Federal Reserve Bank	Capital paid in and Surplus (in thousands of dollars)	Total Resources (in thou. dollars)	District	Federal Reserve Bank	Capital paid in and Surplus (in thousands of dollars)	Total Resources (in thous. dollars)

Banks operating under the supervision of the Federal Farm Loan Board include the Federal Land Banks (12 in number) and the Joint-Stock Land Banks (54 in number) which extend to farmers mortgage loans amortized over periods of 20 to 35 years; and the Federal Intermediate Credit Banks (12 in number) which extend agricultural credits for periods of from 6 months to 3 years. Loans outstanding of the Federal and Joint-Stock Land Banks amounted on August 31, 1928, to 1,796,591,000 dollars, and of the Federal Intermediate Credit banks, on August 31, 1928, to 66,978,000 dollars.

Savings banks and trust companies reported for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928, total savings deposits of 28,412,961,000 dollars belonging to 53,188,348 depositors, an increase of 2,322,059,000 dollars and 4,833,564 depositors over previous year. Actual total is much larger as in 15 states saving deposits are not separately reported; present increase, for example, is largely due to the fact that Ohio began to furnish separate report.

Money, Weights, and Measures.

The dollar of 100 cents is of the par value of 49.32*d.*, or 4.8665 dollars to the pound sterling.

The monetary unit, in accordance with the monetary law of March 14, 1900, is the gold dollar of 25.8 grains (or 1.6718 gramme) .900 fine. The Government undertakes to maintain parity between gold and silver coin, and in 1890 established a fund of 150,000,000 dollars in gold for the repayment of United States notes and Treasury notes in gold at sight. This fund has been increased to 156,039,000 dollars.

Gold coins in common use are 20, 10 and 5-dollar pieces called double eagles, eagles, and half-eagles. The eagle weighs 258 grains or 16.71818 grammes .900 fine, and therefore contains 232.2 grains or 15.0464 grammes of fine gold.

The silver dollar weighs 412.5 grains or 26.730 grammes .900 fine, and therefore contains 371.25 grains or 24.057 grammes of fine silver. Subsidiary silver coins contain 347.22 grains of fine silver per dollar.

Seven kinds of Notes are in circulation in the United States. (1) United States Notes, in denominations of 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 500, 1,000 and 10,000 dollars (so-called "Greenbacks") which are covered by a gold reserve of 156 million dollars in the Treasury. (2) Gold Certificates, in denominations of 10, 20, 50, 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000, and 10,000 dollars. (3) Silver Certificates in denominations of 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 500 and 1,000 dollars. (4) Treasury Notes of 1890. (5) Federal Reserve notes in denominations of 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000 and 10,000 dollars. (6) National Bank Notes in denominations of 1, 2, 5, 10, 20, 50, 100, 500 and 1,000 dollars. (7) Federal Reserve Bank Notes. Of the note issues only United States Notes, Treasury Notes of 1890, and gold certificates are legal tender. The Treasury notes of 1890 and the Federal reserve bank notes, of which less than 5,500,000 dollars were outstanding on September 30, 1923, are being withdrawn from circulation.

British weights and measures are usually employed, but the old Winchester gallon and bushel are used instead of the new or imperial standards. They are:—

Wine Gallon = 0.83267 gallon.

Bushel . = 0.9689 imperial bushel.

Instead of the British cwt. a Cental, of 100 pounds, is used; the short ton contains 2,000 lbs.; the long ton, 2,240 lbs.

The National Guard on June 30, 1928, consisted of 206 officers, 2 warrant officers and 2,597 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Alabama is largely an agricultural State; the number of farms in 1925 was 237,631; the farm area was 16,739,139 acres, of which 7,691,713 acres were crop land; the value of all farm property was 500,740,322 dollars (1925). White farmers numbered 152,310; negro farmers, 85,321. The chief crops in 1926 are maize, 45,765,000 bushels; wheat, 94,000 bushels; oats, 3,036,000 bushels; potatoes, 2,030,000 bushels. Sugar-cane is largely grown and 3,080,000 gallons of syrup were manufactured in 1925. On January 1, 1928, the live-stock comprised 89,000 horses, 321,000 mules, 350,000 milch cows, 709,000 other cattle, 66,000 sheep, and 982,000 swine. In 1926 the area under cotton was 3,770,000 acres; the yield was 1,490,000 bales of cotton, valued at 79,715,000 dollars. Area of national forest lands on June 30, 1928, 122,739 acres.

In 1925, there were 2,349 manufacturing establishments, employing 116,599 wage-earners who earned 101,242,839 dollars, used raw material worth 325,684,194 dollars, and turned out products valued at 552,824,044 dollars. Iron ore, 1926, amounted to 6,871,412 long tons. The pig-iron output amounted to 2,875,534 long tons in 1926; 21,000,962 short tons of coal were mined the same year. Portland cement output, 1926, was 6,693,900 barrels. The mineral output in 1926, comprising coal, iron ore, cement and clay products, was valued at 83,709,894 dollars. Steel products in 1925 reached value of 74,738,760 dollars; cotton goods, 85,982,623 dollars; cast-iron pipe, 46,184,691 dollars. Other large industries are railway-car construction, the manufacture of fertilisers, of cotton-seed oil and cake, and of turpentine and resin. On July 31, 1927, there were 1,524,000 active spindles in the State consuming 570,000 bales of cotton.

The chief port of Alabama is Mobile, through which there is a large ocean-going trade.

The larger rivers in the State are navigable (except at low water) for several hundred miles; the Alabama river for 400 miles. In 1925 the railways within the State had a length of 5,303 miles, exclusive of 384 miles of electric railway. The State system of roads comprises 3,936 miles, of which 2,172 had been surfaced by January 1, 1927.

On June 30, 1927, Alabama had 105 national banks with resources of 204,090,000 dollars, demand deposits of 83,157,000 dollars, savings deposits of 61,764,000 dollars. State banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 44,989,000 dollars.

ARIZONA.

Government.—Arizona was admitted into the Union as a Sovereign State on February 14, 1912. In the laws which the first State Legislature of Arizona enacted, the affairs of State government are placed under direct control of the people, who can at any time exercise the machinery of the Initiative, Referendum and the Recall. An amendment to the Constitution was adopted in 1912 giving the State power to engage in industrial pursuits.

The State Senate consists of 19 members, and the House of Representatives 46. The State is represented in the National Congress by one member of the lower house and two Senators.

Governor.—John C. Phillips, 1929-31 (6,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—J. C. Callaghan.

The State capital is Phoenix (population in 1924 estimated at 45,000). Tucson had a population of 20,292 in 1920. The State is divided into 14 counties.

Area, Population and Instruction.—Area 113,810 square miles, including 146 square miles of water. The Indian reservations had an area of 33,891 square miles in 1926, with a population of 44,729. According to the 1920 census, population is 334,162.

The population in four census years was:—

1890	86,886	1,357	88,243	0.8	1910	202,945	2,009	204,954	1.8
1900	121,088	1,848	122,931	1.1	1920	326,157	8,005	334,162	2.9

The estimated population in 1925 was 407,702; on July 1, 1928, 474,000. In 1920 the population by race and sex was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . . . .	159,845	5,859	1,370	17,028	183,602
Female . . . . .	182,104	2,146	349	15,961	190,560
Total . . . . .	291,449	8,005	1,719	32,989	334,162

In 1920, 78,099, or 23.4 per cent. of the total population of the State, were foreign-born white, of whom 2,882 were English, 60,325 (77.2 per cent.) Mexicans, 1,962 Canadians, 1,516 Germans, 1,206 Irish, and 1,261

Italian Of the total population in 1920, 35·2 per cent. were urban and 2·4 per cent. Negro. Marriages in 1927 totalled 4,959; divorces, 888.

The order of strength of religious bodies is: Roman Catholics, Methodists, Baptists, Episcopalians, Mormons, Presbyterians, Congregationalists.

School attendance is compulsory for children between the ages of 8 and 16 years during the entire school term. Instruction is free for pupils from 6 to 21 years of age. The enrolled pupils in 1926 in the 403 district elementary schools were 67,340, and there were 2,339 teachers. Forty-two public high schools had 10,724 pupils and 636 teachers. There are two public normal schools at Tempe and Flagstaff. The total expenditure for public elementary and secondary schools in 1925 was 7,975,000 dollars. The State University of Arizona, at Tucson, founded in 1885, had 135 professors and 1,325 students in 1926-27. There is a State Agricultural School also at Tucson.

Finance and Defence.—Revenues are derived mainly from the general property tax levied on all property not specially exempted. The revenue and expenditure in the year ending June 30, 1928, were:—

	Dollars
Balance in hand July 1, 1927 . . . . .	2,229,275
Receipts, 1927-28 . . . . .	19,868,274
Total . . . . .	22,097,549
Disbursements, 1927-28 . . . . .	19,126,580
Balance, June 30, 1928 . . . . .	2,970,969

The bonded debt, June 30, 1928, amounted to 2,830,275 dollars. The net value of taxable real and personal property amounted to 655,127,177 dollars.

The National Guard consists (June 30, 1928) of 54 officers, 1 warrant officer and 823 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Arizona, with its dry climate, is not well suited for agriculture, but along the watercourses and where irrigation is used the soil is productive. The wide pasture-lands in this State are favourable for the rearing of cattle and sheep. Several large reservoirs for the storage of water have been constructed by the United States and State Government, notably the Roosevelt dam, which supplies water to the Salt River Valley District, of which Phoenix is the principal city. The Government has completed the Yuma project, by which the waters of the lower Colorado River are brought to the Arizona side under the river by means of an inverted syphon. Other similar irrigation and hydroelectric projects are the San Carlos Dam, to empound the waters of the Gila river and the Mormon Flats Dam, on the Salt River, about 30 miles below the Roosevelt Dam, for furnishing electrical power to many of the largest copper mines in the State and many of the smaller cities and towns.

In 1925 Arizona contained 10,802 farms, with 10,101,361 acres of pasture land and 578,246 acres of crop land, out of a total farm area of 11,065,291 acres. The total value of all farm property was (in 1925) 194,048,096 dollars, and the most important crops (1926) were as follows:—Cotton, 115,000 bales; wheat, 950,000 bushels; corn, 1,120,000 bushels; citrus fruits (oranges, lemons, tangerines, and grape fruit), 150,000 boxes. On January 1, 1928, there were 98,000 horses, 35,000 milch cows, and 546,000 other cattle, 1,267,000 sheep, and 17,000 swine. The wool clip in 1927 amounted to 6,326,000 pounds of wool. The national forests in the State have an area (June 30, 1927) of 11,386,462 acres, and the Grand Canyon has been made a National Park.

The mining industries of the State are important, producing copper, gold, silver, asbestos, lead, and zinc. The production of gold in 1927 amounted to 203,088 ounces, valued at 4,198,200 dollars; silver, 6,601,467 ounces, value 3,743,032 dollars; copper (1926), 723,296,051 pounds; and lead (1926) 11,629 short tons. The total value of all minerals mined in 1926 was 115,047,987 dollars. The leading industry, the smelting and refining of copper, had production in 1926 valued at 101,261,447 dollars.

In 1925 there were 2,409 miles of steam railroad. The state has 2,031 miles of road of which 1,421 had been surfaced by 1927.

On June 30, 1927, Arizona had 15 national banks with resources of 27,946,000 dollars, demand deposits of 14,650,000 dollars, savings deposits of 8,445,000 dollars; State banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 20,636,000 dollars.

ARKANSAS.

Government.—The State was admitted into the Union on June 15, 1836. The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 35 members, elected for four years, partially renewed every two years, and a House of Representatives of 100 members elected for two years. The Sessions are biennial and limited to 60 days unless extended by a two-thirds vote of each House. Senators and Representatives must be citizens, the former 25 years of age and the latter 21. The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and seven Representatives.

Governor.—Harvey Parnell (1929-31) (4,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Jun B. Higgins.

The State is divided into 75 counties. The State Capital is Little Rock.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area 53,385 square miles (810 square miles being water). Census population on Jan. 1, 1920, 1,752,204.

Population in the four census years was as follows:—

Years	Population
	White <sup>1</sup>	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1860	324,191	111,259	435,450	8.3
1900	944,708	366,856	1,311,564	25.0
1910	1,131,658	442,891	1,574,449	30.0
1920	1,279,984	472,220	1,752,204	33.4

The estimated population on July 1, 1928, was 1,944,000.

In 1920 the population by birth and sex was:—

	White		Negro	Asiatic	Indian
	Native.	Foreign.
Male	649,578	8,591	236,895	103	61
Female	616,204	5,384	235,325	18	45
Total	1,265,782	13,975	472,220	121	106

There were 895,228 males and 856,976 females in 1920.

Of the foreign-born white population which, in 1920, represented 0·8 per cent. of the total population, 3,979 (28·5 per cent.) were German, 1,137 (8·1 per cent.) English, 676 Irish, 1,314 (9·4 per cent.) Italian, and 880 Canadians.

Little Rock (capital) had a population of 65,142 in 1920; Fort Smith, 28,870; Pine Bluff, 19,280; Hot Springs, 11,695. Of the total population in 1920, 16·6 per cent. were urban and 27·0 per cent. Negro. Marriages in 1927 totalled 26,716; divorces, 4,409.

The most numerous religious bodies in the State are Baptist, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Disciples of Christ, and Presbyterian, in the order named.

The State provides separate schools for white and black children.

In 1926, the 6,316 elementary schools had 11,345 teachers (3,862 males and 7,483 females) and 466,858 enrolled pupils (231,655 boys and 235,203 girls); the number of high schools was 400 with 1,421 teachers (568 men and 853 women) and 30,381 pupils (13,671 boys and 16,710 girls); 2 public normal schools had 63 teachers and 1,160 students (406 men and 754 women). The University of Arkansas, founded in 1872 at Fayetteville, has 148 professors and about 1,500 students. There are also several small denominational colleges. Philander Smith College, established in 1877, at Little Rock, is for coloured students. Expenditure on education (1926), 14,911,064 dollars, of which 12,194,868 dollars were for elementary and secondary and 2,716,196 for all other schools.

Finance and Defence.—The total receipts and expenditure for the year ending June 30, 1925, were:—

	Dollars.
Balance in hand, July 1, 1924	3,446,351
Receipts, 1924-25	22,508,835
Total	25,955,186
Disbursements, 1924-25	21,851,851
Balance, June 30, 1925	4,103,335

The State debt on October 1, 1927, amounted to 15,903,166 dollars, most of it in 3 per cent. interest-bearing bonds. The assessed value of property (1927) was 614,383,152 dollars. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders, the State has a defaulted debt estimated at about 8,700,000 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1928, consisted of 141 officers, 2 warrant officers and 2,034 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Arkansas is an agricultural State. In 1925 the total farm area was 15,632,439 acres, of which 7,823,199 acres were crop land (number of farms, 221,991). The value of all farm property in 1925 was 628,846,351 dollars. In the north maize (41,533,000 bushels in 1926), wheat (405,000 bushels), oats, potatoes, hay and forage crops are grown; in the south, cotton and tobacco. For 1926 the cotton area was 3,859,000 acres, and the yield 1,620,000 bales, valued at 89,100,000 dollars. In the north-west, fruits, especially apples and peaches, are grown. The cultivation of roses (for perfumes) is pursued locally. Live stock on January 1, 1928, comprised 147,000 horses, 335,000 mules, 379,000 milch cows, 317,000 other cattle, 54,000 sheep, and 1,088,000 swine. The national forests in Arkansas on June 30, 1927, had an area of 982,754 acres.

The State has a large coal area; 1,459,017 short tons were mined in 1926. The State also produces manganese ores and lead, whetstones (from nevaculite), bauxite (for aluminium), petroleum (58,332,000 barrels in 1926), and natural gas (48,566,000 cubic feet in 1926). The quarries yield limestone, sandstone, granite, and slate, besides asphalt, and mineral waters. Total mineral output in 1926 was valued at 84,485,672 dollars.

Of the industries the cutting and working of timber is the most important (1,697 establishments). Arkansas, according to the census of manufactures of 1925, had 1,257 manufacturing establishments employing 43,977 wage-earners earning 37,538,492 dollars.

The foreign trade of the State is carried on through the port of New Orleans; cotton and lumber transported down the Mississippi are the chief exports. In 1925, there were in the State 4,918 miles of steam railway and 125 miles of electric railway.

On June 30, 1927, Arkansas had 79 national banks with resources of 101,533,000 dollars, demand deposits of 43,100,000 dollars and savings deposits of 31,278,000 dollars; State banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 42,069,000 dollars.

CALIFORNIA.

Constitution and Government.—California, though unexplored and practically unknown to Europeans, was from its discovery down to 1846 politically associated with Mexico. On July 5, 1846, the American flag was hoisted at Monterey, and a proclamation was issued declaring California to be a portion of the United States, and on February 2, 1849, by the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo, the territory was formally ceded by Mexico to the United States, and was admitted to the Union September 9, 1850.

The State Legislature is composed of the Senate of forty members elected for terms of four years—half the number being elected each two years—and the Assembly, eighty members, elected for two years. Regular sessions are held biennially in the odd numbered years.

California is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 11 Representatives.

Governor.—Clement Calhoun Young, 1927-31 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—F. C. Jordan.

California is divided into fifty-eight counties, one of which—San Francisco—has a combined county and city government. The legislative authority is vested in a board of 18 supervisors elected from the city and county at large. Each of the other counties is governed by a board of 5 supervisors elected from districts. The seat of the State Government is at Sacramento.

Area and Population.—Area 158,297 square miles (2,645 square miles being water).

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses was as follows :

Years	White <sup>1</sup>	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1870	555,975	4,272	560,247	3·6
1900	1,474,008	11,045	1,485,053	9·5
1910	2,355,904	21,645	2,377,549	15·3
1920	3,388,098	38,763	3,426,861	22·0

<sup>1</sup> Including Indians and Asiatics.

Estimated population, July 1, 1928, 5,398,457.

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

	White	Negro	Chinese <sup>1</sup>	Japanese	Indian
Male	1,710,223	19,837	29,032	45,414	9,085
Female	1,554,488	18,926	5,043	26,538	8,275
Total	3,264,711	38,763	34,075	71,952	17,360

Of the total population in 1920, 1,813,591 were males, and 1,613,270 were females (68·0 per cent. were urban, and 1·1 per cent. Negro).

There are about 27 Indian reservations in the State, with a total area (1926) of 674 square miles. There were 18,913 Indians in the State in 1926.

Three-fourths of the population of California are of American birth. Of the 681,662 persons of white foreign birth in 1920, representing 19·9 per cent. of the total population of the State, 67,180 (9·9 per cent.) were German, 45,308 (6·8 per cent.) Irish, 58,572 (8·6 per cent.) English, 16,597 Scotch, 59,562 Canadian, 20,387 French, 88,502 (13·0 per cent.) Italian, 81,925 Swedish, 86,610 (12·7 per cent.) Mexicans, and 10,313 Greeks.

The estimated population of the larger cities on July 1, 1927, was : Los Angeles, 1,325,059 ; San Francisco, 661,541 ; Oakland, 310,571 ; Long Beach, 129,203 ; San Diego, 112,545 ; Sacramento, 100,334 ; Fresno, 67,238 ; Pasadena, 83,518 ; and Berkeley, 80,707. In 1927 the death-rate was 14·5 per 1,000 ; the birth-rate, 19·9 ; and the marriage-rate, 12·6. Marriages in 1927 were 53,487 ; divorces, 14,185.

Religion and Instruction.—The Roman Catholic Church is much stronger than any other single church ; next are Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, Congregationalists, Disciples of Christ and Episcopalians.

Education is compulsory for children from 8–16 years of age for eight months in the year. In 1928–27, the elementary schools had an enrolment of 659,188 pupils (339,016 boys and 320,172 girls), with 21,970 teachers ; the public high schools had an enrolment of 472,516 pupils (234,195 boys and 238,321 girls), and 9,868 teachers ; public kindergartens had an enrolment of 73,001 pupils and 1,310 teachers. The total expenditure during the year 1926–27 for the above branches of education was 141,577,131 dollars. The 7 teachers' colleges had 10,552 students (1,328 men and 9,224 women) and 187 teachers.

There are in California three great universities—the University of California (State), Leland Stanford Junior University, and the University of Southern California. The University of California comprises the following departments of resident instruction and research: At Berkeley, the Colleges of Letters and Science, Agriculture, Chemistry, Commerce, Mechanics, Mining, and Engineering, the Graduate Division and the Schools of Jurisprudence, Education, and Architecture; at San Francisco, the George Williams Hooper Foundation for Medical Research and the Schools of Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, and Fine Arts, and the Hastings College of the Law (affiliated); at Los Angeles, the Southern branch of the University of California, including a College of Letters and Science and a Teacher's College, also the Los Angeles Medical Department, a graduate school; at Mount Hamilton, the Lick Astronomical Department; at Riverside and Davis, Teaching and Research Branches of the College of Agriculture; at La Jolla, the Scripps Institution of Oceanography. In 1927-28, during the regular college year, there were at Berkeley, 983 officers of instruction and 11,039 students; at Los Angeles, 295 officers of instruction and 6,667 students; at other centres, 619 officers of instruction and research and 1,073 students: a grand total (with deduction for duplicates) of 1,913 officers and 18,730 resident students. The total annual income of the University is about 13,619,000 dollars. Leland Stanford Junior University near Palo Alto was chartered in 1885, and opened its doors to students in 1891. It has an endowment now amounting to about 40,370,135 dollars in interest-bearing funds, of which 22,000,000 dollars, besides large landed estates, was given by Mr. and Mrs. Leland Stanford in memory of their son. In 1928 it had 507 professors and teachers and 3,459 students. The University of Southern California at Los Angeles (Meth. Episcopal) had 550 instructors and 12,217 students (1925-26). It has an endowment of one million dollars. California (State) Polytechnic School is located at San Luis Obispo.

California has a comprehensive library system, at the head of which stands the State Library at Sacramento.

Charity.—On July 1, 1928, there were 12,234 persons in county hospitals and almshouses, 59 per cent. of whom were custodial cases and the others required hospital care. There were 5,598 men and 108 women in state penitentiaries and 1,091 juveniles in state reform schools.

Finance and Defence.—For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928, the receipts and disbursements of all State funds was as follows:—

	Dollars
Cash on hand, July 1, 1927 . . . . .	49,717,989
Receipts, 1927-28 . . . . .	141,467,161
Total . . . . .	191,185,150
Disbursements, 1927-28 . . . . .	128,745,426
Cash in hand, June 30, 1928 . . . . .	62,439,724

The assessed value of taxable property on June 30, 1928, was 8,123,208,593 dollars, and the net bonded state debt amounted to 114,374,500 dollars.

The National Guard, on June 30, 1928, consisted of 370 officers, 6 warrant officers, and 5,109 enlisted men.

Agriculture and Forestry.—Extending seven hundred miles from north to south, and intersected by several ranges of mountains, California has almost every variety of climate, from the very wet to the very dry, and from the temperate to the semi-tropical. Irrigation is extensively practised. At the date of the 1925 census there were 136,409 farms, comprising 27,516,955 acres, of which 8,401,342 acres were crop land and 16,871,635 acres were pasture lands. The value of farms, lands and buildings in 1925 was 3,152,488,322 dollars.

The cereal crops in 1927 were: maize, 2,464,000 bushels; wheat, 13,642,000 bushels; oats, 4,190,000 bushels; barley, 27,335,000 bushels; rice, 8,960,000 bushels; beans, 4,825,000 bushels. The fruit crops in 1927 included wine grapes, 473,000 tons; table grapes, 490,000 tons; raisin grapes, 1,443,000 tons; oranges, 28,167,000 boxes; lemons, 7,712,000 boxes; apples, 7,458,000 bushels; pears, 181,000 tons; figs, 12,000 tons; peaches, 492,000 tons; apricots, 208,000 tons; plums, 492,000 tons; prunes, 203,000 tons; cherries, 12,000 tons; olives, 15,500 tons; almonds, 12,000 tons; and walnuts, 48,500 tons.

The hay crop is the most valuable of all crops grown in the State. In 1927 it yielded 5,332,000 tons. Hops amounted to 9,900,000 pounds, and cotton 43,547,000 pounds. The values of the main vegetable crops (1927) were: lettuce, 15,381,000 dollars; cantaloupes, 11,729,000 dollars; asparagus, 7,727,000 dollars; tomatoes, 4,772,000 dollars. Of the main field and fruit crops, 11,703,700 tons were harvested in 1927; and the total value to the farmer of the main field and fruit crops was 406,232,000 dollars.

On January 1, 1928, the farm animals were: 290,000 horses, 53,000 mules, 602,000 milch cows, 1,393,000 other cattle, 3,528,000 sheep, and 614,000 swine. The total value of all live-stock on January 1, 1928, was 183,801,000 dollars. The wool-clip in 1927 was 21,540,000 lbs.; in 1928, 23,250,000 lbs.

There are (1928) in the State 20 national forests covering a total net area of 19,164,573 acres; 4 national parks with a total net area of 928,021 acres; 7 State parks with a total area of 13,834 acres; and private timber land with a total area of 5,800,000 acres. The total annual value of lumber produced is now approximately 50,000,000 dollars for pine, and 35,000,000 dollars for redwood.

Mining, Manufactures, etc.—Gold was first discovered in 1848.

In 1927 the gold output (564,981 ounces) was valued at 11,679,200 dollars, and the silver output (1,557,812 fine ounces) valued at 883,279 dollars. Other mineral products (1927) were copper, 27,350,316 pounds, valued at 3,582,885 dollars; 2,748,440 pounds of lead (173,151 dollars); zinc, 8,625,004 pounds, valued at 552,000 dollars; and quicksilver, 6,488 flasks (of 75 pounds net), valued at 714,418 dollars. California is one of three most important petroleum-producing States of the Union (Oklahoma and Texas being the other two); in 1927 the output reached 231,195,774 barrels. Natural gas utilised amounted to 224,686,940 M. cubic feet, valued at 20,447,294 dollars. Portland cement (14,661,783 barrels) was valued at 26,474,935 dollars. From California comes the whole of the borate materials produced in the United States. The output in 1927 was 72,462 short tons, valued at 3,043,260 dollars. The State also produces pyrite, magnesite, brick and hollow building tile, pottery clay, granite, mineral water, salt, and soda. Bismuth, asbestos, manganese, lithium, tungsten, chromium, infusorial earth, ochre, and a great variety of precious stones are found in the State. The value of all the minerals produced in 1926 was 523,332,257 dollars; in 1927, 366,659,594 dollars.

In California in 1925 there were 9,638 manufacturing establishments, employing 249,552 wage-earners, using materials costing 1,474,887,292 dollars, and giving an output worth 2,442,952,104 dollars. Petroleum refining, the chief industry, reached a production in 1925 valued at 369,581,955 dollars; motion picture industry, 62,821,194 dollars; and meat packing, 116,787,976.

The coast and river fisheries are important, giving employment to from 12,000 to 15,000 persons. Salmon, tuna and sardines are the most important varieties of fish taken, but as many as one hundred and thirty different varieties of fish are found in the markets of the State.

Commerce and Communications.—The chief commercial ports of California are San Francisco and Los Angeles, through which in the year ending Dec. 31, 1927, the imports amounted to the value of 247,138,304 dollars, and the exports to 295,177,532 dollars.

Railways have been built in California to the extent of 18,188 miles (1927) for steam roads and about 3,171 miles for electric railways. During the year 1928 there were 557 automobile stage and truck lines operating on the highways of California. During 1927 the foregoing carriers transported (1) freight: steam roads, 44,199,058 tons; automobile stage and truck lines, 1,740,081 tons; and (2) passengers: steam roads, 41,821,723; electric roads, 708,641,500; automobile stage and truck lines, 24,634,648. The State has 6,401 miles of highway of which 4,177 miles were constructed by the State.

On June 30, 1928, there were 45 State savings banks and 196 savings departments of State departmental banks having 1,642,793 depositors with 1,028,149,283 dollars to their credit, this being an average of 625.86 dollars per depositor.

On June 30, 1928, there were 21 State commercial banks and 196 commercial departments of State departmental banks having 628,159 depositors with 379,654,105 dollars to their credit, being an average of 608.82 dollars for each depositor.

British Consul-General at San Francisco.—Gerald Campbell.

There is a British Consul at Los Angeles, and British Vice-Consuls at San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego.

COLORADO.

Government.—The State was admitted into the Union on Aug. 1, 1876. The General Assembly consists of a Senate of 35 members elected for four years, one-half retiring every two years, and of a House of Representatives of 65 members elected for two years. Sessions are biennial. Eligible to either House are all citizens of the United States male and female 25 years of age and 12 months resident in the district for which they seek election. Qualified as electors are all persons male and female (except criminals and insane) 21 years of age who are citizens of the United States, and have resided in the State for 12 months immediately preceding the election.

Governor.—Wm. H. Adams, 1929-1931 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Charles M. Armstrong, 1927-1929.

The State sends to the Federal Congress two Senators and 4 Representatives.

The State is divided into 63 counties. The State Capital is Denver.

Area and Population.—Area, 103,948 square miles (290 square miles being water). Indian reservations in 1927 covered an area of 619 sq. miles, with a population of 790.

Population in four census years was as follows :—

Years	White <sup>1</sup>	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1860	34,231	46	34,277	0·3
1900	531,130	8,570	539,700	5·2
1910	787,571	11,453	799,024	7·7
1920	928,311	11,318	939,629	9·1

<sup>1</sup> Including Asiatics and Indians. In 1920, 201 Chinese and 1,383 Indians.

In 1920 the population by sex and race was :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . . . .	484,245	5,894	1,018	734	492,781
Female . . . . .	439,853	5,484	907	649	446,898
Total . . . . .	924,103	11,318	2,225	1,383	939,629

Estimated population July 1, 1928, 1,090,000.

In 1920, the foreign-born white population numbered 116,954 (12·4 per cent. of the total State population) of whom 2,584 were English, 3,357 Scottish, 6,191 Irish, 11,922 (10·3 per cent.) German, 16,669 (14·3 per cent.) Russian, 12,579 (10·8 per cent.) Italian, 10,112 Swedish, 7,621 Canadian, and 10,894 Mexican. Denver, the capital, had a population in 1920 of 256,491; Pueblo, 43,050; Colorado Springs, 30,105; Trinidad, 10,906; Boulder, 11,006. Of the total population in 1920, 48·2 per cent. were urban and 1·2 per cent. Negro. Marriages in 1927 were 11,969; divorces 2,370.

Religion and Instruction.—Roman Catholics outnumber other denominations, Methodists and Presbyterians ranking next, then Baptists Congregationalists, and Episcopalians.

In 1927 the 647 public elementary, the 275 senior high schools, the 177 junior high schools, and the 2,226 rural schools had 9,718 teachers with 251,615 enrolled pupils. Public school teachers are trained at the State Teachers' College, which in 1926-27 had 90 teachers and 4,488 students. Another State normal school, the Western State College of Colorado, has been established at Gunnison, having (in 1927-28) 47 teachers and 1,052 students. Public school expenditure, year ending June 30, 1927, 24,518,449 dollars. For superior education there are several colleges. Colorado College, founded in 1874 at Colorado Springs, had 78 professors and 974 students in 1927-28. The University of Colorado, opened in 1877 at Boulder, had 322 professors and 6,494 students (including summer school) in 1927-28. The University of Denver, founded by Territorial Charter in 1864, had 168 professors and teachers and 4,348 students (including summer school) in 1927-28. There are also an Agricultural College, at Fort Collins, with 124 professors and 1,930 students (including summer school) in 1927-28; and a School of Mines with 47 professors and 527 students. The Chamberlin Observatory in University Park, Denver, stands at an altitude of 5,280 feet above sea-level.

On November 30, 1926, there were 540 prisoners in the county jails; 171 in the State reformatory, and 953 in the State penitentiary.

Finance and Defence.—The revenue and expenditure for the biennium ending November 30, 1928, were as follows:—

	Dollars
On hand December 1, 1926 . . . . .	6,012,719
Receipts in 1926-28 . . . . .	38,104,223
Total Receipts . . . . .	44,116,942
Disbursements in 1926-28 . . . . .	39,082,133
Balance Dec. 1, 1928 . . . . .	5,034,809

The State total debt on November 30, 1928, was 10,804,400 dollars. The assessment valuation for 1927 amounted to 1,565,357,426 dollars.

On August 31, 1928, the National Guard consisted of 159 officers, 1 warrant officer, and 1,602 men.

Production and Industry.—The number of farms in 1925 was 58,020, with a total area of 24,167,270 acres, of which 7,199,300 acres were crop land and 15,350,783 acres pasture. The value of all farm property in 1925 was 712,439,922 dollars. By irrigation large portions of the State have been brought under cultivation. The chief grain crops in 1927 were wheat (21,997,000 bushels), corn (22,816,000 bushels), and oats (5,481,000 bushels). Barley and hay are also produced in great quantities. In 1927, 2,754,000 tons of sugar beets, 16,046,000 bushels of potatoes, and 2,592,000 bushels of apples were produced. Fruit and vegetables are widely cultivated. Within the State stock-raising is older than husbandry; on January 1, 1928, the number of farm animals was: 324,000 horses, 86,000 mules, 242,000 milch cows, 1,317,000 other cattle, 2,746,000 sheep, 509,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1927 yielded 3,118,000 pounds of wool. The national forests in the State have an area (June 30, 1927) of 13,234,380 acres.

Colorado has great mining and smelting industries, coal (9,781,530 tons in 1927) and the ores of the precious metals being extensively worked. In 1927 the value of the gold output (259,111 fine ounces) was 5,356,300 dollars and the silver output was 3,941,351 fine ounces valued at 2,234,746 dollars. ## CONNECTICUT.

Government.—Connecticut has been an organised commonwealth since 1637. In 1639 a written constitution was adopted which, it is claimed, was the first in the history of the world formed by a social compact. This Constitution was confirmed by a charter from Charles II. in 1662, and replaced in 1818 by a State Constitution, framed that year by a constitutional convention. Connecticut was one of the thirteen original States of the Union.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. All citizens (with necessary exceptions) 21 years of age, resident in the State for a year and in the town for six months preceding the election, have the right of suffrage provided that they can read the Constitution in English. The Senate consists of 35 members, the House of Representatives of 258 members. Members of each House are elected for the term of two years; salary, 300 dollars and mileage. ## DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Government.—The District of Columbia is the seat of Government of the United States, and consists of an area of approximately sixty-nine and one-quarter square miles, which was ceded by the State of Maryland to the United States as a site for the National Capital. It was established under the authority and direction of Acts of Congress approved July 16, 1790, and March 3, 1791, which were passed to give effect to a clause in the Constitution of the United States providing for the seat of the Government. The authority of the United States over it became vested on the first Monday of December, 1800.

The present form of local government, which dates from July 1, 1878, is a municipal corporation, and is administered by a board of three Commissioners. Two of these are appointed from civil life by the President of the United States, and confirmed by the Senate of the United States, for a term of three years each. The other Commissioner is detailed from time to time by the President of the United States from the Engineer Corps of the United States Army, to continue as such during the President's pleasure. The Commissioners are in a general way vested with jurisdiction covering all the ordinary features of municipal government, except that the Congress of the United States, only, has authority to enact legislation and appropriate money for the municipal expenses.

Secretary to the Board of Commissioners.—Daniel E. Garges.

Area and Population.—The area of the District of Columbia originally was approximately 100 square miles, but by the retrocession to the State of Virginia, in the year 1846, of the portion derived from that State, was reduced to 69.245 square miles, 62 of which are land.

The population at the date of various Federal Censuses was as follows. (Wherever the word 'coloured' is used, it refers to Negroes or to persons of partial Negro descent.):—

1880	118,028	59,596	177,624	3,062.5	1910	236,623	94,446	331,069	5,389.8
1890	154,820	75,572	230,392	3,972.3	1920	327,665	109,966	437,571	7,057.6

In 1920, approximately 25 per cent. of the total population was Negro or of Negro descent. Of the foreign-born white population, representing 6·5 per cent. of the total population, 10·5 per cent. were English, 15·1 per cent. Irish, 11·8 per cent. German, 18·1 per cent. Russian, 13·2 per cent. Italian, and 5·9 per cent. Canadian.

By sex and race the estimated population of 1927 was thus distributed :—

	White	Coloured	Total
Male . . .	187,500	63,500	251,000
Female . . .	215,600	73,400	289,000
Total . . .	403,100	136,900	540,000

Marriages in 1927 totalled 5,543 ; divorces, 146.

A portion of the District of Columbia embracing 6,654 acres is known in law as the City of Washington, 'The Federal Capital.' But that name is a geographical distinction only, as the territory it includes is not a municipal government separate from the rest of the District of Columbia, but is subject to the same national and municipal control in every respect.

Religion and Instruction.—The most numerous religious bodies are : Roman Catholic, Baptist, Methodist, Protestant-Episcopal, Presbyterian, Lutheran, and Christian Science.

The 166 public schools of the District in 1927 had 1,841 white teachers and 52,094 white pupils, and 850 coloured teachers and 25,895 coloured pupils. There were, included in the above, 17 public high schools with 827 teachers and 19,608 pupils ; 2 normal schools with 46 teachers and 625 pupils ; 4 vocational schools, with 50 teachers and 838 pupils. There were also in private and parochial elementary schools in 1926 : 3,496 boys, and 3,773 girls. Total expenditure on public education (1927), 11,237,564·24 dollars.

Superior education is given in Georgetown University, an institution under the management of the Jesuit Order, founded in 1795 ; it has 394 professors and 2,896 students : the George Washington University, non-sectarian, founded in 1821, has 346 professors and instructors, and 7,075 students ; the Howard University, principally engaged in the higher education of coloured students, was founded in 1867, and has 158 professors and 2,563 pupils ; the Catholic University of America, a post-graduate institution, was founded in 1884, and has 125 professors and 3,405 students ; the American University has 60 professors and 550 students.

Finance and Defence.—The revenues of the District are derived from a general real and personal property tax, taxes on corporations and companies, licences for conducting various businesses, and from appropriations out of the Treasury of the United States.

In 1927-28 the finance of the District of Columbia was as follows :—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1927 . . . .	12,676,257
Receipts, 1927-28 . . . .	36,999,500
Total . . . .	49,675,757
Disbursements, 1927-28 . . . .	34,715,960
Balance, July 1, 1928 . . . .	14,959,797

The District of Columbia has no bonded debt not covered by its accumulated sinking fund.

In 1928 the assessed valuation of the real property within the municipality amounted to 1,137,316,218 dollars; of tangible personal property such as furniture, horses, wagons, ships, banks and public utility corporations, 105,653,152 dollars, and intangible personal property such as stocks, bonds, etc., 539,127,763 dollars; total 1,782,097,133 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1928, consisted of 63 officers and 930 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—The District has considerable industries, the products of which are mainly for local consumption. The United States census of manufactures in 1925 showed that the raw material used cost 34,356,062 dollars, and the output was valued at 82,721,576 dollars.

Within the District are 151.58 miles of electric street railway track, as single track, and 36 miles of steam railway (1928).

On June 30, 1928, there were in the District 42 national banks, trust companies and savings banks. Their aggregate resources and liabilities balanced at 326,438,000 dollars. Their paid-in capital stock stood at 24,517,000 dollars; surplus funds at 18,503,000 dollars; individual deposits at 244,099,000 dollars; United States deposits at 3,272,000 dollars; and loans and discounts at 190,336,000 dollars.

Religion and Instruction.—Of the church members of the State 41.6 per cent. are Baptist, and 37.2 per cent. Methodist. Others are chiefly Roman Catholics, Protestant Episcopalians, and Presbyterians.

Attendance at school is compulsory. All public schools are required to have readings from the Bible without sectarian comment once every school day. Separate schools are provided for white and coloured children.

In 1928, the 2,053 public elementary schools had 8,924 teachers and 300,000 enrolled pupils. In 308 public high schools there were 2,609 teachers and 25,000 pupils. Total expenditure on schools, 27,124,910 dollars. The State provides higher education in a University of the State of Florida at Gainesville (founded 1884) with (1927) 105 professors and 1,969 students, and a State College for Women (founded at Tallahassee in 1905), with 116 teachers and 1,361 students. There are three small private colleges.

Finance and Defence.—For the year 1926-27, the receipts and disbursements amounted to the following sums :—

	Dollars
Balance July 1, 1926 . . . . .	17,655,317
Receipts 1926-27 . . . . .	35,019,736
Total . . . . .	52,675,053
Disbursements 1926-27 . . . . .	44,095,482
Balance July 1, 1927 . . . . .	8,579,571

The State has no public debt. The assessed value of all property in 1926 was 786,064,528 dollars.

On June 30, 1928, the National Guard consisted of 152 officers, 2 warrant officers and 2,287 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Florida is largely a peninsula stretching from north to south, between the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico. Agriculture is pursued generally in all parts of the State. In 1925 there were 59,217 farms with a total acreage of 5,864,519, of which 2,022,284 acres were crop land. Total value of all farm property in 1925, 513,884,122 dollars. The chief products are citrons fruits (18,297,388 trees in 1925) and truck products. Other crops are tobacco, 5,076,000 pounds in 1926; rice, maize, oats and peas. In 1926 the cotton area was 112,000 acres, and the yield 33,000 bales, valued at 1,683,000 dollars. On January 1, 1928, the State had 26,000 horses, 43,000 mules, 59,000 sheep, 543,000 pigs, 78,000 milch cows, and 533,000 other cattle. The total national forest area in June, 1927, was 343,180 acres.

The chief mineral product is phosphate rock (2,708,207 long tons in 1926); and stone (6,785,430 short tons in 1926); fullers' earth, lime, kaolin, and mineral waters are also produced. Total mineral output in 1926 was valued at 19,700,522 dollars.

Florida, with its long coast line, has extensive fisheries; the industry yields 14,000,000 dollars annually. The chief fishery products are oysters, shad, red snappers, mullet, turtles, and sponges, of which Florida has almost a monopoly.

The manufacturing industries of Florida in the year 1925 had 1,863 establishments with 66,204 wage-earners; the amount paid in wages was 65,780,109 dollars. The value of the raw material used was 113,796,330 dollars, and the output was valued at 267,009,159 dollars.

The tobacco industries are prosperous, and Key West and Tampa compete with Cuba in the manufacture of fine cigars.

The State has facilities for transportation both by land and water. In 1926 there were 5,553 miles of steam railway, and 197 miles of electric railway (1924). The Atlantic Coast Line, the Seaboard Air Line, and the Florida East Coast are the leading railroads.

On June 30, 1927, Florida had 62 national banks with resources of 288,935,000 dollars, demand deposits of 107,929,000 dollars and savings deposits of 98,720,000 dollars; State banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 79,105,000 dollars.

Total . .	1,689,114	1,206,365	228	125	2,895,832

Estimated population July 1, 1928, 3,203,000. Marriages in 1927 were 30,447; divorces, 2,230.

Of the total population (1920) 16,186, representing 0·6 per cent. of the total State population) were foreign-born white, of whom 1,936 (12 per cent.) were from Germany, 1,112 from Ireland, 1,593 from England, 1,473 (9 per cent.) from Greece, and 3,452 (21·3 per cent.) from Russia. The largest cities in the State are Atlanta (capital) with census population (1920) of 200,616; Savannah, 83,252; Macon, 52,995; Augusta, 52,548; Columbus, 31,125. Of the total population in 1920, 25·1 per cent. were urban, and 41·7 per cent. Negro.

Religion and Instruction.—Baptists and Methodists predominate, Baptists having more than half of the religious membership of the State.

Since 1916 education has been compulsory. There are separate schools for whites and negroes. In 1924 the 5,374 public elementary schools had 639,591 enrolled pupils and 14,157 teachers, while the 1,756 public high schools had 63,979 pupils and 2,856 teachers. There were 5 public normal schools with 154 teachers and 3,017 pupils. Total expenditure for education (1924), 22,701,973 dollars.

For higher education the more important State institutions are as follows :—

On September 26, 1927, the bonded debt of the State amounted to 4,893,000 dollars. According to the Council of the Corporation of Foreign Bondholders the State has a defaulted debt estimated at 13,000,000 dollars. The assessed valuation of real, personal and public utility, property in 1927 amounted to 1,262,885,965 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1928, consisted of 220 officers, 3 warrant officers and 3,360 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—In 1925 there were 249,095 farms in the State, having an area of 21,945,496 acres, of which 10,695,817 acres were crop land. Total value of all farm property in 1925 was 686,673,248 dollars; 41 per cent. of the farms are operated by Negroes, and 86 per cent. of Negro farms are rented. The Negro farmers raise little but cotton, in the production of which Georgia ranks second among the States, while it is the largest producer of sea-island cotton. For 1926 the cotton yield was 1,475,000 bales as against 1,164,000 bales in 1925, the area under cultivation being 4,090,000 acres and the value of the yield 81,862,000 dollars. In the northern part of the State the cultivation of cereals is of importance, corn being grown on five times the area of other cereals. The yield of corn (maize) in the State in 1926 was 55,346,000 bushels. Oats and wheat are also grown, while rice is an important product of coast counties (60,000 bushels in 1926). The growth of sugar cane is increasing. National forests in 1927 covered 273,605 acres. On January 1, 1928, the farm animals were 41,000 horses, 357,000 mules, 346,000 milch cows, 863,000 other cattle, 52,000 sheep, 1,424,000 swine.

The State has varied mineral resources: gold, silver, coal, iron, and manganese ores, iron pyrites, bauxite, graphite, lime, ochre, infusorial earth, natural cement, talc and soapstone, marble and other quarries, and mineral springs being worked, but none to a great extent. The marble of Georgia has a high reputation all over the States. The clay-working industries (bricks, tiles, pottery) are also important. Mineral products in 1926 reached the value of 17,479,967 dollars.

In 1925, Georgia had 2,876 manufacturing establishments employing 141,173 wage-earners, using material costing 399,351,258 dollars, and giving an output worth 648,852,294 dollars. The amount of wages paid was 99,210,008 dollars. Chief industry, cotton goods, reached production in 1925 valued at 193,423,660 dollars.

On July 31, 1927, there were 2,969,000 active spindles in the State, consuming 1,153,000 bales of cotton.

On June 30, 1927, Georgia had 83 national banks with resources of 273,454,000 dollars, demand deposits of 104,798,000 dollars and savings deposits of 81,749,000 dollars; State banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 58,537,000 dollars.

The principal port is Savannah, which has 8 miles of river frontage.

The steam railways in the State have a length (1925) of 7,019 miles, beside 460 miles of electric railway. The State system of roads includes 6,258 miles of which 2,664 miles have been surfaced.

ILLINOIS.

Government.—Illinois was first discovered by Joliet and Marquette, two French explorers, in 1673. In 1763, the country was ceded by the French to the British. In 1783, Great Britain recognised the title of the United States to Illinois, which was admitted into the Union on December 3, 1818. The Legislature consists of a Senate of 51 members elected for four years (about half of whom retire every two years), and a House of Representatives of 153 members elected for two years. Sessions are biennial. Qualified electors are all citizens 21 years of age, resident in the State one year, in the county 90 days, and in the district 30 days next before the election.

The State is divided into Senatorial districts, in each of which one Senator and three Representatives are chosen. For the election of Representatives each elector has three votes, of which he may cast one for each of three candidates, or one and a half for each of two, or all three for one candidate.

Governor.—Louis L. Emmerson, 1929–33 (12,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—William J. Stratton.

Production and Industry.—Kansas is pre-eminently agricultural, but sometimes suffers from lack of rainfall in the west. In 1925 there were 165,379 farms, with an area of farmland of 43,729,129 acres, of which 23,896,507 acres were crop land. The total value of farm property in 1925 was 2,504,339,779 dollars. The chief crops are maize (57,299,000 bushels in 1926), wheat (150,084,000 bushels), and hay. Oats, barley, rye, potatoes and flax are also grown. The production of Kaffir corn is mostly confined to this State. Various orchard fruits are cultivated. The State has an extensive live-stock industry comprising, on January 1, 1928, 790,000 horses, 213,000 mules, 701,000 milch cows, 2,465,000 other cattle, 512,000 sheep, and 2,320,000 swine.

Kansas has coal-fields with an area of about 15,000 square miles, from which 4,416,480 short tons were mined in 1926. There are also oil fields (yield of petroleum in 1926, 41,498,000 barrels), natural gas, lead (28,463 short tons in 1926), and zinc (126,307 short tons smelted in 1926). The quarries yield sandstone, limestone, gypsum, and there is a large output of Portland cement. The State also produces salt, which is important both for live-stock and dead-meat industries. Total value of mineral products (1926) 165,060,612 dollars.

In the manufacturing industries in 1925 there were 1,378 establishments with 46,659 wage-earners. The raw material used during the year cost 538,201,643 dollars, the output was valued at 706,249,994 dollars, and the wages paid amounted to 59,207,893 dollars. The slaughtering and milling industries are the most important; in 1925 their products were valued, respectively, at 248,939,792 dollars and 135,232,063 dollars.

Kansas, traversed by numerous rivers and six important trunk railways, has abundant transport facilities. There were 9,489 miles of steam railway line in 1925, and 517 miles of electric railway track within the State.

On June 30, 1927, Kansas had 267 national banks with resources of 261,226,000 dollars, demand deposits of 134,382,000 dollars and savings deposits of 53,723,000 dollars; State banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 69,293,000 dollars.

Louisiana has valuable fisheries. The area suitable to planting and growing oysters is over 7,000 sq. miles. The State ranks third as a lumber producer, though nine-tenths of its original forest area of 22,000,000 acres has been cut over at least once.

Rich sulphur mines are found in Louisiana, and wells for the extraction of sulphur by means of hot water and air at the surface are in operation. The yield of crude petroleum in 1927 was 23,444,000 barrels. The State ranks sixth among the oil-producing States. The State has three of the largest salt mines in the world. Output in 1926 was valued at 2,457,875 dollars. Total mineral output in 1926 was valued at 62,203,543 dollars.

The manufacturing industries are chiefly those associated with the products of the State: sugar, lumber, cotton-seed, rice. In 1925, there were 1,742 manufacturing establishments which employed 88,058 wage-earners, who earned 79,762,794 dollars. The material used cost 465,426,439 dollars, and the output was valued at 710,050,100 dollars.

A large international trade is carried on through the port of New Orleans, where in the year ending June 30, 1926, the imports amounted to 229,696,766 dollars, and the exports to 441,928,999 dollars.

The State has ample facilities for traffic, having, besides 24,900 miles of public roads, the Mississippi and other waterways, with 4,794 miles of navigable water. In 1928, the steam railways in the State had a length of 8,600 miles, besides 316 miles of electric railway track.

On January 1, 1928, Louisiana had 32 national banks with resources of 130,986,000 dollars, demand deposits of 59,969,000 dollars, and savings deposits of 20,726,000 dollars; State banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 111,411,206 dollars.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Constitution and Government.—In 1614 the Plymouth Company undertook exploring expeditions to New England, and obtained a Royal Charter granting sovereign powers over the region lying to the north of Virginia. The first permanent settlement within the borders of the present state was made at Plymouth in December, 1620, by the Pilgrims from Holland, who were separatists from the English Church. This was the nucleus of the Plymouth Colony. In 1628 another company of Puritans settled at Salem, and from that beginning the Massachusetts Bay Colony was formed. In 1630 Boston was settled. In 1629 the whole region called New England was formed into a province. By a special Charter the Government was divided between the colony of Plymouth and that of Massachusetts Bay, but in 1692 they were re-united, and thenceforward acted together both in peace and war. In the struggle which ended in the separation of the American colonies from the mother country, Massachusetts took the foremost part, and became one of the thirteen original States of the Union.

There is a legislative body consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives, styled collectively the General Court of Massachusetts. The Senate consists of 40 members elected biennially by popular vote. The House of Representatives consists of 240 members, elected in 159 districts, each of which returns one, two, or three representatives according to population. There is an annual session of the Legislature.

All citizens of the United States who can read and write may vote in all State elections, provided they are not paupers or under guardianship, and provided they have lived one year in the State and six months in the election district or precinct.

The State sends 2 Senators and 16 Representatives to the Federal Congress.

Governor.—Frank G. Allen, 1929-31 (salary, 10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Frederic W. Cook.

There are 14 counties in the State, varying largely in population, and there are 39 cities and 316 towns. The State Capital is Boston.

Area and Population.—Area, 8,266 square miles (227 square miles being water). The estimated population, July 1, 1923, was 4,290,000.

MICHIGAN.

Government.—Michigan was admitted into the Union on January 26, 1837. According to the revised constitution adopted in 1908 the legislative authority is vested in a Senate of 32 members elected by the counties or groups of counties for 2 years, and a House of Representatives of 100 members, the electoral districts being re-arranged according to population every 10 years. Electors are all citizens over 21 years of age resident in the State for 6 months next preceding the election, and resident at the time of the election in the district, county, or township for which the election is held.

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 13 Representatives.

Governor.—Fred W. Green, 1922-31 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—John S. Haggerty.

For local government the State is organized in counties, cities, townships, and villages. There are 83 counties, each of which has a Board of Supervisors as its administrative authority. Cities must have each a population of not less than 3,000, but a few which have been long incorporated have a smaller population. Villages in the legal sense have a population of at least 300 within an area of a square mile. In 1925 there were 121 cities and 839 villages in the State. The State Capital is Lansing.

Area, Population, Education.—Area, 57,980 square miles, of which 500 square miles are water. This is exclusive of 16,653 square miles of Lake Superior, 12,922 square miles of Lake Michigan, 9,925 square miles of Lake Huron, and 460 square miles of Lakes St. Clair and Erie. The total length of Michigan coast line is 1,620 miles.

NEBRASKA.

The Nebraska region was first reached by white men from Mexico under the Spanish general Coronado in 1541. It was ceded by France to Spain in 1763, retroceded to France in 1801, and sold by Napoleon to the United States as part of the Louisiana purchase in 1803. On May 30, 1854, Nebraska became a territory and on March 1, 1867, a State.

Government.—The Legislature consists of a Senate of 33 members and a House of Representatives of 100 members. The Legislators are elected for two years. Voters must have resided in the State for six months, in the county for 40 days, in the precinct for 10 days next before the election. The present constitution was adopted in 1875. Amendments adopted in 1912 and 1920 provide for legislation through the initiative and referendum, for biennial instead of annual elections, and permit cities of more than 5,000 inhabitants to frame their own charters.

Nebraska is represented in Congress by two Senators and six Representatives.

New Jersey has valuable fisheries, the lakes and streams being stocked with trout, perch, black bass, &c., while there are shad, menhaden, and sturgeon fisheries on the Delaware River and Bay and round the coast.

The chief mineral products are clay products (valued at 47,512,514 dollars in 1926), zinc, cement, sand and gravel, and stone. The chief clay product is sanitary ware, in which New Jersey is pre-eminent. Zinc (80,629 short tons in 1926) is also important. The total value of all mineral products in 1926 was 77,065,719 dollars.

In 1925, the manufacturing establishments numbered 8,204 and employed 425,877 wage-earners; the raw material used was valued at 2,086,855,079 dollars, and the output at 3,539,181,253 dollars; 576,235,826 dollars were paid in wages. The principal industries, ranked by value of products in 1925, were: petroleum refining, 250,312,189 dollars; smelting and refining, 212,702,404 dollars; silk goods, 190,712,394 dollars; chemicals, 122,699,466 dollars. On July 31, 1927, active cotton spindles numbered 379,000, consuming 36,000 bales of cotton.

In 1925, the length of steam railroad within the State was 2,308 miles; electric railway track 1,434 miles; the length of canals was 174 miles.

New Jersey on June 30, 1927, had 291 national banks with resources of 942,119,000 dollars, demand deposits of 344,557,000 dollars and savings deposits of 411,588,000 dollars; 27 mutual savings banks had savings deposits of 241,789,000 dollars; State banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 584,475,000 dollars.

NEW MEXICO.

Constitution and Government.—New Mexico from the time of its discovery by Europeans was politically associated with Mexico. On May 11, 1846, the Mexican war began; when peace was made February 2, 1848, New Mexico was recognised as belonging to the United States. On September 9, 1850, the Organic Act of the Territory was passed by the United States Congress. The boundaries of the Territory had been made to include part of Texas, but Utah was formed into a separate Territory; in 1861 part of New Mexico was transferred to Colorado, and in 1863 Arizona was disjoined, leaving to New Mexico its present area. On June 20, 1910, Congress passed an Enabling Act permitting the Territory of New Mexico to frame a State Constitution, and in January, 1912, New Mexico was admitted to Statehood.

The State legislature consists of 24 members of the Senate and 49 members of the House of Representatives.

Governor.—R. C. Dillon, 1929–31 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Mrs. E. A. Perrault.

For local government the State is divided into 31 counties. The administrative capital of the State is Santa Fé; population (as shown by the census of 1920), 7,236. Present estimate, 10,000 (1928).

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 122,684 square miles (131 square miles being water area). Census population on January 1, 1920, 360,350.

In five census years the population was :—

Years.	White. <sup>1</sup>	Negro	Total.	Per Sq. Mile.
1880 . . . . .	118,550	1,015	119,565	1.0
1890 . . . . .	158,326	1,956	160,282	1.3
1900 . . . . .	198,700	1,610	195,310	1.6
1910 . . . . .	325,678	1,628	327,301	2.7
1920 . . . . .	354,617	5,788	360,350	2.9

Estimated population, July 1, 1928, 396,000. Marriages in 1927 were 4,748; divorces, 646.

In 1920 the population by sex and race was:—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . . .	175,350	4,593	864	10,149	190,456
Female . . . .	159,823	1,140	68	9,363	169,894
Total . . . .	334,673	5,733	432	19,512	360,350

In 1920, 29,077 (8·1 per cent. of population) were foreign-born whites, of whom 1,178 were Germans, 19,906 (68·5 per cent.) Mexicans, 888 English, 434 Irish, 423 Austrians, and 1,678 (5·8 per cent.) Italians.

Of the total population in 1920, 18 per cent. were urban, and 1·6 per cent. Negro.

The largest towns are Albuquerque, with population of 15,157 in 1920; Raton, 5,544; Roswell, 7,033; and Santa Fé with 7,236. Indian reservations, with an area of 3,280 square miles in 1927, have Indian population of 22,869, chiefly Navaho, Apache, and Pueblo (or town) Indians.

The prevailing form of religion is Roman Catholic, but various Protestant bodies have schools and churches within the State.

Elementary education is free, and all children between 6 and 16 years of age are compelled to attend school. There were, June 30, 1924, 1,358 public elementary schools in the State with 80,368 enrolled pupils, and 2,366 teachers; and 164 public high schools with 343 teachers and 8,060 pupils. Besides, there are 26 Indian schools with 2,291 pupils, and 141 teachers (maintained by the Federal Government). Three public normal schools had 80 teachers and 816 students. Total expenditure on education (1925-26), 4,948,231 dollars. For special and higher instruction there are various institutions; a College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, founded at Las Cruces in 1889, with 47 professors and 258 students (1927), a School of Mines, founded at Socorro in 1895, with 8 professors and 81 students (1927), a Military Institute, an Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, an Institute for the Blind, an Orphans' School, and a Reform School. At Albuquerque is the State University, founded in 1892; it had 32 professors and 438 students in 1927. The State schools are maintained by funds assigned by the State Government, and by the proceeds of the school tax levied by the commissioners of each county, municipality and district.

Finance and Defence.—For the year ending June 30, 1927, the revenue and expenditure were as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, July 1, 1926 . . . . .	3,291,467
Receipts for year 1926-27 . . . . .	7,636,450
Total . . . . .	10,927,917
Disbursements for year 1926-27 . . . . .	8,543,964
Balance, July 1, 1927 . . . . .	2,383,953

The total bonded indebtedness of the State on July 1, 1927, was 3,889,500 dollars. The assessed value of real and personal property in 1927 was 313,000,000 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1928, consisted of 65 officers, 1 warrant officer and 1,057 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—New Mexico produces cereals, vegetables, fruit, and cotton. The principal crops in 1926 were: maize, 4,420,000 bushels; wheat, 5,653,000 bushels; potatoes, 166,000 bushels. Irrigation, which is indispensable over wide tracks of fertile country, is extending; the irrigated area has now reached 550,000 acres and the completion of existing projects will bring the total up to 945,000 acres. Dry farming has proved a valuable adjunct. The Rio Grande project provides for reservoir construction for the irrigation of 180,000 acres in New Mexico and Texas. Private enterprise also is devoted largely to reservoir and canal construction. In 1925, there were 31,687 farms with an area of 27,850,325 acres, of which 1,784,851 acres were crop land. The total value of all farm property in 1925 was 236,300,563 dollars. The farm animals on January 1, 1928, comprised 170,000 horses, 65,000 milch cows, 1,070,000 other cattle, 2,362,000 sheep, and 77,000 swine. In 1926, the wool-clip amounted to 12,060,000 pounds of wool. The national forest area (June 30, 1927) covered 8,508,539 acres, and there are about 4,000,000 acres of heavily forested country in private ownership.

The State has valuable mineral resources, of which, in 1927, gold (26,093 ounces), silver (754,878 ounces), copper (81,642,379 pounds in 1926), coal (2,817,923 short tons in 1926), lead, and zinc were the most important. The quarries yield granite, sandstone, limestone, and marble. Turquoise is profitably worked in four localities within the State; the sands contain traces of platinum. The value of the total mineral output in 1926 was 28,513,991 dollars. Daily oil output for New Mexico is about 3,000 barrels.

The manufactured output of New Mexico (200 manufacturing establishments) in 1925 amounted to the value of 19,453,585 dollars. The number of wage-earners was 4,629, earning in a year 5,083,211 dollars, and the cost of materials used was 9,684,279 dollars.

New Mexico had on June 30, 1927, 29 national banks with resources of 30,357,000 dollars, demand deposits of 18,465,000 dollars and savings deposits of 5,746,000 dollars; State banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 2,968,000 dollars.

In 1925, there were 2,994 miles of steam railway and 11 miles of electric railway track within the State.

NEW YORK STATE.

Constitution and Government.—From 1609 to 1664, the region now called New York was under the sway of the Dutch; then it came under the rule of the English, who governed the country till the outbreak of the War of Independence. Between July 9, 1776, and April 20, 1777, a Convention framed a Constitution under which New York was transformed into an independent State, afterwards, in 1788, entering the Union as one of the 13 original States.

The legislative authority is vested in a Senate of 51 members elected every two years, and an Assembly of 150 members elected annually.

The right of suffrage resides in every citizen 21 years of age, who has been a citizen for 90 days, and has resided for a year in the State, six months in the county, and 30 days in the election district preceding election.

The question whether there shall be a Convention to revise the Constitution has to be submitted to the people every 20 years, beginning with 1916, 'and also at such times as the Legislature may by law provide.'

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 43 Representatives.

Governor.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, 1929-31 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Edward F. Flynn.

The seat of the State executive is at Albany.

For local government the State is divided into 62 counties.

Cities are in 3 classes, the first class having each over 175,000 inhabitants and the third under 50,000. Each is incorporated by charter, under special legislation. The government of New York City is vested in a board of Aldermen, elected for 2 years. Its members are the President, elected by the city; the presidents of the 5 city boroughs (Bronx, Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond); 67 aldermen, one elected in each of the 67 districts; constituting a board of 73 members. The chief executive officer is the Mayor, elected for 4 years; he appoints all the heads of departments, except the Comptroller, who is elected by the city.

Production, Industry, Commerce.—New York has large agricultural interests. In 1925 (census), it had 188,754 farms of an average size of 102.1 acres, making a total of 19,269,926 acres—63 per cent. total land area of the state. About 7,403,503 acres of this is in woods and pastures, and 500,000 acres in orchards and vineyards. In 1926, 4,915,000 acres were in hay crops, 2,037,000 acres in grain for feeding live-stock, and about 788,000 acres in other crops, the total area of crops other than fruit being estimated at 7,800,000 acres. In 1925, the crops of the State had a gross value of 285,516,000 dollars. National forest lands totalled (June 30, 1927), 9,800 acres.

The agriculture of New York is dominated by the demands of the large urban population. The State is noted for the production of vegetables; dairying is, however, the leading type of farming. In 1926, the production of milk was 7,082,000,000 pounds. In 1927, the crops comprised corn, 677,000 acres; wheat, 303,000 acres; oats, 1,017,000 acres. The farm animals on January 1, 1928, comprised approximately 339,000 horses, 7,000 mules, 1,330,000 milch cows, 491,000 sheep, and 341,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1927 yielded 2,956,000 pounds of wool.

Other productive industries are mining and quarrying. In 1926, the mines within the State yielded 673,103 long tons of iron ore, valued at 3,103,312 dollars; gypsum, 1,723,460 tons, valued at 16,794,589 dollars; salt, 14,297,000 barrels, valued at 6,564,829 dollars; mineral springs, 7,063,520 gallons, valued at 844,154 dollars; Portland cement, 8,535,862 barrels, valued at 14,864,066 dollars; talc, 83,231 tons, valued at 1,030,075 dollars. The quarry products of granite, trap rock, sandstone, marble, limestone, and lime were valued at 14,730,267 dollars. The value of brick, tile, and pottery was 29,181,899 dollars. The yield of crude petroleum in 1927 was 1,956,000 barrels, valued at 7,300,000 dollars; the value of natural gas produced in 1926 was 4,499,000 dollars. The State also produces crystalline quartz, diatomaceous earth, carbon dioxide, emery, feldspar, garnet, graphite, millstones, molding sand, pyrite, slate, slip clay, and zinc. The total value of mineral output in 1926 was estimated at 112,016,262 dollars.

OKLAHOMA.

Government.—The State of Oklahoma, comprising the former Territory of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, was constituted on November 16, 1907, by Proclamation made by the United States President under the enabling act of June 16, 1906. The constitution provides for the initiative and the referendum, 8 per cent. of the legal voters having the right to propose any legislative measure and 15 per cent. to propose amendments to the constitution by petition.

The Legislature consists of a Senate of 44 members who are elected for 4 years, and a House of Representatives elected for 2 years, and consisting of not less than 97 nor more than 108 members. Qualified as electors are (with necessary exceptions) all citizens resident one year in the State, six months in the county, 30 days in the precinct. Indians, to be qualified as voters, must have severed tribal relations.

Governor.—Henry S. Johnston, 1927-31 (4,500 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Graves Leeper.

The State is represented in Congress by 2 Senators and 8 members of the House of Representatives. The State capital is Oklahoma City.

Area and Population.—Area, 70,057 square miles, of which 643 square miles are water. Census population on January 1, 1920, 2,028,283. Indian reservations in 1927 had an area of 52 square miles with a population of 119,216, including the Five Civilized Tribes who number 101,506.

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses was :—

Total . . . .	1,821,194	149,408	344	57,337	2,028,283

In 1920, 39,968 were foreign-born whites (2·0 per cent of the total population), of whom 17,029 (17·6 per cent.) were Germans, 5,005 (12·5 per cent.) Russians, 2,122 Italians, 1,393 Austrians, 2,686 English, 2,475 Canadians, 6,697 (16·8 per cent.) Mexican, and 1,120 Scotch.

Of the total population in 1920, 26·6 per cent. were urban, and 7·4 per cent. Negro. The most important cities are Oklahoma City (population in 1920, 91,295), Muskogee (30,277), Tulsa (72,075), Enid (16,576), McAlester (12,095), Shawnee (15,348), Okmulgee (17,430), Guthrie (11,757), Ardmore (14,181).

Religion and Education.—The chief religious bodies are Methodist, Baptist, Roman Catholic, Disciples of Christ, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Lutherans, and Christian Scientists.

The State has a school system embracing elementary and high public schools, normal schools, and also colleges for superior instruction. Separate schools have to be provided for whites and Negroes, all children not Negroes being classed as white. In 1925-6 there were 5,686 public elementary schools with 665,864 pupils and 14,453 teachers; 792 public high schools with 83,062 enrolled pupils and 4,093 teachers. There were 6 State Teachers' Colleges with 352 teachers and 10,824 students. Total expenditure on education 30,187,233 dollars. The University (founded at Norman in 1892) had, in 1927, 237 professors and 5,007 students; the Agricultural and Mechanical College (founded in 1891 at Stillwater) had (1927) 204 professors and 3,000 students; while the coloured Agricultural and Normal University (founded 1897 at Langston), had 28 instructors, and 450 students.

Finance and Defence.—Income and expenditure for the year ending June 30, 1927 :—

	Dollars

On June 30, 1927, the State debt amounted to 1,543,900 dollars. The assessed value of real and of personal property (1926) was 1,697,364,213 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1928, consisted of 411 officers, 6 warrant officers and 4,602 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Oklahoma is mainly agricultural. In 1925, it had 197,218 farms with a total area of 30,868,965 acres, of which 15,837,735 acres were crop land. The total value of all farm property in 1925 was 1,048,757,322 dollars. The yield of corn in 1926 was 61,178,000 bushels; of wheat, 73,745,000 bushels; of oats, 38,304,000 bushels. Other products are potatoes, hay, sorghum, fruits, and cotton. The cotton crop for 1926 on 4,676,000 acres amounted to 1,772,784 lbs., valued at 85,980,000 dollars. On January 1, 1928, the stock comprised 610,000 milch cows, 1,723,000 all cattle, 1,104,000 hogs, 101,000 sheep, 542,000 horses, and 354,000 mules. National forest lands on June 30, 1927, totalled 61,480 acres.

Oklahoma has become an important mineral State in the last few years. With 19,180 miles of oil pipe lines, it leads all the states in pipe line mileage with Texas second and Pennsylvania third; with local oil storage capacity of 140,000,000 barrels it is exceeded only by Texas, 170,000,000 barrels, and California, 200,000,000 barrels. In 1926, 179,195,000 barrels of crude petroleum were produced. Natural gas is also obtained in large quantities (286,421,000 M. cubic feet in 1926). Coal (2,842,673 short tons in 1926) lead (69,704 short tons in 1926), and zinc (272,567 tons in 1926) are also worked. Total mineral output in 1926, 569,518,693 dollars. Petroleum refining is the chief industry.

There are few manufacturing industries, flour and grist-milling, cotton ginning, the manufacture of cotton-seed oil and oil cake being the more important. In 1925, the State had a total of 1,282 industrial establishments, employing 26,333 wage-earners who earned 34,210,630 dollars, the cost of material being 301,147,045 dollars, and the value of the output 403,295,440 dollars.

In 1925, Oklahoma had 6,540 miles of steam railway besides 371 miles of electric railway.

On June 30, 1927, Oklahoma had 350 national banks with resources of 426,592,000 dollars, demand deposits of 241,849,000 dollars and savings deposits of 85,384,000 dollars; State banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 18,398,000 dollars.

OREGON.

Government.—Oregon was admitted into the Union on February 14, 1859. The Legislative Assembly consists of a Senate of 30 members, chosen for four years (half their number retiring every two years), and a House of 60 Representatives, elected for two years.

The Constitution was amended in 1902, to reserve to the voters the power to propose laws and amendments to the Constitution and to enact or reject the same at the polls independently of the Legislative Assembly, and also to give them the power at their own option to approve or reject at the polls any Act of the Legislative Assembly. This is known as the initiative and referendum.

At the General Election held November, 1912, suffrage was extended to women and 'every citizen of the United States of the age of 21 years and upwards who shall have resided in the State during the 6 months immediately preceding such election shall be entitled to vote.'

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and three Representatives.

Governor.—I. L. Patterson, 1927-1931. (7,500 dollars.)

Secretary of State.—Hal E. Hosas.

The State Capital is Salem. There are 36 counties in the State.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 96,699 square miles, 1,092 square miles being water.

The population at the date of each of the Federal censuses was :—

Year	White *	Negro	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1880	174,281	487	174,768	1·8
1900	412,431	1,105	413,536	4·3
1910	671,273	1,492	672,765	7·0
1920	781,245	2,144	783,389	8·2

* Including Asiatics and Indians.

Estimated population, July 1, 1928, 1,000,000.

In 1920, the population by sex and race was :—

	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . .	407,159	1,197	5,677	2,301	416,334
Female . . .	361,987	947	1,832	2,289	367,055
Total . . .	769,146	2,144	7,509	4,590	783,389

The foreign-born whites in 1920 numbered 102,151 (13·0 per cent. of total population), of whom 13,740 (13·5 per cent.) were German, 13,744 (13·5 per cent.) Canadian, 7,953 (7·8 per cent.) English, 10,532 (10·3 per cent.) Swedish, 4,203 Irish, 4,324 Italian, 1,928 Greeks, and 6,955 Norwegian. The Indian reservations in 1927 comprised 1,742 square miles with a population of 6,674 Indians.

Of the total population in 1920, 49·9 per cent. were urban, and 0·3 per cent. Negro. The largest towns, according to the 1920 census, are Portland, with a population of 258,288; Salem, 17,679; Medford, 5,756; Astoria, 14,027; Eugene, 10,593.

In 1927 7,392 marriages were performed and 3,116 divorces and 33 annulments granted as against 7,085 marriages and 3,086 divorces in 1926.

The chief religious bodies in the State are (in order of strength) Catholic, Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, Disciples of Christ, and Congregational denominations.

School attendance is compulsory for all children from 9 to 15 years of age, unless the pupil completes the elementary grades in the meantime. All children between the ages of 16 and 18 years must be in school or legally employed. If legally employed, they must attend the part-time schools not less than 5 hours per week or 180 hours per year unless they have already acquired the ordinary branches of learning taught in the first 8 years of the public schools or are attending an evening school for an equivalent time. For school year ending June 30, 1928, the 2,598 public elementary schools had 5,833 teachers and 144,851 enrolled pupils, 286 four-year high schools had 2,107 teachers and 42,338 pupils; and the Oregon Normal school at Monmouth had, in 1928, 71 teachers and 1,660 pupils. The Southern Oregon Normal school, Ashland, Oregon, had, in 1927-28, 28 teachers and 657 students. Total expenditure on education (1927-28) 24,916,151 dollars. The State supports the Oregon State Agricultural College at Corvallis, founded in 1868, which has an experiment station, with seven branch stations, an extension service in agriculture and home economics, and 10 schools of instruction. In 1928 the staff numbered 549, with 308 engaged in instruction, and the student enrolment 5,266, of whom 3,818 were in regular full-year degree courses. The University of Oregon, organized at Eugene in 1876, had in 1927-28 800 professors and 10,310 students (including 6,950 extension and summer school students). There are also Methodist, Presbyterian, Catholic, Congregational, and Baptist Colleges.

Finance and Defence.—The receipts and disbursements of the General Fund of the State, for the year ending December 31, 1927 :—

	Dollars
Balance, January 1, 1927 . . . . .	1,114,026
Receipts, 1927 . . . . .	18,037,145
Total . . . . .	19,151,171
Disbursements, 1927 . . . . .	18,991,578
Balance, January 1, 1928 . . . . .	159,593

On January 1, 1928, the amount of the State bonded indebtedness was 65,562,810 dollars. In 1927 the assessed value of real and personal property was 1,124,416,457 dollars.

On June 30, 1928, the National Guard of the State of Oregon consisted of 189 officers, 3 warrant officers and 2,808 men.

Production and Industry.—Oregon is divided by the Cascade Range into two distinct zones as to climate. West of the Cascade Range there is a good rainfall and almost every variety of crop common to the temperate zone is grown. East of the Range lack of rainfall has been to some extent compensated for by irrigation by private companies as well as by State and Federal enterprise. Stock raising is the principal industry of eastern Oregon. With a stand of 400 billion feet Oregon has now one-fifth of the standing timber of the United States; about four billion feet are cut annually, the value being approximately 125,000,000 dollars and the number of men employed in the industry 50,000. In 1928, the forest area was 24,000,000 acres. National forest lands on June 30, 1927, amounted to 18,238,092 acres. In 1925, there were 55,908 farms with an acreage of 14,170,043. The total value of all land and buildings in 1925 was 617,174,215 dollars; in 1926, including timber, the assessed valuation was 709,000,000 dollars though the actual value was much greater. The leading crops are wheat (26,782,000 bushels in 1927); oats (10,540,000 bushels); hay (2,842,000 tons), and potatoes (6,240,000 bushels). Rye, barley, flax-seed, and hops are important crops. Field crop valuation for 1927, 89,000,000 dollars. Fruits are grown, especially plums, apples, pears, peaches, strawberries, cherries, and loganberries. Dairying is an important industry, and there is an active live-stock industry. Horses on July 1, 1928, numbered 180,000; milch cows, 210,000; other cattle, 475,000; sheep, 2,250,000; swine, 275,000. Range land for grazing cattle and sheep, 45,000,000 acres. Total value of live stock, including poultry, on January 1, 1927, was 73,000,000 dollars. In 1928 the wool-clip yielded 18,000,000 pounds. The salmon, sturgeon, halibut, and oyster fisheries are abundant. During 1927 the fish caught in the Columbia river—of which two-thirds was canned on the Oregon side—totalled 520 062 cas-s. The total canned salmon pack on the Oregon coast, 1927, was 48,619 cases.

Oregon's mineral resources consist of metals as gold, silver, copper, iron, chromium, manganese, platinum, and mercury; non-metallic, clay for general ceramic work, both building and refractory, lime, gypsum, Portland cement material, diatomaceous earth, pumice, coal, oil shale, granite and other building stones. Quicksilver mining and smelting has started. Output of gold in 1926 was 13,243.1 ounces, valued at 273,759 dollars; silver, 29,733 ounces; and copper, 296,454 pounds. Value of mineral products, 1926, was 6,941,855 dollars.

In 1927 it is estimated there were 6,000 plants employing 65,000 industrial wage-earners with total output valued at 370,000,000 dollars. On January 1, 1927, there were 82 water-power plants with a water-wheel capacity of 241,759 horse-power.

Oregon has good water facilities in the Pacific Ocean, the Columbia river, the Willamette river, and the Snake river. The Dalles and Celilo Canal, completed in 1915, opens the Columbia and Snake rivers to navigation to a length of 570 miles from the ocean. Large ocean-going vessels can navigate the Columbia and Willamette rivers to Portland, 100 miles inland, through a channel 30 feet in depth. Portland's outbound cargo for year ending December 31, 1927, amounted to 2,669,319 short tons, valued at 133,141,330 dollars; inbound cargo, 2,396,678 tons, valued at 144,427,238 dollars. The State had (1927) a total steam railway mileage of 4,624, besides 570 miles of electric railway track.

On June 30, 1928, there were 244 banks in the State, with total deposits of 304,557,726 dollars; of this amount 124,847,174 dollars were in savings and time deposits.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Government.—Pennsylvania is one of the thirteen original States in the Union. The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. Every citizen 21 years of age, resident in the State for one year, and in the election district for two months preceding the election, is entitled to vote, provided that he has paid a State or County tax within two years and at least one month before the election. The Senate consists of 50 members chosen for four years, 25 Senators being elected at each General Assembly election bi-annually. The House of Representatives consists of 208 members chosen for two years.

The State is represented in Congress by two Senators and 36 Representatives.

Governor.—John S. Fisher, 1927–1931 (18,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Charles Johnson.

For local administration the State is organised in counties, cities, boroughs, townships, and school districts. There are 67 counties. The State Capital is Harrisburg.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 45,126 square miles, of which 294 square miles are water area (excluding 891 square miles of Lake Erie).

Philadelphia on July 1, 1928, had a population of 2,064,200, according to Federal Census Bureau estimate.

The chief religious bodies in the State are the Roman Catholic, Methodist, Lutheran, Presbyterian, Reformed, and Baptist. In 1926 a total of 135 denominations reported 13,845 churches and 5,212,050 members.

School attendance is compulsory for children 8 to 16 years of age for the full school term, but in fourth class districts (5,000 population or less) local school authorities may reduce the term of attendance to 70 per cent. for children over 14 years of age. In the year 1926-27, the 15,788 public elementary schools had 42,066 teachers and 1,594,808 enrolled pupils. The 1,150 high schools had 15,559 teachers and 254,073 pupils. Public kindergartens numbered 444. Enrolment in all-day, part-time and evening vocational courses and classes offered by the public schools of the Commonwealth was as follows: agriculture, 3,038; home economics, 10,024; trade and industrial, 13,073; continuation schools, 48,542; total enrolment, 74,677. Enrolment in evening schools totalled 112,943 with a teaching personnel of 2,585. In the 14 State normal schools there were 558 teachers and 9,031 students. Teachers attending summer sessions at normal schools numbered 10,997. Total expenditure on public school education (1926-27) was 193,990,728 dollars. The total appropriation by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the two-year period 1927-29 for public education, including normal schools and all public educational agencies, was 74,329,205 dollars.

The more important academic institutions (1927) within the State are as follows:—

Finance and Defence.—For the year ending May 31, 1928, the statement on finance, including general and special funds, is as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance in Treasury, May 31, 1927	58,601,696
Receipts, all funds, June 1, 1927, to May 31, 1928	170,863,852
Total	229,465,048
Expenditures, all funds, June 1, 1927, to May 31, 1928	156,674,871
Balance in Treasury, May 31, 1928	72,790,177

On May 31, 1928, the outstanding bonds of the State amounted to 87,651,001 dollars. The assessed value of taxable real property in 1926 amounted to 8,619,233,265 dollars, and of personal property to 2,527,010,093 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1928, consisted of 829 officers, 12 warrant officers and 10,907 men.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture, market-gardening, fruit-growing, horticulture and forestry are pursued within the State. In 1925, there were 200,443 farms; the farm area was 16,296,468 acres, of which 8,431,049 were crop land and 4,573,383 pasture land, the remainder being woodland. The total value of farm property in 1925 was 1,170,171,554 dollars. In 1927, the total production of winter wheat was estimated at 20,165,000 bushels; rye, 1,326,000 bushels; oats, 89,600,000 bushels; corn, 50,165,000 bushels; buckwheat, 4,935,000 bushels; potatoes, 26,400,000 bushels; tobacco, 44,880,000 pounds; tame hay, 5,063,000 tons; total crop of apples for 1927, 6,300,000 bushels; commercial apples, 850,000 barrels; peaches, 947,000 bushels, and pears, 400,000 bushels. On January 1, 1928, farm animals in Pennsylvania were: 359,000 horses, 51,000 mules, 855,000 dairy cows two year old and over, 477,000 other cattle, 437,000 sheep, 841,000 swine, 19,465,000 chickens, and 125,470 hives of bees. Wool clip, 1927, was 2,730,000 pounds. On June 30, 1927, national forest lands totalled 235,376 acres.

Pennsylvania so far exceeds all the rest of the States in the value of its mineral products as to stand almost alone. This is due principally to the State's leadership in the production of coal. Mineral products in 1926 reached a value of 1,055,766,077 dollars; this far surpasses the two great oil-producing states, Oklahoma (569,518,693 dollars) and California (523,352,257 dollars). In 1925, 163,840 workers were employed in and about the anthracite coal-mines, and 165,586 in and about the bituminous coal-mines. In 1926, the output of anthracite coal was 84,437,452 short tons, and of bituminous coal, 153,041,638 short tons. Other minerals are petroleum (8,961,000 barrels in 1926), natural gas (107,089,000 M. cubic feet in 1926), iron ore (magnetite and hematite, 1,096,000 long tons in 1926), and pig-iron, 13,588,000 long tons in 1926. Pennsylvania has important quarries, cement works, and brick and tile works. The output of by-product coke in 1926 was 11,201,000 net tons, and of beehive coke, 9,329,000 tons. In 1926, the output of cement was 41,395,604 barrels. Pittsburgh, having abundant supplies of coal, has become the principal iron-work centre.

According to the reports of the Pennsylvania Department of Internal Affairs for the year 1926, there were in Pennsylvania 16,732 industrial establishments, with an aggregate capital amounting to 5,479,109,600 dollars, employing 153,206 salaried officials and 1,298,781 wage-earners. The salaries in 1926 amounted to 364,476,700 dollars, and the wages to 1,777,111,600 dollars. The value of the output was 7,789,603,200 dollars in 1926. The metal industry ranked first, the principal products being iron and steel bars, valued at 170,429,300 dollars; billets, blooms and slabs, valued at 325,649,600 dollars; iron and steel ingots, valued at 209,314,600 dollars; pig iron, valued at 203,291,200 dollars; and pipes and tubing, valued at 243,799,400 dollars. Next in importance were textile products, the largest items being silk and silk goods, valued at 348,394,100 dollars; hosiery, valued at 176,464,800 dollars; and men's, women's, and children's clothing, valued at 97,551,000 dollars. Mines and quarries came third in importance. Food and kindred products ranked fourth, the most important items being sugar refining, 98,829,900 dollars; bread and other bakery products, 147,566,800 dollars; slaughtering and meat packing, 126,951,900 dollars; candy products, 63,765,800 dollars. Chemicals and allied products amounted to 451,813,100 dollars. Paper and printing industries showed products valued at 372,027,700 dollars. Leather and rubber products were valued at 191,764,700 dollars; glass manufacture was valued at 89,475,600 dollars; and cement at 74,372,700 dollars; tobacco products were valued at 126,250,800 dollars.

The total value of imports at the port of Philadelphia for the year ending June 30, 1928, was 210,150,958 dollars, and of exports, 85,861,028 dollars. The steamship lines trading with the port are classified for the year 1926 as follows:—Regular sailings, 60 lines; occasional sailings, 28 lines; coast-wise, 14 lines; oil, 8 lines; and local and inland, 12 lines. Arrivals and sailings of vessels engaged in the foreign trade numbered 3,614, with a tonnage of 16,746,622, while 7,657 vessels arrived from and sailed to coast-wise ports with a tonnage of 20,214,010. Of the vessels arriving from foreign ports, 446 were American. In 1925 Philadelphia exported 66,028 tons of anthracite coal valued at 658,503 dollars, and 173,845 tons of bituminous coal valued at 907,997 dollars. In 1927, the aggregate length of steam railroads within the State was 12,763 miles, and the total of all tracks operated by electric railways, 4,226 miles.

Roads. The State road system, not including township, city and borough roads and streets, has a mileage of 12,000 miles of which 7,500 miles have been hard-surfaced at an expenditure of 375,000,000 dollars.

On June 30, 1927, 868 national banks had resources of 3,146,453,000 dollars, demand deposits of 1,119,508,000 dollars; time deposits of 1,066,504,000 dollars; 10 mutual savings banks had deposits of 371,168,000 dollars; state banks and trust companies had savings deposits of 1,084,704,000 dollars. Postal savings deposits amounted to 10,207,493 dollars.

There are two British Vice-Consuls at Philadelphia.

RHODE ISLAND.

Constitution and Government.—The earliest settlers in the region which now forms the State of Rhode Island were colonists from Massachusetts who had been driven forth on account of their non-acceptance of the prevailing religious beliefs. The first of the settlements was made in 1636; and their numbers and importance quickly increased, settlers of every creed being welcomed. In 1647, a patent was granted for the government of the settlements, and on July 8, 1663, a charter was executed recognising the settlers as forming a body corporate and politic by the name of the English Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations. On May 29, 1790, the State accepted the Federal Constitution and entered the Union as one of the 13 original States. The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The Senate has 39 members, besides the Lieutenant-Governor who is ex officio President of the Senate. The House of Representatives consists of 100 members. Every citizen, 21 years of age, who has resided in the State for 2 years, and is duly registered, is qualified to vote for any State officer.

Governor.—Norman S. Case, 1929–31 (8,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Ernest L. Sprague.

The State is represented in the Federal Congress by 2 Senators and 3 Representatives.

The State is divided into 5 counties and 39 cities and towns. The State Capital is Providence.

Area, Population, Education.—Area, 1,248 square miles, of which nearly 181 square miles are water. Population on January 1, 1925, according to State Census, 679,260. Population of census years:—

Finance and Defence.—The receipts and disbursements from all sources in the year ending August 31, 1927, were:—

	Dollars
Balance, Sept. 1, 1926 . . . . .	7,514,577
Receipts, 1926-27 . . . . .	35,707,563
Total . . . . .	43,222,140
Disbursements, 1926-27 . . . . .	39,630,052
Balance, Aug. 31, 1927 . . . . .	3,592,088

The bonded debt, August 31, 1927, amounted to 4,002,200 dollars. In 1927 the total assessed value of all property was 3,889,958,777 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1928, consisted of 569 officers, 8 warrant officers and 7,227 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Texas is one of the most important agricultural States of the Union. In 1925, it had 465,642 farms. Total value of all farm property in 1925 was 3,471,867,466 dollars. There are 2,950,488 acres of irrigable lands in Texas, of which 850,000 acres were irrigated in 1927. The chief crops in 1927 were (in bushels) maize, 119,347,000; wheat, 17,945,000; oats, 42,063,000; rice, 6,279,000; potatoes, 2,310,000; sweet potatoes, 11,970,000. Cotton in 1927 covered 16,270,000 acres and yielded 4,280,000 bales. Other products are peanuts, pecans, grain sorghum (34,178,000 bushels, value 23,216,000 dollars), vegetables, and fruits (especially peaches, oranges, and grape-fruit). The State has a very great livestock industry; on January 1, 1928, it contained 848,000 horses, 1,078,000 mules, 973,000 milch cows, 5,263,000 other cattle, 4,593,000 sheep, and 1,375,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1927 amounted to 32,675,000 pounds.

The chief mineral products are petroleum, sulphur, natural gas, cement, and quicksilver. In 1926, 166,916,000 barrels of petroleum were produced; in 1927, 213,768,000 barrels. In 1922, the amount of quicksilver produced was 2,970 flasks (of 75 pounds) valued at 171,607 dollars. Silver output in 1927 was 942,971 fine ounces. In 1927, Texas produced 312,396,500 M. cubic feet of natural gas. Coal (1,134,000 short tons in 1927) and lignite (1,514,425 tons in 1924) are also produced. Output of sulphur in 1927 exceeded two million tons. Other mineral products are salt, cement (5,656,000 barrels in 1927), gypsum, granite, sandstone, and limestone. There are also in western Texas extensive undeveloped potash fields. Total value of mineral products in 1926, 420,586,730 dollars.

In 1925, there were in the State 3,606 manufacturing establishments with 106,792 wage-earners. The amount paid in wages was 116,363,302 dollars. The cost of material used was 845,143,862 dollars, and the value of the output was 1,287,952,469 dollars.

A large trade passes through the port of Galveston, which is by far the most important outlet for the cotton grown in the United States, and as a commercial port it is now second only to New York. Imports in the calendar year 1926, 38,906,000 dollars; exports, 533,825,000 dollars. A permanent causeway over 2 miles in length now connects Galveston with the mainland. The steam railways in the State (January 1, 1927) have a total mileage of 16,168 miles (main lines). There are 1,018 miles of electric inter-urban railway in active operation in Texas, and 91 miles of inter-urban lines operated by gasoline power.

There are 1,047 miles of navigable water in the rivers of Texas. The long coast-line with its good harbour facilitates traffic by sea. The Houston Ship Channel (50 miles long), connecting Houston with the Gulf of Mexico, makes that city the largest inland cotton market of the world.

Texas had on October 10, 1927, 651 national banks with resources of 1 109,540,000 dollars. Both national and State banks reported demand deposits of 614,504,000 dollars and savings deposits of 183,620,000 dollars.

UTAH.

Constitution and Government.—Utah, which had been acquired by the United States during the Mexican war, was, in 1847, settled by Mormons, and on Sept. 9, 1850, organised as a Territory. It was admitted as a State into the Union on Jan. 4, 1896.

The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives; but the Constitution provides for the initiative and referendum.

The Senate (in part renewed every two years) consists of 20 members, elected for four years; the House of Representatives has 55 members elected for two years. Qualified as electors are all citizens, male or female, who, not being idiots, insane or criminals have resided one year in the State, four months in the county, and 60 days in the precinct preceding the election.

Governor.—Geo. H. Dern, 1929–31 (6,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Milton H. Welling.

There are 29 counties in the State. The Capital is Salt Lake City.

Area and Population.—Area, 84,990 square miles, of which 2,806 square miles are water. The area of the Indian reservations in 1927 was 526 square miles, and the population, 1,570 Indians.

Census population on January 1, 1920, 449,396.

The population at the date of each of four Federal censuses was :—

Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile	Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per Sq. Mile
1890	205,925	4,854	210,779	2.6	1910	366,583	6,768	373,351	4.5
1900	272,465	4,284	276,749	3.4	1920	441,901	7,495	449,396	5.5

Estimated population July 1, 1928, 531,000. Marriages in 1927 were 5,717; divorces, 981.

In 1920, the population by sex and race was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . . .	227,232	834	2,543	1,442	232,051
Female . . . .	214,669	612	795	1,269	217,345
Total . . . .	441,901	1,446	3,338	2,711	449,396

Of the total in 1920, 56,455 (12.6 per cent.) were foreign-born whites, of whom 14,836 (26.0 per cent.) were English, 3,589 (6.4 per cent.) German, 3,029 (5.4 per cent.) Greek, 6,073 (10.8 per cent.) Swedes, 1,207 (2.1 per cent.) Irish, 6970 (12.3 per cent.) Danes, and 3,225 (5.7 per cent.) Italian.

Of the total population in 1920, 48.0 per cent. were urban and 0.3 per cent. Negro. The largest city is Salt Lake City with a population of 118,110 according to the census of 1920. Ogden in 1920 had 32,304 inhabitants, and Provo, 10,303.

Latter-Day Saints form about 75 per cent. of the Church membership of the State. There are Catholics, Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Christian Scientists, and Congregationalists in small numbers.

Instruction.—In 1920, the percentage of illiteracy in the population was only 1.9, the number being 6,264. School attendance for 20 weeks annually (10 consecutive), in city districts 30 weeks (10 consecutive), is compulsory on children from 8 to 16 years of age. Where high schools are established attendance for 30 weeks is required of those under 18 who have not completed a high school course, unless it is found desirable to excuse them from attendance to enter employment. Those so excused to enter employment are required to attend part-time schools where the number is sufficient to warrant the establishment of the schools.

For the school year ending June 30, 1928, the total expenditures for elementary and secondary education amounted to 11,121,981 dollars. During the same year there were enrolled 133,829 pupils in the elementary and high schools. There were 2,954 elementary teachers and 1,522 high school teachers.

The University of Utah (1850), Salt Lake City, during the school year 1927, had 189 instructors and 3,002 regular students. The Agricultural College of Utah, Logan (1890), during the same year, had 83 instructors and 1,162 regular students. The Mormon Church maintains the Brigham Young University at Provo (1875), with 90 instructors and 1,300 students and five other colleges. Other denominations also maintain colleges in the State.

VERMONT.

Constitution and Government.—Vermont was admitted into the Union as a State on February 18, 1791. The first Constitution was established by Convention at Windsor, July 2, 1777. The Constitution in force at the time of admission was that of 1786. In 1793, a new Constitution was adopted which, with amendments, is still in force. Amendments are proposed by two-thirds vote of the Senate each decennium, and must be accepted by two sessions of the Legislature before being submitted to popular vote. The State Legislature consists of a Senate of 30 members and a House of Representatives of 248 members; and meets in January in odd numbered years. Electors are all citizens of the United States who possess certain residential qualifications and have taken the freeman's oath set forth in the Constitution.

The State sends two Senators and two Representatives to the United States Congress.

Governor.—John E. Weeks, 1929–31 (3,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—Rawson C. Myrick.

The State Capital is Montpelier (7,125 pop., 1920). The State is divided into fourteen counties, and 248 towns and cities.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 9,564 square miles, of which 440 square miles are water. Census population on January 1, 1920, 352,428. Population at four census years was as follows.

In 1920, the foreign-born white population numbered 44,526, or 12·6 per cent. of the total population of the State. Of these, 14,181 (31·8 per cent.) were Canadian French, 10,687 (24 per cent.) Canadian English, 2,884 Irish, 2,197 English, 1,854 Scottish, and 4,067 (9·1 per cent.) Italian. The largest cities are Burlington, with a population in 1920 of 22,779; Rutland, 14,954; Barre, 10,008. Of the population in 1920, 31·2 per cent. were urban and 0·2 per cent. Negro.

Marriages in 1927 were 2,766; divorces, 257.

The principal religious denominations are: Roman Catholic, Congregational, Methodist, Baptist, Protestant Episcopal, and Universalist, in the order given.

School attendance during the full school term is compulsory for children from 6 to 16 years of age. No child under 16 who has not completed the first two years of the junior high school course may be employed in certain designated employments. In 1927-28, the 2,100 public elementary schools had 2,861 teachers and 53,511 enrolled pupils. There were also 94 high schools with 557 teachers and 11,018 pupils. In 1927-28, there were 4 normal schools with 25 teachers and 380 students, and 6 one-year teacher training departments with one teacher in each class. Total number of students in these classes was 106. The University of Vermont (1800) had, in October, 1927, 145 instructors and 1,360 students; Middlebury College (1800) had 53 instructors and 654 students; Norwich University (1834) had 31 instructors and 314 students. Expenditure on education (1927-28) amounted to 5,854,945 dollars.

On August 1, 1928, the number of persons in State institutions was as follows: House of correction, 121; State prison, 226; hospital for insane, 862; school for feeble-minded, 234; industrial school, 236.

Finance and Defence.—The revenue and expenditure for the year ending June 30, 1928, were:—

	Dollars
Cash balance July 1, 1927 . . . . .	1,704,517
Receipts, 1927-28 . . . . .	14,723,920
Total . . . . .	16,428,437
Disbursements, 1927-28 . . . . .	11,199,999
Cash balance June 30, 1928 . . . . .	5,228,438

Total bonded debt, January 1, 1928, 6,641,532 dollars.

The assessed value of real property in 1927 was 225,962,706 dollars, and of personal property, 44,843,764 dollars.

The National Guard on July 1, 1928, had 82 officers, 1 warrant officer and 1,147 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Agriculture is the most important occupation within the State. In 1920, the rural population was 70 per cent. of the total population. In 1925, the State contained 27,786 farms with a total area of 3,925,683 acres, of which 1,149,656 acres were crop land. The total value of all farm property in 1925 was 180,911,645 dollars. The chief agricultural crop is hay (1,421,000 tons in 1927), but cereals are grown in large quantities; in 1927, the yield of oats was 3,237,000 bushels; of maize, 3,276,000 bushels; wheat, 20,000 bushels; and barley, 174,000 bushels. The production of potatoes in 1927 was 3,255,000 bushels; and apples, 990,000 bushels. The production of maple products in Vermont in 1928, was 1,038,000 gallons of syrup, and 1,138,000 pounds of sugar.

Cattle raising, especially dairy cattle, is one of the chief agricultural pursuits. In 1928, Vermont had 404,000 cattle on farms, or over one-third of all the cattle in New England. The value of live-stock on Vermont farms in 1928 was 40,000,000 dollars. On January 1, 1928, Vermont had 284,000 milch cows, 120,000 other cattle, 55,000 horses, 46,000 sheep, and 61,000 swine.

The forests of the State provide annually over 180,000,000 board feet of lumber, approximately 38,500 cords of pulpwood, and 450,000 cords of fuelwood.

According to the returns of the Federal census of manufactures in 1925, there were in Vermont 951 manufacturing establishments, paying 32,326,006 dollars in wages to 27,563 wage-earners, using raw material costing 74,387,398 dollars, and giving an output valued at 138,269,861 dollars.

The marble quarries, first opened in 1785, produce half of the marble of the United States. The State contains the largest and most valuable deposits of marble, granite, and asbestos of any State in the United States, and ranks second in the production of slate, talc, and soapstone. Metals occur only in small quantities. Total mineral output in 1926 was valued at 14,955,161 dollars.

There are (January 1, 1928) 1,154 miles of steam railway in the State, and electric railways with 42 miles of track.

On June 30, 1928, there were 19 mutual savings banks and 40 savings banks and trust companies in the State with 247,137 depositors, having to their credit 166,392,829 dollars. The average amount of savings deposits per depositor is 673 dollars. On June 30, 1927, 46 national banks reported resources of 72,351,000 dollars, demand deposits of 17,236,000 dollars and savings deposits of 36,463,000 dollars.

VIRGINIA.

Constitution and Government.—The first English Charter for settlements in America was that granted by James I. in 1606 for the planting of colonies in Virginia. The State was one of the thirteen original States in the Union. On the outbreak of the civil war in 1861, Virginia, after long hesitation, decided to join the seceding States, a course objected to by the western portion of the State, which in 1863 was admitted into the Union as West Virginia.

The General Assembly consists of a Senate and a House of Delegates, the former containing not more than 40 nor less than 33 members and the latter not more than 100 nor less than 90. Senators are elected for 4 years. The Senate contains 40 members. The House of Delegates contains 100 members, elected for 2 years. Qualified as electors are (with few exceptions) all citizens 21 years of age, resident in the State for 2 years and in the county, city, town, or precinct for which the election is held for 30 days, who have paid their State poll-taxes and registered.

The State sends to the Federal Congress 2 Senators and 10 Representatives.

Governor.—Harry Flood Byrd, 1926-30 (5,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—M. A. Hutchinson.

The State Capital is Richmond.

Area, Population, Instruction—Area, 42,627 square miles, including 2,365 square miles water area. Census population on January 1, 1920, 2,309,187. Population for four Federal census years:—

WASHINGTON.

Government.—Washington, formerly part of Oregon, was created a Territory in 1853, and was admitted into the Union as a State on November 11, 1889. The Legislature consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives, the latter composed of not less than 63 nor more than 99 members, the number of Senators being not more than half nor less than one-third of that of members of the House of Representatives. Senators are elected for 4 years, half their number retiring every 2 years ; members of the House of Representatives are elected for 2 years.

Qualified as voters are (with some exceptions) all citizens 21 years of age who have lived in the State 1 year, in the county 90 days, in the city, town, ward, or precinct where they vote 30 days, and who can read and speak English.

Governor.—Roland H. Hartley, 1929-33 (6,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—J. Grant Hinkle.

To the United States Congress the State sends 2 Senators and (since 1911) 5 Representatives.

The State contains 39 counties. The State capital is Olympia.

Of the total population in 1920, 47·3 per cent. were urban and 0·2 per cent. Negro.

In 1927 there were 10,818 marriages performed as compared with 16,654 in 1926 ; 2,442 divorces were granted as against 2,386 in 1926.

The chief religious bodies are : Roman Catholic, Lutheran, Methodist, Congregationalist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Episcopalian, Christian Science, Unitarian, and Seventh Day Adventist.

Education.—The educational law of 1921 compels all children between the ages of 7 and 14, and those between 14 and 16 not regularly and lawfully employed in some useful service at home or elsewhere, to attend school for six school months in towns and villages, eight school months in cities except Milwaukee, and a full school year in Milwaukee for each of the compulsory years. Compulsory part-time education in the day-time is required for employed children. The present requirement is half-time for minors 14 to 16, and 8 hours per week for minors 16 to 18 years of age. In 1927-28, the 8,315 elementary schools had 19,808 teachers and 520,149 enrolled pupils, the 435 public high schools had 4,768 teachers and 102,483 pupils. The 9 State normal schools had, in 1927-28, 401 teachers and 5,008 students. The 36 public part-time day schools in 1927-28 had 666 teachers and 34,305 pupils. There were in 1927-28, 42 State supervised evening schools with a total enrolment of 37,452. There are also 31 county training schools, which train teachers for the rural schools, and the Stout Institute for training teachers for the vocational schools.

The University of Wisconsin at Madison, established in 1848, had, in 1927-28, 1,382 professors and instructors and 9,672 students. Instruction by correspondence in 1927-28 was imparted to 11,370 students.

The total expenditure for public education in 1927-28 was 69,734,389 dollars.

Finance and Defence.—For the year ended June 30, 1928, the receipts and disbursements of the State Government were to the following amounts:—

	Dollars
Balance July 1, 1927 . . . . .	18,707,666
Receipts for year, 1927-28 . . . . .	70,655,619
Total . . . . .	89,363,315
Disbursements for year 1927-28 . . . . .	73,091,709
Balance June 30, 1928 . . . . .	16,271,606

The State has no debt except to its own trust funds, which on June 30, 1928, was 1,563,700 dollars.

In 1927, the assessed valuation of real property in the State was 4,753,249,754 dollars, and of personal property 860,792,415 dollars, total 5,619,042,169 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1928, consisted of 343 commissioned officers, 6 warrant officers and 4,295 enlisted men.

Production, Industry, Communications.—Wisconsin has slightly more people engaged in manufactures than in agriculture, but is the leading dairy State of the Union. In 1925, the farms numbered 193,155 with a total area of 21,850,853 acres, of which 11,831,157 acres were improved land. The value of all farm land and buildings in 1925 was 1,898,766,200 dollars. The yield of the principal crops in 1927 was: maize, 68,250,000 bushels; wheat, 3,142,000 bushels; oats, 93,247,000 bushels; barley, 21,390,000 bushels; potatoes, 23,920,000 bushels; tame hay, 6,989,000 tons. The area under tobacco in 1927 was 31,000 acres with a yield of 33,170,000 pounds. On January 1, 1928, the live-stock consisted of 572,000 horses, 7,000 mules, 1,984,000 milch cows, 2,920,000 all cattle, 430,000 sheep and lambs, and 1,863,000 swine. The wool-clip in 1927 amounted to 2,774,000 pounds of wool.

Iron ore (1,091,000 long tons in 1927), zinc (32,841 short tons, 1927), and lead ore (2,067 short tons in 1927), are the chief mineral products. Excluding pig-iron (235,597 long tons), the total value of mineral products in 1926 was 20,711,736 dollars.

In 1925, Wisconsin had 7,262 manufacturing establishments, with 247,341 wage-earners; 314,883,011 dollars were paid in wages, 1,084,747,480 dollars on raw material and the value of the manufactured product was 1,859,243,930 dollars.

On January 1, 1927, there were 7,474 miles of railroads operated in the State besides 937 miles of electric railway track.

There are in the State 80,931 miles of rural roads and 6,410 miles of city and village streets, of which 32,700 miles are improved or hard-surfaced roads. Of the improved roads 10,285 miles are in the State trunk highway system. The total expenditure for roads by the State during the past fiscal year was 11,758,000 dollars. In addition to this the counties spent approximately 15,000,000 dollars.

On October 10, 1927, there were 156 national banks with 27,780,000 dollars capital and 15,497,000 surplus, with 468,245,000 dollars in resources. On June 30, 1928, there were also 804 State banks with 37,581,000 dollars capital, 20,299,370 dollars surplus, and 640,654,260 dollars in resource, and 6 mutual savings banks with 8,172,738 dollars in deposits.

WYOMING.

Government.—Wyoming was admitted into the Union on July 10, 1890. The Legislature consists of a Senate of 25 members, elected for four years (about one-half retiring every two years), and a House of Representatives of 54 members elected for two years.

The suffrage extends to all citizens, male and female, who can read, and who are registered as voters and have resided in the State one year and in the county 60 days next preceding the election.

Governor.—Frank C. Emerson, 1927–1931 (6,000 dollars).

Secretary of State.—A. M. Clark.

The capital is Cheyenne.

Area, Population, Instruction.—Area, 97,914 square miles, of which 320 square miles are water. Of the total, about 3,300 square miles are comprised within the Yellowstone National Park, which since 1872 has been reserved for public uses.

Census population on January 1, 1920, 194,402.

The Federal census results since 1890, show the population to have been as follows :—

Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per sq. mile	Years	White	Coloured	Total	Per sq. mile
1890	59,324	3,281	62,555	0·6	1910	140,318	5,647	145,965	1·5
1900	89,051	3,480	92,531	0·9	1920	190,146	4,256	194,402	2·0

State census population, 1925, 206,381. Of these, 202,303 were whites (112,292 males and 90,011 females); 969 negroes (588 males and 381 females); 1,160 Asiatics and 1,949 Indians.

In 1920, the population according to sex and race was :—

—	White	Negro	Asiatic	Indian	Total
Male . . . .	107,501	883	1,280	715	110,359
Female . . . .	82,645	512	258	628	84,043
Total . . . .	190,146	1,875	1,538	1,843	194,402

In 1920, the foreign-born white population numbered 25,255 (or 13·0 per cent. of the total), of whom 2,292 were Germans, 2,505 English (9·9 per cent.),

1,438 Canadians, 1,236 Greek, 956 Irish, 1,948 Italians, 1,439 Scotch, and 2,042 Swedish.

Estimated population July 1, 1928, 247,000. Marriages in 1927 were 1,818; divorces, 627.

The Indian reservation within the State has (1926) an area of 2,899 square miles, and a population of 1,899.

Of the total population in 1920, 29.5 per cent. were urban, and 0.7 per cent. Negro. The largest towns are Cheyenne (capital), with State census population in 1925 of 13,202; Casper, with 23,288; Sheridan, with 8,436; Rock Springs, with 6,875; Laramie with 9,629.

The religious bodies with the most numerous membership are the Roman Catholic, Mormon, Protestant Episcopal, Methodist, and Presbyterian.

In 1928, the 1,380 public schools had 2,333 teachers, and 42,498 enrolled pupils; there were 154 accredited high schools with 598 teachers and 10,644 pupils. The University of Wyoming, founded at Laramie in 1887, had in 1927, 85 professors and instructors and 1,020 students. There is also a State Agricultural College at Laramie. Expenditure on elementary and secondary schools in the school year 1927-28 was 7,092,430 dollars.

Finance and Defence.—The cash receipts and disbursements of the State (exclusive of trust funds) for the year ending September 30, 1927, are given as follows:—

	Dollars
Balance, October 1, 1926 . . . . .	5,512,416
Receipts for 1926-27 . . . . .	9,493,589
Total . . . . .	15,006,005
Disbursements 1926-27 . . . . .	8,186,274
Balance, Sept. 30, 1927 . . . . .	6,819,731

On September 30, 1927, the bonded debt amounted to 1,909,000 dollars, and the assessed value of property in the State in 1927 to 474,110,587 dollars.

The National Guard on June 30, 1928, consisted of 46 officers, 1 warrant officer and 751 enlisted men.

Production and Industry.—Wyoming is semi-arid and agriculture is carried on by irrigation and by "dry farming." In 1925, there were 15,512 farms, with a total area of 18,663,308 acres, of which 1,877,879 acres were crop land. The total value of all farm property in 1925 was 240,396,413 dollars. Such crops as are grown consist of vegetables, cereals, and fruits. The value of the crops for 1924 was estimated at 18,889,391 dollars. The wool-clip (1927) yielded 25,000,000 pounds of wool. The domestic animals on January 1st, 1928, were 190,000 horses, 72,000 milch cows and 764,000 other cattle, 3,131,000 sheep, and 133,000 swine.

In 1927, 8,548,234 acres in the State, being 13 per cent. of its area, were national forest land. The State has numerous fish hatcheries which stock the streams with trout, and also possesses the largest elk herds in the world.

Wyoming is largely a coal-producing State. In 1927 the output of coal was 7,085,000 short tons; of petroleum, 21,146,000 barrels. The iron ore production in 1927 was 603,000 long tons. The quarries yield limestone and sandstone, besides phosphate rock. Total value of mineral products in 1926 was 78,988,066 dollars.

Manufactures are mostly confined to production for local consumption. In 1925 (according to Federal census results), the State had 224 industrial establishments; the wage-earners numbered 6,333, wages paid amounted to 10,526,253 dollars, the materials used cost 76,073,349 dollars, and the output amounted to 107,984,752 dollars.

In 1927, the steam railways in the State had a length of 1,991 miles. There were also 16 miles of electric railway.

The Federal Highway System for the State comprises 3,169 miles. The system of stage route transportation is still common.

On June 30, 1927, Wyoming had 30 national banks with resources of 43,267,000 dollars, demand deposits of 20,216,000 dollars and savings deposits of 13,554,000 dollars; State banks and trust companies had (1926) savings deposits of 8,563,000 dollars.

OUTLYING TERRITORIES.

ALASKA.

Government.—Alaska was purchased by the United States from Russia under the treaty of March 30, 1867, for 7,200,000 dollars. The Governor is appointed by the President of the United States for 4 years.

By Act of Congress approved August 24, 1912, Alaska became a Territory, with a legislative assembly consisting of 8 senators and 16 representatives. Congress reserved to itself the right to legislate on certain subjects, so that the Territory is now governed conjointly by Congress at Washington and by its local legislative assembly. The first session of the legislature convened at Juneau, the capital, on March 3, 1913, and continued in session 60 days. Regular sessions are held biennially. Special sessions may be called by the Governor. The latter is appointed for four years by the President.

Governor—Geo. A. Parks, 1925–29 (7,000 dollars).

Secretary to Governor—Harry G. Watson.

Area and Population.—The area of the territory is 590,884 square miles, and the census population from 1890 to 1920 is shown as follows:—

Year	Population	Per Sq. Mile	Year	Population	Per Sq. Mile
1890	32,052	0.05	1910	64,356	0.1
1900	63,592	0.1	1920	55,036	0.1

Of the population in 1920, 34,539 were males and 20,497 females; 27,883 were whites and 26,558 were Indians, 56 Chinese, 312 Japanese, and 128 Negroes. About 20,000 people, employed in mines, canneries, and railway construction, spend a few months a year in Alaska, but these are not included in the enumeration.

The largest town is Juneau, the seat of Government, which had (census of 1920) a population of 3,058; the second largest is Ketchikan with a population of 2,458; other towns are Anchorage, 1,856; Sitka, 1,175; Fairbanks,

1,155; Cordova, 955; Douglas, 919; Petersburg, 879; Nome, 852; Wrangell, 821; and Seward, 652. There are altogether 18 incorporated towns.

Education, Justice.—In Alaska many religious missions are at work, representing very diverse denominations: Russian Orthodox, Roman Catholic, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Congregational and others.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1927, there were 90 territorial white schools in Alaska with 4,915 enrolled pupils and 232 teachers. During the school year 1926-27 there were 12 four-year high schools maintained. Total cost of instruction, 502,661 dollars. In 1920, 24.8 per cent. (26.5 per cent. in 1910) were illiterate. The Bureau of Education of the Federal government handles the education, hospitalisation and general care of the native population. During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1927, there were 88 native schools in operation and 5 hospitals.

For the administration of justice the territory is constituted as a judicial district with 4 subdivisions and 4 courts.

Finance.—In the territory of Alaska there is no provision for taxation of real or personal property, except in municipalities where real estate and personal property may be taxed 2 per cent. for municipal purposes only. The revenues are derived from licences to conduct businesses.

For the year ended December 31, 1927, the revenue and expenditure were as follows:—

	Dollars.
Balance January 1, 1927 . . . . .	614,010
Receipts, 1927 . . . . .	1,400,633
Total . . . . .	2,014,643
Disbursements, 1927 . . . . .	1,242,584
Balance December 31, 1927 . . . . .	772,059

The Territory has no funded debt.

Production and Industry.—In some parts of the territory the climate during the brief summer is not unsuitable for agricultural operations. There are agricultural experimental stations which are giving valuable demonstrations. In 1920, there were 364 farms with a total area of 90,652 acres, of which 5,736 acres was improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 1,808,641 dollars. About 1,280 reindeer have been introduced from Siberia, and the industry is thriving. There were (in 1926) approximately 350,000 reindeer in the country distributed in 110 herds and valued at 8,750,000 dollars. In the period 1918-26 more than 1,875,000 pounds of reindeer meat were shipped from Alaska. Shipments for 1925 were 680,000 pounds; for 1926, 967,751 pounds; for 1927, 819,981 pounds. In Northern and Western Alaska are 200,000 square miles of treeless region worthless for agriculture but capable of furnishing pasturage for 4,000,000 reindeer. About 275 blue fox ranches, stocked with 36,000 blue foxes, represent an investment of 6,850,000 dollars. Value of land fur-bearing animals shipped from Alaska 1927 was 3,657,940 dollars.

The southern coastal section of Alaska contains large and readily accessible timber resources which maintain a considerable sawmill industry and are capable of supporting an immense pulp and paper development. This timber is largely included in two National Forests aggregating 21,348,172 acres and officially estimated to contain 84,760 million board feet of timber, 74 per cent. western hemlock and 20 per cent. Sitka spruce.

The chief industries of Alaska are salmon fishing and mining. In 1926 all the fisheries of Alaska employed 28,872 persons; the capital invested was 74,557,522 dollars, and the value of the products was 40,163,300 dollars.

The most important part of the salmon industry was salmon canning, in which in 1926 there were employed 21,906 persons; capital invested was 60,535,550 dollars, and products were 3,572,128 cases, valued at 30,016,264 dollars. The number of salmon canneries operated in 1926 was 132.

The Government-owned fur-seal herd of the Pribilof Islands, administered by the Department of Commerce, comprises about 85 per cent. of the fur seals of the world. This herd in 1927 contained 808,870 animals; number of skins taken, 25,969.

Gold is worked in South-East Alaska, where a low-grade ore is found; in the interior on the Yukon river; and at Nome and other places on the west coast. The output of gold in 1927 was 286,720 fine ounces, valued at 5,937,000 dollars; of silver, 627,000 fine ounces, valued at 356,000 dollars; and of copper, 55,343,000 pounds, valued at 7,250,000 dollars. The peak of mineral production was reached in 1916, with total output valued at 48,000,000 dollars; it has since declined to 17,606,890 dollars in 1926. From 1880, the total value of the gold output of the Territory was 359,309,098 dollars; silver, 11,089,217 dollars; and copper, 188,000,000 dollars. Tin ore deposits near Cape Prince of Wales are of a high grade; lead is produced; coal is worked; petroleum, marble, gypsum, quicksilver and lode platinum metals are found. Total value of mineral output in 1925, 18,220,692 dollars; 1926, 17,606,890 dollars; in 1927, 14,404,000 dollars; in 1928 (estimated), 14,128,000 dollars.

Commerce and Communications.—The value of the domestic merchandise shipped from the United States to Alaska in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928, amounted to 33,395,456 dollars, and from Alaska to the United States 53,962,061 dollars. Merchandise from foreign ports amounted to 543,683 dollars and exports to foreign ports, 522,592 dollars, including gold and silver. In the calendar year 1927, 3,288 vessels of 974,731 tons entered the ports of Alaska in domestic trade, and 3,110 vessels of 936,697 tons cleared. The chief ports of shipment of the United States to Alaska are on Puget Sound.

There is a railway of 112 miles from Skagway to the town of White Horse (in the Canadian Yukon region); thence transport is by coach or airplane, or, in summer, by steamer. The Copper River and North Western Railway has completed a line (standard gauge) from Cordova to Kennecott, a distance of 197 miles. The Alaska railroad runs from Seward to Fairbanks, a distance of 467 miles (509 miles with branches). Alaska has 1,533 miles of wagon roads, 1,086 miles of sled roads, and 6,671 miles of trails. The Alaskan towns are connected with the United States and with Canada by telegraph. There are about 180 post-offices, and good mail services in the territory.

The territory had, on June 30, 1927, four National Banks with a total capital, surplus and undivided profits of 383,000 dollars; and deposits, 3,937,000 dollars. There were also (1926) 13 territorial banks with a total capital of 640,000 dollars; surplus, 575,568 dollars; deposits, 7,630,190 dollars.

HAWAII.

The Hawaiian Islands lie in the North Pacific Ocean, between 18° 54' and 20° 14' north latitude, and 154° 48' and 160° 13' west longitude. They are about 2,020 miles south-west of San Francisco, and are in the line of steamer travel between Victoria, B.C., and Australia and New Zealand.

Government.—The Hawaiian Islands (formerly known as the Sandwich Islands), celebrated in August, 1928, the 150th anniversary of their discovery by Captain James Cook, the English navigator. The islands formed during the greater part of the nineteenth century an independent kingdom, but in 1893 the reigning Queen, Liliuokalani (died November 11, 1917), was deposed and a provisional government formed; in 1894, a Republic was proclaimed, and in accordance with the request of the people of Hawaii expressed through the Legislature of the Republic, and a resolution of the United States Congress of July 6, 1898 (signed July 7 by President McKinley), the Islands were on August 12, 1898, formally annexed to the United States. On June 14, 1900, they were constituted as the Territory of Hawaii. The Organic Act has since been amended several times. There is a Legislature of two Houses, a Senate of 15 members elected for four years, and a House of Representatives of 30 members elected for two years. Sessions, limited to 60 days, are held biennially. The Governor and Secretary are appointed for four years by the President of the United States.

Governor.—W. R. Farrington, 1925–1929 (10,000 dollars).

Secretary of the Territory.—Raymond C. Brown.

The Territory is represented in Congress by a delegate elected biennially.

Area and Population.—The total area of the islands is 6,449 square miles. The principal islands of the group are Hawaii, 4,015; Maui, 728; Oahu, 598; Kauai, 547; Molokai, 261; Lanai, 139; Niihau, 97; Kahoolawe, 69. According to the census taken on April 15, 1910, the total population of the islands numbered 191,909, an increase of 37,908, or 24.61 per cent. since 1900. The average number of persons to the square mile in 1910 was 29.75. The Capital, Honolulu, in the Island of Oahu, had 118,000 inhabitants on July 1, 1928.

Population on January 1, 1920 (U.S. Census), 255,912 (151,146 males).

The estimated number of Hawaiians on June 30, 1928, was 20,720, and 25,984 part-Hawaiians. There are estimated to be 25,310 Chinese, 134,600 Japanese, 29,117 Portuguese, 60,078 Filipinos, 6,781 Porto Ricans, 1,809 Spanish, 37,502 Americans, British, Germans, and Russians, 6,318 Koreans, 548 others. Total estimated, 1928, 348,767. Large numbers from the various racial groups were born in the islands, and it is estimated that of the total not less than 228,276 are American citizens.

Religion and Education.—The Hawaiians are Christians. There is an American Protestant Episcopal bishop at Honolulu; also a Roman Catholic bishop, and ministers of various denominations.

Elementary education has always been free. The language in the schools is English. In 1928, there were 185 public schools with 2,298 teachers and 66,434 enrolled pupils; also 65 private schools with 318 teachers and 9,497 enrolled pupils. The pupils in public schools in 1928 were classed by ancestry as follows: Hawaiian and part-Hawaiian, 10,464; Portuguese, 5,993; Asiatic, 42,222; Anglo-Saxon, 2,974; Porto Rican, 1,053; Spanish, 261; Filipinos, 2,796; others, 671. In Hawaii there are, besides, a normal and training school, a reformatory industrial school for boys and one for girls, a territorial trade school, a school for the deaf and blind, a school for feeble-minded; also a territorial university (University of Hawaii, Honolulu), founded in 1907, with 38 instructors and 536 students in 1927.

Justice.—Hawaii has a supreme court, circuit courts, a court of domestic relations, district courts, and a land registration court. The circuit judges sit also as juvenile courts. The judges of the supreme and circuit courts are appointed by the United States President; the district magistrates by the Chief Justice of Hawaii. There is also a United States District Court, the judges of which, and the U.S. Marshal, are appointed by the President.

Finance, Defence.—Revenue is derived mainly from taxation of real and personal property, income and inheritance taxes, licences, land sales and leases, waterworks and road, school and poll taxes. For the year ending June 30, 1928, the receipts and disbursements were to the following amounts:—

	Dollars
Balance June 30, 1927	1,251,638
Receipts, 1927-28	11,579,668
Total	12,831,306
Expenditure, 1927-28.	9,579,068
Balance, June 30, 1928	3,252,238

On June 30, 1928, the bonded debt amounted to 28,585,000 dollars. In 1928 the assessed value of property was 390,558,491 dollars, a decrease of 23,506,512 dollars over the previous year.

On June 30, 1928, the Hawaiian National Guard contained 1,633 men, and 101 officers. The Federal Government, with a view to the protection of the Pacific coast and the control of the Panama Canal, has constructed extensive naval works at Pearl Harbour, about 7 miles from Honolulu, and military works at Honolulu and other places on the island of Oahu.

Production and Commerce.—In 1920, there were 5,284 farms with an acreage of 2,702,245, of which 435,242 acres were improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 151,129,085 dollars. Sugar and pine-apples are the staple industries, while coffee, honey, hides, sisal, bananas, rice, wool, tobacco, and cotton are also exported. For the year ending September 30, 1928, the sugar production amounted to 811,333 short tons, compared with 787,246 in 1927. The estimated pineapple pack (1927) amounted to over 8,500,000 cases. The forest reserves in the Territory now number 57, aggregating 916,977 acres, and other reserves are contemplated.

For the year ending December 31, 1927, the imports amounted to 88,837,477 dollars, and the exports to 111,504,035 dollars. The shipments of merchandise from the United States to Hawaii for the year ending Dec. 31, 1927, amounted to 79,665,662 dollars, and those from Hawaii to the United States to 109,236,821 dollars, of which 69,827,821 dollars were for sugar, 33,845,351 dollars for fruits (mostly pineapples), 1,397,720 dollars for coffee. The imports from the United Kingdom (Board of Trade figures) in 1928 totalled £22,792, and the exports to the United Kingdom, £126,657.

Shipping and Communications.—Several lines of steamers connect the islands with the mainland of the United States, Canada, Australia, the Philippines, China, and Japan. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928, 1,267 vessels of 9,708,060 tons entered ports of the islands. An inter-island steam navigation company with 16 steamers provides communication between the different islands. There are about 1,038 miles of railway in the islands, including 667 miles of plantation railways. There are telephones on the islands of Oahu, Maui, Hawaii, Kauai, and Molokai. Honolulu is lighted by electricity and has lines of electric tramways. Wireless telegraphy is in operation between the islands for commercial purposes and for communication with vessels at sea and with the Pacific coast, and also with Japan. Hawaii is connected by cable with both shores of the Pacific.

About 17,500 tourists visited the islands in 1927.

Thirty-one banks were in operation on June 30, 1928. One is solely a savings bank, one solely commercial, and the remainder both commercial and savings banks. Total deposits in all banks, 1928, 80,210,063 dollars. On June 30, 1928, there were 126,043 savings bank accounts with total deposits of 31,278,434 dollars, representing 225.18 dollars to each depositor.

The Chinese, who constitute 7.26 per cent. of the population, own 12.02 per cent. of the total savings deposits.

PORTO RICO.

Government.—Porto Rico, by the treaty of December 10, 1898 (ratified April 11, 1899), was ceded by Spain to the United States. Its constitution is determined by the 'Organic Act' of Congress (1917), known as the 'Jones Act,' the main features of which are the granting of American Citizenship to the people of Porto Rico, the separation of the legislative and executive functions, extension of the appointive judiciary system and an elective senate. Porto Rico has representative government, the franchise being restricted to citizens of the United States twenty-one years of age or over, residence (one year) and such additional qualifications as may be prescribed by the Legislature of Porto Rico, but no property qualification may be imposed. The executive power resides in a Governor appointed by the President of the United States. The legislative functions are vested in a legislature which consists of two elective houses: the Senate, composed of 19 members (2 from each of the 7 senatorial districts and 5 senators at large), and the House of Representatives, composed of 39 members (1 from each of the 35 representative districts and 4 elected at large). Porto Rico is represented in Congress by a Resident Commissioner to the United States elected by the people for a term of four years.

There are six heads of departments, who form a Council to the Governor, known as the Executive Council. The essential features of the United States civil service have been incorporated into a local law by the Legislature. The judiciary comprises an Attorney General and staff and a United States court appointed by the President; a Supreme Court of 5 members also appointed by the President; 7 District Courts with 10 Judges appointed by the Governor; and 36 municipal courts, the judges and officials of which, as well as the 56 justices of the peace, are appointed by the Governor.

Governor.—Horace M. Towner (10,000 dollars).

Executive Secretary.—E. J. Saldaña.

Area, Population and Education.—The Island has an area of 3,435 square miles. The population in 1920 was 1,299,809 or 378·4 per sq. mile. During the decade elapsed since the census of 1910, the total population increased by 16·3 per cent. The distribution of the population according to colour, in 1920, was as follows:—White, 948,709; black, 49,246; mulatto, 301,816; Chinese, 32; Japanese, 4; all other (Philippino and Hindu), 2. The corresponding figures for 1910 were: White, 732,555; black, 50,245; mulatto, 335,192; Chinese, 12; Japanese, 8. During the decade the white population increased by 29·5 per cent., while the black population decreased by 2 per cent., and the mulatto by 10 per cent.

Chief towns, San Juan, 71,443 inhabitants (1920); Ponce, 41,912; Mayaguez, 19,124. Of the working population, 63 per cent. are engaged in agriculture, fisheries, and mining; 21 per cent. in domestic and personal service; 8 per cent. in manufacturing industries; 8 per cent. in trade and transportation. In 1927, the percentage of illiteracy was 40.

In 1899, the school system was reorganised and education was made compulsory. In 1928, there were 4,470 class-rooms in 2,144 school-buildings, with 220,940 pupils enrolled; and a well-distributed system of night schools and kindergartens. There are also a number of private schools. The University of Porto Rico, established in Rio Piedras, 7 miles from San Juan, is open to both men and women.

Finance.—Receipts and disbursements for the year ending June 30, 1928:—

	Dollars.
Balance, July 1, 1927 . . . . .	128,257
Receipts, 1927-28 . . . . .	15,414,554
Total . . . . .	15,542,811
Disbursements, 1927-28 . . . . .	14,784,018
Balance, July 1, 1928 . . . . .	758,797

The assessed value of property on June 30, 1928, was 341,370,654 dollars. The total outstanding bonded indebtedness is 25,517,000 dollars.

The police force consists of 798 men, and the National Guard (on June 30, 1928) of 85 officers and 1,419 enlisted men.

Production, Industry and Commerce.—The cultivated land in 1920 was divided into 41,078 holdings, having a total area of 2,022,404 acres, of which 1,303,547 acres was improved land. Total value of all farm property in 1920 was 179,392,511 dollars. The chief products of the island are sugar, tobacco, coffee, pineapples, grape fruit, oranges, and other tropical fruits, sea island cotton, textile fibres, bat guano, phosphate, and vegetables, and the principal industries are manufactures of cigars, cigarettes, hats, embroideries, drawn-work, &c. Sugar crops for three years: 1926, 603,187 tons; 1927, 629,129 tons; and 1928, 748,677 tons. Sugar exported in 1927 amounted to 605,620 tons, valued at 54,579,020 dollars. In 1928, 144,378,000 cigars were exported and 29,934,896 pounds of leaf and scrap tobacco, valued at 17,074,560 dollars. Exports of coffee, 7,837,800 pounds, were valued at 2,596,872 dollars, in 1928. Orange exports in 1928 amounted to 1,286,039 dollars; fresh pineapples to 1,654,108 dollars; grape fruit, a comparatively new product, amounted to 2,704,310 dollars.

There is no established mining enterprise, but gold, silver, iron, copper, bismuth, tin, mercury, platinum and nickel are found in the island. There are very productive salt works.

In 1927-28, the imports into Porto Rico amounted to 92,342,329 dollars (United States merchandise amounting to 79,743,038 dollars, foreign merchandise to 12,599,241 dollars). The exports in the same year were valued at 103,534,739 dollars (96,662,619 dollars to the United States, and 6,872,120 dollars to foreign countries). Imports from the United Kingdom (Board of Trade figures) for calendar year 1928, £111,742; exports to United Kingdom, £7,476.

Shipping and Communications.—In 1927-28, 3,093 American and foreign vessels entered and cleared Porto Rico from the United States and foreign countries.

There are over 1,100 miles of road in the Island, and about 339 miles of railway. The railway system connects towns on the west coast and now almost encircles the Island, and penetrates the interior. A line is operated from Río Piedras to Caguas inland. Extensions of existing lines are being undertaken, and a new line across the Island, with many branches, is projected. There are 1,848 miles of postal (government) telephone and telegraph wire. There are 93 post offices, and 72 telegraph stations and two wireless stations.

The Porto Rican island of Vieques, 13 miles to the east, is about 21 miles long and 6 miles broad, and has about 10,000 inhabitants, who grow sugar and rear cattle. Like Porto Rico, the island of Vieques is fertile and healthy.

The island of Culebra, between Porto Rico and St. Thomas, has a good harbour.

British Consul.—George William MacAuslane.

VIRGIN ISLANDS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Government.—The Virgin Islands of the United States, formerly known as the Danish West Indies, were purchased by the United States from Denmark, for 25,000,000 dollars, in a treaty ratified by Denmark December 22, 1916, ratified by the President of the United States January 16, 1917, ratifications exchanged at Washington, January 17, 1917, and proclaimed January 25, 1917. Under an Act of Congress, approved March 3, 1917, known as the Organic Act, all military, civil, and judicial powers necessary to govern the islands were vested in a Governor, appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice of the Senate; and all laws, in so far as compatible with the changed sovereignty, as set forth in the Danish code of laws dated April 6, 1906, were continued in force and effect until Congress shall provide otherwise. Tax and Customs laws were likewise to remain in effect. Danish citizens residing in the islands at the time the treaty was entered into were permitted to retain their Danish citizenship by making declaration before a court of record to preserve such citizenship, in default of which they were held to have renounced it, and to have accepted citizenship in the United States. The islands comprise two municipalities, viz.: the Municipality of St. Thomas and St. John, and the Municipality of St. Croix. The legislative functions are vested in the Colonial Council of each Municipality, that of St. Croix being composed of 13 members elected by popular elections and of 5 members appointed by the Governor; and that of St. Thomas and St. John consisting of 11 elected members and 4 appointed by the Governor. The members serve for 4 years. The right of franchise is vested in every man of unblemished character who has resided in the islands for 5 years, who has attained the age of 25 years, and has an income of at least 1,500 francs a year. The Government is strictly civil, and not military or naval. On February 25, 1927, full American citizenship was granted to the natives of the Virgin Islands.

There are eight heads of Departments, who, with naval aides, form the Governor's cabinet. There is one Judge of the District Court for the Virgin Islands, and three Police Courts, presided over by Judges of the Police Courts.

Governor.—Capt. Waldo Evans, U.S.N. (Ret.).

Government Secretary.—Capt. E. H. Van Patten (S.C.), U.S.N.

Area, Population and Education.—The Virgin Islands group comprises in the main the Islands of St. Thomas (28 square miles), St. Croix (84 square miles), and St. John (20 square miles). The total area is 132 square miles and the population, according to the U.S. Government census of November 1, 1917, 26,051. According to a police census in 1926, the populations of each of the islands are 8,826, 11,118, and 784. They lie about 60 miles due east of Porto Rico, between the Atlantic Ocean and Caribbean Sea. The islands contain 3 towns, St. Thomas (formerly Charlotte Amalie), on the island of St. Thomas, with a population of 6,374; and Christiansted and Frederiksted, on the island of St. Croix, with populations of 3,392 and 2,438 respectively. Education is compulsory. In St. Thomas there are 9 public and 5 private and parochial schools, 1,836 pupils and 53 teachers; and in St. John there are 5 public schools with an enrolment of 196 pupils and 8 teachers. In St. Croix there are 10 public schools and 7 private and parochial schools. Total enrolment, 2,074 with 51 teachers.

Finance.—Revenues are derived from customs, export tax on sugar, income tax, real and personal property tax, trade tax, pilotage charges, &c. Estimated revenue for fiscal year ending June 30, 1929: 1,226,139 francs. The annual deficit in the operation of the government is met by appropriations by the Congress of the United States. Danish West Indian currency is legal tender.

Production and Industry.—The farms on the islands extend to 69,892 acres. Of the 430 farms, 102 were worked by white farmers, 58 by mixed farmers and 270 by negroes. There are 86 industrial establishments in the islands. St. Thomas is the leading port in the Virgin Islands with coaling and oil-fuelling stations. The Island of St. John is noted for its bay oil, and St. Thomas for the finished product of bay rum. St. Croix's chief industries are agricultural—mainly cane- and cattle-raising. Two stock farms have recently been established in St. Thomas. A plant for manufacturing industrial alcohol has recently been erected in the island of Saint Croix.

Exports in calendar year 1927 were 1,144,274 dollars; imports 2,501,450 dollars. Exports to United Kingdom (Board of Trade figures) for 1928, £984; imports from United Kingdom, £20,213.

Communication.—The Bermuda and West Indies Steamship Co., Ltd., maintains a regular monthly passenger and freight service from New York to St. Thomas, St. Croix and lower islands. The Ocean Dominion Steamship Co. operates a monthly freight and limited passenger service from New York to St. Thomas, St. Croix and Leeward Islands. The New York and Porto Rico Steamship Co., the Atlantic Fruit Line, and the Red "D" line operate regular service from New York to San Juan, Porto Rico, whence steamer service may be had to ports in the Virgin Islands. There is also a weekly passenger, freight and mail service by the Bull Insular Steamship Co. between San Juan, Porto Rico and St. Thomas and St. Croix, and in addition a weekly mail service by motor-boat from Fajardo, P.R., to St. Thomas. There are powerful radio stations at St. Thomas and St. Croix and a cable office at each place also.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

These islands, ceded by Spain to the United States by the treaty of peace concluded between the United States and Spain on April 11, 1899, form the largest island group of the Malay Archipelago, and extend almost due north and south from Formosa to Borneo and the Moluccas, embracing an extent of 16° of latitude and 9° of longitude.

Governor-General.—Henry L. Stimson, assumed office, March 3, 1923.

Government.—The government of the Philippine Islands is administered through three separate and co-ordinate departments, namely, the executive, the legislative, and the judicial.

The Governor-General is the chief executive of the Islands, and represents the sovereign power of the United States. He is appointed by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. Under him are the secretaries of six executive departments, who, with the exception of the Vice-Governor (appointed by the President) who acts as Secretary of Public Instruction, must all be Filipinos. Members of the cabinet have been granted by the legislature the right to attend sessions and speak on matters pertaining to their departments.

The Philippine legislative body is made up of the Senate (24 members) and the House of Representatives (with 94 members). All are elected by popular vote, with the exception of nine representatives and two senators, who are appointed by the Governor-General to represent Agusan, Bukidnon, Cotabato, Davao, Lanao, Zamboanga, Sulu, Nueva Vizcaya, and the Mountain Province.]

A new Council of State, created by Executive Order in August, 1928, forms the connecting link between the executive and the legislative branches of the insular government. It is composed of the Governor-General, as President, the Presidents of both houses of the Legislature, the leaders of the majority parties in both houses and the six Secretaries of the Departments.

The provincial and municipal governments are supervised by the Department of the Interior through the Executive Bureau and the Bureau of Non-Christian Tribes, the former exercising authority over the thirty-seven regularly organised and two of the so-called special provinces, and the latter over nine special provinces. The chief executive of each province is a provincial governor. He and two other members form the provincial board, which constitutes the legislative branch of the provincial government. All these three offices are filled by popular vote, while in the special provinces, with the exception of Palawan, Batanes, Agusan, Davao, Nueva Vizcaya and Zamboanga, the provincial governors are appointed and the third members of the provincial boards are elected by the executives of the municipal units. The municipal president is the chief executive of each town or municipality, and the local legislative branch consists of a municipal council of from four to eight councillors, depending upon the number of inhabitants of the municipality. The president, the vice-president and the councillors are all elected by popular vote except in some municipalities of the special provinces where the presidents are appointed.

Area and Population.—The group is composed of 7,083 islands and islets, of which only 466 have areas of one square mile or over. The eleven most important islands are Luzon, with an area of 40,814 square miles; Mindanao, 36,906 square miles; Samar, 5,124 square miles; Negros, 4,903 square miles; Palawan, 4,500 square miles; Panay, 4,448 square miles; Mindoro, 3,794 square miles; Leyte, 2,799 square miles;

Cebu, 1,695 square miles; Bohol, 1,534 square miles; and Masbate, 1,255 square miles.

The total population, according to the Philippine Census of 1918, is 10,314,310, chiefly of Malay race, 91 per cent. of whom are Christians, and only 932,953, or 9 per cent., are Moros and Pagans, though these are fast taking advantage of the all-pervading system of public schools. The population of Manila, the capital and the leading commercial and industrial centre, is 285,306, of whom 259,437 are Filipinos, 17,760 Chinese, 1,612 Japanese, 2,916 Americans, 2,050 Spaniards, 664 English, 201 Germans, 121 French, 71 Swiss, and the rest of other nationalities.

Other towns with their estimated present population, including suburbs, are: Iloilo on Panay, 65,248; Cebu on Cebu, 83,980; Legaspi (formerly Albay), 32,372; Laoag, 40,625; Vigan, 19,520; Naga, 9,468 (all on Luzon); and Zamboanga on Mindanao, 45,567. Baguio, in the Mountain Province, is the summer capital, corresponding to Simla in India, and has a population of 8,135.

Movement of population in 1927: estimated population, 11,744,172; births, 414,357; deaths, 220,328; marriages, 93,205.

Justice and Defence.—For the administration of justice there are:

(1) The judiciary consisting of a supreme court, with a chief justice (a Filipino) and eight associate justices (three Filipinos); 28 judicial districts, each with a judge of first instance, except eight districts which have 2 judges each, and one, covering the city of Manila, which has six judges. In addition there are fifteen auxiliary judges of first instance who shall, at the direction of the Secretary of Justice, assist any District Judge or act as substitute in case of his absence, illness or incapacity. There are justices of the peace for the various municipalities and municipal districts. In the city of Manila there is a municipal court having 3 judges, who take cognisance of civil and criminal cases and also of juvenile offences.

(2) The Bureau of Justice, with one chief known as the Attorney-General, an assistant chief known as the Solicitor-General, together with 16 assistant attorneys and 4 special attorneys. Working under the supervision of the Bureau of Justice there is a fiscal or prosecuting attorney for each province, sometimes with assistants.

Public order is maintained through the municipal police and the Philippine Constabulary. The strength of the Constabulary at present is 398 officers and 6,331 enlisted men, distributed throughout the Archipelago and occupying 157 stations. The United States maintains in the Philippine Islands at present a force of about 11,000 troops of the United States Army. This includes 6 regiments of Filipino soldiers.

Religion.—The dominant religion of the islands is the Roman Catholic (8,724,965 adherents). In 1902, an independent Filipino Church was founded by the Rt. Rev. Gregorio Aglipay, at one time Ecclesiastical Governor of the diocese of Nueva Segovia, under the Roman Catholic Church. The new church adheres to modern science, proclaims that science is superior to Biblical tradition, denies the possibility of miracles, and conceives God as an invisible Father with one essence and a single person. The rituals resemble somewhat those of the Roman Church. Latin was originally prescribed, but the Spanish language is now the official tongue, and encouragement is given to the vernacular dialects. Marriage is allowed to its apostates. According to the Government Census of 1918, the Independent Filipino Church had 1,417,448 followers, but in the last Church Census its followers numbered 4,000,000. Several Protestant denominations have extensive organisations and have many communicants (165,235). They co-operate in maintaining a Union Theological Seminary, a Sunday School Union and an "Evangelical Union" which forwards reform movements, evangelistic campaigns, etc. The Buddhist religion is professed by 24,263 men and women, while the Mahomedans number 443,037, and are chiefly to be found in the districts of Mindanao and Sulu.

Education.—Education in the public schools of the Philippines is free, secular, and co-educational, its principal aim being the spread of literacy on the basis of a common language, English. In December, 1927, there was an annual enrolment of 1,107,589 pupils in the 7,361 public schools, with 293 American and 25,726 Filipino teachers. The expenditure on public-school education for 1927 was 8,972,592 dollars (Insular only, excluding provincial and municipal). There are a number of special schools, including the Philippine Normal School, and eight provincial normal schools; the Philippine School of Arts and Trades, and 21 provincial trade schools; the Central Luzon Agricultural School, 28 provincial agricultural schools, together with some 275 farm settlement schools, specializing in agriculture, a number of which are particularly intended to benefit the non-Christian population; the Philippine Nautical School, the Philippine School of Commerce and the School for the Deaf and the Blind. For higher education there is the State-supported University of the Philippines; the total number of students in 1927-28 was 5,853 in the collegiate departments and 1,675 in the other departments; and 22 accredited private institutions of higher learning—among them the University of Sto. Tomas, founded in 1611, the oldest university under the American flag—giving collegiate instruction in liberal arts and sciences and in technical courses. There are eight schools of nursing of secondary grade. There are in all 347 separate private schools of all grades of instruction accredited by the Government. The total enrolment in these approved private schools and colleges in 1927 was 86,695, and the total number of instructors and teachers was about 3,916.

On January 1, 1928, there were 165 newspapers and periodicals published in English and other languages.

Finance.—The revenues and expenditures of the central government for six fiscal years were:—

—	1922	1923	1924	1925	1926	1927
	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars	Dollars
Revenues	30,475,552	33,390,415	37,879,218	41,715,375	39,803,468	39,842,983
Expenditure	37,806,722	34,089,578	33,615,336	34,436,880	38,090,577	39,184,749

The total bonded debt on December 31, 1927, amounted to 79,782,500 dollars. The total debt service in 1927 amounted to 5,042,808 dollars.

Production and Industry.—The principal products are rough rice ('palay'), Manila hemp ('abacá'), coconut, sugar cane, corn, tobacco and magney. During the year ending June 30, 1927, the areas planted were: abacá, 480,150 hectares; coconut, 500,010 hectares; sugar-cane, 287,340 hectares; tobacco, 83,970 hectares; rice, 1,807,060 hectares; corn, 561,430 hectares, and sweet potatoes, 76,490 hectares. The principal fruit is the banana, with 97,050 hectares planted; there are also mangoes, 18,000 hectares; and papaya, anonas, pilinut (Canarium commune), and mandarin and oranges. Production of cleaned rice in 1927 was 1,425,000 metric tons. The cultivation of rubber is increasing yearly, especially in the southern provinces where the large plantations are located. The total area planted to rubber throughout the Islands is 2,570 hectares.

In the production of copra and coconut oil the Islands are classed among the foremost countries in the world. During the year 1927, there were produced 410,160 metric tons of copra which represented the return of only 62 per cent. of the trees cultivated. The remaining trees were still young.

The live-stock industry is increasing steadily. On December 31, 1926, there were: 1,825,000 carabaos (water buffaloes); 1,021,000 cattle; 309,000 horses and mules; 9,298,000 hogs; 1,421,000 goats and 369,000 sheep.

The areas of uncultivated land are very considerable. The Archipelago has a total area of 29,629,600 hectares, and of these only 3,706,410 hectares, or 12 per cent., are cultivated, the remainder being distributed as follows: commercial and non-commercial forest lands, 18,819,281 hectares, or 64 per cent.; grass or bare lands, 5,604,819 hectares, or 19 per cent.; mangrove swamps, 270,868 hectares; unexplored lands, 1,228,142 hectares.

The Islands possess about 39,285,220 acres of commercial forests furnishing chiefly cabinet and construction timber, but also gums and resins, vegetable oils, rattan and bamboo, tan and dye barks and dye woods, and 7,198,300 acres of virgin forests, covering 63.5 per cent. of the total area of the Islands. About 98 per cent. of this belongs to the Government. Exports of logs and sawn timber, 1927, totalled 72,084,632 board feet out of a total production of 424,000,000 board feet.

Gold is the only mineral produced in commercial quantities. Output in 1927, 79,872 ounces valued at 1,651,100 dollars. Some silver and a small amount of platinum are recovered from the gold mining operations. Chromite has been discovered in Zambales. The small iron production is consumed entirely in the manufacture of native agricultural implements. The total value of mineral production in 1927 was 4,578,000 dollars, in 1926, 4,400,755 dollars.

All manufacturing is carried on in small factories; the only exceptions are 37 sugar mills, 6 coconut oil mills, 7 desiccated cocoa factories and 3 large cigar and cigarette factories.

Commerce.—The values of imports and exports for fiscal years ending June 30 are stated as follows in U.S. dollars (50 cents U.S. currency = 1 peso):—

	1923	1924	1925	1926	1927	1928
Imports . .	84,474,287	95,876,514	117,231,665	117,087,112	117,851,858	124,943,942

Exports to United Kingdom (Board of Trade figures) for calendar year 1928, £2,252,855; imports from United Kingdom, £1,265,270. These totals include Guam.

Shipping and Communications.—The overseas trade of the Philippine Islands during the year ending June, 1928, was carried mainly by 242 American vessels aggregating 1,283,800 register net tons, 389 British with 1,420,484 net tons, 128 Japanese with 421,862 net tons, 138 German with 551,606 net tons, 72 Dutch with 232,409 net tons, 51 Philippine with 133,948 net tons, and 66 vessels of other nationalities, making a total of 1,086 vessels with a net tonnage of 4,176,150 entered direct from foreign countries. The coastwise trade of the Islands is carried exclusively by domestic vessels.

On January 1, 1928, there were in operation, 943 post-offices, 557 money-order offices, 8,292 miles of insular telegraph lines, and 692 miles of cable, with 444 telegraph offices, including 40 radio stations. At the same time there were 919 postal savings banks in operation, with 229,500 accounts. The amount of deposits in the banks on January 1, 1928, was 6,849,166 pesos (Philippine currency).

When the United States entered the islands in 1898 there was but a single line of narrow gauge track running between Manila and Dagupan, a distance of about 120 miles. At the end of 1927, the Manila Railroad Co. had 657 miles on Luzon, and the Philippine Railroad Co. had 181 miles on Panay and Cebu. The Government has taken over the former of these companies. Total length of roads, 7,076 miles. Besides the foregoing roads there were 3,032 miles of foot and horse trails.

Banking and Coinage.—There are twelve banks doing business in the Islands. Four are foreign: the International Banking Corporation, the Hong-Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, the Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China and the Yokohama Specie Bank; the working capital of the four, September 1, 1928, stood at 6,500,000 dollars. The eight domestic banks are: the Bank of the Philippine Islands, formerly the Banco Español Filipino, the Philippine National Bank, the Mercantile Bank of China, the China Banking Corporation, the Philippine Trust Company, the People's Bank and Trust Company, the Postal Savings Bank and the Monte de Piedad and Savings Bank. Combined resources of all banks on September 1, 1928, was 242,000,000 pesos. The Philippine National Bank was inaugurated, under a special charter granted by the Philippine Legislature, on May 2, 1916. The Government has now purchased all the privately-owned shares of stock of the bank and its capital stock has been reduced to 5,000,000 dollars, fully paid-up, of which the Government, December 31, 1927, held 4,876,100 dollars. The Government guarantees the final redemption and payment of the circulating notes of the institution. Since July 1, 1916, the Bank has been the sole Government depository. This bank and the Bank of the Philippine Islands, founded 1852, are the only ones that have the privilege of issuing notes.

The Philippines is on the gold-exchange standard.

The coins used in the Philippine Islands are of the following decimal denominations: Peso, one-half peso, peseta (20 centavos), media peseta (10 centavos), all in silver; five centavo, in nickel; and one centavo, in copper. Treasury certificates and bank notes are issued in one, two, five, ten, twenty, fifty, one-hundred, two-hundred, and five-hundred peso denominations. The Philippine peso is equivalent to fifty cents of the United States money. The maintenance of the parity of the peso with the gold is provided for by the Gold Standard Fund Act of June 13, 1922. The new peso now coined contains twenty grammes of silver, 800 fine. The Philippine coins are now coined at the Mint in Manila.

GUAM

The Island of Guam, situated at the southern extremity of the Mariana Archipelago, in latitude 13° 26' N, longitude 144° 48' E, is the largest island of that group. It was ceded by Spain to the United States by the Treaty of Paris (December 10, 1898). It is under the jurisdiction of the Navy Department of the United States, and has been designated as a Naval Station for the purposes of government and protection. A garrison of marines and a shore naval force are maintained here. Guam is a saluting port.

The length of the island is 32 miles, the breadth from 4 to 10 miles, and the area 210 square miles. Agaña, the seat of Government, is about eight miles from the anchorage in Apra Harbour. The port of entry is Piti. The number of inhabitants (exclusive of the military establishment and non-native residents) on June 30, 1928, was 17,654, of whom 16,517 were classed as 'natives.' The number of births in the fiscal year 1928 was 875, representing 51.4 per 1,000, and the number of deaths 275, representing 17.1 per 1,000 of population. The native language is Chamorro, but Spanish and English are also spoken. English is the official language.

The Governor of the island, a naval officer appointed by the President, takes precedence over and is entitled to the honours due to an Admiral. The Governor is also the Military Commander of the island, Commandant of the naval station, and combines the functions of the executive, legislative and judicial power of the Government. The judiciary system comprises one police court, an Island Court, a Court of Equity, a Higher Court of Equity, and one Court of Appeal. The Spanish Colonial laws, modified when necessary by executive general orders of the Governor, are still in force.

Elementary education is compulsory. There are 3,517 pupils registered, 2,677 of whom are of school age (7 to 12). English, handicrafts and agriculture are taught.

There is a Government radio station on the island, which is also in cable telegraphic communication with all parts of the world. There is an irregular mail service per westbound U.S. army and navy transports, from San Francisco, via Honolulu, and to Manila.

A line of commercial steamers, with scheduled sailings from San Francisco every 90 days, stops at Guam westbound en route to Manila. The station ship makes about four trips a year to Manila, China, and Japan for freight and coal.

The port is closed to foreign vessels of war and commerce except in special cases. Permission to visit the island must be obtained of the Navy Department in each case.

The products of the island are maize, copra, rice, sweet potatoes, coffee, cocoa, and sugar, besides valuable timber. Copra and coconut oil are the principal exports. There are about 4,000 head of cattle, including 900 water buffaloes. The imports into the island in the year ending June 30, 1928, amounted to 454,600 dollars, and the exports to 195,863 dollars.

The official currency is that of the United States.

Governor.—L. S. Shapley, Captain U.S. Navy (appointed November 21, 1925).

SAMOAN ISLANDS.

(AMERICAN SAMOA.)

The Dutch were the first to visit the Samoan Islands, in 1721-22; French explorers followed in 1768 and 1787. In 1791, a British war vessel visited the islands.

The history of American Samoa commenced in the year 1872, when the harbour of Pago Pago, in Tutuila, was ceded to the United States for a naval and coaling station. In 1878, this cession was confirmed and rights of freedom of trade and extra-territorial jurisdiction in Samoa were granted. On June 14, 1889, the conference between the representatives of the United States, Germany, and Great Britain was held at Berlin, resulting in the treaty recognising the Samoan Islands as neutral territory, with an independent government, the natives being allowed to follow their own laws and customs, while for civil and criminal causes, in which foreigners were concerned, there was established a Supreme Court of Justice, in which an American citizen was the presiding judge. This arrangement continued till 1898, when disturbances regarding the right of succession to the office of king arose. In 1899, the kingship was abolished, and, by the Tripartite Treaty of November 14 of that year, accepted in February 13, 1900, by the United States, Great Britain and Germany renounced in favour of the United States all rights over the island of Tutuila and the other islands of the Samoan group east of 171 degrees of longitude west of Greenwich, the islands to the west of that meridian being assigned to Germany.

The Island of Tutuila, 70 miles from Apia, has an area of about 40.2

square miles, with a population of 6,616 (including the island of Aunu'u) according to the 1926 census. Ta'u has an area of 14 square miles, and the other islets (Ofu and Olosega) of the Manu'a group have an area of about 4 square miles with a population of 2,069. Swain's Island, annexed in 1925, is from a mile and a half to two miles in diameter. Population (1926) is 87. The total area of American Samoa is 60 square miles and according to the 1926 census, contained 8,763 inhabitants. The harbour at Pagopago, which penetrates the south coast like a fjord, is the only good harbour in Samoa. It is a United States naval station.

The Commandant is also the Governor of American Samoa by commission from the President of the United States. He appoints officers and frames laws or ordinances, but native customs (not inconsistent with United States laws) are not changed without the consent of the people.

The islands are organised in three political divisions corresponding to the old Samoan political units. In each District there is a Native Governor, County Chiefs and Village Chiefs. All of these officials are appointed by governmental authority although the District Governor has indirect control of the County Chiefs, and the County Chiefs of the Village Chiefs. Judicial power is vested in village courts, in six judicial district courts, and in a High Court. There is a native guard (known as the Fitaftas) of 77.

There are no public lands in American Samoa. Nearly all the land is owned by natives. The soil is fertile; the fruits comprise orange, lime, banana, mangoes and alligator pears. Copra is abundant and is of excellent quality.

The Island Government has established a system of public schools, giving every child over 6 years of age the opportunity of an elementary English education: 1,868 pupils are enrolled. All private schools must teach English a percentage of the time. The four religious missions here also conduct schools for pupils of all ages, instruction being given chiefly in Samoan. Pupil enrolment is as follows: London Missionary Society (established 1830), 2,214; Roman Catholic (French), 159; and Mormon, 167. Mission schools, total, 2,440.

The natives pay their taxes in cash, or copra, on the 1st of January of each year, after the budget for that year has been prepared and approved. The annual output of copra is approximately 1,300 tons. The chief island products, besides copra, are taro, breadfruit, yams, coconuts, pine-apples, oranges, and bananas. Copra is the only article exported. Imports: 1924, 194,362 dollars; 1925, 192,412 dollars; 1296, 148,163 dollars. Exports: 1924, 150,280 dollars; 1925, 150,333 dollars; 1926, 78,033 dollars.

About 30 miles of public roads have been constructed. There is a United States Naval high-powered radio station located on the island of Tutuila, which has daily communication with New Zealand, Australia, Honolulu, the United States, and the islands of the Pacific. This radio station is open to commercial traffic. The fast mail steamers of the Oceanic Steamship Company touch here on their regular trips between the United States, Hawaii and Australia.

OTHER COUNTRIES

ABYSSINIA.

(ETHIOPIA.)

THE ancient Empire of Abyssinia, or 'Ethiopia,' includes the former Kingdoms of Tigré, in the north-east; Amhara and Gojjam, in the centre, and Shoa in the south; besides many other smaller and formerly independent or quasi-independent dependencies, together with the modern acquisitions to the south, Harrar, and the Galla, Shankalla and Dankali territories. The following are the principal provinces into which the country is divided: Harrar; Wollo, Gurage, Kaffa, Gore, Sayu, Benishangul, Wogera, Southern Tigré, Adowa and Aksun, Sokota, Lasta, Goffa, Nekemti (Lekempti) and the Western Galla countries, Sellale, Wollaga, Gimira, Sidamo, Arussi, Borana, Gojjam, Gondar, Jimma. The whole area is 350,000 sq. miles. For treaties relating to the boundaries of Abyssinia see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1907, p. 667, and for 1928, p. 677.

By the convention of Addis Ababa of October 26, 1896, between Italy and King Menelik, the independence of Abyssinia was recognized.

Under an Agreement signed December 13, 1906, on behalf of Great Britain, France, and Italy, the three Powers undertake to respect and endeavour to preserve the integrity of Abyssinia; to act so that industrial concessions granted in the interest of one of them may not injure the others; to abstain from intervention in Abyssinian internal affairs; to concert together for the safeguarding of their respective interests in territories bordering on Abyssinia; and they make agreements concerning railway construction in Abyssinia and equal treatment in trade and transit for their nationals. By an exchange of Notes dated December 14-20, 1925, Great Britain and Italy more specifically defined their respective spheres of interest in Abyssinia, as indicated in the above agreement; in particular Italy recognised the exclusive right of Great Britain to deal with the waters of Lake Tsana, while Great Britain agreed not to oppose any Italian scheme for railway development in the hinterland of Eritrea or Italian Somaliland, which may affect Abyssinia.

Government.

Empress.—Zauditu, a daughter of Menelik, born 1876; nominated Empress on September 27, 1916.

King Regent and Heir to the Throne.—Taffari Makonnen, born July 17, 1891, crowned King (Negus) on October 7, 1928.

After the overthrow of the Emperor Theodore by the British in 1868, the suzerain power passed to Prince Kassai of Tigré, who assumed the old title of Negusa Nagast ('King of Kings'), and was crowned in 1872 as John II., Emperor of Ethiopia. After the death of this potentate in 1889, Menelik II., King of Shoa (born 1844), became the supreme ruler of Abyssinia. Menelik died in December, 1913, and was succeeded by Lij Yasu, born in 1896, son of his second daughter, Waizeru Shoaragga and Ras Mikael, the chief of the Wollo Gallas.

On September 27, 1916, Lij Yasu was deposed by public proclamation, and Zauditu, another daughter of Menelik, was nominated Empress and "Queen of Kings of Ethiopia," and Ras Taffari, G.O.B., G.C.M.G., L.L.D., son of Ras Makonnen, and great-nephew of Menelik, proclaimed heir to the throne. The Empress was crowned at Addis Ababa on February 11, 1917, and the King on October 7, 1928. Negus Taffari married Waizeru Menen in 1912, and has 2 sons and 3 daughters.

Since his coronation Negus Taffari has striven to modernize the political institutions which are essentially of a feudal character, analogous to those of early mediæval Europe.

Abyssinia was admitted into the League of Nations on September 28, 1923.

Population.

No reliable figures of population exist, but recent estimates indicate a figure of about 10,000,000. The Abyssinians, properly so called, number rather less than 3 millions, and inhabit the provinces of Tigré, Amhara, Gojjam, and Shoa (in part), covering an area of over one-third of the whole country. They are Christians, and are of Hamitic origin, semiticized by waves of Semitic invasion from Arabia and adulterated by intermarriage with Negro and other conquered races. The Gallas, some of whom are Christian, some Moslem, and some Pagan, comprise more than two-thirds of the entire population, and are a pastoral and agricultural people of Hamitic origin. Ogaden, Issa and other Somalis inhabit Harrar, the Somaliland plateau, and the south-east. The Danakil are Mohammedans, and are still somewhat turbulent. There are also Negroes (in the South-West), and the Falashas (of Jewish religion), in the N.-E. centre with a growing number of foreigners (Indians, Arabs, Armenians, Europeans) in the towns.

There are few towns in Abyssinia in our sense of the word—Addis Ababa, Dire Dawa and Harrar being the most important. Addis Ababa, the capital, has 60,000 to 70,000 inhabitants with a foreign population of several thousands, of whom the majority are British Indian and British Arab subjects, Greeks and Armenians. Dire Dawa contains about 30,000 people, of whom about 300 are Europeans, and the old walled city of Harar has a population of about 40,000, with about 100 foreigners, mostly Indians and Arabs. Other important towns, politically or commercially, are: Debra Markos, capital of Gojjam, 5,000; Gondar, capital of Amhara, 3,000; Adua, capital of Tigré, 5,000; Axum, ancient capital of Ethiopia, 5,000; Antalo, former capital of Tigré, 1,000; Ankober, former capital of Shoa, 2,000; Debra-Tabor and Makallé; Gore, Saiyu, Nekemti, Samaré 8,000-4,000, and Sokoto, 1,500, important trading centres. Gambella, in Western Abyssinia, is a trading station leased to the Sudan Government. It is an important outlet for the trade in the West. A service of steamers is maintained from June to November with Khartum.

Domestic slavery is a recognized institution, but slave trading, by an ancient law renewed by a decree issued in June 1923, is punishable by death. A comprehensive edict of 45 clauses was issued by Negus Tafari in March 1924, providing for the gradual emancipation of slaves, beginning with the children born of slaves.

Religion and Education.

Since the conversion of the Abyssinians to Christianity in the fourth century they have retained their connection with the Alexandrian Church through the Abuna, or head bishop, who is always a Copt, and who is appointed and consecrated by the Coptic Patriarch of Alexandria. Under the Abuna is the Itchege, a native ecclesiastical dignitary, who presides over the spirituality, numbering about 100,000 ecclesiastics. It is estimated that a quarter of the adult male population are priests, monks, or debertera (deacons), and a third of the land belongs to the Church, whose power is very great. Both Copts and Abyssinians are monophysite, rejecting the decrees of the Council of Chalcedon (A.D. 451).

Education is restricted to the teaching of the secular and regular clergy. There are 2 schools at Addis Ababa and 2 Mission schools at Harar, a French and Greek school at Dire Dawa. The attendance is not large as yet. The people are in consequence illiterate and ignorant. A few foreign missions, Swedish, American French, Italian and German, carry on a limited amount of educational work. The Greeks and Armenians have their own schools.

Justice.

Justice is administered by the provincial governors, and shums, or petty chiefs, with the right of appeal to the Emperor. The Fetha Nagast, or Code of Laws, deals with ecclesiastical, civil and penal law. The legal system is said to be based on the Justinian Code. The penal code is based on the Mosaic law. Foreigners are subject to the jurisdiction of a special court or to their own consular Courts according to circumstances. Administration of Justice is very defective, but punishments for crimes are less barbarous than formerly.

Defence.

The Abyssinian Army in the field consists of two main parts. The standing army composes the nucleus, and the remainder of the forces are drawn from the chiefs and their retainers summoned in time of war, a sort of militia. Besides the above, a varying number of irregulars join the army on the outbreak of war, every man, except the priests, being an actual or potential soldier. The standing army, instituted by Menelik, forms in effect the paid standing garrison of each province, and amounts altogether to something under 100,000 men. Both they and the militia, amounting to perhaps 300,000-400,000 men, are very loosely organized, and have nothing in the shape of transport, and little modern equipment. Practically every man is armed with a rifle, and often with shield and sword as well. The personal army of the Regent, Ras Tafari, consists of a few thousand men, and is armed with modern rifles, some Lewis guns and mountain guns. The Regent possesses a 5-ton tank given to him by the Duke of the Abruzzi during his visit to Abyssinia in May, 1927.

Agriculture and Industry.

The chief industries are pastoral and agricultural. Cattle, sheep, and goats are numerous. The horses of the country are small but hardy, and make excellent polo ponies; mules are bred, being used as pack animals; donkeys are also small and serve for baggage animals. The soil belongs theoretically to the Negus; the idea of landed property scarcely exists among the populace, and agriculture is therefore backward. Cotton, the sugar-cane, date-palm, coffee, and vine thrive well in many districts, but, except coffee, are nowhere extensively cultivated. The production of Harari coffee (long berry Mocha) is on the increase. Besides this, which is cultivated, there grows more especially in southern and western Abyssinia a wild coffee plant, yielding a berry known as Abyssinian coffee, which grows in extensive forests. The supply is said to be unlimited. The native produce includes hides and skins, wax, barley, millet (dhurra), wheat, gesho (which serves as a substitute for hops), and tobacco; but, with the exception of hides, skins, wax, grain and coffee, not in sufficient quantities for export. Manufacturing industries are practically non-existent. The forests abound in valuable trees including rubber. Iron is found in some districts and is manufactured into spears, knives, hatchets, &c. Placer gold mining and washing are carried on in the western districts; coal, copper and sulphur have been found, also platinum. There are said to be valuable deposits of potash salts in the north-eastern part of the country, and their exploitation has been carried on with the aid of Italian capital.

Foreign enterprise has begun to establish itself in the country; three Belgian companies are working coffee plantations, and a Franco-Belgian company is experimenting on a large scale with cotton.

Commerce.

The principal artery of trade is the Franco-Ethiopian railroad, but caravans also do a large trade in the interior. The chief trade routes besides the railway are the following:—(1) Khartum-Gambella, Khartum-Gallabat, and Sudan; (2) Mombasa-Nairobi-Moyale (British East Africa); (3) Zeila Jijiga, Hargeisa-Ogaden (British Somaliland); (4) Massawa-Asmara-Gondard Assab-Dessie (Italian Eritrea); (5) Mogadishu-Lugh-Dolo-Arusi (Italian Somaliland).

The exports consist mainly of hides and skins (including leopard and monkey), coffee, wax, ivory, civet, and native butter. The imports comprise grey sheeting, cotton yarns, artificial silk, corrugated sheets and bars, hardware cement, kerosene and petrol, glass and salt. The imports are chiefly from England, France, India, Italy, Germany, Japan, and the United States. The value of the leading imports into Abyssinia from and via the Sudan in 1927 were:—cotton and silk goods, £E.32,225 (£E.83,331 in 1926); salt and Sudan products, £E.12,502 (£E.11,710); Maria Theresa dollars, £E.4,783 (£E.5,070). Exports from Abyssinia to and via the Sudan in 1927 were:—coffee, £E.164,604 (£E.214,369 in 1926); wax, £E.823 (£E.6,842); and other goods, £E.15,133 (£E.24,775).

The total trade between Abyssinia and Great Britain for 5 years (according to Board of Trade returns) was as follows:—

	1924	1925	1926	1927	1928
	£	£	£	£	£
Imports from Abyssinia.	28,094	119,057	104,892	238,311	351,679
Exports to Abyssinia	12,838	21,781	16,368	16,051	19,955

Communications.

Roads in Abyssinia are mere tracks, and transport is effected by means of mules, pack-horses, donkeys, and, in some places, camels. In the capital and its vicinity several miles of metalled road were constructed in 1926. In 1896 the Franco-Ethiopian Railway Co. was formed for the construction of a line from Jibuti in French Somaliland, which reached the capital in 1917. The line is of metre gauge, with a total length of 488½ miles. Trains run twice weekly in each direction, covering the distance in three days, but running by day only. The railway is under French management, and depends financially on a subvention from the French government.

A road is also projected from the Eritrean frontier to Dessie to connect with a new road to be built by the Italians from the frontier to the port of Assab where Abyssinia has been granted port facilities.

There are telegraph lines (about 2,000 miles) connecting Addis Ababa with Harrar, with Sidamo, with Jibuti in French Somaliland, and with Massawa in Eritrea. Telephone lines connect Addis Ababa with Harrar, also with Gore and Gambella (in the west), Jimma and Sharada (south-west), Dessie (north), and Debra Tabor and Gojjam, and with Ankober, and Asmara with Adua and Borromeida. In 1925, there were 10 post offices.

Money and Credit.

The Bank of Abyssinia, with authorised capital of 500,000*l.* and paid-up capital of 125,000*l.*, has its head office at Addis Ababa and agencies at Diré Dawa, Goré, Gambella and Dessie. By its constitution the Governor of the National Bank of Egypt is its President, and its governing body sits at Cairo.

The current coin of Abyssinia is the Maria Theresa dollar and the Menelik dollar. This latter coin, worth about 2*s.*, weighs 28·075 grammes, '835 fine. It has nominally the same value as the Maria Theresa dollar, but in some places it is not taken at all. Other silver coins are the half, quarter, and sixteenth (girsh or piastre) of a dollar, and there is also a copper coin, the besa (= one-thirty-second of a dollar). The number of piastres or besa obtainable for a dollar although theoretically fixed by law, is in fact liable to constant fluctuation. Various articles, however, are used as medium of exchange; bars of salt are accepted as money in many parts of the country, at a fluctuating rate according to supply and cost of transport. Cartridges are also currency, although to a diminishing extent; and in most places barter prevails.

The metric system of weights and measures is used to a certain extent in the capital and district bordering the railway line. The principal native weights and measures, which are also used in trade with foreigners, are shown below.

Weights and Measures.

WEIGHTS.

Oke = weight of Maria Theresa/Menelik dollar = 28,067 grammes, approximately 1 oz. avoirdupois.

Natr = 80 okets, approximately 1 lb. 14 ozs. avoirdupois.

Farasula = 20 natrs, approximately 37½ lbs.

Kantar = 100 lbs.

1 Waggia (for ivory) = 480 dollars weight.

1 „ (for rubber) = 640 dollars weight.

LINEAL MEASURES.

Kinn = French Coudée (length of forearm and hand) = cubit = 50 centimetres = 19¾ inches.

Khalad = 130 kinn = 65 metres = 213½ feet, say 71 yards.

LAND MEASURE.

The measure is a Gasha, which varies according to the quality of the land, and ranges between 15 khalads by 25 khalads, and 7 khalads by 11 khalads, the latter equalling roughly 80 acres.

GRAIN MEASURES.

10 kounna = 1 ladan.

2 ladan = 1 darwala = 80 kilos.

MEASURE FOR HONEY AND CIVET.

10 wanche (horn cups) = 1 goundo = about 3 litres.

Diplomatic Representatives.

1. OF ABYSSINIA IN GREAT BRITAIN.

None.

2. OF GREAT BRITAIN IN ABYSSINIA.

Minister.—Sir Sidney Barton, K.B.E., C.M.G. (appointed March 12, 1929).

First Secretary.—Robert Dunbar, M.C.

Oriental Secretary.—Philip Zaphiro C.M.G.

Consul at Addis Ababa.—R. W. Bulland, C.I.E.

There are Consuls also at Harrar, Goré, Maji, Dangila and Mega, and a Vice-Consul at Jijiga.

There is also an Honorary British Vice-Consul at Jibuti in French Somaliland.

AFGHANISTAN.

AFGHANISTAN is a country of Asia lying between parallels 29° and 38° 20' of north latitude, and 61° and 72° of east longitude, with a long narrow strip extending to 75° east longitude (Wákhán). For the boundaries, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1925, pp. 654-55; for the treaty of November 1921, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK 1928, p. 642; and for earlier British relations with Afghánistán, see THE STATESMAN'S YEAR-BOOK for 1916, pp. 662-3.
